THE HAGUE (Holland) July 13.—First-hand information reaching here shows that the organization failed for once and that in the last air raid on Cologne the Germans were taken completely by surprise.

There were no warnings and the people of Cologne imagined they were looking at Hun planes, when bombs began to drop all over the city.

The woman killed in a tram car was only recognizable by her husband because she had her arm over his, which confirms the information that the tram car was completely destroyed.

There is now such fear of raids in Cologne that German servants have to be offered double wages to induce them to remain.

THE GREAT WAR. French troops smash way forward for 2000 yards on three-mile front southeast of Amiens regaining important positions that have been held by the Germans since the beginning of the March offensive. Striking heavily along the Avre River the French troops gathered in more than 500 Hun prisoners and drove back the enemy on a sector vital to the defense of Amiens.

Between the Aisne and the Marne the Germans are being slowly forced from all high ground. Further gains southward by the French will endanger the German positions west of the Avre to below Mondidier, west of which the Americans hold Cantigny.

German artillery is reported active in the Lys sector. At Bucquoy, between Albert and Arras, the British repelled German raids.

Rain has been falling for several days on the western front, helping the Allies by making it difficult for the Germans to bring up supplies over the cut-up ground.

The Italian and French forces continue to advance in Albania where the Austrians have lost enormous amounts of war supplies. The capture of Berat gave the Italians the bulk of the Austrian supplies in that district, that being the main enemy base.

Heavy rains check enemy's activity on the American front and in some sectors not a single German shell came over in twenty-four hours. Weather has allowed our men to strengthen their positions almost unobstructed.

Hindenburg's death, if he is dead, will not seriously handicap Germany, is conclusion drawn by Harry Carr in Checkerboard of War.

FRENCH FLAG TO FLY OVER CAPITOL TODAY.

PRESIDENT SENDS STIRRING MESSAGE OF DEVOTION TO SISTER ALLY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—"Bastille Day" will be celebrated tomorrow by America in honor of the heroic part France is playing in the defense of the liberties of the world. President Wilson today ordered that the French flag be displayed over all public buildings and ships at home and abroad, and had a special flagstaff placed on the White House to bear the national ensign of France beside the Stars and Stripes.

Tonight the President sent the following message to President Poincare:

"America greets France on this day of stirring memories with a heart full of warm friendship and of devotion to the great cause in which the two peoples are now so happily united. July 14th, like our July 4th, has taken on a new significance, not only for France, but for the world. As France celebrated our Fourth of July, so do we celebrate her Fourteenth, keenly conscious of a comradeship of arms and of purpose of which we are deeply proud.

"The sea seems very narrow today. France is so close a neighbor to our hearts. The war is being fought to save ourselves from intolerable things, but it is also being fought to save mankind. We extend our hands to each other, to the great peoples with whom we are associated, and to the peoples everywhere who love right and prize justice as a thing beyond price and consecrate ourselves once more to the noble enterprise of peace and justice, realizing the great conceptions that have lifted France and America high among the free peoples of the world.

"The French flag flies today from the staff of the White House, and America is happy to honor that flag."

Secretary Daniels has been designated to attend the Bastille Day meeting at night, tomorrow as the President's personal representative. The British and French Ambassadors will be among the speakers.

Greetings of American labor to the workingmen of France were sent tonight, in a message to L. Jouhaux at Paris.

Greetings of the American people to the French people were extended in a resolution adopted by the House, which directed the Secretary of State to communicate the resolution to President Poincare. It calls on the American people to observe tomorrow as a holiday in a manner similar to that which the French observed July 4.

Four-minute men of the Committee on Public Information have instructions to read tonight and tomorrow to the 35,000,000 people they address a message to the people of France, which has been given to Ambassador Jusserand for transmission.

The Military Situation

BY J. B. W. GARDNER,
War Expert of the New York Times.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—The most notable event of the week has been the sensational advance of the Allied forces, in particular of the Italians on the Albanian front. For the past year this front has been entirely quiet. That it has blazed out again, however, is not strange. The front attacked, stretching from the Adriatic Sea to the Tomoritza Valley is guarded entirely by the Austrians.

In preparing for the offensive against Italy, which has just been broken and driven back across the Piave with destructive losses, Austria summoned to the Italian front every resource in men she could muster. Of guns she had sufficient without making such drafts. But in men she needed all that could possibly be spared.

One of the sectors from which men were undoubtedly drawn was the front in Albania. The Italians either were apprised of this fact by the capture of contingents who were known to have been on the Albanian front, or learned of the transfer through efficient reconnaissances and seeking to take advantage of the opportunity this afforded, made a heavy and very sudden attack against the Austrian lines.

TOOK A CHANCE.

The Austrians had taken a chance. The inactivity in Albania had led them to believe that there would be no movement here. They acted on that belief and as events have shown, lost. In this attack, the Italians had, as far as is evident no particular immediate objective. They saw a chance to advance and they seized it, trusting to the way the offensive developed as to how far they would go.

The country in which the fighting has occurred is the most hopeless from the standpoint of adaptability of military operations that one could imagine. It is first of all a mass of tangled mountains with practically no plains, and with only narrow valleys.

The mountains are divided and cut up by a number of winding streams which flow in all directions in their effort to find an outlet to the sea. The mountains rise directly from the river valleys with no flats between so that in practically every case the rivers are flowing rather through gorges than through valleys.

ROADS LACKING.

The country is, or was before the war, almost trackless and was certainly without any adequate roads. Here and there are metalled roads which run for a short distance and then degenerate into mountain trails.

But there is no continuous road system which will facilitate the movement of troops and supplies by motor transport. Railroads are entirely absent, the nearest being that from Saloniki which stops at Monastir. The question of supplies is therefore a vital one, and one which, if any road should happen to change hands or be made impassable by artillery fire, must cause great embarrassment and considerable difficulty.

When the Italians attacked, they selected apparently several different lines of advance. There is, of course, no such continuous line of troops as is found on the western front. Rather the forces are broken up into masses, more or less numerous, who operate in accordance with a general plan, of course, but more or less as independent Intervention.

WILSON AGREES TO PLAN FOR CONTROL OF SIBERIA

American, British and French Forces to Join Japanese as Nucleus of New Slav Government.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Allied protection of supplies in Russia, and especially Siberia, has been definitely decided. President Wilson has acquiesced in the plan and will send at least a division of American troops. British troops from Egypt, India or the Antipodes will go in about the same numbers and the French will also contribute a similar number. The American, British and French will aggregate about one hundred thousand men. Japan will add its quota of 400,000 men. President Wilson will make formal announcement within a few days.

It is expected that this formal statement will show that this international expedition is for the protection of supplies to be used for a reorganized and stable Russian government and to resist any attempt to secure these supplies by German ex-prisoners of war and the Bolsheviki aids they have attracted to them.

It will be shown that this armed force is simply a protecting shell that will permit the Czecho-Slovaks and other constructives in Russia to mobilize and bring order and system out of chaos. The movement is not in any sense intervention, but protection in the sense that it is an international protectorate force to remain there until the stable and substantial portion of the Russian people can stand alone against the invasion and undermining of the Hun.

British and French operations are under way, and American military machinery will soon be in operation. As already forecast, the men of America will go from the West Coast, some probably from Camp Kearny and some undoubtedly from American Lake. Just how large a diversion of American shipping to Pacific service will be necessary is not known, but that the Shipping Board is in a position to care for all the demands necessitated by this expedition is known.

While no intimation of the President's attitude can be obtained from the White House, it is definitely ascertained that the other governments have started their machinery and it is as definitely known that such action was absolutely contingent on the consent and co-operation of the American government.

BRITISH AND SLAVS.
[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—News of the dispatch of British reinforcements to Siberia to support the Czecho-Slovaks and Russians controlling Vladivostok and a long stretch of the Trans-Siberian Railroad, was received here today through official channels. Apparently whatever may come of plans for Allied and American military intervention in Russia on a great scale, the hard fighting Czecho-Slovaks are to be given by the Allies the aid necessary to prevent them from being crushed by Bolshevik forces operating with released German prisoners.

Just what British forces have been dispatched is not known, nor is it clear whether the movement is part of a general plan of action determined upon in the absence of American approval and co-operation in an intervention programme. British, American and Japanese marines and bluejackets already are ashore at Vladivostok guarding war stores.

Final decision to put this scheme into operation is said to have been what officials meant last week when they said the period of waiting was over.

DISCUSSED BY CONGRESS.

Russia was discussed today in both houses of Congress. Senator Borah of Idaho made a plea for both military and economic intervention opening a debate in which Senator Thomas of Colorado said Maj. Raymond Robins of the Red Cross had informed him peaceful methods would be most successful and Senator Poindexter of Washington denounced the Bolshevik leaders as traitors. In the House Representative London of New York, Socialist, defended the Bolsheviki and predicted that order would be brought out of chaos in Russia.

John Zookine, of the Russian mission, issued a statement asserting that any attempt to establish a government of national character must fail without friendly Allied help.

"The elements for a national movement tending to liberation from the German grip exist in Russia, as revealed by the Moscow revolt and the valiant Czecho-Slovak movement," said Mr. Zookine. "The apparent failure of this movement through combined German-Bolshevik attacks proves that any attempt of a national character would not succeed without friendly Allied help."

From other sources today came reports of constant guerilla fighting in the Ukraine between armed peasants and German military forces. The results were not reported.

ALLIES MOVE TO BLOCK HUNS' PLANS IN RUSSIA.

BY ERNEST MARSHALL.
[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright.]

LONDON, July 13.—It is admitted here today that the Allied force is occupying Murman at the request of the local population, and the feeling regarding the general Russian situation is much more hopeful than it was a few weeks ago. Plans of the Germans have been fully realized and steps to defeat them are being taken with concurrence of the Northern Russians whatever the Moscow Bolsheviki say.

The German aims are believed to be threefold, first, to take the Murman coast with the aid of the Finns, and form submarine bases on the Northern Arctic Coast at Petchanger and Kola Inlet. Second, to get the Murman railway and intercept all direct Russian communication with the open sea. Third, to advance on Vologda and cut communications between Petrograd and the Trans-Siberian Railway and so isolate it completely from the world.

The influence of the Bolshevik government is on the wane and in many parts of the country separatist and anti-Bolshevist movements have sprung up. The Bolsheviki are trying to enforce conscription and have raised about 600,000 troops whom military experts declare to be perfectly useless and quite unwilling to fight. There are thirty-two German and fifteen Austrian divisions from the Gulf of Finland to the Black Sea, from which the best officers and men have gone to the western front. In Finland there is about one German division.

In Southern Russia the Germans are aided by Gen. Krastoff, who has set up as a local anti-Bolshevik pro-German dictator and with his followers have occupied the important and rich Don Valley. A little further they will tap the Volga Valley and bring its rich resources by the Don River to the Black Sea.

In the Caucasus the Germans are aiming at the oil deposits. The only pro-Entente elements there are Armenians and local Bolsheviki. The Armenians will fight the Turks to the last but are not prepared to show the same stern resistance to the Germans.

The Czecho-Slovaks now hold most of the Trans-Siberian Railway from Pensa to Nijni Udinsk, over 2000 miles, and the Czecho-Slovaks in Vladivostok are marching west to meet them.

The Siberian land owners opposed to the Bolsheviki have set up a government at Nijni Udinsk and the general situation in that part of Russia is considered as distinctly hopeful and there may be developments soon.

Heavy Rains Clog Battlefield, Spreading Disease Among German Troops in Flander

Slough of Despond.

STORM, TYPHUS AND GUNS ALL FIGHT AGAINST HUNS

British Artillery Batters Enemy's Rear Areas and Nightly Raids Keep Him Worried at Front.

BY PHILIP GIBBS.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, July 13.—There were heavy thunderstorms yesterday over the northern front, and rain has fallen heavily for several hours at a time between spells of sunshine. Rather like April weather this, good for French farmers except those who have not yet labored in their hay, and may be good for the British armies if the rain falls long enough to bog the old battlefields behind the German lines and swamp their ways of communications.

Few days of steady rain will be enough to reduce the Somme battlefield again to the same old slough of despond through which our men had to wallow through two winters of war.

In Flanders, between Passchendaele and Ypres, there will be filthy lakes and slush, in which guns get stuck and the feet of men are clogged. So let it rain.

Anything that is bad for the enemy just now is good for us. He has been having a bad time from our artillery, and prisoners talk of heavy casualties inflicted upon his gunners by our counter-battery work.

MANY DIRECT HITS.

Beyond Lys, according to these men, the German guns have been damaged by our many direct hits, even though they keep changing positions to avoid our fire. The transport also has suffered. And in the district of Lys they lost 800 horses in six weeks.

"Flanders grippe," as they call the sickness which is now rife among them, is not the only form of sickness which is weakening their man power for the time. Typhus is said to have occurred in at least one resting division. It would be interesting to know how far this has spread among other troops and whether the wet weather will tend to increase or diminish the chance of infection.

Meanwhile our troops are not giving much peace to the German divisions holding the line, while behind them there is intensive training by shock troops for the next assault. As late as last night there were many small raids which resulted in the capture of prisoners and the destruction of German trenches and dugouts. These covered our line between Flanders and the Somme and ought to result in useful information regarding the enemy's present condition.

WELSH TROOPS RAID.

One of the most important raids in the early hours yesterday morning was made by Welsh troops, who found the enemy in strength against them around the village of Hamel, near our old victory ground of Beaumont-Hamel and not to be confused with the other village of that name taken on July 4 by the Australians. The Welsh attacked with skill and resolution and carried out their purpose in spite of strong machine-gun fire and desperate resistance of the German soldiers. They brought back sixteen prisoners and one machine gun after destroying many German dugouts and inflicting heavy loss on the garrison. They were not able to get off Scot-free themselves and there was an exciting quarter of an hour, when only the gallantry of the Welsh officers and men overcame the difficulty of the situation.

On larger scale was the operation of the Australian troops near Merris. They had bided their time again to make one of those assaults on the German outpost line which they have carried out successfully in the neighborhood of Lamotie Forest, where they kept the enemy in a continual state of nervous apprehension. The German system of defense here is to hold a fairly wide No Man's Land and thrust out small posts linked up with shell craters, in which he hides snipers and machine guns in advance of the main line. That, of course, is to avoid the shell fire concentrated upon definite lines and to keep his battalions as far back as possible.

UNPLEASANT SITUATION.

It is not a pleasant situation for the outpost garrisons, who often are cut off for a time from rations and their way back by the barrage of shell fire which is flung behind them. And with the Australians against them they know that any time of the day or night they are likely to be looking into the glint of bayonets. So it happened to them Thursday evening quite suddenly. The Australians' attack opened with an enterprise of a party of four who went across to a German stronghold and returned soon afterward with the astonishing number of thirty prisoners. Then a bigger crowd of Australian lads got on the move and went as deep as 800 yards and as wide as 2000 over No Man's Land and the German outpost line. They encountered little opposition and brought in 150 prisoners and fifteen machine guns.

The men belonged to the Fourth Bavarians, whose morale did not seem to be of the highest. A little while ago they were addressed by Prince Franz of Bavaria, who rebuked them for losing so many prisoners to the British and ordered them to strengthen their defenses. This speech is said to only have made the men sullen and when they were ordered into the front line some of the older men refused point-blank to go, and did not go. The Australians are contemptuous of their fighting qualities and there is an amusing story of an Australian sergeant who was told off to attend some classes.

He pleaded he was no scholar and asked what he could do instead. "Oh," said his officer in a casual way, "you might go out and bring back half a dozen Boches." The sergeant sloped off and shortly after, to the astonishment of the officers, brought back eight Germans whom he had taken with the aid of a chum. He was let off his lessons.

AIR WORK HAMPERED.

The war in the air has been somewhat hampered by the violence of the weather, but our airplanes have been carrying out the usual reconnaissances when the visibility has been fair. The loss of Maj. J. B. McCudden is deeply regretted by the Royal Air Force, who knew him as one of our most skillful and audacious pilots.

He had not been flying at the front for some little time, but he came over from Scotland and landed at a village in France. Then he made the flight which was his last. Something went wrong and he crashed and was killed.

He seems to have had no special method in gaining mastery over the German fighting planes, but he had cool judgment and iron nerve. He was a fine shot and believed this gave him superiority. His record of victory credits him with forty-five enemy aircraft crashed and driven down. One of his most notable adventures was some time last February, when he left one morning and, flying at 10,000 feet, saw many enemy scouts in the air about him. He mounted 560 feet higher and flew over them and, picking out one, secured a good position and fired long bursts at him with both guns. The enemy fell in a vertical dive and all four wings fell off.

Shortly afterward, flying at 5500 feet, he saw another enemy and at 100 yards' range opened fire on him and drove him down in flames, so that the ground was strewn with wreckage. He challenged a third German airman and drove him down with the water flowing from the radiator. His own wind screen was covered with ice, owing to a leak of the aviator's button. Recrossing our lines, he met an enemy machine at 15,500 feet high and shot it so that it was seen to fall sharply out of control. After that McCudden landed, but the same morning he went up again and fought another duel with a German aviator who tried to avoid fight, but was closely pursued by McCudden, who crashed him and saw pieces of wreckage fall on the field. That was only one day in the life of this fighting airman and he had others like that crowded with single combats and tourneys against unequal odds.

WAR OFFICE STATEMENTS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 13.—In an operation carried out last night on the front between Montdidier and the Oise the French pushed their advanced posts forward a distance of approximately 500 yards in the vicinity of the Porte Farm, the War Office announced today. (The Porte Farm is in the vicinity of Antheuil, northwest of Compiegne.) This farm together with the Loges Farm, near by, was captured by the French in a local operation on the evening of July 8. The statement reads:

"Between Montdidier and the Oise the French in the course of the night advanced their forward posts 500 meters in the region of the Porte Farm.

"Several raids were carried out by French troops north of the Avre (southeast of Amiens,) in the region of the Oise, on the Marne, and in the Champagne, resulting in the taking of prisoners."

The War Office's announcement tonight says:

"We carried out this morning a local action north and east of Longpont, advancing our positions in an eastern direction, and notwithstanding the enemy resistance, we crossed the Savieres, opposite Catifet farm. About thirty prisoners fell into our hands.

"The number of [illegible] tured by us yesterday in the region of Montdidier is more than 600. We took, in addition, more than eighty machine guns.

"Eastern theater, July 12: There were patrol encounters on the Struma, where Greek troops dispersed a Bulgarian detachment, and at the Cerna Bend. Artillery activity was displayed on both sides in the neighborhood of Doiran, east of the Vardar and in the region of the lakes. In the course of aerial engagements an enemy airplane was forced by the British to land near Doiran. In Albania the enemy has retreated on an organized line delimited by Pashtani, Selchani, Hill 500, the confluence of the Tomorica and the Devoli and Kurshova. The number of prisoners taken by our troops has increased to 470. The enemy suffered very heavy losses during his retreat."

BRITISH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—Successful minor enterprises were carried out by the British last night on the Flanders front near Vieux Berquin and Merris, as a result of which ninety-six prisoners were taken and a few machine guns captured, the War Office announced today.

A German raiding party which advanced upon the British lines in Flanders, in the Meteren sector, was repulsed.

The German artillery developed activity during the night on the Flanders front and opposite Beaumont-Hamel.

The statement follows:

"Yesterday English and Australian troops again carried out successful minor enterprises near Vieux Berquin and Merris, capturing eighty-six prisoners and a few machine guns. Our casualties in the past two days in this sector have been exceptionally light.

"During the night English troops raided the German trenches north of Hamel and brought back twenty-two prisoners.

"A raid attempted by the enemy north of Meteren was repulsed.

"The hostile artillery has been active opposite Beaumont-Hamel and in the Strazeele and Locre sectors."

The following official communication on aerial operations was issued tonight:

"Low clouds and heavy rainstorms prevailed on the western front July 12. Enemy aircraft showed no activity and our own machines could only carry out observation work for the artillery during the brief intervals of brighter weather. There were no aerial combats or casualties. At night, notwithstanding the high wind and an overcast sky, our airmen made some useful reconnaissances and dropped four tons of bombs."

The official report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters in France reads:

"A few prisoners were captured last night by one of our patrols in the neighborhood of Bcyelles. A raid attempted by the enemy this morning south of Bucquoy was repulsed. The hostile artillery has shown some activity during the day south of Arras."

ROME, July 13.—The official communication issued by the War Office today says:

"Yesterday afternoon large enemy detachments began to attack our position on the Cornome slopes. Our garrison attacked the enemy with the bayonet, driving him back to his trenches. Numerous dead were left behind the lines, 66 men were taken prisoner and four machine guns were captured.

"On the remainder of the front the fighting was moderate. At the Pasubio both artilleries were active. Enemy reconnaissances in the Frenzela and Brenta valleys were checked. Ten hostile airplanes were brought down.

"In Albania our troops maintain contact with the enemy on his new line north of the Semeni. East of the Lower Devoli retreating columns of the enemy were dispersed by our detachments Thursday night. Between the Semeni and the Voyusa the clearing of the ground and the gathering up of booty continues. The number of prisoners taken since July 6 is more than 1800."

BERLIN (via London) July 13.—Heavy fighting at various points, in attacks launched both by the British and French, is described in the official communication from general headquarters today. The statement says:

"Southwest of Bailleul attacks by strong British detachments were repulsed on frequent occasions. In the same way enemy thrusts launched during the night north of Albert broke down.

"Violent artillery duels on the west bank of the Avre were followed by French partial attacks between Castel and Mailly. The enemy, after violent artillery preparation, repeated these attacks in the afternoon near Mailly, and in the evening along the battle sector and obtained possession of Castel and the Anchin farm. East of this line his attacks broke down under our counter-attacks.

"Between the Oise and the Marne fighting activity continued lively. Renewed attacks by the enemy north of Longpont and south of the Ourcq were repulsed. Fighting activity has been revived in the middle Vosges and Hartmans Weilerkopf. Northeast of Pont-a-Mousson and the Fave region attacks launched by the enemy during the night broke down."

ON WEST FRONT.

DEVELOPMENTS FOR 24 HOURS.

[Undated War Summary by the Associated Press.]

Rainy weather in Northern France has caused the thorough soaking of the ground, particularly in the low-lying portions of the battle front, and perhaps has had something to do with delay of the German offensive.

It is a month now since the last offensive died down, swamped by the tide of a French success north of Compiegne, and there is no sign of the enemy's being ready to strike again.

The Allies have been repeatedly pushing back the German lines little by little at various important points. These have gained valuable defensive ground and brought in thousands of prisoners.

German diplomatists are again airing war-aims programmes, and engaging in peace discussions among themselves. The Chancellor has touched the vital question of Belgium in the relation of the status of that nation to peace, and has declared Germany does not intend to retain that country "in any form whatever."

She is holding it as a pawn in the negotiations, he said, and the German government finds it expedient to explain this attitude in an official statement in which it is declared that the holder of a pawn does not intend to keep it, "if the negotiations bring a satisfactory result."

The Albania campaign, although entirely subsidiary to the operations of the western front, has continued to be the most active theater of the war, so far as extensive gains of ground are involved. The advance, made mainly by the Italians with the French on the right flank, has already reached a maximum depth of twenty-two miles on a front of some eighty miles, straightening the Allied line as it runs from the Adriatic, and links up with the Macedonian front.

NEWSPAPER AT THE HAGUE SAYS APOPLECTIC STROKE FOLLOWS INTERVIEW.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, July 13. — Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is dead, according to the newspaper Les Nouvelles. His death is said to have occurred after a stormy interview with the German Emperor at Great Headquarters at Spa.

The Emperor and the field marshal are declared to have had serious difficulties of opinion concerning the German offensive toward Paris. The field marshal died from congestion of the brain.

The violent interview between Von Hindenburg and Emperor William occurred on May 16, Les Nouvelles says. It was followed by an apoplectic stroke which ultimately resulted in the field marshal's death.

The newspaper says its information was obtained "from good sources in the occupied district of Belgium."

Government Operation.

WIRE CONTROL MEASURE PASSED BY THE SENATE.

President is Empowered by Congress to Take Over Telegraph Lines.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Congress tonight granted President Wilson's request for authority to take over and operate telegraph, telephone, cable and radio lines. By a vote of forty-six to sixteen the minority all Republicans—the Senate adopted, without change, the House resolution granting such power for the period of the war.

The resolution will be signed by presiding officers of the Senate and House and transmitted to the President, Monday.

All attempts to amend or modify the administration measure, which passed the House, July 5, by a vote of 221 to 4, were defeated at a session, lasting until 9 o'clock tonight. Amendments by Senator Watson of Indiana to except telephones and press wires from the resolution were defeated, respectively, 41 to 20, and 39 to 21. An amendment by Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Democrat, to limit action regarding telephones to long distance wires was voted down, while an amendment by Senator Reed of Missouri, designed to insure unrestricted public use of facilities, was twice rejected.

SENATE ROLL CALL.

The roll call on the resolution follows:

For adoption:

Democrats: Ashurst, Bankhead, Benet, Fletcher, Henderson, Hitchcock, Jones, New Mexico; Kendrick, King, Lewis, McKellar, Martin, Myers, Nugent, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Pomerene, Ransdell, Reed, Saulsbury, Shafroth, Sheppard, Shields, Sissons, Smith, Arizona; Smith, Georgia; Smith, South Carolina; Swanson, Thomas, Thompson, Trammel, Underwood and Vardaman. Totals, 35.

Repulicans: Colt, Curtis, Johnson, California; Jones, Washington; Kenyon, Knox, Lenroot, Nelson, Norris, Poindexter and Sterling. Total, 11.

Total for resolution, 46.

Against adoption:

Republicans: Borah, Brandegee, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Hale, Harding, Kellogg, McCumber, New, Penrose, Sherman, Smith, Michigan; Smoot, Wadsworth, and Watson. Totals, 16.

ABSENT SENATORS.

Of Senators absent and paired, it was announced that Senators Beckham, Johnson, South Dakota; McNary, Walsh, Gerry, Gore, favored the resolution and Senators Calder and Sutherland were against adoption.

Senators voting for the Watson amendment to exempt telephone wires from the operation of the resolution were: Borah, Brandegee, Curtis, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Hale, Harding, Kellogg, Knox, Lenroot, McCumber, New, Penrose, Sherman, Smith, Michigan; Smoot, Sterling, Wadsworth and Watson.

Those voting to except press wires were:

Senators Borah, Brandegee, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Hale, Harding, Johnson, California; Kellogg, Lenroot, McCumber, New, Penrose, Pomerene, Reed, Sherman, Smith, Michigan; Smoot, Sterling, Wadsworth and Watson.

MILITARY NECESSITY.

Congress was asked to pass the legislation last week, and the President's insistence upon immediate action upset plans for a long recess last Saturday night. Secretaries Baker and Daniels, and Postmaster-General Burleson appeared before the House committee to urge action as a military necessity, the War and Navy Department heads declaring the government should control communication systems to protect secrets and insure prompt handling of government messages.

A call for a strike of Western Union operators called for Monday by union officials was mentioned frequently in the debate, but played virtually no part in determining the action of Congress.

Republican opposition to the measure was based largely on the contention that no military necessity had been shown and on objection to what was termed a further step toward government ownership and Socialism.

THE RESOLUTION.

Following is the resolution:

"Resolved, that the President, during the continuance of the present war, is authorized and empowered, whenever he shall deem it necessary for the national security or defense, to supervise or to take possession and assume control of any telegraph, telephone, marine cable or radio system or systems, or any part thereof and to operate the same in such manner as may be needful or desirable for the duration of the war, which supervision, possession, control or operation shall not extend beyond the date of the proclamation by the President of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace; provided, that just compensation shall be made for such supervision, possession, control or operation, to be determined by the President; and if the amount hereof, so determined by the President, is unsatisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid 75 per cent. of the amount as determined by the President and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as added to said 75 per cent., will make up such amount as will be just compensation therefor, in the manner provided for by section 24, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the judicial code: Provided, further, that nothing in this act shall be construed to amend, repeal, impair or affect existing laws or powers of the State in relation to taxation or the lawful police regulations of the several States, except wherein such laws, powers or regulations may affect the transmission of government communications or the use of stocks and bonds by such system or systems."

MAY ACT SOON.

Although the statements of the Cabinet officers indicates that the powers might be used as soon as granted, there has been no announcement as to just what the President intends to do, or when. During debate on the resolution it was said the government would take over only trunk lines and connecting systems, leaving to their own managements the thousands of rural and small independent systems throughout the country.

Wage increases may be expected within thirty days after the government assumes wire control, declared Senator McCumber, in the debate which preceded its passage.

"If the President tells Congress this measure is necessary and why, I would vote for it," he concluded.

Senator Wadsworth of New York said the lack of knowledge about the telegraph and telephone "is complete in governmental circles." Politics, he charged, were back of the measure, and the intention was to bring permanent government ownership. He aded that before the Military Committee, of which he is a member, it never was even suggested that military operations were handicapped by the lack of control of the wires.

Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin said he believed the President was ill-advised regarding the threat of a strike.

DUTCH WARN ALLIES BOMBS NOT WELCOME.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

THE HAGUE, July 13.—The Dutch government has charged The Netherlands Minister at London to protest against the violation of Dutch territory by an airplane on June 22, when the machine dropped two bombs near Ouderschans, wounding one person and causing material damage. The government also asks compensation for the damage done by the explosion.

GERMANS EXPRESS FEAR THEIR HOLD ON RUSSIA IS SLIPPING.

GERMANY is exercised at the situation in Russia, if the utterances of her newspapers go for anything, says the Associated Press. The idea that the Bolsheviki are retaining power by a thread is reflected in advices to some of the German organs. The fear the German edifice erected by the Brest-Litovsk treaty will fall is openly expressed. Disquietude over the hold the Czecho-Slovaks have secured upon Siberia and at the prospect of an Allied descent into interior Russia "from the north," the Murman coast evidently being meant, is likewise voiced. In this connection, it may be noted, it was announced in Washington yesterday that British reinforcements have been sent to Siberia to assist the Russians and Czecho-Slovaks in protecting the Allied stores at Vladivostok. Washington advices reflect the view that further and more definite peace feelers may be expected. Germany is thought to have her eyes turned to the east, the gaining of control in Russia outweighing, in her estimation, all territory she might have been inclined to make an effort to retain upon the western front.

ALLIED TROOPS TO AID RUSSIA.

tervention in Russia by the United States was urged in the Senate today by Senator Borah of Idaho, who declared that not until that has been accomplished could a lasting peace be made.

Senator Borah pointed out that Russia early in the war, by compelling the Central Powers to maintain a force on the eastern front, prevented the Allies' defeat at the battle of the Marne.

MANY PRO-ALLIES.

"I have no doubt in my mind that there is a tremendous force in Russia that is not in sympathy with the German cause," said Senator Borah. "There is a powerful force in Russia that would be willing to co-operate with any force that entered Russia without selfish purposes."

The Bolsheviki force represents only a small per cent. of the Russian people, Senator Borah said, while Lenine was "but an incident."

Senator Thomas of Colorado said he had learned from Maj. Raymond Robins of the Red Cross, who recently returned from Russia, that peaceful endeavors in Russia would accomplish most for the Allied cause.

Lenine and Trotzky were denounced as traitors to Russia and the Allies by Senator Poindexter of Washington. Mr. Robins, he added, "would have us give aid and comfort to these traitors."

QUESTIONS ROBINS.

Senator Reed of Missouri asked if Robins or his associates were Socialists, and Senator Johnson of California said none of them was, and that their view was that the United States should co-operate with the Soviet government "so Russia's resources would come to the Allies."

Moses Goldstein, a former Philadelphia cigar store clerk, became the Bolshevik official to suppress opposition newspapers, Senator Poindexter said. His oppression, he added, recently led to his assassination.

"Goldstein is typical of the leaders of this government of Russia," commented Senator Poindexter.

A plan for action in Russia contemplating propaganda and trade extension work by Russians who have resided in this country, was presented today to Chairman Hitchcock of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by a committee from the Russian American Economic League, said to represent 500,000 Russians in the United States.

SUPPORT FOR ALLIES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—The Allied powers will have full support of the new Siberian government, according to assurances sent by Lieut.-Gen. Horvath, provisional ruler of Siberia, to the correspondent of the Daily Mail at Harbin.

Gen. Horvath announced he would repeal all Bolshevik decrees, restore fully all Allied treaties, both political and commercial; re-establish disciplined and nonpolitical army and restore property. He also favors Siberian autonomy and religious freedom.

JAPAN'S AID URGED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—Commenting on developments in Russia the Times contends that the Czecho-Slovaks "who have practically seized all Siberia must be helped without delay."

"Manifestly Japan is in the best position to help quickly," the Times adds, "but we trust that eventually all the Allies will participate in an enterprise so full of promise."

In an editorial which displays anxiety over developments in Russia, the Frankfurter Zeitung infers that the successes of Czecho-Slovaks have overcome the objections of the Entente to intervention and it refers to "the undertaking which England is preparing for the north against the heart of European Russia," as more serious than the attacks which it assumes the Japanese will deliver from the east.

The newspaper thinks that the Moscow soviet government is faced with immediate peril. The newspaper continues:

"If the Entente's action should lead to the collapse of the soviet government, very little of the Brest-Litovsk peace would remain, and the task which seemed to have been accomplished would face German policy once more—a task that would be more difficult than it was the first time."

The Finnish Senate has decided to expel all Jews from Finland, according to advices from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph. More than 300 Jewish families will be forced to leave the country.

The Senate justifies its decision on the ground that Jewish financiers placed funds at the disposal of the Red Guards. The Jews declare that they were forced by the Red Guards to give up large sums of money.

MIRBACH DEATH DECREED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSAERDAM, July 13.—The assassination of Count von Mirbach, the German Minister at Moscow, was ordered by the executive of the social revolutionaries of the left, and was carried out in person by one of the party's confidential agents, says a Kiev dispatch to the Rheinische Westfaelische Zeitung of Essen.

The correspondent declares the agent's name is known.

The revolutionary movement in Moscow has not been suppressed, according to the Kiev correspondent of the Rheinische Westfaelische Zeitung of Essen. The Bolsheviki are able to hold their own only through assistance of Lettish guards, he declares.

Dispatches from Kiev, received in Vienna, report that a continuous stream of Constitutional Democrats is arriving in that ancient Russian city to join their leader, Paul N. Milukoff.

Milukoff is reported to have declared the published statement he had offered Germany a protectorate over Greater Russia was based on a misunderstanding. He was desirous of "Russia orientating itself toward the Central Powers."

BOLSHEVIKI DESERT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MOSCOW, July 13 (via Amsterdam.)—Speaking at the all-Russian soviet conference now in session, Leon Trotzky, Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine, declared that he had received news from the front that unity among the soviet troops had suffered as the result of an Anglo-French propaganda. Part of the Bolshevik force, the Minister added, had "deserted to the enemy."

BOLSHEVIKI CAPTURED.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

COPENHAGEN, July 13.—The Tidens Tegn says it learns that when 2000 Russian Bolshevik troops recently arrived at Murman, on the Arctic coast, counter-revolutionaries captured and disarmed them. Later the government soldiers were allowed to return to Moscow.

BRITISH LABOR GETS WAR AIMS TO ENEMY.

FIVE REPLIES, INCLUDING GERMANS, FAVOR INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

NORTHAMPTON (Eng.) July 13.—Arthur Henderson, labor leader and member of the British War Cabinet, speaking today at a labor conference here, said the British labor party last month had succeeded in getting its statement of war aims into the hands of the Socialists of enemy countries and that five replies thus far had been received. Mr. Henderson continued:

"The first reply came from the Bulgarian Socialists, who accepted practically all the general points of our memorandum, reserving some unimportant points regarding Macedonia.

"The second reply came from the Hungarian workers, who have submitted to the Stockholm committee a statement of policy much on the lines of our memorandum.

"The third reply came from the Austrian Socialists, who accepted the principles of the inter-Allied memorandum as a basis for discussion. They indorsed our conception of a Federal system for Austria-Hungary and a system for the Balkan states.

"They declared they had always repudiated the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty and they agreed that Alsace-Lorraine and Italian, Polish and colonial questions must be solved in accordance with the desires of the peoples concerned.

"The fourth reply came from the German minority Socialists, who submitted a statement to the Stockholm committee on the lines of the inter-Allied memorandum.

"The fifth, and the most significant reply, came from the German majority Socialists, who endeavored to send it by Troelstra, but the action of the Allies in refusing passports to Troelstra prevented the written document from reaching us. Nevertheless, we received a summary which shows that the German majority Socialists declared their willingness to take part in an international conversation on the basis of the proposals made by the neutral Socialists.

"It also seems clear that the German majority Socialists accept virtually all the principles of the inter-Allied memorandum. They are ready to discuss even the question of the responsibility for the war, although they think that no good purpose would be served thereby. They are ready to discuss Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine and believe that an amicable solution can be found. They agree to a complete restoration of Belgian independence. They urge that an international conference would be very useful at this time and, finally, they declare themselves in favor of a league of nations to prevent aggression by one power upon another."

THREE AMERICAN ARMY CORPS FORMED AT FRONT.

More than Eleven Hundred Thousand Men Now Upholding Stars and Stripes on French Soil.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Reduction by half of the time originally estimated it would take to put America's first field army in France was disclosed today with the formal announcement by Gen. March that three full army corps had been organized by Gen. Pershing and that the number of soldiers sent overseas now numbered more than 1,100,000. The eighteen divisions comprising the corps, consisting of four Regular, nine National Guard and five National Army divisional units, probably will compose the first army, which, with supplemental army troops, such as heavy artillery, will total 1,000,000 men.

Instead of one field army on January 1, 1919, as originally planned, it now appears probable that two armies will be operating in France by that date, backed by full American-built and maintained supplies. The great project of establishing the American army as the right flank of the battle line will be brought within sight.

THREE CORPS FORMED.

Gen. March said organization of the first field army had not yet been completed. The formation of the three corps and his announcement of troop movements to France proceeding at the same astonishing rate that has been the rule the last three months made the American military programme clear. Three army corps of from 225,000 to [illegible] men each have been definitely organized from American divisions in France, Gen. March announced.

Maj.-Gen. Hunter Liggett, commanding the Forty-first (the Sunset) Division, National Guard, has been named as temporary commander of the First Army Corps. Commanders for the Second and Third have not yet been designated.

WAR SITUATION.

Gen. March had little to say regarding the military situation in France, but stated that the shipment of troops was proceeding without let-up whatever, the same rate being maintained for July as for previous months.

Gen. March told that five Regulars, nine National Guard and four National Army divisions have been used to make up the three corps.

The First Army Corps comprises the following:

First Division Regulars commanded by Maj.-Gen. Robert L. Bullard; Second Division Regulars, Maj.-Gen. Omar Bundy; Twenty-sixth National Guard, Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards; Forty-second National Guard (Rainbow,) Maj.-Gen. Charles T. Menhor; Forty-first National Guard (Sunset,) Maj.-Gen. Hunter Liggett; Thirty-second National Guard (Michigan and Wisconsin troops,) Maj.-Gen. W. G.

Second Corps: Seventy-seventh National Army (New York troops,) Maj.-Gen. George B. Duncan: Thirty-fifth National Guard (Kansas and Missouri troops,) Maj.-Gen. William M. Wright; Eighty-second National Army (Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee,) Maj.-Gen. William E. Burnham; Thirtieth National Guard (Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina and District of Columbia troops,) Maj.-Gen. George W. Read; Twenty-eighth National Guard (Pennsylvania troops,) Maj.-Gen. C. H. Muir; Fourth Division Regulars, Maj.-Gen. George H. Cameron.

Third Corps: Third Division Regulars, Maj.-Gen. Joseph E. Dickman; Fifth Regulars, Maj.-Gen. John E. McMahon; Seventy-eighth National Army (Delaware and New York troops,) Maj.-Gen. J. M. McRae; Eightieth Division, Maj.-Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite; Thirty-third National Guard (Illinois troops) Maj.-Gen. George Bell, Jr.; Twenty-seventh National Guard (New York troops,) Maj.-Gen. John F. O'Ryan.

TEMPORARY CHIEFS.

Commanders of the army corps are only temporary, Gen. March said, the policy being to wait until the various major-generals have had experience in handling corps units before making permanent selections.

Appointments as lieutenant-generals will go to the officers selected for the permanent details.

Activities along the various fronts have been of minor character during the last week, Gen. March said.

The most striking advance has been in Albania, where, aided by British and Italian monitors operating from the sea, a general advance over a crescent-shaped sector of eighty miles in length has been made, the advance being twenty-two miles at its deepest point.

The advance was carried out largely by Italian troops, Gen. March said, but they were assisted on the right flank by French.

Gen. March indicated that it was his own opinion that the time elapsed since the last German drive is not greater than would have been necessary to prepare adequately for an assault of the scope of that which the Germans are believed to be contemplating.

HEAVY RAIN CHECKS FOE ACTIVITY ON OUR FRONT.

Weather Allows Americans to Strengthen Positions Along Marne.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 13.—On the fronts in the Marne district held by American troops, last week was the quietest since the Germans were stopped at the north bank of the river. In some sectors not a single German shell was fired.

It has rained every day for the last four days in this region, with the result that the fields and roads are unfavorable for marching or fighting. At the same time the weather has worked to the advantage of the Americans, for they have been able to strengthen still further their dispositions of forces and their defenses.

German concentrations are known to be remaining where they were a week ago. It is considered possible that even with the bad conditions under foot the enemy may launch his attack at any moment.

The American troops, tucked away in their machine gun nests, gun pits and trenches, have been paying much more attention to fighting the weather than to battling with the Germans. Nice, dry holes in the ground, where the men had been baking in the hot summer sun, have been transformed into sunken, muddy puddles, while the men, encamped further to the rear, have been spending their waiting time under dripping trees.

The American patrols have been taking advantage of the darkness of these nights to cross the Marne on several occasions, thus obtaining information. These patrols have had a number of brushes with enemy groups, but no action of any magnitude.

PERSHING'S REPORT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Gen. Pershing's official communique issued today by the War Department describes operations in the various sectors occupied by American troops through July 7 to 10. It says:

"Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces, July 12, 1918.

"Section A: In the Chateau Thierry region a trench raid attempted by the enemy broke down with losses under our fire.

"Yesterday our aviators shot down a hostile machine in the region of Thiaucourt.

"Section B: In the Chateau Thierry region conditions on the day of July 8 to 9 were normal. A German patrol was driven back with losses by an American patrol in the Belleau region. There was much other patrolling activity on both sides, but there were no incidents except the fire directed from the German front lines on an American patrol.

"There was more German artillery fire than usual. Considerable circulation was noted in the Torcy region.

"In the Chateau Thierry region from July 9 to 10, the German artillery was more than usually active and his artillery nervously alert. His batteries were active in counter-battery fire, and in harassing fire on our positions in the front and rear. There was short concentration during the evening in the Voie du Chatel region. Some gas was used. There was continued intermittent rifle and machine gun fire on our positions in the Vaux area. German airplane and balloon activity was moderate. Patrols on both sides were active, without particular incident.

"Along the Marne, July 9 to 10, the activity of our artillery was the only feature of interest. We shelled the enemy postions heavily, drawing only feeble response from his batteries. German hand grenades thrown from the north bank fell into the river. A moderate number of German air patrols and a large number of German balloons were used in observation. An ammunition dump near Jaulgonne was exploded by our artillery.

LORRAINE SECTOR.

"In Lorraine, July 8 to 9, the enemy showed no particular activity except in machine gun fire. His artillery fire was light. His airplanes and balloons were constantly in observation. Our anti-aircraft was successful in driving back his airplanes. Our reconnaissance patrols operated successfully.

"The Munster sector was very quiet on July 9. There was no fire from the enemy's artillery. We drove off four of the enemy's planes. Our patrols were active.

"In the Woerve, July 7 to 8, conditions remained normal. An American patrol bombed a German outpost during the night.

"In the Thann sector, July 9, there was no unusual occurrence except an increase in the German machine gun and rifle fire.

"The German airplane reported shot down in the American official communique No. 59, Section A, was brought down July 11, near Thiacourt, by Lieuts. Jones and Tobin."

PROGRESSIVE DESPITE GERMAN OPRRESSIONS.

DUCHY OF LUXEMBOURG IS IN EARNEST OVER SUFFRAGE AND TREATY POWER.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.] [Copyright.]

PARIS, July 13.—In spite of the German violation of her neutrality and regardless of the many arrests of her citizens for expressing sympathy for the Allies, the Duchy of Luxembourg is now openly taking a keen interest in the coming parliamentary elections, because of their possible bearing on the German plans after the war.

The next Luxembourg Parliament must organize on September 14. Elections of its fifty-three members will occurr probably next month. Candidates will be voted for or against, according to their attitude toward the proposed new constitution.

The two essential provisions of the constitution, or new organic law of the duchy, which the liberal element are determined to have, are universal suffrage and the placing of the treaty-making power in the hands of the people's representatives. As it is now the suffrage is limited to property taxpayers. That qualification is done away with. Still more important, from the international viewpoint, is the plan to give treaty-ratifying power to the Parliament.

At present the Grand Duchess has complete power to make treaties without any restraint whatever. She is pro-German by sympathy and blood, and Luxembourg has suffered in commercial and industrial relations with other states because of its ruler's German affiliations and tendencies. The desire of the people is to be in a position after the war to cut loose from Germany, which has always imposed upon her the bad end of economic bargains, and to become a close economic ally of France. The first fight to bring that about will be the elections this summer.

FRANCE FINANCIALLY SOUND, SAYS MINISTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—France will emerge from the war victorious and financially sound despite her growing war debt, now amounting to $18,000,000,000, Maurice Casenave, minister plenipotentiary to the United States and financial adviser to the French high commission, told members of the Commonwealth Club at a luncheon here today.

The French people have subscribed approximately $250 per capita to war loans, he said. Although the civil population paid taxes of $37 per capita in 1917, as against $9 in the United States, increased deposits have raised the balance of the Bank of France over that of 1914, he asserted.

AIR RAIDS HALT HUN WAR PLANS

aerial warfare, for the results have been singularly discouraging from the Germans' point of view and if maintained cannot fail to react seriously upon their military plans.

During the present week, which, it is expected in well-informed quarters here as well as in Paris, will not close without the resumption of the German battle effort on the mighty scale promised by Hindenburg, Allied aerial activity has been steadily consistent. Ludendorff's preparations for a renewed offensive may very probably have been in some measure impeded and certain elements of possible surprise eliminated by the work of the air forces.

SUCCESSFUL WEEK.

For the British airmen the week has been not specially dramatic, but remarkably successful. For example, fourteen separate raids have been made by British airmen into German territory. In each case the objectives chosen have been of vital military importance, such as factories, sidings and railway workshops at Saarbrucken, the railway triangle and the Metz junction at Luxemburg and the munition factories at Coblenz. Even if German pride were not peculiarly sensitive concerning the rapidly waning immunity of German towns, military necessity alone would demand that objectives like these should be adequately defended against aerial attack.

It is known that formidable squadrons have been detailed for this purpose, yet from thirteen of these fourteen raids the British formations returned without the loss of a single machine. In the other raid two British machines were reported missing while four German aircraft had been shot down or driven down out of control. Apart from the moral effect of these constant attacks upon Germany the fact should not be overlooked that they have a direct and rapidly growing effect upon the German power of defense and maneuver against the French sectors of the front.

WRECK BIG PLANTS.

The raided area between Mannheim and the Swiss frontier contains in addition to its vast network of strategic railways a very considerable number of munition factories. These factories have had their full share of attention from the British raiders, but hardly less serious from the German point of view is the damage inflicted with its consequent dislocation of war traffic upon railway connections on which the immense German transport from the Rhine to the western front depends.

On this point the evidence of captured documents and the voluntary testimony of prisoners, repatriated civilians, etc., is highly instructive. All go to show that not only is the great and ever-increasing amount of German energy, trained man power and war material being diverted to the defense of the Rhine towns, but the interrupted war work caused by the raids is becoming increasingly a serious problem for the German authorities.

The progressive nature of this branch of British aerial activity is indicated by the fact that from the beginning of the year down to the end of June British airmen dropped 153 tons of bombs over Germany. In the month of May the record for the month's work was established at a total of just over forty-eight tons.

In June the weight of bombs dropped over Germany was sixty one and one-fourth tons. On the western front itself and in the operations against the German naval bases in Belgium, British airmen have successfully maintained their ascendancy against the strong resistance of the enemy. During the past week British squadrons dropped nearly 150 tons of bombs upon enemy positions while carrying on the vast work of observation and photographic reconnaissance throughout the battle area in the course of offensive patrols and in the protection of the reconnaissance machines far behind the enemy's lines. British airmen have destroyed fifty-two German machines and driven down thirty-seven out of control. Against the total of eighty-nine machines thus accounted for, only seventeen British machines are reported missing.

Another notable feature of the week's fighting has been continued reluctance of German airmen to face British pilots upon anything like terms of numerical equality. They have shown distinctly more combatant activity this week, but only when possessed of powerful advantage in point of numbers.

This is strikingly illustrated by the experience of three British seaplanes engaged in offensive operations on the Belgian coast. They were vigorously attacked by a formation of seven hostile machines in a prolonged fight lasting for practically an hour. Two of the enemy aircraft were sent down and destroyed. All the British machines although damaged, returned safely to their bases.

During one of the raids on a German naval works on the Belgian coast British airmen were fiercely attacked by no fewer than sixteen hostile machines. Three of these were shot down, two in flames and three driven down out of control. All of the British machines returned safely.

SEVEN MEN KILLED IN MUNITION PLANTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MONTREAL, July 13.—Two men were killed when the third floor of the munitions plant of Lymburner's, Limited, collapsed today, according to an offical report given out by the fire department authorities late today. A number of shells and debris crashed through the floor to the cellar.

Early reports gave the number of dead as eight. The fact that many workmen hurried home after the accident to report their safety made difficult the task of checking up the men in the building at the time of the accident.

Five men were killed by coming into contact with a live wire at the plant of the Metals and Munitions Products Company at Montreal East.

FAIR WEATHER FOR COAST.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Weather predictions for the week beginning Monday, issued by the Weather Bureau today, include: Pacific States, fair with normal temperature.

Baldness

—Is rapidly increasing—says Prof. John H. Austin, Chicago's bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of 39 years' practice —and is in many, many cases directly or indirectly caused by —A very common scalp trouble.

Alopecia Pityrodes—

—It starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair.

—At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly, and in time the top of head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages of life are subject to Alopecia Pityrodes, but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

—Prof. Austin says that people who are at all troubled with any kind of hair and scalp trouble, such as

—Itching Scalp
—Falling Hair
—Excessively Oily Hair
—Dry and Brittle Hair
—Dandruff
—Split Hair
—Gray or Faded Hair

—should have their hair examined at once by the Prof. Austin method.

—Professor Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

—During the past three years Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of Hamburger's patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this service.

FRENCH DRIVE FOE BACK MILE.

that when the infantry went over they found the trees in the small woods in this vicinity reduced to match wood.

The Germans had laid a widespread network of barbed wire in these woods and the shells had blown the wire into a great tangle, making progress very difficult.

The assault began early in the morning and lasted three hours. The Frenchmen advanced at some places to a depth of 2000 yards along a front extending for nearly five miles. The village of Cavel first fell. Anchin Farm next succumbed and Groshetere Wood and Brouettes Wood followed. Then Billot Wood was captured. All these positions were taken despite the most determined opposition of the enemy.

The feat of the French troops was all the more remarkable as between the two extreme points of the operation—Senecat Wood and Arhiercour Wood—the ground is broken by hills and deep ravines from which the enemy had good shelter and was able to concentrate his forces without being seen.

Nothing, however, daunted the French infantrymen and they carried the positions with courage and dash which took them considerably beyond their objectives.

The Germans suffered heavily in dead and wounded in addition to prisoners, while material and machine guns were captured in considerable quantities. The advance has given the French good observation posts from which they can see every movement of the enemy along the main road and in Moreuil and Mailly-Raineval, a region which was the scene of the severest fighting in March and April.

SCHOOLS FOR NURSES PLANNED FOR COAST.

WAR DEPARTMENT TO SPEED TRAINING OF MERCY WORKERS FOR ARMY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, July 13.—To aid in the work of speeding up the training of Red Cross nurses for military duty in the war zone, the War Department, through the surgeon-general's office, is about to establish several training schools for women, at least two of which are to be located on the Pacific Coast.

This information was today made known by Anne M. Jamme, director of the Bureau of Registration of Nurses, who has been appointed to the position of inspecting nurse under the surgeon-general, and a part of her duties will be in connection with the new schools.

The State Board of Health has granted Miss Jamme an indefinite leave of absence to permit her to accept the Federal appointment.

The civilian hospitals, private and public, are physically unable to train all the Red Cross nurses needed, Miss Jamme stated, and the establishing of schools will help to overcome this obstacle. She will begin her inspection work Aug. 1.

Through the Bureau of Registration of Nurses of the Board of Health a total of 216 Red Cross nurses have qualified as a result of the quarterly examination conducted June 19 and 20. This list, which was the largest to receive the "R. N." in the history of the bureau, resulted from the class of 255 applicants.

A large number of these nurses will be sent to the front at once, having qualified in the main essentials for military nursing.

The Military Situation.

columns, kept in touch with each other by strong flanking groups.

LINE OF ADVANCE.

The line of advance was the Voyusa River, which, after many windings reached the Adriatic Sea about fourteen miles north of Avlona, the great Italian base for the entire Albanian campaign. Still another line was the highway from Tepelen to Berat which, for some distance north of Berat is an excellent metalled road after which it breaks up into a number of minor roads which generally follow the valley of the Semeni River to the sea. A third line was the Tomoritza Valley.

The action began along the coast first where the British monitors were able to give assistance. Not only did they operate from the coast itself, but even entered the river and fought the Austrians whose troops bordered the banks. This was especially notable in the capture of Fieri. In this coastal advance, the Italians quickly moved forward for the fourteen miles which separated Avlona from the mouth of the Voyusa River and reached the lower stretches of this stream. Here the British monitors entered the river and with this assistance the Italians crossed the river and fought their way northward towards the bend in the Semeni, the next stream to the north.

CENTER EXPOSED.

This advance exposed the Austrian center to a flank attack so that but little pressure was required to start a retreat here also, the Austrians moving back toward their base at Berat. The Italians, however, had no intention of permitting the Austrians to remain in possession of this city. Therefore pressing from the west they seized the heights south and west of the approaches to Berat before the Austrian retreat had gotten well under way. When the Austrians came up the highway from Tepelen, they found the western heights already in Italian hands and their position all but turned.

Their possession of this base was therefore short lived. The Italians from the heights on both sides of the city reached most effectively all of its approaches and forced the Austrians to retire, leaving it in Italian hands. This is the most important if not the only large base the Austrians have in the entire territory. Their loss in men was not heavy because there were not a great many on the front. But in guns and equipment and supplies their loss has undoubtedly been great. The end of the retreat is not yet in sight, if we may judge from present indications.

THE WEST FRONT.

There have been on the front in France many small attacks by the French, attacks which a year ago would have been considered as having been launched on a large scale. Along the Retz Forest, which forest is the great belt of woods east of Villers-Cotterets, the French have been most active, throwing the Germans out of the small part of the woods they had taken and straightening their line out thoroughly in the open beyond the wooded area. Another action south of Montdidier has also improved their position throughly, throwing the Germans across the Avre and putting this stream between them and the German line.

In these actions the French have taken about 1200 prisoners. These relatively small losses day after day cannot but be most annoying to the Germans as they never know what is happening and before they can find out it is all over. And these small losses are assuming large proportions in the aggregate. Just what Gen. Foch's idea is in these many attacks is not clear unless it be Gen. Joffre's nibbling process carried to its limit of possibilities. It is certainly harassing and is reaching the point where it is beginning to be destructive.

Mr. Farmer

You know that your open ditch is enormously wasteful of labor, water, land and time.

You know that with uncontrolled water your application is about as scientific as that of the fellow in Arkansas who was throwing water on the roof of a house to put out a fire that was on the inside.

If any of your servants in Washington, Sacramento or elsewhere would attend to business with the same lack of thoroughness, what a roar you would send up.

Have us install an honest-to-goodness irrigation system that will save 80 per cent. of that labor and a lot of the water and land and bother and inefficient crop production.

Do it now. Telephone Van Nuys 62.

Chancellor's Speech.

ANALYZE WHAT HERTLING SAYS.

Washington Giving no Official Cognizance of It.

More Definite German Proposals not Unexpected.

Berlin Reiterates Non-desire to Retain Belgium.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—No official cognizance is being given here to the latest peace speech of German Chancellor Von Hertling before the main committee of the Reichstag.

As with all similar pronouncements, the speech is being carefully read by American officials.

There is nothing to indicate that it will be made the occasion for any step toward peace negotiations. President Wilson's last pronouncements on the subject are generally accepted as the war aims of all the allied belligerents.

The Chancellor's statement that his willingness to discuss peace was shared by the chief of the army administration was regarded as the first peace expression attributed to the military leaders.

More definite peace proposals from the German government would not be unexpected. President Wilson is known to believe that Germany is bent on gaining control of Russia and would willingly give up everything on the western front to accomplish that purpose.

BELGIUM AS PAWN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

COPENHAGEN, July 13.—Denial that Germany intended to retain Belgium was made by Count Von Hertling, German Imperial Chancellor, in the course of his speech before the Reichstag main committee on Thursday.

"The present possession of Belgium only means that we have a pawn for future negotiations," the Chancellor said. "We have no intention to keep Belgium in any form whatever."

"What we precisely want, as expressed by us on Feb. 24," the Chancellor continued, "is that after the war restored Belgium shall, as a self-dependent State, not be subject to anybody as a vassal and shall live with us in good friendly relations.

SIGNIFICANT OMISSION.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—Contradictions of policy among German officials seemingly has another illustration in the manner of publication of the statement made by Chancellor Von Hertling regarding Belgium.

The German wireless service sent a report of Chancellor Von Hertling's speech which ignored all reference to Belgium.

The natural inference seems to be that the officials who issued the wireless version do not want Count Von Hertling's statements regarding Belgium circulated.

HIS FINAL SPEECH?

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 13.—(Havas Agency)—Count Hertling's speech in the Reichstag last Thursday, says Le Matin, was one of the most awkward attempts of its kind. L'Homme Libre, Premier Clemenceau's organ, wonders if it is not the German Chancellor's last speech.

BRITISH AIRMEN THIN OUT FOES.

Account for 3856 Hun Flyers in Year; Own Loss is Only 1094.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—In one year on the British western front the Royal Air Force has accounted for 3233 enemy airplanes. In the same period the naval airmen shot down 623, a total of 3856.

An official statement dealing with these operations says:

"The Royal Air Force during the year beginning July 1, 1917, on the British western front destroyed 2150 hostile machines and drove down out of control 1083. In the same period the air force units working in conjunction with the navy shot down 623 hostile machines.

"During this period, 1094 of our machines were missing; ninety-two of these were working with the navy.

"On the Italian front from April to June, 1918, the British destroyed 165 hostile machines and drove down six out of control. Thirteen of ours were missing.

"On the Saloniki front between January and June 21 hostile machines were destroyed and thirteen were driven down out of control. Four of ours were lost.

"From March to June in Egypt and Palestine, twenty-six hostile airplanes were destroyed and fifteen were driven down out of control. Ten of ours were missing.

"In all the theaters of the war the British air superiority and strength progressed rapidly and continuously. From this it is safe to assume that when the new factor of America's output, both aircraft and personnel, enters the situation in the fighting zones, the aerial ascendency of the Entente Allies should give them very great advantages."

MONEY IN THE STRAW NOW, SAYS EGILBERT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—California farmers may save 250,000 tons of straw this year and thereby provide sufficient feed to carry over the cattle in the State until the rainy season, according to the estimate of W. D. Egilbert, special commissioner on straw stock fodder of the State Council of Defense.

Straw fodder, hitherto wasted or turned back into the soil, is now of real monetary value, Egilbert points out. He urged the conservation of grain, rice, bean and corn fodder as the farmer's patriotic duty.

Charles C. Moore, director of the defense council, announced today that he will soon name a committee of farmers, stockmen and balers to handle straw conservation in California.

COMFORT & CONVENIENCE

Their Right.

ALL PROMISED VOICE IN PEACE.

Lloyd George Says Dominions will Participate.

Must be no "Hugger-Mugger" Treaty, He Declares.

Asserts God of Brute Force Must Forever be Broken.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—The governments of British dominions will have a voice in determining the terms of peace, according to Mr. Lloyd George. The Prime Minister made this statement in a speech at a dinner given in honor of the Canadian editors who are visiting England, at which Lord Beaverbrook was the host.

"This is a war in which we engaged the empire," said the Premier, "when we had no time to consult the dominions as to policy and it is perfectly true that the policy which we adopted to protect small nations in Europe was a policy embarked upon without any consultation with the dominions. But you approved it. Henceforth, you have the right to be consulted as to the policy beforehand, and this is the change which has been effected as a result of the war.

"The contributions which you have made to enforce these treaties have given you the undeniable right to voice in fashioning the policy which may commit you, and for that reason an imperial war Cabinet is a reality.

VOICE IN PEACE.

"Another point in which you must have a voice in is the settlement of the conditions of peace. We have discussed war aims and the conditions under which we are prepared to make peace at the War Cabinet. We arrived at an agreement on the subject last year with the representatives of the dominions, and we shall reconsider the same problems in the light of events which have occurred since—and we shall reconsider the whole of these problems, I have no doubt, in the course of the next few weeks.

"Canada and Australia and New Zealand, yes, and Newfoundland—they have all contributed their share of sacrifice and they are entitled to an equal voice with the representatives of these islands—will determine the conditions under which we are prepared to make peace. Unless I am mistaken, we are pretty well in agreement upon them.

"There must be no hugger-mugger peace. It must be a real peace. We are not waging war for the sake of killing or of being killed, but for the sake of establishing a just and durable peace for the world. You cannot make peace unless it is both just and likely to endure.

SACRIFICES NOT IN VAIN.

"We, in this country, who have lost hundreds of thousands and have had millions maimed and you in Canada, whose casualties have amounted to scores of thousands and Australia, who has also played her share in these things—we are not making these sacrifices in order to establish a fraud on this earth, and anything less than a real peace will be defrauding not this generation, but the next generation—it will be defrauding humanity.

"Germany has waged three wars, and each time she has added through those wars to her strength, to her power, to her guidance, to her influence and each successive war she has waged has inevitably encouraged her on to the next. If she had had one check you would not have had this war. If this war succeeds in adding one square yard to her territory, of adding one cubit to her stature, of adding a single iota to her strength, it will simply raise their idea of militarism for which the world is being sacrificed at the present moment.

"The God of Brute force must this time forever be broken and burnt in its own furnace."

CONGRESS BEGINS ITS VACATION TOMORROW.

A FEW TO ATTEND NOMINAL SESSIONS TWICE WEEKLY TO COMPLY WITH LAW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Congress was ready tonight to start its summer vacation Monday. The Senate, after passing the telegraph resolution, agreed to suspend important business and take a series of three-day recesses until August 26, beginning Monday. A similar programme for the House was blocked late today, but it is expected to go through when that body reconvenes Monday.

Under the arrangement only a few members will remain to attend the perfunctory sessions twice each week, and outgoing trains tonight carried Senators and members of the House departing for their homes or summer residences.

The vacation plan, it is said, has the sanction of President Wilson, who called upon Congress last week to defer holiday plans to enact the telegraph resolution. The three-day plan was adopted because of the constitutional provision against longer recesses by either house without the consent of the other, and also because Congress technically remains in session prepared for any emergency action.

Plans for the recess were almost upset in the Senate at the last minute by informal objection from Seator Johnson of California, who said he believed Congress "should stay on the job." Since the majority of the Senate was in favor of the recess, however, Senator Johnson did not withhold unanimous consent.

At the suggestion of Senator Smith of Georgia, however, the agreement was modified so as to provide that if a quorum should be present before August 26, the agreement could be set aside and regular business transacted three days thereafter.

Did You Ever Buy a Dollar for Fifty Cents?

That's what you can do Monday at Walker's Shoe Store. They are clearing out a stock of summer footwear, selling $5 and $6 shoes for $3. Women's oxfords, pumps and boots, also shoes and oxfords for men—all styles, all colors and all sizes. The sale commences Monday, July 15. There are two Walker's stores—429 South Broadway and 709 South Broadway, just south of Seventh st.

GERMANS BECOMING VERY SICK OF WAR.

WOMEN IN BAVARIA COMMIT SUICIDE WHEN UNABLE TO FEED FAMILIES.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

THE HAGUE, July 13.—The German people are openly showing their dislike of a continuation of the war, and the outlook for crops appears to be universally bad. In certain parts of Bavaria there have been meatless weeks for some time past, although these are only just announced in the Reichstag, when the people were also told not to count on the Ukrainian and Rumanian food supplies.

A woman from Hanover recently went to the country to collect some food for her family, which on her return was confiscated by the police. The woman drowned herself the same evening. There are numerous cases of mothers committing suicide because they are unable to feed their children properly.

Returned German prisoners from Russia, who formerly got four months' leave on their return to Germany, now only get a few days before being sent back to duty.

A German soldier was heard to remark recently: "We go into action as divisions but come out only as battalions. It is time this senseless waste of life was stopped."

German soldiers are often seen wearing bloodstained uniforms taken off dead comrades.

OIL SHIP EXPLODES, FOUR DEAD IN HOLD.

THIRTY-ONE RESCUED FROM NEW YORK HARBOR AS VESSEL BURNS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—Four men are believed to have perished today in an explosion and fire which destroyed the Spanish steamship Serantes, of 3000 tons gross, in New York Harbor, causing a loss of approximately $3,000,000. The vessel, loaded with oil, was under lease to the Standard Oil Company and scheduled to sail tomorrow for Spain. It now lies a blackened hulk off Bay Ridge.

The men who lost their lives were reported to have been trapped in the hold. Members of the crew who escaped said the decks became so hot they were forced to jump into the water. A United States Coast Guard cutter hastened to the rescue when officers noticed a great volume of smoke rising from the Serantes. Before the cutter arrived there was a tremendous explosion, apparently in the hold of the Spanish ship, and most of her superstructure was torn away.

Thirty-one officers and members of the crew were picked up. They said the fire started in the afterpart of the Serantes and spread so rapidly they were forced to flee.

Banker Refuses I.W.W. Farmer $50.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, July 13.—James Maloney, a North Dakota farmer, met with disdain from his banker when he wanted to borrow $50 to come to Chicago to testify for the I.W.W., he said today in court. "This banker," related the witness, "asked me how I came to get mixed up with the I.W.W.. Then he turned on his heel and walked away."

ACK OFFICERS TO TRAIN ARMY.

tage Prevents Extension of Draft-Age Limit.

ernment to Risk Precious Hides at Front.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Shortage of trained officers in this country to whip the new men into shape is the reason—or at least the principal reason—why the War Department insisted that the raising of the draft to 40 or 45 be postponed until Having sent over 1,100,000 to the other side, with a full complement of officers, and having advanced the schedule by six months, it left only enough officers available to handle the draft men, who arrive in the camps by the operation of the present draft law.

There are scarcely enough of them around, and that is one of the reasons why the army has opened army officers' schools and has opened the door to civilians, particularly those civilians who are above present draft age.

One of the results of this shortage of officers is the combing out of Washington and the other soft spots of the slacker and the slicker, which being translated, means the physically fit coward who has placed himself or been placed in some swivel-chair job far from the front.

GOING TO FRONT.

These men are going to the front as fast as the War Department can put them into some instruction camps and get them ready for the front. Most of them are unable to care for themselves, to say nothing of being competent to handle men. They are the one unpleasant feature of an otherwise perfectly working impartial law of military servitude. The War Department is not so careful of their precious hides as it is mindful of those men whom they would have to direct, otherwise they would be shot to the other side just as they are.

Seventy-five thousand of the men who have been excused from military duty on the ground of minor physical defects will be called to take their places. Among this large number of military defectives are some of the most skilled and able men of the younger class, and all technical ability and knowledge will be utilized here and elsewhere in desk and scientific positions.

TO EARN COMMISSIONS.

Most of these men will come here as privates, and commissions will rarely be granted except for recognition of valuable services. Chevrons and shoulder straps will have to be won hereafter, whether in Washington or elsewhere, and administration officials are going to see to it that physically unfit fighters alone fill the important home jobs. As single instance of this necessity: In one office of the War Department an attempt was made this week to exempt 500 mechanical draughtsmen working on important designs. Gen. Crowder refused to exempt them and no one else in authority would lend any aid or comfort, not even the Secretary of War himself.

The places of these men will be filled from the draft men among the 75,000 physically unfit, and the sound men now on duty in the drafting room will go into the front-line trenches. The incident is typical. From now on all deferred classifications are going to be examined with microscopes and every man eligible will be put into class 1 subdivision A to begin with. All men now in deferred classes on account of dependent wife will be sent to the front in every case where the wife is physically able to support herself.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, July 13.—With the temperature still below the average for the month, today's weather was the most agreeable encountered yet in July. It was neither too hot nor too cold.

The maximum temperature recorded was 72 deg. at 3 p.m. and, after a slight falling off, 72 was recorded again at 8 and 9 p.m. The lowest for the day was at 3 a.m., when 61 was touched. There was a modest, little twelve-mile breeze from the north and the sun was shining its brightest for the greater part of the day.

Showers occurred in Minnesota, Kansas and the Atlantic States, and unseasonal temperatures continued general.

GERMANS MAKE SWISS SEARCH FOR A CRITIC.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

[Copyright.]

PARIS, July 12.—The Swiss government has begun an effort to determine the identity of the author of "J'Accuse" and "The Crime," with the intention of expelling him from Switzerland. The books in question are supposed to be written by a German Democrat condemning his own government for bringing on the war. A member of the staff of Freie Zeitung, a paper published by German Democrats in Switzerland, and several other Germans have already been arrested.

The importance of this is that Prussia, by means of commercial coercion, is trying to compel the Swiss government to withdraw the protection from political refugees who are carrying on the anti-German propaganda at Berne.

Little attempt is made to conceal the fact of this campaign as part payment of trade exchanges concerning coal and other commodities.

At Searles Lake.

SOUTHLAND DEVELOPING BIG POTASH INDUSTRY.

Former German Monopoly of Products Used in Explosives and Fertilizers is Gone.

BY MILTON R. STANDISH.

WHEN the colossal struggle of the nations is over and the great potassium deposits in and about Strassfurt, Germany, are again released upon the world commercially, the gigantic interests in Europe which formerly monopolized the output and distribution of potassium products, particularly those desired for explosives and for fertilizers, will be met with American competition coming largely from the operations of the American Trona Corporation at Searles Lake, in the northwestern corner of San Bernardino county, where intensive development work is now in progress.

Southern California industry, which in this respect is assuming mammoth proportions, will rise up and give the answer to the world's demand for what is known commercially as potassium chloride. For the great enterprise which has for its center an arid corner of the desert isolated from civilization by vast stretches of shifting sand and leagues of waste, is now not only producing enough of this commodity for the needs of the government in munition making and for the basic elements of the fertilizers that will go on the lands to bring production up to the maximum and thus aid in winning the war, but at the same time is providing facilities for an output sufficient for a world supply.

After the war it is expected that German interests and undoubtedly the imperial government, if that is what it shall be still called at the conclusion of hostilities, will control it—will attempt to restock depleted treasuries with high-priced potassium. American capital and efforts will prevent the Strassfurt products from assuming for a second time a monopoly of this business.

The California Trona Company, the title holding subsidiary of the American Trona Corporation, was recently granted clear title to 3320 acres of potash lands at Searles Lake. This decision marked the conclusion of years of litigation over claims, in which a San Francisco attorney was involved, and which caused clashes between armed expeditions into the desert and at least one fatality.

There is a total of about 15,000 acres in potash-bearing lands. Another concern, the San Bernardino Borax Mining Company, holds over 2000 acres, and the government is planning to lease the remainder to other concerns.

With one unit in operation and a second almost completed, the American Trona Corporation has expended for its present facilities more than $1,000,000, according to official figures, and the company is continuing its extensions so that plant costs within another year will mount to higher totals.

Present production is now about seventy tons daily, and to date the first unit has produced and shipped 26,000 tons of potash salts. The potash as taken from the Trona plant is not commercially pure, but is shipped to the refinery at Los Angeles Harbor for further treatment. When the second unit is completed the capacity of the plant will be doubled. A smaller plant is in operation at Borosolvay, about two and a half miles southwest of Trona.

EARLY EXPERIMENTS.

The first experimental work, with a view to the recovery of potash from the brine of Searles Lake, was undertaken in the summer of 1912. As a result of these experiments it was found that potash could be produced in commercial quantities. The American Trona Corporation was organized and the first money was expended on constructing a railroad from Searles station on the main line, to Trona, and for the construction of a preliminary chemical plant.

Before a successful process for the recovery of potash was worked out, however, the company met with many disappointments, but finally an engineer was successful in establishing a process of evaporation, which, with some modifications, is the same method that is being used today.

It was not until the fall of 1915 that ground was broken for the first unit of the present plant at Trona. The construction of this unit was completed in October, 1916, and the first shipment of potash salt followed the next month. Production was rapidly brought up to seventy tons a day, and the average daily output at the present time is now at that mark. In 1918 work was started on the second unit, and this is expected to be ready for operation within three or four months. The million dollars expended thus far does not include the three years of experimental work, which, naturally, was of a very costly nature, and it will be readily understood that, owing to the war, construction costs are vastly more than under normal conditions.

FOR NEW BUILDINGS.

In addition to the manufacturing plant at Trona, the company has also erected thirty dwelling houses for families, several large dormitories for single men, a central concrete building for a kitchen, dining-rooms and clubrooms, and other necessary buildings. The plans for this year include the erection of fifteen more cottages for families, two more dormitories to accommodate sixty single men, an ice and refrigerating plant, a store building, recreation hall, and a schoolhouse of two rooms. This programme will involve the expenditure of about $65,000.

The company obtains its water for domestic and manufacturing purposes from two sources, which provide an adequate supply. Water is brought from mountain springs through pipe-line systems varying from eight to fifteen miles, while a pumping plant is located about six miles northeast of the plant.

The process now used for the recovery of potash from Searles Lake consists of the pumping of the Searles Lake brine into huge evaporators and thence into cooling and settling tanks, which when left standing for a sufficient time allows the draining off of the liquid from the crystals which form on the sides and bottom of the tanks. This is then sufficiently pure for shipment to the seaboard refinery for the finishing process.

The company has three chemical engineers in charge of experimental work and operations, the present chief being Dr. H. W. Morse. Much of the credit for financing the company and carrying it to a success in a technical way is due to Baron Alfred de Ropp, president of the American Trona Corporation since its incorporation in 1913.

True it is that KCl is on the job, and when the war is over and peace is declared and the only competition among nations will be in a commercial way, the United States, with its Southern California potash supply, will be one of the biggest factors in deciding the availability of potassium in its many forms.

Just Once! Try Dodson's Liver Tone! Take No Calomel! Listen To Me!

If bilious, constipated, headachy or sick, I guarantee relief without taking dangerous calomel which sickens and salivates.

Stop using calomel! It makes you sick. Don't lose a day's work. If you feel lazy, sluggish, bilious or constipated, listen to me!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are "all knocked-out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep the entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

SENDING NUNCIO TO CHINA STIRS PARIS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, July 13.—The news of the Vatican's decision to appoint a Papal Nuncio for China is calculated to make a deep impression upon the French diplomatic and church circles, in the view of the Rome correspondent of the Petit Journal. He recalls that Pope Leo XIII in 1885 appointed a nuncio for Peking. The French Minister at the Vatican threatened that France would break off relations with the Vatican if the plan was carried out. Pope Leo canceled the appointment, the correspondent adds.

The Rome correspondent of the Havas Agency says that the name most frequently mentioned in connection with Peking post is that of Monsignor Joseph Petrelli, the Apostolic delegate to the Philippines.

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR ON FOCH'S GREAT IDEA.

It Matters not Whether Von Hindenburg be Dead or Alive.

BY HARRY CARR.

THE death of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg (assuming that the report of his death is true) will not very seriously affect the prowess of the German army. Whatever effect the event has will be chiefly upon the morale and spirit of the German people by whom Von Hindenburg was held in almost superstitious reverence.

Strictly from a military standpoint, his death will not detract in any very serious way from the ability of the Central Powers to make war.

I have two reasons for this conclusion. The reasons are interlocking.

War in the present day is waged upon a scale that takes it out of the personal influence of any one commander. In ages past, war consisted of two armies who advanced in parallel lines to meet one another and who finished it all in one battle in which one side was annihilated then and there. Every age has seen an advance in the complexity of war making. In the present day, war consists not only of fighting but of an intricate use of politics, diplomacy, even religion and anthropology. The main reason why the Allies have not made better progress against the weak spot of the Central Powers in the Balkans is their lack of understanding of the peculiarly entangled race problems of the mixed peoples in Serbia, Rumania and Bulgaria.

WAS NONESSENTIAL.

Von Hindenburg was a specialist on the topography of East Prussia. He brought to that campaign in 1914-15 a special knowledge that undoubtedly was of the highest value to the German Empire.

But the later campaigns have not been planned by him. I doubt if he even planned the East Prussian campaign.

A German general works a good deal like a moving picture director. The plan or scenario is worked out for him by experts who are never heard of, even in Germany. These plans concern not only the movements of troops; but sanitary conditions, food supply, railroad transportation. Even legal phases and religious considerations are all laid out for the commander by trained experts in the gloomy old brick building where the great General Staff of Berlin is quartered.

The fact is, as the scene of war gradually shifts around to the Balkans again via Albania, it comes to a phase concerning which Von Hindenburg probably knew very little.

Although I think the Central Powers are coming to the beginning of the end and are facing a sweeping and final defeat, nevertheless Von Hindenburg, alive or dead, will not have much of a bearing on the events to come.

It is rather appalling to tackle a discussion of the present phase of the fighting. It is so intricate, difficult and concerns so many other things other than military strategy.

In a general way we can say this: that Gen. Foch is bringing to bear the only really enlightened world strategy that the Allies have shown during the war.

FOCH'S IDEA.

Instead of battering his head against the strong fortified positions of the German troops in the trenches on the west front in France, Gen. Foch is maneuvering to lop off Turkey, Bulgaria and Austria from the Central Powers.

His line of reasoning has two strong roots. Not only are these three countries the weak spots of the Central Powers, but they constitute the stepping stones of the Kaiser's Berlin-to-Bagdad world dream. Were they stripped away from Germany, it would be useless for Germany to keep on fighting for an empty purse.

All of them are ready to quit. Turkey was bulldozed into the war which she never wanted. Bulgaria already has what she was striving for—the Dobrudja—and has no further object for fighting.

Austria is sick of the war and has been for a long time. Austria has kept on only because she is more afraid of Germany and a rebellion of her people than she is of the Allies. Austria keeps her troops at the front simply because she is afraid to let them come home. That's the only reason.

Without going into details, I can briefly outline Foch's plan for picking off Turkey, Bulgaria and Austria.

In a general way it is the scheme the Allies have always had: to send an army up from Saloniki; cut the Berlin-to-Constantinople railroad, thus cutting off the Balkans and Turkey from Austria. The way into Austria through the southeastern back door would then be open to the Allies.

The long delay in moving the Saloniki expedition made it possible for the Germans to heavily fortify the route the troops at Saloniki would have to take as they went north. In order to avoid a severe and dangerous frontal attack against these fortifications, Gen. Foch has begun a campaign to cut in behind the fortifications and force a retirement of the Central Powers, at the same time giving the Saloniki expedition freedom to begin its northward march.

INTO RUSSIA.

I have reason to believe that a great military expedition will be sent into Russia via the Dardanelles when the psychological moment comes through the elimination of Turkey.

An examination of the map will make it clear to any one why this expedition must be undertaken. For the future safety of the world, it is absolutely necessary that the Germans must be cut off from any approach to India.

If the Kaiser, at the close of the war, is left on the shores of the Black Sea, India would always be in danger of invasion through the Khyber Pass. And if India falls, the British Empire goes up in smoke.

Our safety and the safety of the British Empire are henceforth to be linked together. Each of us is necessary to the existence of the other. Therefore the future for America depends very largely upon a barrier being erected to keep the Germans away from all approach to India.

It will be very interesting to see what movement the resourceful, experienced German staff makes to counter this new world-wide campaign undertaken by Gen. Foch.

The Kaiser all of a sudden finds himself heavily pressed upon in France, on the Piave in Italy, in Albania; with half a dozen promising rebellions on his hands in Russia and with a mysterious military movement developing on the part of the Japanese and Americans in Siberia.

THE MOST SERIOUS.

The most serious feature of it for the Germans is that they suddenly find themselves fighting on the outside instead of the inside of a big circle. It is a very short route for Gen. Foch to get to Albania from the west front in France, but it is a long and difficult journey for the Kaiser.

An interesting point in this new comparison of distances is that Gen. Foch has, for the first time, taken advantage of the enormous asset the Allies have in the control of the Mediterrean and Adriatic seas.

Gen. Foch has a great opportunity to let the Kaiser try for the first time the old schoolboy game of "Here they are; here they ain't."

When you really come down to it, the most serious difficulty of the Central Powers is an uncertainty as to what Foch really intends to do in Albania. If they let him alone, he will go charging through to the Berlin-Constantinople line and tear the Central Powers from their allies. If, on the other hand, the Germans shift a lot of troops from the west front to protect Albania, Foch is just as likely as not to suddenly shoot his soldiers back to France and go whooping through the Germans on the west front.

My own private opinion is that this change of petty, backyard military tactics into world strategy will bring certain victory to the Allies in such a way as to permanently cripple Germany's world dreams.

AMERICAN BIGNESS.

This change in policy has been made possible by the unselfishness of American diplomacy.

It is a matter of general knowledge that the previous Saloniki campaign was a failure owing to the jealousies of Greece, Italy, England and France in the Mediterrean.

The other powers named have all dreaded to have Italy develop too much strength. Wherefore, a complete unity of action was impossible and the Allies were deprived of the possibility of using Italy's big and efficient army in the quarter where it would do the most good.

President Wilson's unselfishness in turning over the American army to Gen. Foch, to do with as though it were his own, struck a new note in European diplomacy and disarmed all jealousies.

CALLS FOR GRAMMAR SCHOOL REGISTRANTS.

SPECIAL ORDER FOR 12,143 DRAFTED MEN FOR OCCUPATIONAL TRAINING.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Provost-Marshal-General Crowder today issued a draft call for 12,143 registrants of grammar-school education and qualified for general military service. These men, 154 of whom are negroes, will entrain between August 1 and 28 for various schools for special occupational training to fit them for army service.

The call covers twenty-seven States and the District of Columbia.

In school calls boards are authorized to allow the induction of volunteers until within approximately a week of the entrainment date.

CALL 1500 CALIFORNIANS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, July 13. — Gov. Stephens today received from Provost-Marshal-General Crowder a call for 1500 men for general military service. They are to entrain in the five-day period beginning August 5 and will go to Camp Fremont. Members of the class of 1918 may be inducted.

The induction is for white men only.

Crowder instructs that the Adjutant-General is to inform local exemption boards throughout the State to draw the required quotas from within Class 1 with the least possible disturbance of industrial and agricultural conditions in the respective communities.

Registrants of the June 5, 1918, class may be voluntarily inducted, provided all class 1 registrants of the 1917 class shall have been exhausted.

This special draft is not associated with the industrial call of 319 men as California's quota, as announced yesterday by Adjt.-Gen. Borree. Nor has it anything to do with the new grammar-school education class for industrial induction, today announced by the Associated Press from Washington, D. C.

EIGHT DEAD, FORTY HURT IN CAR WRECK.

CROWDED INTERURBAN TURNS OVER WHEN DERAILED AT CURVE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Eight workers of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation and adjacent plants are dead and forty of their fellow workers and others injured, following the wreck of an interurban car on which they were riding to work, when it jumped a curve in the southern part of the city early today. Two of the injured were not expected to survive the day.

The dead are, R. M. Richardson, Huber Perossa, E. J. Batcher, Louis Perossa, Monde Perossa, B. Opiotto, Joseph Garrie and Joseph Savonani. The only woman on the car, Miss Julia Malastina, 17, was among the severely injured.

The car was known as a "one-man car," the motorman, George W. Sleepman, acting as conductor also. Sleepman, who was uninjured, was taken to the Bayview Police Station and booked for manslaughter. He was unable to make a statement.

Passengers told the police that a shipyard blacksmith was running the car at the time of the accident. Sleepman, was said to have requested this man to take the controller while he collected fares. The blacksmith was said to have become confused as the car descended a hill and approached the curve at a high rate of speed. He etectives Making Arrest Fired at and Narrowly Escape—Dead Man's Bride of Good Family.

ORNERED in an apartment at No. 122 South Avenue 18, Leslie Johnson, one of the three suspects who terrorized Heights section early yesterday morning, attempted to kill De- Harry Hickok and Carl R. as they were about to him under arrest early last and was himself shot and wounded when the officers the fire. He died at 8:15 at the Receiving Hospital. McCurran, 21, said by police to have been the third the bandit car when it held persons, was placed under by the two detectives only a before Johnson, stepping behind a partly closed door, at the two officers.

arrest of the two men in the apartment gave the police three men they charge with the Boyle Heights bandits. Kepner, 20 years old, who arrested by Detectives Newstettor and Curtis immediately after the hold-ups, is the third in custody.

Mrs. Johnson and the woman were taken to the station, where the man was a charge of robbery and detained as important to the stories related by Johnson's entry into the without warning, and his almost at the moment he Both witnesses made statements placing the blame on the man.

Johnson, according to the police, is a known desparate character, and his attempt on the officers' lives was the second in his brief career. Two years ago, Detectives Erven and Hickok arrested Johnson and McCurran on a charge of stealing automobiles, and at that time were confronted by Johnson, who, guns in both hands, fired point blank at the officers, but missed.

MARRIED TO REFORM HIM.

The sudden barking of the revolvers was the tragic echoing of a warning received by the young bride before she married Johnson, according to the stories told the police.

"I love him so, and I have faith in him," she is alleged to have replied to all the warnings. She knew the man had been an inmate of Ione and that he did not lead a straight life, the detectives were told, but insisted that her love was stronger than all else.

"I am marrying him to reform him, and I have faith that I will succeed," she said at the time of the marriage.

Mrs. Wiley lives with her parents at No. 1415 East Sixty-first street. According to the police, she called at the bandit's apartments to tell McCurran and Johnson of Kepner's arrest. No charge against her has been made by the officers.

The arrest of McCurran last night, and the evidence obtained by Detectives Newstettor and Curtis when they arrested Kepner, make the police case in the bandit raids yesterday morning complete, the officers say.

After a second trip to the apartment Detectives Hickok and Williams recovered six watches and other articles taken in the Boyle Heights hold-ups, they say. This practically assures the case against the men, the police say, as well as clears up one of the two unsolved careers of the hold-up activities of automobile bandits.

Kepner, the police records indicate is a deserter from Mare Island, as is McCurran. The latter told Detective Carl R. Williams he deserted on June 14, and that he enlisted under the name of Albert W. Jordan. Johnson is also believed to be a deserter from the army.

At the time of Johnson's and McCurran's arrest, they were held by the police and later convicted. McCurran was sent to Whittier and Johnson to Ione.

A piece of fast police work by the Flying Squadron, Active Commander Detective William Ingram and Detectives Newstettor and Curtis, led up to Kepner's arrest early yesterday morning and to the shooting and the arrests of the others last night. In less than two minutes after the Boyle Heights station was informed by the East Side Station of the latest hold-up by the three bandits shortly after midnight, Friday, the Flying Squadron was on its way to the scene of the crime.

DARE-DEVIL CHASE.

With Curtis driving, Newstettor armed with a shotgun, the big police machine was speeding east on Fourth street, when the detectives noticed the small automobile with the three youths in it, darting across Fourth street, a few blocks ahead of them.

Though the bandit car was traveling on three tires only it led the police automobile in a dare-devil chase for more than seven blocks until it was cornered in an alley near First and Gless streets. Before the detectives overtook the bandits, the three men jumped out of the car and scattered in different directions. Kepner was caught by Curtis and Newstettor.

The victims of the three bandits before the police overtook them were:

Ernest Brunton of No. 1021 South Soto street. Held up at Rowan and Brooklyn avenues, and robbed of his watch, hat and $1.

W. S. Kerr, of No. 702 Bernal street, son of Patrolman Kerr of the Boyle Heights station. Held up near his home. Watch and change taken.

W. J. Scanlon of No. 141 North Ditman street. Held up at Fourth and Chicago street. Watch, $2 and papers taken.

Leonard Grace of No. 122 North Picket street. Lost $7 when he was held up at Fourth street and Boyle avenue.

Fred Lange, an employee of Jevne's, Sixth and Broadway. At Fourth and Chicago street. Lost a watch and railroad tickets.

Helmuth Huhns of No. 128 North Indiana streets. Held up at First and Gage streets and robbed of $3 and a watch.

F. B. Willetts, address unknown, phoned to the East Side station that he was held up by the three bandits near First and Concord streets and robbed of his money and watch.

William Gold.

ANOTHER ARRESTED AS BADLY-WANTED BANDIT.

THE police declare that practically every hold-up in the last few months was solved last night when Captain of Detectives Home and Detective Sergeants Bowe, Taylor, Shy and Sidney Hickok, arrested William I. Gold, alleged bandit who escaped a week ago, just as he was about to board a train at Long Beach.

Gold's arrest, following close upon the arrest in an apartment house at No. 122 South Avenue 18, of another man and the slaying of a third bandit as he attempted to kill the arresting officers, not only clears up the long string of Los Angeles robberies, but also places into police custody a man who, several weeks ago, held up and robbed George Palmer, a fortune teller, at No. 614 South Hope street, and after several days in jail, escaped by jumping out of the police car.

At the same time the police announced that Gold's alleged partner in the Palmer hold-up, George Goldenberg, also is in custody, having been arrested at his home several days ago.

Gold and Goldenberg, according to the police, are the two bandits who, on the night of June 29, held up and robbed nineteen persons in the different parts of the city. The bandits operated in a stolen laundry automobile, and made their final escape in a powerful touring car. Both men, the police say, have been identified by some of their alleged victims.

Gold attempted to escape when Capt. Home was about to arrest him, and in struggling with the man, Capt. Home suffered an injury to his left hand. Three fingers are broken, according to the Receiving Hospital physicians.

The alleged bandit's sensational arrest last night was as spectacular as his first arrest and subsequent escape.

When Capt. Home and the detectives finally traced him to the Pacific Electric station in Long Beach, the youth was about to board a car. He gave one long leap when he saw the officers and started away, but was overtaken by Capt. Home. After being arrested for the Palmer robbery, Gold escaped when he was taken to Ninth street and Grand avenue to identify his partner. He was in the automobile with the detectives, and leaping over the side, disappeared down an alley, handcuffs and all.

A search that covered Southern California and closed every possible avenue of escape, was ordered by Capt. Home. For nights detectives were stationed at different places, with the result that last night the arrest was made.

In attempting to rob Palmer, Gold and his partner, now named by the police as George Goldenberg, entered the fortune-teller's reception room and were escorted to an inner room. There they drew guns and made Palmer give up $360. Both men ran, but Gold was followed by a crowd and was arrested by Patrolman Stern when he leaped from a street car at Seventh and Figueroa streets.

WILSON'S WHEAT VETO FIGURES QUESTIONED.

M'CUMBER QUOTES MILLERS' PROFITS; HOUSE SUSTAINS PRESIDENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Senator McCumber of North Dakota, Republican, speaking in the Senate, today, said the data given by the President in his veto message were erroneous. Taking the present estimate for the 1918 wheat crop at 900,000,000 bushels, Senator McCumber said an increase of 20 cents a bushel in the price would total $180,000,000 instead of the President's estimate of $387,000,000.

The increase per barrel of flour for which four and one-half bushels of wheat are required, he continued, amounts to only 90 cents, although the President asserted it would total $2. Compared with the proposed increase in wheat prices, Senator McCumber declared the recent report of the Federal Trade Commission showed millers' profits last year were from 112 to 437 per cent. above their pre-war profits.

"The wheat raiser is not asking favors," said Senator McCumber. "He is asking for simple justice. He has never asked that you fix any price for his product. All he has asked is that the price of his product be allowed to adjust itself to the demand."

Senator McCumber said the cost of labor involved in raising wheat has increased from 200 to 400 per cent. within the last few years.

The House today sustained President Wilson's veto of the agricultural bill. A motion to pass the measure over the veto was defeated, 172 to 72.

The bill was referred to the Agricultural Committee and House leaders planned to pass it without the wheat price fixing provision.

CZERNIN SELLS ESTATE TO ESCAPE REVOLUTION.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, July 12.—Austrian prisoners confirm the reports that a large number of noblemen are selling their estates in Bohemia and Moravia because they fear a revolution. It is said that Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, has sold all his lands in Bohemia, and Count Henry Clam-Martinic, former Premier, said a revolution was probable in Moravia and he was selling his lands there.

THIELEN MENTIONED FOR RAILWAY OFFICE.

OFFERED POSITION OF MANAGER OF PRIVATE-RULED SHORT LINES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Max Thielen of California, former chairman of the California State Railroad Commission and lately appointed to a responsible position in the War Department in charge of all contracts, is to be drafted into railroad service again. He has been offered the position of manager of the short line section in the Railroad Administration. He is conferring with officials of the War Department and it is generally believed that he will accept.

If Mr. Thielen should accept the post, he will have charge of the short lines that are not taken under Federal control. There are several hundred of them that for one reason or another were not taken over by Director-General McAdoo. These short lines, denied the protection of Federal operation, now need protection of the government in proper pro-rating of freight and passenger charges for services partly performed by the short lines and for distribution of cars. These short lines also need some one to see that they have sufficient business to continue to exist. This will be Mr. Thielen's task if he takes the position.

Director-General McAdoo is also approving twenty-five traffic committees whose duty it shall be to hear and attempt to solve the problems of freight shippers arising from the new freight rates and the difficulties due to war conditions. One of these committees will be named for Los Angeles. Two of the members will be railroad men and the other a shipper.

A CALL TO THE SERVICE OF CALIFORNIA

These are times when every good citizen is making his own particular business secondary to the interest of the Nation and of the State.

Business firms and corporations are also serving the people by taking an interest in the common welfare.

There is a crying need for the citizenship to select for State officers, good men, of sound judgment who know how to cut out all waste.

—men who will discover what Commissions or Departments of our State Government the present conditions have rendered useless or extravagant, and either consolidate, co-ordinate or eliminate them;

—men who will recognize what Commissions are useful and are rendering yeoman service; —men who are broad-minded enough to work unselfishly for the general good;

—men who have no idea of using any effort or trading any of their patronage for their own pet hobbies;

—men who are not mere politicians but are interested in the common good of all;

—men who are DOERS instead of promisers only.

BIG TASK AHEAD.

America Must be Ready at War's Close to Aid in Work of Restoration, Says Speaker.

To the calendar of black deeds committed by Germany, another, greater than all, must be added, the breaking down of the good faith necessary for the preservation of amicable relations among nations, declared Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale School of Religion, in his address to students of the University of California Summer Session in the Los Angeles High School, Thursday.

"Why didn't Christianity prevent this war? Because there wasn't enough Christian spirit of the right sort on hand," he added.

Dr. Brown compared the war to surgery. It is bloody and cruel; but when the question is disease or life, surgery must be used as the best means to an end. This can only be accomplished by the stern sword of war, he said.

"We have no desire to dictate what government Germany shall have," continued Dr. Brown, "so long as that government is kept for home consumption."

The humane work of the Red Cross was brought forcefully to mind by a statement of the wealth and lives already given to the work. The great moral uplift of our armies through the Young Men's Christian Association and the Knights of Columbus proves that these organizations are working for international good, maintained Dr. Brown.

"Our country must be good enough to compensate for the great sacrifice of life, energy and resources in this war. We must prove that right is might," concluded Dr. Brown. "We must be ready at the close of the war to aid in the task of world renewal."

TO REOPEN INQUIRY INTO PLOT OF SPIES.

MEN CONVICTED OF PLAN TO HURT ENGLAND TO BE WITNESSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—Inquiry into the German plot, exposed before the United States entered the war, to send spies from this country to England to locate bases of ships of the British fleet so that they could be attacked by submarines, will be reopened Monday by the Federal grand jury here, it became known today.

Albert A. Sander and Charles W. Wunnenberg, sentenced in March, 1917, to imprisonment as principals in the conspiracy, will be witnesses in a proceeding against W. L. Wierbelauer.

Sander, a newspaper writer, and Wunnenberg, a marine engineer, both pleaded guilty and checkmated efforts of the government to learn who was behind them. According to John C. Knox, Federal prosecutor, the two plotters sent George Vaux Bacon, Charles E. Hastings and other newspaper reporters to act as spies in England and forward reports to a "master German spy in Holland." Bacon and Hastings have been sent to prison for a year each. Sander and Wunnenberg got two years each, all under a section of the Federal code prohibiting the sending of military expeditions or enterprises from the United States to another country.

Nothing was disclosed today as to what part Wierbelauer is suspected of taking in the plot.

At Harbor.

CANNERS OPPOSE BONUS; FISH STRIKE CONTINUES.

Big Run of Albicore, However, May Lead Japanese to Return to Nets.

AN EFFORT to settle the strike of the Japanese fishermen at the harbor failed yesterday when the canners voted down a motion made by Bismark Housels, president of the International Packing Company, that Capt. W. C. Crandall, Fish Administrator for Southern California, be permitted to allow a bonus payment of $10 a ton for tuna.

The canners held a meeting at the Bank of San Pedro called by Sam Hornstein, a Long Beach canner. Capt. Crandall was present by invitation. The meeting was private and is said to have been a spirited one. Nearly all of the nineteen canneries were represented and only three voted in favor of making the concession to the strikers.

It is probable, however, that the strike may be settled by permitting the canners to make bonus payments agreed upon prior to the time that the government assumed jurisdiction of price fixing last February. It is said that many of the fishermen are willing to return to work under their old contracts, which were abrogated when the government increased the price from $80 to $100 and declared that the bonus system must end. A meeting of the fishermen to consider this will be held this morning.

CONFERENCE HELD.

Capt. Crandall was in conference yesterday afternoon again with several of the packers and naval officers of the Submarine Base who volunteer as mediators. It is understood that the bonus question was given careful consideration. The vote at the morning meeting of the canners, however, indicates that they are standing back of Capt. Crandall in his determination that the price shall not be changed.

"While we are not interested in the price paid for fish so long as the selling price is fixed accordingly, we would be placed in an embarrassing position if the price to the fishermen were increased at this late date, because we have already contracted to sell our entire pack at the selling price fixed by the Food Administration," said one of the leading packers last night. "Any increase in the price of fish now must come out of the margin of profit allowed us by the government after carefully going over our cost figures."

RUN OF ALBICORE.

There is one influence at work, however, to induce the Japanese to return to their nets which is more potent than the conferences of the canners. That is an exceptionally heavy run of albicore that began yesterday. The few white fishermen who have been out have been bringing in enormous catches. Only the shortage of bait prevented the canneries from running to full capacity in spite of the strike.

The albicore were biting so freely that fishermen had no trouble in getting all the fish the limited supply of bait would permit. This is the first time the albicore have been biting freely and most of the boats yesterday brought in from three to four tons. Heretofore most of the fish caught so far this season have been the blue-fin tuna caught in purse seines. The bulk of the tuna pack is from albicore caught on hand lines.

But Stern Times First.

CERTAIN VICTORY SEEN BY PHYSICIAN AT FRONT.

Brother of Local Attorney Says America will Force Speedy Conclusion.

IN THE short time the United States has been engaged in the world war, this country has accomplished much of consequence, but there are stern times ahead and the war will come to a victorious conclusion with a speed quite in proportion to the degree Americans bear down. This is the message contained in a letter to L. R. Wharton, a local attorney, from his brother, Dr. James F. Wharton, who volunteered and went to France last August with the Yale Medical Reserve Corps.

Speaking of the German drive in May, he says:

"There were a few days of anxiety over operations, but I did not at any moment have reason to believe the Germans would not meet their doom. What occurs to me as of most importance is that the ground they gained at such a price is no more nourishing than other barren ground, of which they already had plenty. They had their celebration at a cost too stupendous to calculate, and one can count their profits on the fingers of one hand."

Dr. Wharton says he does not envy the prospects of the enemy. He believes they are more in need of nourishment than territory. In regard to the showing made by the Sammies he says: "It is not permissable for me to go into details, but I may say that the advent of the American soldiers in the front lines has not furnished the Germans with any pleasant morsel, and many of them have paid the price to learn to respect Americans."

At his present post, when there is a lull in the fighting, Dr. Wharton is not overburdened with army work, but he is called upon to administer to the relief of civilians quite frequently. This adds variety as well as novelty to the work. He is not permitted to use government gasoline in visiting patients, so one French family provided him with a bicycle to use in making professional visits. He treats civilians free and has won considerable popularity among them. His visits to their homes afford him an opportunity to learn French, which he considers compensation enough.

Not long ago he was called upon to administer to a patient in a family residing several miles away. The distance made his visits almost impossible, so the Frenchman took an unexpected tack and moved his entire family into an old house so close to the army camp that Dr. Wharton finds its possible to administer to the patient without making his trips in a conveyance.

Two Little Girls.

MAKING SOLDIERS' CAPS BEATS LOVE TO RUBES.

HAPPY because of being returned to the San Diego County Jail and her dear "Mother" Chambers, the matron, Elsie Burns and her sister, Mrs. Mae Smith, the two young girls convicted of misuse of the mails, are contentedly knitting on trench caps for the soldiers. The two girls, who reaped a harvest in coins for a time by artlessly writing love letters to gullible farmers, who sent funds for railroad fares for them to go to marry them, have become expert knitters during the two months they were awaiting trial in the San Diego County Jail. Other things besides knitting were taught them by the matron, so that by the time of their trial they were model prisoners instead of wayward girls who laughed at the farmers and scoffed at all prison rules. At first they covertly sneered at the "knitting school" of the jail, but soon became interested in trying to master the art and now each one can knit a trench cap in a day.

When the two sisters were taken to Los Angeles for their trial before Judge Trippet, "Mother" Chambers wrote a letter telling of their good behavior and asked that they might be returned to the jail for their sentence instead of being sent to McNeil's Island. And the judge sentenced them to three months in jail. Two of these have been served so the girls have only one month more.

When they returned there was rejoicing both on their part and that of Mother Chambers, who says the girls will be taught cooking and many other things before they leave. They have been given a cell close to her apartments, away from the main woman's ward, and there they cheerfully knit the little gray trench caps for overseas soldiers.

Not only have the girls promised to be good, but they have changed their habits and manners. The most heroic change was made when at the request of Mother Chambers they threw away their pet rouge boxes. "You won't know us when we leave," they assert proudly.

Protection.

WORK IS BEGUN ON NEW FIRE BOAT FOR HARBOR.

AFTER long years of waiting for it, the industrial plants at the harbor are to have better fire protection. Although the value of water front property runs into millions of dollars, the sole fire protection on the water front is a privately-owned team ferry leased for a part of the time to provide for emergencies.

The keel has just been laid for a new fire boat to be owned and operated by the city. It will be built by the Marine Equipment Company on Mormon Island at a cost of $13,903. It is to be completed in 110 working days. The new boat will be sixty-four and five-tenths feet long, seventeen-foot beam and draw eight feet of water. It will be equipped with a 110-horse-power Union engine. All of the equipment, which includes two pumps that will throw a six-inch stream, electric dynamos and lights, will be installed at the plant.

The fight for better fire protection at the harbor has been a long one. The various corporations owning property around the harbor have been for several years making an annual plea before the Budget Commtitee for an appropriation for a boat costing about ten times that for which a contract has been let. This would have given Los Angeles harbor fire protection equal to San Francisco, Portland and other ports. While protests have been made that the new boat is inadequate, most of the managers of the industrial plants are now resigned to accept half a loaf as better than none at all under present conditions.

TWENTY-THREE GRADUATE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, July 13.—Twenty-three pupils graduated from the eighth grade of the city schools last evening, holding exercises in the Whittier-avenue school. For some years the schools here have followed the plan of a mid-summer graduation for those pupils who were in the odd half-year classes. More than seventy graduated in the regular June class, while the "Eighth B" class remained in school in special session six weeks longer. The plan has proved highly satisfactory in the past. One hundred and five have completed the eighth grade this summer.

PARISHES MAY CONSOLIDATE.

St. James and St. Barnabas to Come Together?

Step may Also Take in Christ Church Members.

Suit Against Latter Charges Breach of Contract.

Following the sale of the Christ Church property, it was learned yesterday that tentative steps are under way looking toward a consolidation of the Episcopal parishes of St. James and St. Barnabas, with the possibility that the members of Christ Church parish may be invited to join in this consolidation.

"I should be very much pleased if this could be done harmoniously," said Rt. Rev. J. H. Johnson, bishop of the Los Angeles diocese, last night. "Officially, there is nothing before me in this matter, but I have heard its probability discussed and believe that it might be brought about, so far as the parishes of St. James and St. Barnabas are concerned. It is also possible that the members of Christ Church parish might be willing to join in this consolidation.

"I do not believe in multiplying churches beyond what is necessary to serve the communities, and consolidation would certainly be a strengthening factor. The matters would have to be passed upon first by the vestry of each parish, and then, after a line of action was decided upon, it would be submitted to the Standing Committee of the diocese and to the bishop."

Charles A. Giffen and W. W. Paden filed suit against Christ Church yesterday for alleged failure to perform a specific contract involving the sale of the church property to the plaintiffs. It is alleged an agreement to sell the property to Giffen and Paden was entered into on the

CAN TUBERCULOSIS BE CURED BY INHALATION OR [illegible]

After a one-sided hearing the Board of Medical Examiners gave its stamp of approval to the serum theory and condemned inhalation by the testimony of doctors who use only the serum treatment. A chemical analysis failed to give only one-third of the ingredients used in my inhalation although the chemist swore he had gotten 97 per cent. I made no defense as I expect to at the courts decide "who is who." Through some one complaint was made to the government at Washington, D. C., that this treatment of mine was fraudulent and an effort made to prosecute. After an investigation by the representatives of the government no prosecution was [illegible] ington said there was no reason for the issuance of a [illegible] any evidence to base a criminal action. The letter and affidavit of father after treatment:

Los Angeles, Cal.

Owen L. Carr,
Rushville, Indiana.

Dear Sir—By request of Bruce I am writing you regarding his condition.

I referred him to Dr. Harvey Smith for examination of his lungs. Dr. Smith reports an involvement in the apex of both lungs. The process in the right lung is inactive, but the left apex shows an active process.

X-ray examination of his chest confirms Dr. Smith's findings and shows an enlargement of the bronchial glands.

X-ray of his back shows the tenth dorsal vertebrae to be very much involved and flattened out to half its normal thickness. The ninth and eleventh dorsal vertebrae are slightly involved and there is a definite outline of a so-called Psoas abscess about the involved vertebrae.

According the the history of the case, he has grown worse since a year ago. His back is quite deformed at this time, which may be due to his having gone without his brace for four months. If not due entirely to the being without his brace, it may be that the brace has never given him the necessary amount of support. There is no way of telling now if the curvature is due to a brace that does not give proper suppport or to the leaving off of the brace. However, it seems a shame to allow the boy to become so deformed because you can stop the curvature from occurring but you cannot correct it once it has occurred.

From what Bruce tells me, a year ago he had no curvature and could feel but a small lump in his back. Now he has a very marked curvature, with the destruction of at least one vertebrae and every evidence that the process is just getting a good start. If he had had an operation and a bone graft, or had been put in bed in a plaster cast a year ago, he would not have had any deformity.

Now comes the question of what should be done at this time. I am going to give you my best opinions and let you decide.

First—A bone graft of the spine followed by a plaster cast and be in bed practically six months.

Second—No operation, but a plaster cast, and stay in bed about one year.

With either of the above some treatment and care for his lung condition.

Third—Make a plaster conform of the curvature of his spine, allow him to continue on with the brace he is now wearing and at the end of about two months, using the plaster conform, see how much more curvature his back has formed. By this means we can tell if the brace is giving proper support.

All the time we must keep in mind the development of a cold abscess about the spine and be prepared to take care of it when it occurs.

I have given you my opinions in the order of their importance and would certainly urge one of the first two, and especially the first, [illegible] way of a cure with [illegible]

It seems to me [illegible] allowed too much [illegible] realized the seriousness [illegible] If the curvature of [illegible] to proceed, as it has [illegible] is going to be very [illegible] lung involvement [illegible] consideration.

ALLEGED ANARCHIST TO BE PROSECUTED.

NATIVE OF VERONA MUST ANSWER FOR FAILING TO FILL OUT QUESTIONNAIRE.

Giblio Fiornini, alleged world-anarchist and reputed an intimate of many foremost "Reds" of Europe and America, was subjected to another searching examination by immigration officials in the Federal Building yesterday. That sufficient evidence has been gathered against the Italian to warrant deportation was conceded by his examiners, but it was hinted that such a fate would not befall him. The Department of Justice has a claim in for the prisoner on a charge of failing to fill out a questionnaire and he probably will be turned over to that department for prosecution.

Fiornini refused to talk much about his private affairs, and demanded an attorney. It was understood that Attorney Arthur Chapman has volunteered to act as his counsel and in view of this fact his examination before United States Commissioner Long was postponed for several days.

Fiornini admitted that he was working as a dairyman when arrested several days ago near San Pedro by government authorities. His native city is Verona, Italy, whence he came to America two years ago.

Federal officials in the East got his trail last October when a letter addressed by him to a prominent anarchist residing in an eastern city was intercepted. He disappeared before he could be arrested and was trailed to the Pacific Coast. An examination of nearly a hundred anarchistic pamphlets found in his possession is now being conducted at the Federal Building.

The alleged anarchist maintains his innocence and declares he will be able to clear himself of wrongdoing. He is unmarried and 32 years old.

ARTICLES PUBLISHED IN "REGENERACION" ARE BASE FOR CHARGE OF SEDITION.

As an aftermath to the arrest of Ricardo Flores Magon, editor of the Mexican newspaper Regeneracion against whom a charge of sedition has been lodged, Deputy United States Marshal Cavanaugh yesterday placed under arrest Mrs. Maria B. Magon of Edendale, wife of Enrique Magon, a brother of Ricardo. The charge against her is sedition in connection with certain articles published in their paper reflecting on the government.

The trial of Ricardo Magon has been set for tomorrow morning before Federal Judge Bledsoe.

The Magons have been in trouble before with the government through alleged seditious articles published in their paper. Enrique Magon is now serving a sentence on McNeil Island, following his conviction on the charge of sedition.

MAYOR GOING NORTH TO MEET M'ADOO.

WILL CONFER WITH RAILROAD DIRECTOR-GENERAL ON PROJECTS HERE.

Mayor Woodman will leave for San Francisco tomorrow to meet W. G. McAdoo, director-general of the Railroad Administration, in reference to several important municipal projects which are under consideration. He will also confer with W. E. Coop of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, Gov. Stephens and others.

The Mayor wants to get assurance that the local shipbuilding plants will be well supplied with materials, and will make an urgent appeal in their interest. Yesterday the Southern California Shipbuilding Company received word that it may expect no contracts to build ships until the government is in a position to furnish steel and other material for the plants on the Pacific Coast. As a result of this information, the company asked that it be granted an extension of time in relation to the acceptance of the lease granted it by the city. Whether an extension can be legally given will be decided by the City Attorney.

It is the plan of Mayor Woodman to go into the details of the local power situation with Mr. McAdoo and see if it will be possible for the government to take over the private distributing systems. He says similar action has been taken by the government in relation to railroads and other public utilities and he believes that in the interest of conservation of fuel oil Washington officials may act upon his suggestion.

SHERIFF AND POSSE
BACK FROM CHASE.

NEVADA HORSE THIEVES' LOOT HAS BEEN RECAPTURED BEFORE THEIR ARRIVAL.

Sheriff Cline and a posse of deputies who made a hurry trip into the mountain fastnesses of Red Rock Canyon to intercept a gang of Nevada horse thieves that had rustled forty head from ranches in the vicinity of Pioche, Nev., returned from their long trip yesterday morning at daylight. The capturing had been done before they got on the scene.

The party went to Lancaster, and thence to Roosevelt, where they secured mounts for the trip into the canyon. They had only started, however, when they were informed by courier that the horse thieves had scattered in Butte Valley, west of Death Valley, and that the horses had been recaptured by the sheriff of Inyo county and his aides. It was further reported that two of the marauding gang had been captured and would be returned to Pioche for trial for the theft of the horses and the shooting of William Davis, one of the pursuing officers from Ely, Nev.

With the scattering of the thieves in Butte Valley, the capture of two of the gang and the recovery of the stock, there was nothing for Sheriff Cline to do but return. When last heard from, the uncaught thieves were ranging in the Panamint Mountains, with the Inyo county officers on their trail.

LONG SUIT DELAYED.

St. Louis Woman's Action Involving Note Halted Because of Illness of a Witness.

The trial of the suit of Mrs. Mary Fleming Everest Brown Estes Lally, a prominent society woman of St Louis, Mo., against Edward G. Kuster, an attorney, involving a note and mortgage, was halted yesterday by Judge Monroe to take the deposition of Mrs. Marcella Brown, who is very ill at her home.

There has been much litigation growing out of this note and mortgage. The action some time ago was dismissed by Judge Finlayson for lack of prosecution and merit; was appealed to the Supreme Court, and sent back for decision on particular points. Judge York also had a phase of it before him.

Mrs. Lally was not in court, but was represented by counsel.

BETTERMENT OF PUBLIC SERVICE TO BE URGED.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association for Betterment of Public Service, held Friday, committees were appointed to handle various details, including a committee on candidates. This meeting was attended by Mrs. O. P. Clark and by Mrs. Charles F. Gray, president of the Parent-Teacher Association.

The Association for Betterment of Public Service strikes a popular chord, as is evidenced by responses that have come in from many sources. The Wholesale Metal Dealers' Club, the Automobile Accessories Jobbers' Association and the Wholesale Paper Jobbers have each adopted strong resolutions indorsing the proposed work of the association.

The officers of the association are W. A. Barker, president; H. M. Burgwald, secretary, and the following list of vice-presidents: J. M. Schneider, W. A. Faris, Mrs. O. P. Clark, Harold L. Arnold, Mrs. J. B. Sterns, L. L. Lostutter, E. C. Haskell, Mrs. C. F. Gray, E. W. MacPherson, H. Toll, Cass Rees.

The general purposes of the association are to inculcate a spirit of patriotism and loyalty to the government; to arouse a greater public interest in the affairs of the government; to discourage class instinct, class hatred and class legislation; to secure an economical and efficient administration of local and State government.

The headquarters of the association are at No. 335 Consolidated Realty Building, Sixth and Hill streets.

Interest and the Small Borrower.

LOS ANGELES, July 12—[To the Editor of The Times]: I have been much interested in articles regarding the loan shark evil and the bill proposed to be introduced at the next State Legislature by Senator Brown. I find that these articles are all on one side of the question. The popular idea seems to be to "swat the loan shark," regardless of whether the bill proposed will remedy the evil or not. I am convinced that the rate of interest provided by this bill is too low for all classes of loans, and that if we make the rate so low that it is not compensatory, it would compel every honest man (and I think there are such men in the short-loan business) to employ his capital in other lines, thus driving the small borrower into the hands of the most unprincipled loan sharks who, owing to the fact that the risk was greater, would charge a higher rate of interest than now.

I firmly believe that the best method to regulate interest rates is by competition and not by law. Encourage good men to go into the business of handling short time loans, organize companies to loan small sums for short time, and more good will be accomplished for the small borrower than in any other way.

There is no doubt that the rates charged by the loan sharks are exorbitant, but laws will not stop him, for there are men who will take any chance to gain a high rate of interest. The greatest enemy of the loan shark and the only remedy for this evil is keen competition. If the parties who are working so earnestly, and I believe conscientiously, to pass the proposed bill would devote their time and money toward organizing companies to make short time loans, they would be a great benefit to the borrowers of small amounts.

The regulation of interest rates by law is, and always has been, a farce. The trouble lies in the fact that there are too many methods of evading the law. Besides, if the rate provided by law is too low, you cannot compel the lender to loan money at a lower rate than the risk will justify. In States where the interest laws are most stringent, the small borrower pays a higher rate than he does in States where there are no usury laws because the risk taken in making such loans is much greater and it is only the unprincipled men who are willing to evade the law and loan money on short time.

There may be some who believe that the rate proposed by Senator Brown's bill is ample. Let us consider for example how it would affect the pawnbroker. The pawnbroker usually deals in watches and jewelry, as well as making loans. If he buys a watch for $20 and has it in stock for ninety days, you would think his profit reasonable if he charged you $25 for the watch. Now there is just as much work, overhead expense, and more risk in loaning on a watch than there is in buying and selling one, and yet the proposed bill would require him to loan $20 on a watch for a period of ninety days for 60 cents. Would he do it? That is a question. We certainly could not compel him to do so.

Another example:—If a man buys a bill of furniture and pays part cash, leaving a balance of $100, the furniture dealer will allow him to pay the balance due on his purchase in monthly installments within one year by adding 10 per cent. to the balance due on his purchase, include all of the goods in a lease for $110 payable one-twelfth of this amount each month; thus he pays $10 for the use of $100 for six months (the average time the bill runs) or 20 per cent. per annum, which is a much higher rate than that allowed by the proposed bill. And yet no one ever thinks of calling the dealer a usurer or tries to regulate his profits by law; his profits are regulated by competition.

In most instances if a retail merchant does not discount his bills, he pays a higher rate than that the proposed bill allows. This interest question enters into nearly every line of business. It is competition that makes the price in most lines of business; why not in money lending?

I sincerely hope that this law will not be passed for the reason that it will do a great injustice to the small borrower, the very person that the bill is intended to help.

SUMMER EXTENSION AND SOCIAD COMMITTEE BEGIN SEASON'S WORK.

The Summer Extension and Social Committee of the Catholic Converts' League will meet tomorrow night at the Knights of Columbus Auditorium, Sixth and Flower streets. Non-Catholics are cordially invited to participate in these meetings, which will be held regularly every Monday evening at that place. PAPER ECONOMY.

War Industries Board Makes New Regulations for All Newspapers.

In a letter sent to all newspaper publishers in the United States, Thomas E. Donnelley, chief of the pulp and paper section of the War Industries Board, states that on account of the shortage of materials the question of the supply of paper is becoming acute and the use of paper must be economized to the greatest possible extent.

The letter states that it is necessary that all newspapers which publish a daily and weekly edition put certain preliminary economies into effect, beginning tomorrow. Among the economies ordered are to discontinue the acceptance of the return of unsold copies, to discontinue the use of all samples or free promotion copies, to discontinue giving copies to anybody except for office working purposes or where required by statue law in the case of official advertising, to discontinue giving free copies to advertisers except not more than one copy each for checking purposes and to discontinue all free exchanges.

MEXICAN ARCHBISHOP TAKEN BY MILITARY.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO, July 13.—Archbishop Francisco Orozco y Jimenez of Guadalajara, Mex., was arrested by military authorities at Lagos, Jalisco, July 5, and is now being held as a prisoner, according to a courier who reached here today with a request for Bishop A. J. Shuler to assist in obtaining the archbishop's release.

Telegrams were immediately sent by Bishop Shuler to Mgr. Bonzano, apostolic delegate to Washington, and Mgr. Kelly of Chicago, reporting his arrest.

The Mexican courier said the archbishop obtained permission from the Mexican authorities to visit the town of Lagos, where a public reception was held for him. At 11 o'clock on the night of July 5 he was placed under arrest by a lieutenant-colonel in command of the troops. On the following day the prelate was taken from Lagos by a detail of 100 soldiers. No one was permitted to accompany him and his present whereabouts is unknown. No reason for the arrest is known here.

Constantinople Sees Grain "From Ukraine," Then it Doesn't.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, July 13.—(British Wireless Service.) A dispatch from Constantinople dated July 4 describes one of the methods used by the Turkish government to make the population firmly believe that wheat was arriving there from the Ukraine. Several ships left Constantinople by day and proceeded during the night to a port on the Black Sea, where stores of wheat were held for the Turkish army. This wheat was taken aboard and the ships returned to Constantinople, where it was brought ashore. It was announced that this was a grain shipment from the Ukraine. The authorities added, however, that the army was short of wheat. During the night the grain was returned to the Black Sea port from which it had come.

MEXICANS IMPORTED FOR FARMS EXEMPT.

THOSE OF MILITARY AGE, FORMER RESIDENTS OF STATES, MUST REGISTER.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Mexican laborers, entering this State to do farm labor, will not be required to perform military duty, and those who have never resided in the United States will not be required to register, according to instructions from Provost Marshal General Crowder, at Washington, received here by the food administration for California.

Mexican citizens of military age, however, it was pointed out, who previously have resided in this country, must register on returning, but the selective draft law and regulations provide for their complete exemption from performing military service if they engage in farm work.

The State Council of Defense recently completed plans for bringing into California approximately 1000 Mexican laborers to aid in harvesting this season's crops.

Unique.

VEGETABLES AS OBJECTS OF ART.

Carved by Japanese, are Red Cross Shop Feature.

Beauty of Nippon Seen in the Day's Programme.

Handsome Sum for Cause is Raised by Fete.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

That universal language which is Beauty, served to translate the higher meanings of Japanese social life at the Red Cross fete yesterday given by the Los Angeles Japanese Red Cross Auxiliary, at the Red Cross Shop, on Alvarado street at Eighth street. Beauty ran, like a silver chord throughout the arrangements in the grounds, from the tastefully-placed vegetables and fruits offered for sale to the wealth of loveliness displayed in the handsome kimono and other articles offered by means of "chance."

Art such as has never been presented here before, was exhibited in the carvings from vegetables and roots, entire scenes, gardens and waterscapes being created by means of these humble materials. To us, the culinary art of vegetable carving means little more than the graceful curl of a radish peel, the splitting of a celery stalk, the fractioning of an apple; but the presentation of this art by Japanese artists who worked before the eyes of the crowds assembled at the Red Cross Shop yesterday, was like some strange necromancy.

Storks, carved from big white radishes flew above ponds whose vegetation was formed from edible roots and seaweeds; rosily-tinted apples were formed from eggs, not carved, but rolled while hot, so that they took on the semblance of the delectable fruit; turtles, swans and fishes disported themselves amid truly charming scenes, the ingredients of which were native to the same garden plots. Visitors gazed and returned to gaze again at the progress of this fascinating art, and then purchased the tiny baskets of wondrous fruits and flowers by this art made to grow.

The programme was interesting from beginning to conclusion; from the opening of the market at 9 a.m., to the hour when the visitors from France appeared to extend greeting to Japan—the latter event a surprise of the day and a happy conclusion to its many happy features.

Most interesting was the folk-lore story told by Mrs. K. S. Inui, who, in her exquisite and scholarly English, related the Japanese version of "Pandora's Box." According to the Japanese presentation of this myth, a boy who played upon the seashore, rescued from torture by miscreant children, a turtle, and in return for this kindness the creature took him to visit the King of the Underseas. Upon leaving for home, the boy received a precious lacquered box, which he was warned never to open, but to keep always in his possession. One day, when tempted beyond his strength, he succumbed and opened the magic box, when he perceived thin wisps of smoke ascending, delicate wreaths of mists, filled the air and forthwith he began to experience the ills of advancing age—and, ere he knew it, old age was upon him—liberated to his torment and that of the world for all time, by his foolish yielding. This lovely myth was followed by folk dances, by tiny Japanese girls in native costume.

The music of the Twenty-seventh Coast Artillery Band, which discoursed during the afternoon; the gayety of the brightly-decorated booths, the games of chance, such as the fish pond and the chances on the handsome kimono, and other objects held the attention of the crowds during the afternoon.

The presence of the Japanese Consul and Mme. Oyama, and that of a number of the members of local high society lent an air of easy sociability, many tea parties gathering from time to time to partake of the national beverage and for happy chats. A visit from Sessue Hayakawa and his wife, was an event of mid-afternoon.

The exact amount netted by the day's entertainment cannot be known for a few days, but it is such as to cast great credit upon the Japanese Red Cross auxiliary of Los Angeles and their appreciative friends.

BOLD FORGERY SCHEME FAILS.

Bogus Paper is Presented to Pasadena Bank.

Long-Distance Call Shows it is Fraudulent.

"Ryan" Jumps into Taxicab and Escapes.

An affable, well-dressed stranger who gave his name as Thomas A. Ryan waited for $25,000 in bills of large denominations before the paying teller's window in the Union National Bank of Pasadena yesterday. H. P. Thayer, assistant cashier, had told him to wait while he went after the small fortune in the vaults of the bank, but really to use a secret telephone on a long distance call to San Diego to verify checks to the value of $51,000 presented by Ryan.

Word came that checks were not good. The police were called, but the stranger left the bank and jumped into a waiting machine and was whisked away ten seconds ahead of his pursuers. A country-wide search is now being instituted for the man.

SKILLED WORK.

It was the most daring attempt of forgery that has been undertaken in Southern California in years, say the police, who believe Ryan is a master forger. Last night Burns detectives were busy comparing the check forgeries with the penmanship of the world's best crook pen artists.

"Ryan" introduced himself at the bank several days ago, and made an initial cash deposit of $400. He presented a business card which purported to show that he was president of the marine engine supply firm of "Day and Ryan," of New Orleans, and was on this Coast for the purpose of securing contracts in connection with the local shipbuilding industry. He also displayed credentials from commercial bodies of New Orleans and from San Diego. The checks he presented yesterday were drawn on the Merchants' National Bank of San Diego.

HURRY-UP CALL.

Mr. Thayer told Ryan that there was nothing in the paying tellers' cages but bills in $20 denominations, and that he would get the amount in $1000 bills from the vault. Mr. "Ryan" of the shipbuilding industry was left in conversation with P. F. Brown, one of the paying tellers, while Mr. Thayer was hurrying calls through to San Diego. On the first call he was given a report of "line busy."

The situation, according to the bank officials, became tense as the moments passed. "Ryan" remained cool for fifteen minutes. Another client of the bank intervened at Mr. Brown's window. It broke the spell for Ryan. Officers J. S. Shelton and Ed Chute arrived breathlessly, after a run of two blocks from the police station, but Ryan had disappeared.

He was heard from again when E. S. Coombs, a chauffeur, arrived back from a trip to Garvanza, where Ryan had jumped out of his machine and disappeared, leaving Coombs minus his taxi fare.

BEATS CAB FARE.

Ryan had left $400 in cash at the bank, and Coombs says he will attach it for payment. Coombs relates that his suspicions had been aroused by Ryan's nervous actions, and that he was waiting for him with the engine running, according to orders.

W. G. Barnes, cashier of the bank, said yesterday that Ryan might have been successful if he had asked for $2500, but that $25,000 demanded a cloes investigation. The police believe that Ryan was relying on his ingenuousness and the fact that he called at noon, just as the bank was closing, to carry him through to nefarious success.

The bank officials wonder what means "Ryan" will use to claim his $400 in the event that he is not arrested. They say he has not checked against it, as far as they know.

NEEDS MORE ROOM.

Torrent of Voters' Signatures to be Verified Causes Registrar to Ask More Office Space.

Registrar of Voters Lyons gave out a statement yesterday showing that under the workings of the initiative laws his office needs double the space it now has in order to examine the petitions for new legislation which the law requires shall be examined at the registrar's office.

Signatures which must be verified at once as being that of bonafide voters include nominating petitions of candidates, names to petitions for single tax, dentistry, anti-loan shark, bone dry and tavern bills, in addition to sending out notices to 7900 election officers, preparing 450 ballots, addressing 300,000 envelopes by hand, stuffing 300,000 enevelopes with sample ballots, and delivering election supplies, booths and ballot boxes to 1317 precincts.

LAYING OUT GROUND FOR NEW BUILDINGS.

COL. NEWTON ORDERED TO GET READY FOR IMPROVEMENTS AT FORT MACARTHUR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, July 13.—Work was begun here today laying out the ground for the first of the sixty-one new cantonment buildings, which will be erected on the upper Fort MacArthur reservation, and which will double the capacity of the cantonment now in use there.

Col. H. W. Newton, constructing quartermaster at Fort MacArthur, has received orders to proceed with the work of surveying the site in order to be in readiness to begin the building as soon as the War Department closes the deal for the land with William G. Kerckhoff and George H. Peck.

Nine units, of six buildings to the unit, will be erected with accommodations for 2574 more men. The William Simpson Construction Company has the contract on a cost-plus basis, which will probably amount to about $120,000. The contractors are now at work grading for the concrete road system, which will be put in on the cantonment site.

LOSES RIGHT TO OIL LANDS.

Honolulu Company Cannot Recover Locations in the Kern District.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VISALIA, July 13.—The Honolulu Oil Company was denied the right to recover Kern county oil land, valued at $20,000,000, which was withdrawn for patent by the government, in a decision of Register Frank Laning of the United States Land Office here today.

Register Laning held that negligence of the oil company to develop the land within the time limit set justified the government in withdrawing the land.

PESTS IN VENTURA DAMAGE BEAN CROP.

HORTICULTURAL AGENT BROCK INVESTIGATES, SAYS IT'S CORN EAR WORM.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OXNARD, July 13.—Investigations by A. A. Brock, County Horticultural Commissioner, proved that the worm, at first called the cabbage worm, which is causing consternation among bean growers of Ventura county is the corn ear worm, or Heliothis obsolete, before it attains its full growth. It resembles the cabbage worm.

The worm eats into the polls of the limas, which are juicy and tender now, killing them. In the larger polls it eats through the beans. It also eats the leaves, leaving only the veins. This does not cause as serious damage as its boring into the pods. The county horticulturist spent the day in the bean fields around Camarillo, and found the worm in almost every field. Should it increase in numbers to any great extent it would threaten the entire lima bean crop of this vicinity. Blackeyes will not be seriously damaged by it, according to Mr. Brock, as they are farther along. The only remedy advocated by him is spraying with arsenate of lead. This costs about $4 an acre, but is of doubtful value at this time of year, as the plants are well developed and the vines cover the ground, and a spraying machine would do much damage. Some ranchers in the Camarillo section are preparing to spray, however.

The young worms are greenish in color, getting darker as they mature, the full grown ones being almost black. The pests were first noticed in the Santa Susana district, where they are eating the leaves in the blackeye fields.

The late rains, according to Mr. Brock, are responsible for the alarming spread of the corn ear worm, which is always present in this country. Ordinarily cultivation at the usual time catches the worm in the larvae stage in the ground and crushes and kills it. This year cultivation was late and less thorough and the worms got a start.

Among the fields infected are the John Arneill ranch, where they are preparing to try out spraying, the T. F. McLaughlin and Pat Flynn ranches all near Camarillo. As yet the hill sections of the county have not been invaded by the worm.

SUIT OVER BEER.

San Diego Saloon-keeper Trying to Hold Brewers to the Contract Price.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, July 13.—Because the Mission Brewing Company has raised the wholesale price of beer in spite of an alleged contract, P. F. Pidgeon, a saloon-keeper, has brought suit in the courts here. Pidgeon claims to have entered into a contract with the brewing company August, 1913, when he gave a note for $5000 to the corporation, he agreeing to pay $8 a barrel for pale, $9 for dark beer, with an aditional $1 extra for each barrel on the note. But 2398½ barrels of beer have been sold at the contract price and Pidgeon claims that the Brewing Company should deliver 2601½ barrels more at the same price.

NEARLY LOSES LIFE TRYING TO SAVE BOY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, July 13.—A boy whose name was lost in the excitement came near losing his life in the ocean this afternoon. While on the pier watching the fishermen, he lost his balance and plunged headlong into the sea.

Louis Volkman of Westgate jumped overboard to rescue him, but in his haste neglected to disrobe and the weight of his clothing proved such a handicap that he could do nothing and would have been drowned, but for timely aid in the form of life buoys thrown to him from the pier. Fishermen in boats rescued both man and boy.

There must be no failure the petitions were short of names the politicians would harp in the next Legislature to show that the people were with the sharks. DO YOUR PART TO PUT OVER THE ANTI- LAW, AND DO IT NOW.

When you go to church this morning you will find blank petitions in the church vestibules awaiting your signature. Every one of the 740 churches in Los Angeles county has been supplied with petition blanks. Sign! Your signature is vitally needed to put the cruel and greedy loan sharks out of business.

The loan sharks are the Huns at home who must be licked as Americans are licking the Kaiser in France. These loan sharks are the men who would sell the homes of the Jennie Lloyds and other mothers of soldiers, and turn those mothers out of doors. Jennie Lloyd borrowed $200, paid $600 and still owed $700 until publicity aroused the public.

There are 25,000 and more workingmen and women who are today paying usury to loan sharks in Los Angeles. Sign the petition and a bill will go on the ballot which will put an end to usury and bring liberty and freedom from oppression to borrowers.

Up to closing time last night, the anti-loan shark petitions bore 60,000 signatures, it was estimated at the headquarters of the Anti-Usury League, No. 323 Merchants' Trust Building. More than 6000 names had been added at the downtown stands yesterday, and, in addition, 11,000 names previously brought in were tabulated, together with names brought in by volunteers, thus adding a grand total of 17,000 names to the 43,000 recorded up to closing time Friday evening. This is the biggest day's record so far, but hard work will be needed at churches today and downtown on Monday and Tuesday to secure the needed 30,000 names.

The law requires but 74,320 signatures to put the bill on the ballot at the November election, but a margin must be left of at least 30,000 names, so that when Registrar of Voters Lyons begins to check over the names there will be enough boni-fide approved names left to file the required number at Sacramento.

SANTA FE STATION.

Building Costing $250,000 to Be Formally Opened at San Bernardino Monday.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, July 13.—Formal opening of the new $250,000 passenger depot of the Santa Fe Railroad in this city will occur on Monday when the handsome new building will be occupied by the Los Angeles division offices of the road and trains will be operated on what was formerly West Third street, but now railroad property.

When the Santa Fe launched its gigantic plan to spend two millions here in shop and depot improvements, as well as yard extensions, the city abandoned West Third street from K street west and diverted the thoroughfare one-half block southward.

H. S. Wall, mechanical superintendent of the coast lines and General Agent B. L. Holmes, share in the credit for handling negotiations with the city for the changes.

BAKERS CAN WEAR WRIST WATCHES NOW.

IS DECLARATION OF PASADENA MAN WHO HAS ENLISTED IN THE NAVY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, July 14.—Even a baker can wear a wrist watch in this day and age, says W. R. Brown, for eight years in the bake shop of the Hotel Maryland, who enlisted in the navy yesterday. He will serve the government in the same capacity. At a dinner given him by a score of his friends he was presented with an engraved wrist watch and a razor. "Certainly a baker can wear a wrist watch, for this is the day of machinery and we don't stick our arms up to the elbows in dough any more," said the sailor-baker in answer to a question.

Another incident in connection with Brown's enlistment to make bread for the sailors with rating of baker, first class, is the fact that Mrs. Brown will also go to San Pedro, where her husband is to be stationed temporarily. Mrs. Brown is professionally known as Naoma G. Sweeney, "The California Mocking Bird." For some months past she has been making the rounds of the army camps, where she entertains soldiers and sailors as a whistler. She is billed at San Pedro in August and her husband will probably be in uniform.

Mrs. Brown says that she has considered her opportunity to entertain the men in the service through the army Y.M.C.A., a pleasure and that she will continue it with greater pleasure now that her husband has enlisted. Among those present at the dinner was W. S. Hurlbut, a veteran of the Civil War, and grandfather of Brown. He is proud of his grandson's enlistment. The others were Mr. and Mrs. George Biers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lorenz, Mrs. Blanche James, Mrs. A. Van Sant, A. J. Bertonneau, D. Dancaster, G. E. Smith, H. M. Nickerson, D. M. Easterman, W. Dole, J. D. Blundin and E. D. Herrick.

OFFICERS NAB MAN AFTER LIVELY CHASE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, July 13.—After an exciting and thrilling chase, in which shots were fired, a man giving the name of Clyde E. Turner and his residence as San Francisco, was arrested this afternoon by Redondo Beach and Hermosa Beach officers on a charge of disturbance of the peace. The warrant was sworn out by Mrs. Mabel McNally of No. 413 North Camino Real, Redondo Beach. Turner is a brush salesman and temporarily living in this city. Officers believe the man to be mentally unbalanced.

Arraigned before Judge W. M. Browning, Turner entered a plea of not guilty. The date of hearing was fixed for next Wednesday and his bail placed at $100, which was furnished.

Helping Uncle Sam.

ARMY AT CUCAMONGA IS HAPPY, CONTENTED LOT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UPLAND, July 13.—In the little village of Cucamonga, just a few miles east of this city, a happy woman's land army group is busily engaged in assisting with the essential fruit work of that district. An enthusiastic member of this land unit has provided the data for the following sketch regarding the girls and their activities.

With the spirit of service to our country in war, the Normal unit of the Land Army left Los Angeles for Cucamonga on July 5. The prize group, with its chaperon and kitchen force, was seventy strong, and, in spite of the hard work involved, the membership is still growing.

The people of Cucamonga have been unusually hospitable, for they have equipped the school building for housing the girls; a messhouse has been built, and every possible comfort for the young women has been thoughtfully provided. The culinary department, "manned" by Mrs. Fitzgerald, Miss Wheeler and Miss Lyman, has worked untiringly, and the privates in the ranks declare they never have had better food, or better appetites in their lives.

MILITARY REGULATIONS.

The whole camp is under strict military regulations, and a heavy penalty attaches for an infraction of rules. Lights are out at 9:30 p.m., and everyone must be in camp at that time, unless granted special leave. In spite of these exacting rules, the members, under their able chaperons, comply willingly and cheerfully with the specified regulations. Miss Gilroy, by reason of her capability, efficiency and good fellowship, is one of the finest of the chaperons in the Woman's Land Army. However, she never sacrifices her dignity, and there is no such thing as "dodging the rules," or "disturbing the peace," under her careful supervision. To her, in large measure, the girls very loyally attribute the lack of homesickness, the good comradeship, and the social standing of the camp. The chaperonage of seventy women is admitted to be a stupendous undertaking for one person; yet Miss Gilroy, by handling the situation herself, has proven her wonderful executive ability.

LINE UP FOR DRILL.

Every evening, before the lowering of the flag, the tired but happy "soldiers" line up for the military drill, and they can already vie with almost any of the "army squads." Miss Worthen, gymnasium instructor of Lincoln High School, has organized and drilled the unit for military work, and the best compliment to her ability is the splendid form and position of the squads. Mr. Lucas of Cucamonga, controlling manager of the Lucas Ranching Company, has been unanimously chosen as godfather of the entire group, and the members, as well as the people of this community, are positive that a more loyal and generous godfather could not have been found. Speakers, as well as various other forms of entertainment and music, are provided to while away the evening hours, and this feature has also helped to ward off the bugbear of "homesickness." Tired though the members are, they always welcome the entertainments after twilight has fallen, to recompense the toil of the day. On Saturday, July 13, a programme was provided, to which the people of Cucamonga were bidden. Miss Updike, teacher of English from the Los Angeles High School, was supervising hostess. After the programme there was a general reception and "get-acquainted" party, and the verdict seems to be that there was mutual enjoyment of this affair.

IN TWO SECTIONS.

The girls have been organized into two sections, according to the line of their work—those who pit and those who pack fruit in the cannery. The managers of the plant have displayed an eagerness to aid in every way to the comfort and enjoyment of the girls. Apricots are now engaging the attention, and later a bountiful supply of other fruits bids fair to keep everyone busy, for some time. While the work, at the start, seemed difficult and even tedious to many, yet through the tactful encouragement given here and there by Miss Gilroy, not a single girl "deserted the ship," and now there is a happy and eager group, busy from morning to night, for Uncle Sam. One can scarcely realize the sacrifices which many of these teachers have made, and it is certainly to the credit of themselves and their chaperons that a splendid crop of fruit is not going to waste. Every member is proud of her service, her uniform, her unit, and her chaperon. And the teachers are indebted for the opportunity of this service which is afforded them to the efforts of the Woman's Land Army of America, headed by Mrs. Eastman.

SOLDIERS' HOME, July 13.—The Soldiers' Home has a canning plant and the wives and daughters of members of the Home are finding not only enjoyable, but profitable, employment. They have finished canning 900 gallons of apricots and are now putting up tomatoes. Later, they will be engaged in caring for the figs and other fruits, the quartermaster states.

School children at Sawtelle, numbering fifty or more, were given an opportunity to earn money during their vacation by picking and pitting apricots for drying. The youngsters were all relatives of veterans.

HOOVERIZED BISCUITS, ALSO TEA IS SERVED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, July 13.—A tea-room opened at Red Cross headquarters here Thursday afternoon with patriotic ceremonial already promises to prove a profitable benefit for the cause as well as affording a daily social hour for the workers and their friends. The tea is guaranteed as being strictly censored and Hooverized, saccharine being used instead of sugar, while the tea biscuits are entirely wheatless. Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker, a prominent local Red Cross worker, who is just recovering from serious injury, was present on crutches as the special guest of the day at the opening function, while Mrs. B. Blackburn and members of the hostess committee poured and served. Cabaret performers are another new feature newly inaugurated and bringing added revenue to the weekly Red Cross luncheon in charge of Mrs. Jack Boettner.

Norah, the Rat Killer.

"Dogs of war" are again in the forefront of the news from the battlefields in France.

It is timely, accordingly, to tell of a dog which holds one of the most interesting records that has been made on the western front since the war began. It is the rat-killing record.

The dog that holds it is a little browny-yellow Irish terrier of the feminine sex, whose name, though it ought to be Boadicea, or Amazon, or something equally warlike, is the eminently maidenly one of Norah. Norah, until her arrival back in England a few weeks ago, had been in France for two years and ten months and in that time she accounted for over 100,000 rats.

Norah, who is just over 3 years old, went to France with a British soldier when she was a puppy 3 weeks old. Before she was 9 weeks old she had killed her first rat, and she has been killing them steadily ever since. The best single day's record that she put up in that time was 628 rodents accounted for. That was near St. Omer, in August last. Her naturally proud owner, Private Thomas Radford of the Canadian Veterinary Corps, kept a record of her performances, rat by rat, up to August last, at which time Norah's total was the astonishing one of 74,119. Since then her record has been kept largely by estimate.—[London Answers.

READY TO ACT.

Imperial District Engineers Make Preparation to Build Hanlon Weir.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, July 13.—With all in readiness to begin construction of a temporary weir in the Colorado River at a moment's notice, officials of Imperial Irrigation District anxiously await a modification of the decision of the Interior Department to require the installation of the new weir 1000 feet up the river from the old one.

Twenty-five thousand cubic yards of rock, much of it loaded on dump cars, together with hundreds of piling, and waiting the word to move, pile drivers, almost with hammers lifted, hug the bank of the rapidly receding river, indicating the preparedness measures taken by the district engineers to divert plenty of water for the 500,000 acres of valley crops.

"With the river dropping at the present rate it would be unwise to install the weir at any other point than the old site," declared Chief Engineer Clarke. "I am prepared to begin construction of the weir only at the former site tomorrow morning."

It was explained that a weir on the former location could be installed in ten days or two weeks. Putting the weir at the new point, 1000 feet up the river, means the construction of 2500 feet of new railroad and the use of twice as much rock, with the time of construction estimated at six weeks, barring accident.

The mind of the entire valley is on the subject of the weir installation and strong pressure has been brought to bear by irrigation district officials and citizens on the Department of the Interior to permit the temporary dam at the former site as the only definite means at this time to assure the growing and harvesting of the valley's big war-crop acreage.

"There will be no shortage of water if we are permitted to install the weir in the proper place," said Chief Engineer Clarke, "as we can have it in and working before the river discharge gets to the low point."

Directors of the Imperial County Farm Bureau, headed by President Mike Liebert, visited Hanlon Heading yesterday to study the situation and promptly dispatched an appeal to the Interior Department to allow the installation of the weir as proposed by the district engineers as a war emergency measure. Capt. Leeds of the War Department at Los Angeles has strongly recommended permission for the weir and the population of Imperial Valley stands ready to get behind the enforcement of this order.

Nearly 5000 cubic second feet of water was being turned into the valley canals today and it is the desire of the engineers to maintain this head throughout the summer to guarantee bumper crops.

REFUSES WARRANT FOR GIRL'S ARREST.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, July 13.—Judge George R. Holbrook today refused to issue a warrant for the arrest of Miss Lucy Barragan, 19 years old and pretty, following declarations by Frank Young to the effect that the girl is dogging his footsteps with a gun, unless Young produces witnesses to prove his contention.

Young, who is the 24-year-old son of Lewis Young, prosperous fruit grower residing at 319 East Park street, is now at liberty under $1000 bonds awaiting trial in the Superior Court on a charge of seduction with promise of marriage.

At the preliminary hearing held at the City Hall in February, Miss Barragan recited on the witness stand how, following repeated promises of marriage, she had accompanied Young to a house on a lonely peach ranch, where they had lived together for a time as man and wife, the youth later casting her aside.

Extracts from last War Department inspection report:
Are the conditions such as to impress cadets constantly with a sense of being under military discipline? Yes, decidedly so.
To what extent is a military spirit developed and nurtured? By practical instruction and by lectures. Every effort appears to be made to give the institution a decidedly military atmosphere.
With what degree of zeal is military duty performed? Excellent.
What was the general appearance of the cadets at inspection? Excellent.
Is the military instruction of such an extent and thoroughness as to qualify the average graduate for a commission as a lieutenant of volunteers? It is believed so, but graduate cadets considerably under minimum age limit.
Do the conditions warrant the continuance of the detail at this institution of an officer as professor of military science and tactics? The conditions warrant such a detail.
The training of the cadets in all matters military is carried out with most commendable esprit.
Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. T. Partello, U. S. A., Retired, is at the head of the military instruction. He has been at the academy since September, 1917, and, for inspection, turned out a remarkably well-trained body of cadets.
Physical drill (Butts' Manual) and bayonet drill, excellent. Review complete in detail and excellent.
Formal inspection: Though the rifles were commendably clean, several of them were somewhat out of repair due to fair wear and tear. The cadets present a clean and natty appearance and are very soldierly.

RATE HEARING REACHES CLOSE.

Pacific Electric's Request is Strongly Opposed.

City's Final Statement to be Submitted Within Week.

New Protests are Filed from Suburban Districts.

After stating that City Attorney Stephens would be allowed seven days to prepare a brief of the city's stand in the rate increase question, Commissioner Loveland closed the final session of the investigation of the Pacific Electric's request for an increased schedule at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

City Attorney Stephens has been confined to his bed, and was represented by Jess Stephens. Attorney Stephens may prepare his statement and send it to the Railroad Commission, San Francisco, during the week. This means that my decision is postponed for at least that time.

A petition protesting strongly against the Pacific Electric's proposed fare increase beyond Normandie avenue was filed by Hollywood citizens with the commission yesterday.

MORE PROTESTS.

The Hollywood citizens stated their objections to a lessening in the service now given on the Highland-avenue line, and also stated that they would contest any raise in fares beyond Normandie aveune within the city. Citizens living a few blocks beyond Gardner Junction also entered protests at the proposed increase. Others living along the Hollywood boulevard and the Santa Monica boulevard lines opposed a 68 per cent. increase in commutation books. Deputy City Attorney Jess Stephens presented the petition of the Hollywood Pacific Electric patrons.

Chief Engineer Howell of the Board of Public Utilities of Los Angeles resumed his testimony yesterday, saying that in view of the fact that the city lines of the Pacific Electric made up only a small part of their business and handled a smaller proportion of traffic than those of the Los Angeles Railway, a petition for a 6-cent city fare should properly come from the latter company. He expressed the opinion that while the public would be no more inconvenienced by the handling of pennies for car fare than for theater tickets and other articles, the 1-cent increase would prove more of a loss than a gain to the railroad company.

He presented charts in support of his claim that proposed increases were an injustice, and that the rates should not be changed at this time. He urged that the Pacific Electric itself economize as far as possible, by making use of the "skip stop," and in other ways.

Representatives of Bairdstown, Rose Hill, Highland Park, Garvanza, Mineral Park and Sierra Vista testified to local conditions in fare and service at these points. City Attorney John Munger made objections to any increase by the Pacific Electric of fares between Pasadena and South Pasadena, although he declared that a higher fare from Pasadena to Los Angeles was justified. He also objected to the proposed separate fare between El Molino station and Wentworth avenue on the Oak Knoll line, which he said would affect a new and densely-settled section of Pasadena.

Goes on Buying Trip.

Harry Fink of the Harry Fink Company, No. 635-7 South Broadway, left yesterday for New York, where he will spend a week or more selecting ladies' wearing apparel for the fall season.

LET EVERY FRIEND OF FRANCE FLY HER GALLANT TRICOLOR TODAY.

At Brunswig Home.

BRILLIANT FETE CHAMPETRE OPENS FRENCH CELEBRATION.

Los Angeles Society and the Military Representatives of Our Allies Combine Observance of the Bastille's Fall with a Benefit for War Orphans.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

IT WAS a brilliant and distinguished crowd which gathered in that lovely terraced garden of the Brunswig home on West Adams street yesterday to join the French in celebrating their great national holiday, anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, which is to France what July 4 is to the United States. And, as befits these dread war times, the occasion provided a fitting opportunity to gather in thousands of dollars for the readoption of those 300 little French orphans, the fatherless children of France, whom Los Angeles undertook to care for two years ago.

From early in the afternoon the scene was one of infinite charm and radiant enthusiasm. A cosmopolitan crowd poured in by battalions, and the dazzling array of distinguished military and naval guests, representing most of the Allied nations, lent no small eclat to the scene. The Fortieth Division at Camp Kearny was represented by Maj.-Gen. Strong's Chief of Staff Lieut.-Col. John S. Gulick and many staff officers, by the French instruction officers, headed by Capt. Pierre Loriot, and by the British instruction officers. Two notable guests were Lieut. Spencer and Lieut. [illegible] Simpson, Jr., of North Island, who flew up from San Diego in a hydroplane to be present at the fete. Theirs was one of the first San Diego-to-Los Angeles hydroplane flights yet made. The Fort MacArthur detachment was represented by its commanding officer, Col. John [illegible] C. Steele, and his staff; the Submarine Base at San Pedro by Capt. H. C. Foundstone and his staff, and the Naval Training Camp at San Pedro by Capt. Guy Whitlock and his staff, the Arcadia Balloon School by Col. W. N. Hensley and his staff—all of whom assisted in the brief but impressive ceremonies performed on the great marble steps of the Brunswig mansion in honor of the Fall of the Bastille—that grim weapon of feudalism which had exemplified archtyranny for a century or more, in which political opponents were often imprisoned for all their lives, and which was captured by the people on July 14, 1789, when the head of the governor, Delaunay, was paraded through the streets of Paris on a pike. Those were the days of Lafayette and Charlotte Corday, and the birth of French political freedom.

EVENT'S SIGNIFICANCE.

For this reason there was a deep significance in yesterday's event, this joining of the Americans, the British, the Belgians, with the representatives of France in commemoration of that precious freedom for which she is still so valiantly fighting, which we are all defending today. And as the tiny gun sent forth its proud salutes for the various international officers (it had to be tiny for a full-sized gun would have broken all the windows in the neighborhood,) and as the strains of the "Marseillaise" and all the Allied national anthems rang through that immense gathering, there was a far deeper emotion than mere entertainment in our hearts.

The scene was cleverly arranged, as a bit of France, and at the Verdun booth where Miss Marguerite Clark, as Jeanne d'Arc, Miss Margaret Brunswig as Charlotte Corday, Mme. Simone Puget as La Belle France, aided Mrs. H. C. Harlow in the sale of those pathetic Poilu chains, made by the French wounded soldiers, and those Verdun medals of honor, bearing the city arms on one side and the French motto "Ils ne passeront pas" on the reverse—that motto, "They shall not pass" which is the quintessence of the French spirit today, one felt very near the heart of the war.

BRILLIANT SCENES.

The Greek Theater proved an ideal setting for the lithesome dramatic dancing of Ruth St. Denis, Margaret Loomis and their lissom maidens, with its sunken terraces, its rippling fountain and flowers de luxe.

The vaudeville tent did a roaring trade with Frank Keenan as master of ceremonies, Fred Stone and daughter, Dorothy, Julian Eltinge, Marie Dressler, Myrtle Gonzales, Mlle. Foix, Mme. Rose Dione of the Paris Odeon, etc., as the lures par excellence, and Douglas Fairbanks made life wondrous for many an admirer by selling them candy at bargain prices.

Mrs. O. W. Poor, as caterer in chief for several hundred diners on the tennis court, aided by Mrs. Arthur Wright and a bevy of sixty-five girls, and Mrs. Grace Thomas with her tobacco, flowers, wheels of fortune, crystal gazers, etc., supported as she was by a jolly contingent of handsome young officers from the Submarine Base and such effective saleswomen as Carolina and Marguerita Winston, Margaret Johnson, Lee Holmes, Viola Hickok, the Misses Dockweiler, etc., insured those departments being highly profitable.

"Haig and Pershing," the two famous war dogs, who have rescued 400 lives on No Man's Land in Red Cross work, had an ovation all their own, and many were the covetous bidders for their offspring pup, which was auctioned for the cause.

Two naval bands, the gay and exciting Kilties, a jazz band, and a signalling corps from the Navy Department all conspired to lend the occasion verve and eclat.

Whether or not they aided Mrs. Hugh Livingston MacNeil's sedate card parties, coping with the intricacies of bridge within the quietude of the house is doubtful, but they certainly helped down the ice cream, the afternoon teas, the peanuts and hot dogs as dispensed by such distinguished folk as Mesdames Chandler, Hook, Wailes, Wilshire, Burke, Keating, Walter

Fall of the Bastille.

ALL CITY JOINS TODAY IN FRENCH NATIONAL FETE.

Allies Against Autocracy will Celebrate at a Big Gathering in Shrine Auditorium.

BE IT RESOLVED by the thousands of representatives of the Allied Nations assembled here today to do honor to France and the French people that we are unanimous in our indorsement of the noble message of President Woodrow Wilson, and solemnly pledge our undivided support to assist the government of this great nation to the carrying out of the engagement "to contribute our last drop of blood, our last ship, and our last dollar of our treasury in aiding France to victory, to liberation of that portion of her territory now invaded; to free Alsace-Lorraine from German bondage and restore her people to France, and, lastly to exact from a ferocious enemy fullest compensation, as far as may be possible, for ravages, destruction, devastation, arson, pillage and murder." Resolutions to be presented for adoption today at Allies celebration of French Day of Independence.

Today marks the one hundred and twenty-ninth anniversary of the fall of the French Bastille. The local celebration of the downfall of tyranny in France began yesterday, and at noon today there will be given a luncheon in honor of the officers of the French military mission. This afternoon and this evening will be given over to a joint celebration by the French colony, the G.A.R., National Security League and all other patriotic societies, at Shrine Auditorium.

In years past the French colony alone has celebrated the French day of independence, but this year Americans will pay tribute to France by joining in French celebrations both here and in France. The American Fourth of July was celebrated in France this year as a national holiday, and the school children were told the meaning of the day, and everywhere were displayed the Stars and Stripes.

The nation-wide celebration today by Americans of the French day of independence was arranged by the National Committee on Allied Tribute to France, of which William H. Taft is the honorary chairman, and Vice-President Marshall chairman of a distinguished committee. The participating societies include the Alliance-Francaise, National War Work Council of the Y.M.C.A., war committee of the Knights of Columbus, National Committee of Patriotic Societies, Jewish Welfare Board and many others. The object of the American and Allied participation in today's celebrations throughout America is "as a tribute to France by the people of the United States and its allies, and to voice their determination to support France until peace shall have been achieved by victory."

TODAY'S PROGRAMME.

In Los Angeles the call for all to participate in today's celebration, announcing America's determination to stand by France "to the last drop of our blood and to the last dollar in our treasury" was issued by Lucien N. Brunswig as chairman of the Executive Committee of the Allied Tribute to France, and by Gen. Johnstone Jones, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles branch of the National Security League.

The speeches this afternoon include a brief address first in English and then in French by Chairman Brunswig, an address by M. F. F. Pellissier, president of the day; the oration of the day, by Judge Bledsoe, on behalf of the United States, a tribute to Alsace-Lorraine by Louis Sentous, consular agent of France in Los Angeles, and a tribute of our debt to France by Marshall Stimson, chairman of the four-minute men. Following these addresses Mr. Brunswig will ask that the following resolution be adopted by the gathering:

"Whereas, during the past four years our great sister republic of France has been engaged in a most terrific war to maintain her existence, and

"Whereas, the titanic struggle has been largely waged against the French armies, on French soil, causing devastation of many cities and villages, wreck and ruin to the civilian population, and

"Whereas, we realize that, but for the heroism, self-sacrifice and indomitable spirit of the French army and nation defeat and disaster would be the lot of the civilized world,

"Be it resolved by the thousands of representatives of the allied nations assembled here today to do honor to France and the French people that we are unanimous in our indorsement of the noble message of President Wilson, and solemnly pledge our undivided support to assist the government of this great nation with the carrying out

Why We Say That Thomas A. Edison Has Truly Created a New Art

Our generation has witnessed the birth of two new arts, one the Silent Drama of the screen, the other Music's Re-Creation as achieved by the New Edison.

The Re-Creation of music is not only a new art, but it is utterly different from all other arts. Painting, sculpture, literature, the drama; all these imitate and interpret life. But life—the living voice—is actually Re-Created by Center of System.

GERMAN SPY PLOTTING HERE ON THE INCREASE.

Federal Officers Locate More Agents of Kaiser—Teutons Use Mexican Border as Screen.

FURTHER revelations that Los Angeles is the center of the German spy system in the United States came to light yesterday with the receipt of information by Federal officials that the number of Germans on the Mexican side of the border is greatly on the increase. San Francisco has also been included in the system and the authorities here and in the northern city have come by important news that certain prominent citizens of German descent have not been loyal to this country.

About thirty enemy aliens and others charged with violation of the Espionage Act are now confined in the Los Angeles county jail as government prisoners. Other alleged conspirators have been under strict government surveillance for some months and their arrest and prosecution is considered a matter of days.

Certain border cities, chiefly El Paso and San Antonio, have been utilized by Teuton emissaries for the purpose of getting information to waiting agents on the other side of the border for quick transmission to Germany.

LOCATE HIGHER-UPS.

By a secret censorship of all mail intended for Mexico, covering many months, the government has succeeded in locating, it is declared, many "higher-ups" in the Potsdam ring on the Pacific Coast, notably in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Some of these persons hold important positions in the community and though several have been under suspicion because of strong pro-Teuton sympathies before the entry of this country in the war, the arrest of others would cause a profound sensation in both cities, it is stated.

Although the Federal authorities on the Pacific Coast have been mopping up each of the larger cities and have succeeded in herding many enemy aliens into the internment camps, it goes without saying that the directing brains of these small fry have so far eluded arrest. "Who are they?" the government officers have been asking one another for some time. Some of them they now know of and it is predicted that arrests soon will follow. For obvious reasons it is best that their names remain a secret.

The attention of the government was directed to one Los Angeles resident when it became known that he was in constant correspondence with parties in Mexico. This man resided, according to his statements, fifteen years in San Francisco and came to Los Angeles a few months back.

IN CONSULAR POSTS.

His correspondence revealed that he has been intimately connected with the German government in consular positions in various cities in the United States. During the last six months he has been forwarding large sums of money to agents with German names in Mexico. He has worked at various occupations along the Coast, but the authorities are in possession of information that he has never lost communication with his superiors both in the United States and Berlin. He has not been arrested, but he is under continual surveillance and will be taken into custody the instant he attempts to change his headquarters.

Other Germans and German-Americans have been apprehended at the border by watchful agents of the government who had been warned of their coming by intercepting their mail and learning that they had notified friends to meet them on the Mexican side of the border. Some of these men were well supplied with money; others informed their waiting compatriots to have money for them upon their arrival at the border.

That a rich German-American connected with influential circles in San Francisco has been under investigation by Federal officers was revealed yesterday. This man was engaged in business in Berlin at the outbreak of the war. He amassed a fortune by importing American goods into Germany. "Business" reasons compelled him to visit America in 1915, which he had a right to do, being an American citizen. He was not interfered with by the British authorities. But when he attempted to return to Germany a year later he was unable to secure a passport.

FOCUSED ATTENTION.

He settled down in San Francisco and became intimate with Franz Bopp, the German Consul now under sentence for violation of the neutrality laws, and other prominent Germans and German-Americans. His activities on behalf of Germany focused the attention of the government. Just before the entry of America into the war he attempted to distract attention from the issue with Germany by spreading a report in San Francisco and Los Angeles that Japanese reservists by the thousands were leaving California for Japan, having been called home to prepare for an impending attack on the Pacific Coast cities of the United States.

This man invariably camouflaged his sympathies for the fatherland by always speaking of "we Americans" when attempting to condone German atrocities in respect of submarine warfare. He was reported to the government many times, but his machinations have been so adroit and clever, especially since this country's participation in the war, that he has managed to remain at liberty. He cannot be interned, as he is a naturalized citizen, and thus in the same category with tens of thousands of other German-Americans, some hundreds of whom are believed to be doing the same bit of service for the fatherland in exchange for "world loot" after the war, with "victorious Germany," sole proprietor of earth's hereditaments and appurtenances and everything thereunto belonging.

ALONG THE BORDER.

Germans along the border are being noted in increasing numbers, latest reports say. These Teutons are on the Mexican side of the border, however, and are outside of the jurisdiction of the American authorities. They are unquestionably there with but a single purpose in view—to receive information from confederates in the United States to be handed on to the German Embassy in Mexico City. They are apparently working with the tacit consent of the officials of Northern Mexico, as no effort has been made to put a stop to their activities. When they step over the line, as they do occasionally, they are immediately arrested and interned.

Los Angeles being the nearest city of any size to the southwestern border, commands a strategic position to make it a useful center of activity for conspiring Germans and their confederates. Moreover, although the Germans may be angular-headed, they have enough sense to know that a true Hun invariably leaves a bad scent behind him. The safest means, therefore, is to use citizens of other nations to carry their information out of this country.

WOMEN IN IT, TOO.

"What is to prevent the Germans from using the thousands of Mexican peons in the southwestern section of the United States?" it is asked. Nothing but the ceaseless vigil of United States officers along the border. Women, pretty women, are also on the pay roll of Potsdam.

The army intelligence bureaus in San Francisco and Los Angeles have been searching for a pretty young German woman who was known to have had secret communication before America entered the war with German consulates located in Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York City. This young woman, who was born in the Rhine section and looks more French than German, was employed as a governess in prominent German families here and in San Francisco.

After America's declaration of war she made an abortive attempt to return to Germany and returned to Los Angeles, where she again took up the work of a governess.

WHEREABOUTS UNKNOWN.

Several weeks ago she disappeared and, as far as known, her present whereabouts is a mystery. At one time this young woman boasted of once having worked in the German Consulate in Rio Janeiro, and that her father was Burgomaster of a Rhine city.

That at least two master spies of Wilhelmstrasse have been in the Los Angeles County Jail for the past several months, held incommunicado by orders of the government, became known yesterday. Both these individuals are exceptionally well educated and both have consistently refused to talk about themselves. No charge is against their names, but Federal officials are convinced they have in custody at least two persons who have been directly connected with Teuton propaganda on the Pacific Coast.

FORMER ANGELENO NOW AN ENSIGN.

Ensign Leslie Herbert Blair, son of Mrs. Eglantine R. Blair of No. 4427 Lockwood avenue, who is in command of one of the new United States submarine chasers, is stationed at the submarine base at Los Angeles Harbor for a short time.

This is the first time in nearly two years that he has been near home, as he had gone to Seattle on business before his country entered the war and enlisted and obtained his commission at the Puget Sound navy yard.

TO FILE ANSWER.

Sheriff Cline will tomorrow file his answer to the suit of the county to compel him to turn into the county treasury the fees received by him from the government for the feeding of Federal prisoners. The matter will then come before Judge Jackson. Because his affidavit filed did not include the fees which the Appellate court held he must pay into the county, the Sheriff's salary warrant has been held up.

Expanding Commerce.

PORT'S TRADE IN MAY NEARLY NINE MILLIONS.

NEARLY $9,000,000 worth of commerce passed through the port of Los Angeles during May, 1918, according to a report just made public by the Board of Harbor Commissioners. The exact figures are $8,903,811, representing 352,830 tons. The number of commercial vessels arriving at the port during the month was 171 and there were the same number of departures.

The value of the inbound domestic lumber for the month was $1,449,877, representing 39,012,180 feet board measure. The inbound lumber tonnage was 42,938.

Of outbound domestic traffic there were articles listed having a value of $2,003,122, including canned fish, $150,200; dry goods, $170,000; refined and fuel oil, $1,333,708, and Extensive Affair to be Held in Exposition Park Arranged by Indiana Society.

The Indiana State Society will hold its annual basket picnic at the picnic grounds in Exposition Park on Saturday, the 27th, inst., to which all Hoosiers and former residents of Indiana will be welcome. Plans have been made to make it the largest and best picnic ever given by the society.

Attorney William M. Bowen, a Hoosier and the man who made the park possible, will be host of the day and has made arrangements for the new swimming pools to be set apart for the picnickers from 11 to 12 o'clock and 3 to 4 o'clock, at the small charge of 10 and 15 cents. There will be swings and other amusements for the children.

Sandwiches, ice cream cones and coffee will be served for those who are not fortunate enough to have their baskets filled at home. Free coffee will be given to those buying badges.

The following programme will be given at 2 o'clock: Welcoming address by the president, G. C. Thornberg; selections by the G.A.R. Glee Club; patriotic address by Deputy City Prosecutor William D. McConnell; songs, "Your Mother is Thinking of You" and "Dear Old Dad," presented by the original composer, R. H. Mouser. Community singing to be lead by the celebrated band singer, Mabel Cushman, who will also give special selections.

GETS DAMAGES.

A jury in Judge Houser's court yesterday awarded Mrs. Anna M. Newman $1248.44 damages against E. E. Overholtzer's Sons for injuries she sustained when the automobile in which she was riding was struck by the undertakers' ambulance. The accident occurred on Twenty-fifth street near Main March 25, 1917. She sued for $10,000 damages.

ADRIEN LOEB COMPANY IF FIRM'S NEW NAME.

DEATH OF I. G. FLEISHMAN NECESSITATES CHANGE OF FRUIT CONCERN.

The firm of Loeb, Fleishman & Co. of Los Angeles, successors to the Germain Fruit Company, the latter firm having started in 1883, and to which Loeb, Fleishman & Co. succeeded in 1896, ceased to exist on July 1, last. It was wound up on account of the recent death of I. G. Fleishman, junior member of the firm, as the business was not incorporated, and, being a partnership, had to be terminated July 1, 1918.

On that date, Adrien Loeb, a native of Switzerland, who had been vice-president of the Germain Fruit Company and manager of that concern for many years, and general manager of the Loeb, Fleishman Company, became successor of the latter concern, and will adopt it under the name of the Adrien Loeb Company.

All the employees of the Loeb, Fleishman Company have been retained. Frank C. White, who has been associated with Mr. Loeb for thirty-two years, will continue to be assistant manager; Jack Kazinsky will be credit manager; R. W. Alven, sales manager; George B. Drakenfeld and Baringer, cashier and secretary, respectively; Ed Harlow, manager of the egg department; Joseph Bell, manager of the butter and cheese department, and Dan Lewis, manager of the banana department.

The city and county shipping departments will continue to be under the supervision of Emmons H. Fitzgerald and Frank Haven. Adrien Loeb is now president of the Wholesalers' Board of Trade and vice-president of the Los Angeles Produce Exchange. The business will continue at No. 210 Central avenue.

PRISONERS PRAY FOR THE KAISER

At Least County Jail Patriots so Accuse Enemies.

Say Orisons at Noon Just as Loyal Ones Do.

Cell Doors Save the Germans from Rough Hands.

Reports that the twenty-six enemy alien prisoners in the County Jail were praying for the success of the Kaiser every day at noon caused mutterings among the loyal inmates of the jail yesterday. The rumor gained such headway among the prisoners that only cell doors saved the Germans and their sympathizers from rough handling.

When The Times whistle has resounded at noon daily, it has been the custom of the patriotic prisoners to offer up a prayer for the success of American arms. Things went along nicely until one astute patriot noticed that the majority of the German enemy aliens lifted up their heads in silent prayer also.

The one who is declared to have launched the new prayer movement in favor of the Kaiser is F. H. Beker, held on suspicion of being a master spy. Beker has been in jail about a month, during which time he has twice been examined by the authorities and has refused to explain a number of incriminating papers found in his possession. He is well educated.

Although the enemy aliens have denied offering orisons for victory for the fatherland, other prisoners are positive that they have inaugurated a concerted prayer meeting at noon daily. The prisoners are kept by themselves in a section of the jail and nobody is permitted to interview them, on express orders of the government.

Among the twenty-six prisoners are: F. H. Beker, held as a spy; Carl Deschell, arrested at San Diego on a charge of sedition; Paul Feldt, charged with violating the President's proclamation; Giglio Fiorini, alleged master Italian anarchist arrested at the harbor; Arthur Halbich, violating the President's proclamation; Paul Hulick, arrested at San Luis Obispo as an enemy alien; G. Hoagland, charged with Espionage Act violation; Charles Klein, violating President's proclamation; J. N. Legendre, artist, arrested at Sierra Madre, charged with violation of the Espionage Act; George Mohr, enemy alien; Ricardo Magon, editor of Regeneracion, charged with sedition; Librado Rivera, sedition; Anton Sigg, held for investigation by the Department of Justice; Emil Zelt, enemy alien; Albert Kiffl, San Diego, violation of Registration Act; Karl A. Kluge, Long Beach, enemy alien; Juan W. Bucholz, Los Angeles, violation of Espionage Act; Bernard Capune, Los Angeles, cook, violation Espionage Act; Paul L. Fruhling, United States noncommissioned officer, arrested at Fort MacArthur, no charge against him; C. P. Kunzman, Los Angeles, enemy alien; Fred Winkman, Long Beach, shipbuilding superintendent, enemy alien; W. Vonberger, Glendale, enemy alien; Samuel Kellner, held for investigation; John Schultz, Los Angeles, violating Presidential proclamation, Nicholas Zogg, Los Angeles, charged with assisting others to evade the draft laws.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIAL RESIGNS.

ILL-HEALTH CAUSES D. W. CAMPBELL TO LEAVE AS ASSISTANT GENERAL MANAGER.

D. W. Campbell, assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific, yesterday filed his resignation, to take effect on August 1. Mr. Campbell has decided upon this step because of his continued ill-health, and upon the advice of his physician. For the past ten months he has suffered from a nervous affliction, and last January he went to Honolulu, hoping to receive benefit from the voyage and change. He returned the fore part of April and resumed his official duties, but his physical condition became such that a long rest seemed imperative.

Mr. Campbell has been officially connected with the Harriman railroad properties for twenty-seven and a half years. He came to Los Angeles as assistant general manager of the Southern Pacific in 1916, and previous to that time was located at Portland in a similar position for the northern district.

Mr. Campbell's family is in Los Angeles, and it is probable that this city will continue to be his home, although his plans for the immediate future are all subservient to the attempt to regain his health. Who his successor will be is a matter of general interest among railroad men, but official action may not be taken for several weeks.

THEY CARE FOR THE SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

RED CROSS RELIEF DEPARTMENT PROVIDES DOCTORS AND LAWYERS FREE.

Wives and mothers of fighting men need not fear the loan sharks, the shyster lawyer or other anti-patriots who prey on the families of soldiers, for the primary duty of the Civilian Relief Department of the American Red Cross, located at No. 144 East Tenth street, is to advise and protect them.

According to a statement issued by Mrs. Benjamin Goldman and Miss Crissey McLemore, respectively chairman and secretary of the Home Service Committee, five lawyers are always available, ready to advise dependents in all business matters. Whether the question be regarding rents, debts, insurance, allotments or the right of wife or children, experienced and honorable members of the legal profession are ready to consult with and advise the mother or wife without exacting any fee whatever.

Fifty physicians are always on call, glad to help the families of fighting men without charging a cent for their services. When money is needed, the department will advance it if the allotment is late, add to the government allowance in case of an emergency.

Recently a young woman came to the headquarters in desperate straits. She had two children to feed, and was expecting another baby. In some way her allotment had been delayed for months. The soldier's wife found herself among friends who advanced the needed money, engaged a room for her at the California Hospital and saw that every care was taken of her. The other children were cared for while she was away, and when the new baby came, it had such a layette as the mother had never dreamed of. It was a soldier's baby, and the Red Cross furnished the layette.

Such incidents occur daily at the headquarters of the Civilian Relief at No. 114 East Tenth street. The department has now been at that address a month. Formerly the office was at Normal Hill Center.

Pioneer French Birdman Proposes to Build New Type Here for Mail and Passengers.

Clodion Molas, member of the Societe Polytechnique Militaire of Paris and a pioneer French aviator, has come to Los Angeles with the purpose of building a high-speed, all-metal airplane of steel and aluminum for mail and passenger service. Thomas Connolly, of the United Welding Works, has interested himself in the matter and proposes to form a company and make planes of this type for commercial purposes. M. Molas is at present residing at No. 201 West Twenty-fourth street.

LONG BEACH WANTS TO HOUSE NEW SHIP MEN.

In Rivalry with San Pedro to Get Southwestern Company's Employees.

KEEN rivalry has developed between Long Beach and San Pedro to provide housing for the thousands of men who will be employed at the new plant of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company at East San Pedro. Although the new yards are only a short distance from the business center of San Pedro, a great effort is being made by Long Beach business interests to take advantage of the handicaps due to the necessity of transfers to and from the ferry.

Through the efforts of Long Beach, inducements are being made to the employees of the company to live there and ride to and from their work over the Salt Lake Railroad. Trains run from Los Angeles direct to the new shipyard through Long Beach. It is claimed by Long Beach residents that less time is taken in commuting from Long Beach than from San Pedro by ferry.

San Pedro seems to be alive to the situation, however, and is making a strong demand for improved ferry service. The old consolidation promise of a municipal ferry has been again raised and efforts have been made to induce the city to put in a ferry service at the harbor for the benefit of the shipyard workers.

HAVE OWN AUTOS.

tation of shipyard workers has developed in providing adequate parking space for automobiles. Hundreds of men working at the shipyards live in various sections of Los Angeles that have not adequate car service. These men find it much more convenient to keep up a flivver than pay car fare. At every change of shift there is a constant stream of automobiles around the west basin to and from the shipyards to the plant of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at San Pedro.

Although a large parking space was provided by the company in its lease from the city on Smith's Island, the demand for space has already far outgrown the accommodations. The need of a drawbridge for vehicles and passengers paralleling the present Southern Pacific bridge is again emphasized. Scores of drivers in order to save the long detour around the west basin now park their machines in the sand on the Wilmington side of the channel to the west basin and take a chance in walking over the drawbridge along the railroad tracks.

PLANS FOR PARKING.

In view of the experience of the older yard, the officials of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company are now making an effort to provide parking space on the west side of the channel so that machines may be parked convenient to the ferry landing. Failing in this it is proposed to build

I have noted the in western plainsmen and These knights of the no coat of arms or heraldry to distinguish them. They have been accoladed by the hand of war. Theirs is the aristocracy of supreme courage, of real achievement.

It was noon, and one of those sultry periods to be found on the French calendar. Down the street, raising clouds of whiteish, chalk-like dust, came battalion after battalion of infantry. They were moving up, and would go in the trenches that night. They had been there before, and apparently it was nothing in their heroic young lives. They marched in silence, but they were not downcast. Veterans seldom talk when on the march. It is a waste of energy, and they need it all. Furthermore, atmosphere charged with dust is not conducive to conversation. The runner who breathes though his mouth soon drops out. It is the same with marching. One company in this division did thirty miles in one day through the mud without losing a man. A Spartan could not have done more.

Over the shoulders of these men headed for the trenches were slung rifles and gas masks, and on each was the steel helmet which has so completely changed the appearance of our men.

EASY TO BE KILLED.

Five miles over a road under observation by the enemy, we came to another village. Here it was necessary to leave the machine.

"Is there a chance to get into the front-line trenches?" was asked a major.

"Sure," he replied. "I'd just as lief have you killed as some of my own men."

This was encouraging. He provided us with a runner or guide; we donned our iron war bonnets, adjusted our masks and started for the main works. In order to reach the trenches it was necessary to walk two miles over almost level ground which was devoid of trees, shrubbery or other means of concealment. Over every foot of this two miles we were within plain sight of the enemy, and within easy reach of his artillery.

Reaching this opening, we were instructed to scatter out until 100 yards apart. There were three in the party besides the guide. Lumped, The sun was beating down pitilessly, and after you have worn one of those helmets for ten minutes you feel as if you had on a ton of lead for a lid. Puffing, panting and perspiring I took off my steel hat to those men who had done thirty miles in one day. The easiest way to wear a helmet is in your hand.

Finally, striking a trail that only an army guide or an Indian could follow we found ourselves in a deliciously cool wood. We walked as lightly as our heavy army brogans would permit, as the enemy listening posts were not far away and we could see where the bark of the trees had been groved by machine-gun bullets, and twigs cut from them. German missles had swept that ticket more than once.

HOUSE UNDER GROUND.

Suddenly a clearing seemed to open in the wood. At a round table roughly made from boards, a captain was seated, stripped to his B.V.D.'s from the waist up. He was going over some reports, and planning a little surprise party for that night. He referred to this clearing as his front yard. Asked where his house was, he pointed to a hole in the ground.

"That's the front door," he said.

And it was a mighty comfortable abode, either in cold or hot weather. Bunks, dining-room, kitchen all underground. Cold water was drawn from a spring near by. It was an ideal summering place.

The men were contented and happy—said the war could last a million years for all their cared, as they lay back luxuriously in their rustic chairs and pulled deeply at fragrant fags. They were going out on a raiding party that night. Down below the cook was showing great signs of industry. He was peeling potatoes, slicing off big strips of bacon and otherwise preparing for the evening mess.

IN THE TRENCHES.

The captain was just about to start his round of the trenches and told us to fall in. How we got there is still a mystery to me. We just naturally faded into them through the brush and were there before we realized it. Some soldiers were going up, others coming back. By them we squeezed with difficulty while floundering over unsteady duckboards and through mud from recent rains. Here and there men were laboring at pumps over dugouts which had been flooded and which had already become foul.

For the most part, however, the trenches were not unpleasant. The main thing was to watch your step and keep your head down. What struck me was the youth of the soldiers, and it dawned on me for the first time that our wars for the most part are fought by mere boys. They were in good spirits and said war is a great sport if they would only call the game on account of rain now and then. Mud causes them more worry than the Huns. Not one of those boys who didn't hold his head up high and look a bit proud when we passed. In short, they felt their importance, and that is nothing against them. There was not a fellow in those trenches who did not feel a proprietary interest in this war—that it was his own personal world war. And they reveled in its excitement, its physical exaltation and its mystery.

Trench warfare is not without its romance. It is hide and seek on a large scale, the game that appealed to these fellows when they were barefooted kids. It appeals to that side of their nature which also prompted them to play Indian and to scout and stalk one another through the neighborhood ravines and brush patches when they were youngsters. Their alert and watchful attitude showed that trench warfare is satisfying an enlargement of this passion and that they were enjoying it hugely. Some of them already had one or more notches on their guns. This is the biggest big-game game in the world.

When we reached the front-line trenches I was completely turned around, and the German lines seemed exactly opposite to what they should be. Frequently you read of a soldier becoming lost close to his own lines, and wonder at it. Well, it is one of the easiest things imaginable.

The captain told us to take a look, and, not having any periscope, the only way to do this was to poke our heads up over the rim of the trench and enjoy the scenery at our own risk. Less than a quarter of a mile away a sort of clayey, irregular line marked the German front-line trench. Our artillery was so active that Fritz was keeping under cover and not a squarehead was in sight.

DIDN'T GET SHOT.

Still, during the half hour that we were observing his trenches, I had a hunch that somebody over there was sizing me up through a porthole — the same feeling that makes you turn around in church or theater when somebody is looking at you very hard from behind. What surprised me most was that I didn't get shot, and in a way it was rather disappointing. Just like expecting something and not getting it.

That feeling of being looked at was not without foundation. Something drew by attention to a tall tower in a French village just back of the German lines. Fixing my glasses on it I could see a soldier in a gray uniform in the belfry-like top. He was a German observer and he was looking at us very intently—probably wondering what we were rubbernecking about. That nobody tried a shot at us shows how completely our men dominate some parts of the line. It might have started something that the Germans couldn't stop. In some places there wouldn't be any fighting at all if our fellows didn't start it and force the Huns to fight back.

A MODERN WAR FABLE IN SLANG.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.
Illustrated by Harry Barndollar.
(With their respective apologies to Messrs. Ade and McCutcheon.)

AMERICAN FRONT IN FRANCE, June 24.—Once upon a Time not so very Long Ago there lived a Thing who believed himself a Man. He imagined himself to be very Fierce. Most persons, however, regarded him as only a Royal Fat Head suffering from a cyclone in his Coco. Others sized him up merely as a Shrimp.

Even a Fat Head may become an Annoyance when he is suffering from a Hallucination, or has bats in his Royal Belfry. In fact, when he has Unlimited Power and is given enough Rope, he may become a Menace. In reality he was the victim of several Hallucinations. One was that he had the Military Genius of Napoleon, and it was impossible to convince him that he had none of the Qualities of that Really Able, although somewhat Unscrupulous, Leader. The latter was not deliberately Destructive, and had real Constructive Qualities. The other Hallucination which he carried under his Hat was that he was God's personal representative, whereas in reality he was only the Walking Delegate of the Devil. He never was able to show any Credentials from Heaven, and yet he claimed the Divine Right to raise Hell on earth. He became tongue-tied from saying, "Me and Gott."

He told his beer-soaked subjects that they were the Chosen People. He pointed to the whole earth as the Promised Land, and told them to go out and Hog it. So persistently did he Hammer these Thoughts into the Square Heads that they got to believing them. He informed them that other nations were destined to Hew Wood and Draw Water for them, while they sat around on their fat Teuton Rumps and Collected the Revenue. Also, other nations would black their Super-Shoes and clean out their Super-Lavatories. This Sounded Good to them, and they agreed Heartily.

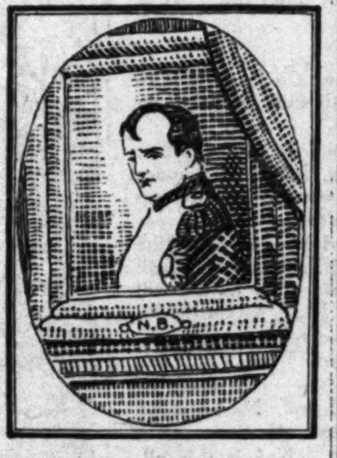
So they all entered into the plot with Zeal. They began practicing the Strong Arm Stuff, and also went into training to become International Porch Climbers. Apparently nothing was Overlooked. Music and Science were requisitioned. One of the Leading Composers prepared a Beautiful Hymn of Hate. An Eminent Physician enlightened them as to the most Painful way to kill a Baby. Their Professors sat up late at night working out mathematical problems in connection with the Construction of Huge Whizz-Bangs with which to shell Unfortified Towns. Their Learned Chemists compiled large quantities of new and deadly Stink Bombs. The Royal Fat Head told his subjects that he had received a Wireless from Gott instructing them to Plunder and Murder at will. They equipped themselves with every Scientific Device for Murdering, Maiming and Torturing. Apparently not a Single Item had been Overlooked. This was the Acme of Kultur.

Believing that they had a Sure Thing, they confidently started out to Lick the World. They were so sure of Success that Mama even told little Fritzie to steal Jewelry in Paris and bring it back to her.

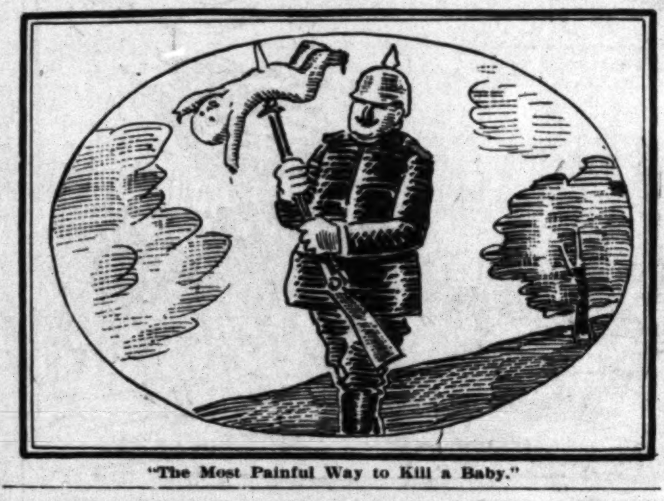
But in the Extensive Preparations they failed to take into Calculation two very Simple Devices—the Ax and the Spade. The Machinery of War was working without a Hitch until they got almost to Paris. Then a Comparatively Small Number of French Licked the Stuffing out of them. The Supermen, who had made such an Excellent Showing against the Women and Children of Belgium, turned and Tin Canned when they saw they were facing Men. They acted almost Frightened. Then the Thing responsible for it all began to Bleat that the Heartless Slaughter should be stopped. Knowing him to be a Crook, and therefore not to be Trusted, England and France refused to negotiate. Instead, they took their Spades and built hundreds of miles of Ditches with which to hem in the Barbarians. Then with the same Spades they excavated Dugouts and Underground Works. With their Axes they leveled forests and secured Timber with which to strengthen their Trenches and build Bridges which the Scampering Superman had destroyed. They also used the Axes to cut wood with which to cook Food for the Army. Then they took their Spades and dug more Trenches, and built more Roads.

The Ax and the Spade proved fully as mighty in Defense as the Whizz-Bang on Offense. They have Saved more lives than guns have Killed. Without the Ax and the Spade the Allies wouldn't have had a Chance. The Germans would have won in a Walk. Even the Royal Fat Head is forced to admit that his Foremost Scientists have been unable to improve on these Simple Implements.

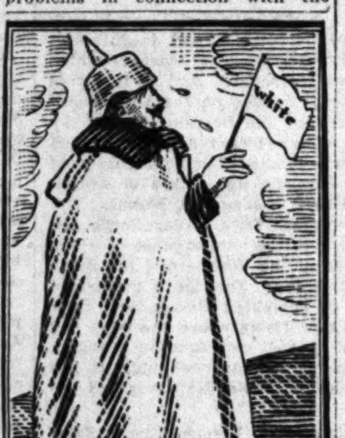
Moral: The Firm of "Me und Gott" needs a Third Partner.



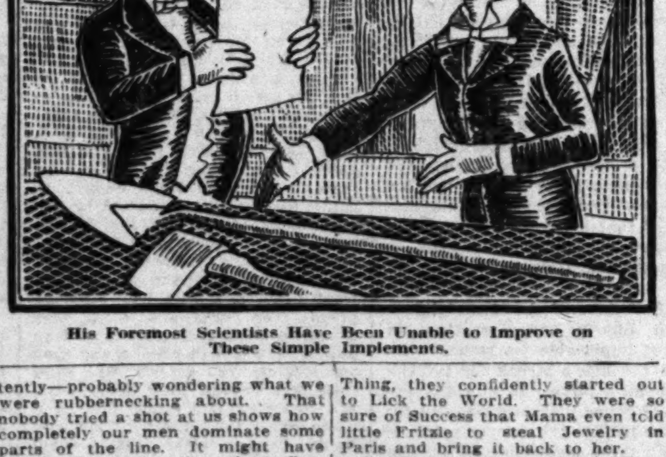
He Had Hallucinations.



"The Most Painful Way to Kill a Baby."



He Began to Bleat.



His Foremost Scientists Have Been Unable to Improve on These Simple Implements.

A Summer Vacation
in the Great Northwest Country

We are most of us going to take our vacation seriously this year. It is not to be a time of idle amusement, but a few weeks to be made the best use of in resting tired nerves, in recuperation of flagging energy, so that we may return to our work fitted for greater effort in the one great task of winning this war.

I can conceive of no trip more satisfying in every way than through the Northwestern States of Oregon and Washington, and British Columbia; with a further extension through Alaska, if one can possibly spare the time.

There is interest all the way in the wonderful scenic beauty of such variety as can be found nowhere else. Mountains, glaciers, volcanoes, lakes, rivers and the great Puget Sound.

The Crater Lake National Park, or the Columbia river highway—a city roadway winding amidst scenery of forest and waterfalls and noble river views unsurpassed in the world, is either one of them worth a journey across the continent.

Mount Rainier, majestic in its beauty, the waterways and islands and interesting cities of British Columbia, the Army cantonment at American Lake, near Tacoma, the great shipbuilding plants, the beaches, the golf courses of the Pacific Coast, the thousands of miles of smooth automobile roads—all these afford never-failing means of recreation and interest.

Whether you have two weeks or six weeks at your disposal, whether you go by rail or motor or on horseback, whether you want ranch life or the best hotels, take my advice and visit the great Northwest.

We of The Ask Mr. Foster Service know all about this wonderfully interesting land. We have traveled through it from center to circumference.

We are enthusiastic about its beauties, its climate, its sunshine and health-giving atmosphere.

Let us plan your trip and supply illustrated descriptive literature, and figure the costs, which are not large.

BARK AND BIGHT.
The Allies have corked up quite a section of the German submarine fleet in Helgoland bight. These dachshunds of the deep may be able to bark but they can't bight.

TO BEAT RANDALL.
Here is a tip to the Republicans of the Ninth Congress District: organize to defeat Randall; don't disorganize to elect him. He must be laughing up his sleeve now. Settle upon ONE STRONG candidate to run against him, ladies and gentlemen, and do your settling now!

OH, YES, THEY'RE ACTIVE!
Gen. Murguia, Mexican commander for Northern Mexico, denies that there is any German activity in that section. It may not be Murguia's fault, but his denial of the facts cannot stop German propaganda. Germany is not in the habit of advertising the presence of her spies in the countries to which she sends them. The only thing for Mexico, as for America, to do is to keep a sharp lookout for the Teuton rattlesnake.

WORK-SLACKERS.
The draft boards of Los Angeles should obtain more specific information concerning the "work-or-fight" order. Proof of registration is not proof of occupation. Special officers have been detailed from the police department for the investigation of idlers and arrests by the score have been made, but as yet there has not been a single case wherein local draft boards have taken action as to any of the men corralled from dance and pool halls. With farmers throughout Southern California crying for farm help and willing to pay good wages and excellent accommodations, the pool sharks should be made to use their knowledge of angles and English in hoeing a straight row.

THE HUN SQUEALS.
Now that the Allied airplanes are carrying terror and destruction into cities far behind the battle lines, the Germans are eagerly suggesting that the bombing of towns be restricted to war zones. Um-hum! A fine idea for the Huns to have, since the Allies are getting the ascendency of the air. But in the old days the Kaiser said, "War is war," and loosed his hellish Zeppelins on London and Paris and sent his raiders against unfortified towns of the English coast. Since the German censor refuses to allow news to reach the people in Germany, the only way they can be shown that the Allies are actually winning is by the stern reprisals which the "All Highest's" inhumanity has brought upon his nation.

MR. SHOUP'S PROMOTION.
While extending its cordial congratulations to Mr. Paul Shoup on his deserved promotion in the Southern Pacific organization, The Times keenly regrets that Los Angeles will practically lose him as a citizen, inasmuch as his duties as vice-president of the great system will keep him most of the time in San Francisco. Paul Shoup is a large-sized man, great of comprehension, great of initiative; and in the development of the Southwest in recent years he has been a great power. We owe many of our most important advances—we of the Southwest—in large measure to his quick sympathy and hearty co-operation—not only as to railroad enterprise, but in shipbuilding, agricultural, commercial and other lines of progress. The hand that he has lent has been a strong and kindly hand. And in combatting the I.W.W., the walking delegates, the Bolsheviki, and other enemies of industry, Mr. Shoup has been a veritable giant. When he is up north Los Angeles will often wish he were down here—although he doubtless will have Los Angeles's interests at heart, wherever he may be.

SMOKE THEM OUT.
What is greatly to be desired is a form of revolution—inspired as a war measure—which would compel the resignation of every needless commission, tax-eater and papsucker on the State pay roll. Then let a vigilance committee of hard-headed business men, workingmen and counselors be assembled to carefully sift over the proceeds and decide what resignations could be accepted without materially impairing the public service. Let this vigilance committee report to the Governor and let the Governor act.

As a wartime proposition this programme is not only feasible, but just, and it should be possible to make life miserable to the small-bore politician who would refuse to abide by it. The nation is taking of its clean and capable manhood and sending them overseas to fight at $30 a month. Why should thousands upon thousands of stay-at-homes be permitted to fatten at the public trough in the name of patriotism? Any modern corporation of high-geared efficiency could guarantee to transact all the official business of the State on a force one-tenth as great as the present horde of tax-eaters. In these times why should the people be burdened with the cost of the other nine? Also why should the country be deprived of the services of a lot of competent men merely because they are already drawing public money in an unnecessary capacity?

A NEW WORLD.

IT IS CERTAIN now that the world will be made safe for democracy. The Hun is not yet crushed, but his doom is sealed. His dream of the nations in vassalage at his feet is a dream, and nothing more.

In another year or two, or it may yet be five years longer, there will be peace and absolute security. Then, as some English statesman has said: "There shall be a new world."

Yea, a new world and a brighter. And happy will it be for those who shall be spared to live therein.

Out of the night shall come a great glory of the dawn. We shall have the neighborliness of the mountains, and the friendship of the seas. It will be a good world, and happy. And they shall be blessed, indeed, who are to inherit it.

It will not be paradise, nor heaven on earth, but it will be a better world than it ever was before. There will be loss, but the courage to endure it; there will be sorrow, but the faith to bear it; there will be pain, but vast help to soothe it.

For, in the travail, the suffering and the crimson scars of this war is born a new soul in man—a new vision, a new understanding, a new being.

Ever struggling onward, always gaining a little on the desperate path it trod, the world looks back on many a fateful epoch. But this is the most fateful epoch of all. It is the great hour, and we shall sit upon the heights, or very near it.

II.

THE student of history is keenly aware of the fact that a new code is to be put into action. Even the person little given to thought must realize that so much that has been can never be again.

The cause of this war was the same cause from which nearly all other wars have sprung. Germany, grown deliberately strong, lusted to acquire by conquest territory that was not hers, to dominate the seas and to oppress into virtual slavery the weaker peoples of neighboring states.

Well, Germany will be balked and wholly defeated in her lust. She will not be permitted to realize her unholy desires. And, moreover, it will be set down as the everlasting and irrevocable law that no other nation will ever be permitted to even attempt that which Germany so blindly set out to do.

The Prussian, so forehanded in other ways, still failed to grasp the sublime fact that the world had lived down its oldest tradition.

The little nations shall be henceforth and forever free. No threat or menace shall hang over them. What is theirs shall be theirs. No newborn barbarian horde will ever again be suffered to oppress and rob them.

There will be a new code, indeed, among nations. Nor is this all. There will be a new code, as well, among individuals—a code that shall be not only local but international, world-wide and common to all men.

The new code will not be able, of course, to disestablish nature. There will always be men physically stronger than other men. Nor will it be able to subvert the design of the Creator in the gifts of superior skill of hand and brain in some than in others. But the strong arm shall not awe the weaker, nor shall the cunning brain exploit its less gifted neighbor. The rich shall not oppress the poor.

It will be a new world for men, and, also, it will be a new world for women.

Upon the crazy pendulum of time has woman been swung—now to one extreme and now to the other; sometime a slave and wearied drudge, sometime a petted thing of luxury; her place never firmly fixed, her destiny never secure.

But for woman as well as for man, not in vain is the world now drenched in blood.

Beside her mate, strong, respected, loved, bearing her responsibilities as he must bear his—but always by his side and equal with him, shall be woman.

III.

PLAINEST of all things is this, that God has wrought His latest and greatest evolution in man through America.

But for America, the Hun would have prevailed. At this very hour, it is likely that his black eagles would have had their claws hopelessly into the vitals of not only France and Belgium, but that Britain would also have fallen a prey.

Wherefore, our country is the instrument of God to make a new world.

We have gone forth not for conquest, nor in the lust for power. God called us, and we have answered to the call.

When came that call, there was no faltering. We are a free people and we were free to go or stay. Yet, we did not hesitate. It was God's call, and we went forth as God would have us go—clean in soul and body, not murmuring, and unafraid.

To make the world safe for freedom, to make it safe for women, to make it honest and to make it kind—that's why America is in the war. To make a new world.

When you think of the armies that have made red the earth since time began, and then think of this army that we have now sent forth, you will see that we are living in a new world, already.

"To make a good soldier, first make him a scoundrel," said Napoleon. That was always the way before his time, and after. No matter what men were in peace, they became calloused to virtue and decency in times of war. It was a life that ruined men's souls. Some escaped the curse, it is true; perhaps, many escaped it. But it was a ruinous trade in every way.

Now, for the first time in the history of the world, not excepting the Crusades, a nation sends to battle an army of God-fearing men surrounded on every side by the agencies of religion.

It is the strongest army and the best that ever faced a foe. It is an invincible army. Yet, at its hands women are safe, children are safe, and everything that has a claim to justice or to mercy will be safe.

In the hearts of its soldiers is enshrined the love of mothers, sisters, sweethearts and wives whose prayers ascend to heaven every hour of every day, storming the Gates of God.

IV.

AS FAR AS WE IN America are concerned, we might be pardoned if we thought that it was a pretty good old world as it was, and that we were not in need of such an awakening as the hideous horror of this war has brought about.

Let us clear our minds of error. And let us thank God that we have been prevented from falling into conditions toward which we were drifting fast enough.

When our boys come home again, no longer boys, and we shall meet the knowledge they have gained with the knowledge that we have also gained while they were away, you may be sure America will be a better America than it has ever been before. It shall be a new world for us, also.

It is not likely, for instance, that we shall soon depart from these lessons in saving and thrift that we have learned through the war. We had become, scarcely without knowing it, an extravagant and a wasteful people. We look back on it now with something like horror.

The social parasite, the idler and the trifler had become such common features of life that we had begun to pay no heed to them. They have gone, and they must never be allowed to return.

There was too much mouthing everywhere; nobody can deny that. Every wild theorist, every rattle-brained faddist, every freak that had an "ism," found snug quarters and ready hearing among us. The stern business of war will surely put an end to these inanities.

Socialism will have a hard time surviving the murder of unhappy Russia.

Only the hand of God, laid upon us through suffering and sacrifice and blood, could have saved us from much that menaced our souls and sucked like leeches at our hearts.

V.

MOST of all, however, and best of all, let us rejoice that in the new world in which we are to live, religion, above all things else, will come to its own.

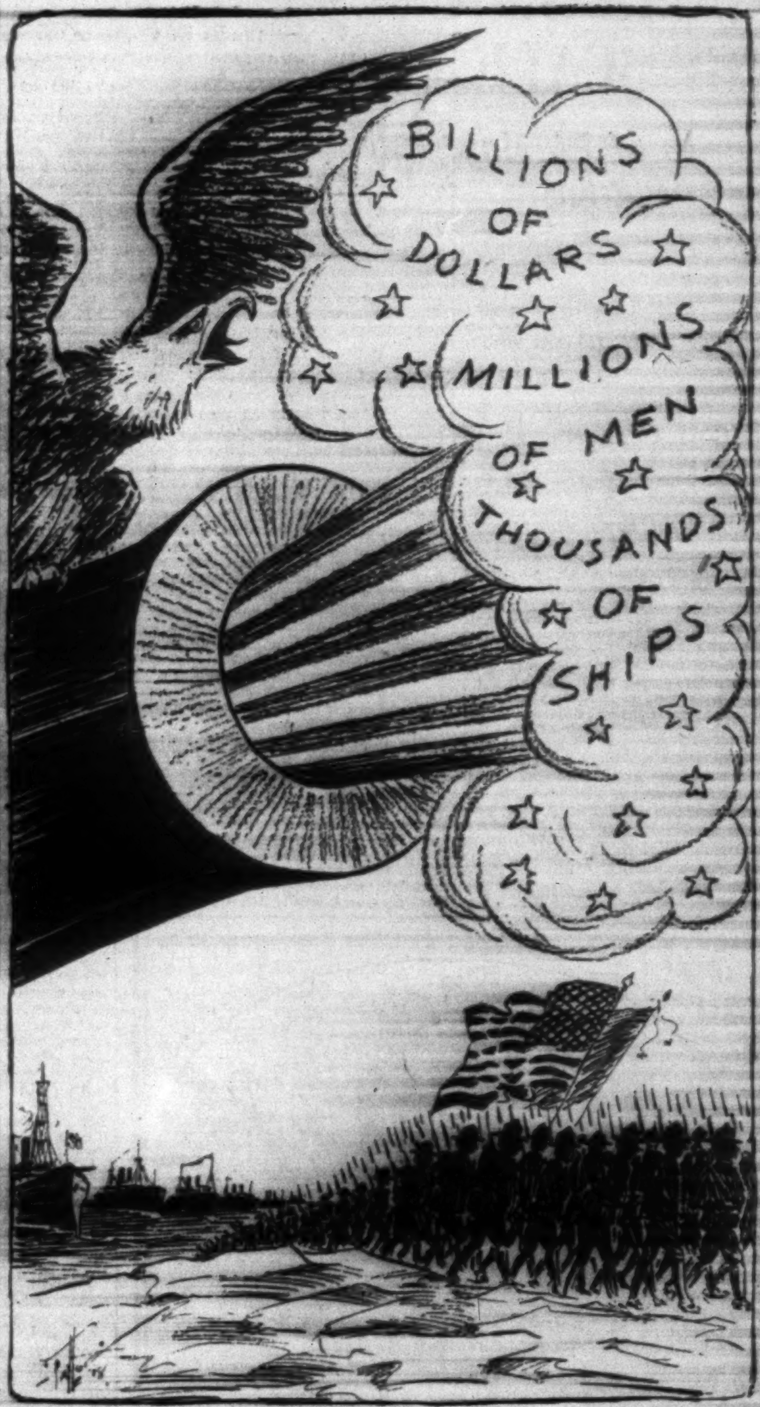
In the wars of the past, religion has been the greatest sufferer. In this war it has made greater progress than it has made in any thousand years of peace.

A new world without religion would be worse than the world has ever been in the past. The people who lived in it would live in moral death. There could be no real joy in it, though its streets were paved with gold. For, when you take God out of a man's heart, you take the throb out of it and its faculty to be glad. Search the highways of the ages and you will find that they who were lonely there, and hopeless, were those without religion.

And, let us pray God that it will be true religion, free of bigotries and hates and strifes.

This is the kind of religion that they will bring home with them—foot and dragoon, soldier, sailor and marine, who ground the Hun to dust and made safe for liberty the earth's four corners and the wide reaches of the seven seas.

The Voice of America.



THE FOURTEENTH OF JULY.
July is pre-eminently the season of liberty. Before the reverberations of the celebration of our own Independence Day have lost their resonance a new outburst of patriotic fervor marks the anniversary of the natal day of French liberty, when fell the Bastille and with it an empire and an autocratic civilization. Never before has the tricolor of France floated from so many flagstaffs nor over so vast an extent of territory. Never have so many peoples united in celebrating the anniversary of the day when the Goddess of Liberty extended her domain over the territory that now comprises the French republic.

Grateful are the hearts of every liberty-loving people to the sons and daughters of La Belle France. It is a toast to which every patriot responds. And it is fitting that Americans rejoice on the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille; for on the battlefields of our own republic the torch of liberty was kindled that later consumed the bastile, fortress and prison of despotism, and with it the ancient regime. The flames that leaped from Valley Forge and Yorktown across the vast expanse of ocean to the banks of the Somme and the Seine are still spreading. They have penetrated the depth of benighted Russia, and their flames are now rising above the Alps and the Vosges. A vast conflagration is raging that will never be quenched until it has consumed the bastiles of Hapsburg and Hohenzollern.

The beginning of French liberty dates back to the heroic days when the trained troops of Rochambeau fought by the side of the tattered but formidable continentals of Washington. Those heroes carried back with them to their home land the spirit of liberty and equality, which they had imbibed "outre mer." Tom Paine, one of the inspired writers of the Revolutionary period, was chief among the organizers of the French revolution. Pamphlets written by him were translated into French and adorned the dead walls of Paris, calling the friends of liberty to assemble. When the great fortress and prison, known as the Bastille, had fallen its master key was intrusted to Paine to be forwarded to President Washington as a token of esteem from French patriots. The veterans of Rochambeau formed the nucleus of the first national guard in Paris. They were the leaven of the brilliant armies of the first French republic.

During the early days of July, 1789, the Bastille was the bulwark of despotism in France. Its menace was not its cells, but its fortifications and its cannon, for it dominated with its guns the greater part of the city of Paris. At the time of its fall the Bastille had practically ceased to be a military prison. Only seven prisoners were found in its cells when it was demolished. But by reason of its frowning battlements and its somber history the Bastille had become a symbol of tyranny. It was the material image of that arbitrary power which is now besieged by the Allied peoples in its barbarian-guarded fastness beyond the Rhine.

From the first days of the material conflict between liberty and despotism in France acts of implacable vengeance were mingled with the blows struck for individual and national liberty. It was the unleashed fury of primordial passion—and for those excesses the French people paid the penalty during three generations. But the flames of the torch of liberty could not be extinguished by the wrongs committed in her name. The forfeits have been paid and liberty survives. There were more dark days than fair in the immediate period following the fall of the Bastille. It has been truly said that the tree of liberty thrives only in a soil that has been watered with blood. But the world has seen, during the last four years, what a valorous race has sprung from that old revolutionary stock. France is today the buckler of human liberty. It is behind the barrier which she has raised that the free peoples of the earth are organizing for the final blow that shall crush the last Bastille of arbitrary power. "Force without stint or limit" must be generated before it can be applied. The heroic defense of French arms has made that possible.

La Belle France has resisted the outrages of the Hun with a heroism never equalled in legend or story. She has kept the fires of liberty burning at a sacrifice greater than that made by any other nation in modern times. And it is fitting that every patriot of every nation should join in making the anniversary of her independence a day that shall be forever memorable. Arbitrary confinement was the terror of the Bastille. There were other French prisons where the cells were more filthy and the fare was worse, but for those imprisoned in the Bastille no legal defense was possible. It was the private jail of the king, and the king was above the law. When the Bastille fell every bastion of tyranny in France crumbled; while it stood liberty and equality could exist in name only. The Bastille was the symbol of the tyranny that still lives in Prussian despotism. "The attack on the Bastille," wrote Michelet, "was an act of faith." The same may be said of the attack of the Allied powers on Junkerism. Vive la Liberte! Vive la France!

RIPPLING RHYMES.

IN COLORADO

'Mid Colorado's giant hills I've settled for the summertime, and feel the old ecstatic thrills, when viewing spectacles sublime. I'd like to talk of what I see, of snowy peaks, of wondrous dells, of crystal torrents wild and free, for all these things are wearing bells. But when I hail some tourist guy and try to tell him how I feel, he paws the earth and makes reply, "We'll whip the Huns, I'll bet a wheel. The British and the French are tired, they've scrapped so long their legs are sore; at them a million guns were fired, their feet are wet with Prussian gore. But now our boys are getting there in numbers large enough to note; their coattails flutter in the air, and they will get the Teuton goat. Oh, yes, these hills are out of sight, the raging torrents are O.K., but when our boys are out to fight, what price are hills and torrents, pray? The Prussians fight with dragging step, they've scrapped so long they're human wrecks, and soon our soldiers, full of pep, will wind their legs around their necks. Oh, yes, that vista is a peach, that landscape surely takes the bun; but who would of such trifles preach, when we are out to squelch the Hun?" Ah, me, for some congenial soul to pass with me the summertime, to sit with me upon a knoll and talk of scenery sublime! WALT MASON.

THE LANCER.

THERE is one consolation about vacations: they don't last long.

If one had to take two vacations a year, the suicide rate would increase considerably.

In California one has a particularly profuse choice. You can go trout fishing in the mountains; hunting somewhere; or deep-sea fishing; yacht. Or else you can "just lie around" at a good hotel.

I have tried them all. When you go trout fishing you plod wearily up and down mountains utterly miserable every minute on account of rattlesnakes. By and by, when you are on the point of giving up the ghost, you come to a dinky little creek full of alkali water. You sneak around behind a rock, sit in the cactus and try to entice a couple of minnows to stretch their mouths wide enough to grab your hook. Then you climb the mountain again and go home with your fish, which have spoiled in the meantime, giving you ptomaine poisoning.

Yachting and deep-sea fishing are charming, too, in their way. In yachting you get blisters on your hands hauling ropes around until you finally get the yacht out of the bay. Then the wind dies down until evening, when you come back into the bay and yank around some more ropes.

Perhaps, after all, I like a hotel vacation best. At the hotel you can have all sorts of different joys. You can dodge the infernal bore who is following you around trying to talk war, and at meal times you can consult the waiter and find out what happened to the butter and why the beefsteak is tough. Every day he tells you a different reason; by the end of your vacation you know a lot of reasons for tough beefsteak.

I am in favor of going the limit on this uniform question.

All the girls of all ages that I know are in a lather of excitement over the pursuit of some reasonable excuse to get dressed up in pants and military riding boots.

We might as well turn it all on. There should be some kind of a uniform for the young lady who has just successfully touched her husband for an increased allowance; another for a gentleman who has paid his income tax. Why not a plume and a chevron and puttees for the girl who has an engagement with a dentist?

But all levity aside, there is a serious side of this, too.

The great sociological problem before this aching old world is to make peace more romantic and picturesque and interesting; war less so.

When a brave man passes I stand up and lift my hat. I am standing up now, lifting my hat. Mr. C. C. Parker of the Board of Education is passing. He has proven his leonine courage and fortitude. He has volunteered to select for the public schools a list of books suitable for boys.

When I was a boy myself I blush to confess that I read Dickens and Sir Walter Scott and liked them. Some of you just try giving Dickens or Scott to some of your boy friends.

It isn't so much what they say; it's the awful look they give you.

"Say," they remark with terrible scorn, "what do you gimme a lot of old junk like this for? This guy Dickens ain't got any pep."

The fact is I never hope to attain the great age and sophistication of the little boys I know.

When I was a boy I used to break my little back in two carrying water for the elephant to get myself into the circus. If you offer a boy a circus ticket in these days he looks at you pityingly and says, "Is there anything new, or is it just one of those old circuses?"

The most important question now before world diplomacy is whether the royal rear of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria still smarts, or His Majesty now sits down to his meals.

Ambassador Gerard relates in his last book a secret cause of trouble between Germany and Bulgaria.

Ferdinand is a fat man and he is the honorary colonel of a German regiment whose uniform pants are made very tight. On the occasion of a visit to Berlin, His Majesty leaned out of a palace window to wave to his regiment passing in the street below. The spectacle of that part of his Royal Highness remaining inside the window, as he bent over, was too much of a temptation to be resisted. The German Kaiser ran up and gave him a resounding whack where the pants were tightest.

Ferdinand never forgave the indignity.

The lovely Theda Bara has announced to a world almost beside itself with excitement that she is going to be a comedienne now. Theodosia has been a comedienne for some time without knowing it. As, for instance, her Cleopatra.

Theda's Cleopatra was a naughty hussy with fat, bare legs and wriggling hips, who led astray such innocents as Julius Caesar and Marc Antony.

Of course the real Cleopatra of history was an ethereal refined, dainty little girl. She was the best educated woman in the world in her time. It was her bad luck to fall into the hands of Caesar, who was the toughest old rake in Rome, and Marc Antony, who was a disreputable, noisy rounder with the morals of a hyena and the manners of a Barbary Coast saloon bouncer.

I fear that Theda didn't throw much real light upon history. Lillian Gish is the one actress with any license to play Cleopatra. The great Egyptian queen was a girl of just such a type—gentle, sorrowful, intellectual. THE LANCER.

It is impossible for an American "ace" to fly so high that he cannot be hit by Cupid. They are taking chances both in the air and on the ground.

LOYALTY LEAGUE MEETING LIKE DONNYBROOK FAIR.

Lie Freely and Frequently Passed and a Fist Fight is Near—Elimination Plan Fails—Odell Indorsed.

BY THE WATCHMAN.

THE lie was passed so generously yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Republican Loyalty League that it might well have been taken for an old-time Democratic convention. At one time feeling became so tense that withdrawal from the room of a large number of men was all that prevented a fist fight.

The announced purpose of the meeting was to size up the four candidates for the Republican nomination for Congress in the ninth district and eliminate three of them. This was not done, although S. W. Odell of Pasadena was indorsed by a vote of twenty-eight to four.

W. C. Mushet and J. W. Reagan ignored the meeting other than to send letters in which they asserted that it looked like a "packed house" in the interest of one candidate and they would not countenance such a programme.

Montaville Flowers of Monrovia preferred to appear before the body but he made it clear that he would not abide by its decision, because he was firmly convinced that the method proposed for elimination was irregular and morally wrong.

It was when Mr. Flowers charged the chairman, D. M. Shreve, editor of an unknown sheet, with being prejudiced in favor of Mr. Odell that the lies began to pass.

Two months ago, Mr. Flowers said he met Mr. Shreve in the Virginia Hotel, Long Beach, to talk over the Congressional fight. He said Mr. Shreve told me "that it was no use for me to stay in the fight, that he was for Odell and that the Loyalty League had been organised to put him over."

CALLED A LIAR.

Chairman Shreve challenged the charge and bluntly told Mr. Flowers that "you are a liar."

The episode almost broke up the meeting. Mr. Flowers immediately turn upon his heel and started to leave the room. Someone jumped to the floor and shouted "let's adjourn." The motion was seconded and a third of the audience rushed from the room.

Herbert E. Evans and George A. Barry, both of Monrovia, said they were with Mr. Flowers in Long Beach and heard Mr. Shreve make the statement. The chairman told them they were uttering falsehoods.

Then Mr. Flowers took the floor again and said it was not fair to expect him to abide by the decision of an organization which was formed by a man, who, as chairman of the meeting, had called him a liar.

"When he called me a liar, I had but one of two things to do. According to my code of honor, when one is called a liar he must either fight or withdraw. I chose to withdraw. Never in my life was I ever called a liar and never before was my honesty or integrity questioned. I tell you, gentlemen, if you are fair-minded you will not stand by such actions."

Previously Chairman Shreve had impugned the reputation of your humble servant, The Watchman, when he publicly asserted that stories published in The Times regarding the proposed meeting were colored in the interest of one candidate. Later, he said it was reported only.

DENY "PACKING" MEETING.

Several of the Odell supporters resented the charge that the meeting was packed and, being men of high reputation, their denials were not questioned.

However, Mr. Flowers said the meeting did not have the right ring. He declared that yesterday morning some one handed him twenty-four tickets of admission to the meeting. "I could have given them to twenty-four of my friends and come here this afternoon prepared to defeat Mr. Odell. I considered such tactics morally wrong and refused to take the tickets. I preferred to come here and state my position and appeal to your better judgment to solve the problem."

When the meeting was at fever heat and it looked like nothing could be done, Mr. Odell asked for an audience. He said he was willing to abide by the decision of the delegates and if they were for Mr. Flowers he would get out and work with all his might for him. He said the only question for consideration was a plan to defeat Randall, and he was willing to enter into any such plan, no difference who might be the choice of the meeting.

For nearly three hours the delegates quarreled and despite the fact that no one contended that the meeting was legal, all admitting that it was in direct opposition to the primary law, a majority finally decreed that definite action should be taken.

Charles Toll of Glendale proposed that the delegates merely vote upon the question of indorsing either Mr. Odell or Mr. Flowers, and not arbitrarily declare that the one failing to secure the indorsement be eliminated from the race.

Some one suggested that Messrs. Odell and Flowers be asked for their opinion of this plan.

"We don't care what their opinion is," some one answered, and the vote was taken by ballot.

SUMMING IT UP.

The sum and substance of the meeting was this:

The Loyalty League got nowhere. The situation at the close of the meeting was just as it has been. There still are four Republican candidates.

The actions of the committeemen constitute good dope for Randall.

Under the circumstances the only sensible thing for the league to have done would have been to call the four candidates together and let them decide if possible which one should make the race alone against Randall. I believe this could have been accomplished, because all of the candidates are first of all patriotic Americans and I do not believe that any one of them would hold personal aggrandizement above his love for his country.

MUST WORK ON ARCADIA JOBS.

No Killing Time by Union Men or Others will be Permitted by the Government.

Killing time is not to become a favorite sport with the union men employed on the government work at Arcadia. This has been made plain by Maj. Bowman. Union men, as well as the independent workers, must give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay or they will find themselves off the job. This also has been made emphatic.

A few days ago the time-killing proclivities of certain union painters brought matters to a climax at Arcadia and twenty-one union painters were called upon the carpet, when the ultimatum of no slacking on their jobs was announced to them. These men were temporarily laid off, but all but four of them have been taken back on the job, they having seen the light that honest work must be the rule on the jobs for Uncle Sam.

Phillip D. Wilson,
Candidate for Board of Equalization for the Fourth District.

For Equalization Board.

Phillip D. Wilson, former secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board and well known throughout the State in realty circles, will be a Republican candidate for member of the State Board of Equalization from the Fourth District, at the primaries August 27. Mr. Wilson's nominating papers are now being signed up and will probably be filed within the next few days. The Fourth Equalization District is the largest in the State and includes twenty-four counties in California. The district extends from San Francisco and Alameda counties on the north to the southern boundaries of the State, taking in the counties of Fresno, Imperial, Inyo, Kern, Kings, Los Angeles, Madera, Mariposa, Merced, Mono, Monterey, Orange, Riverside, San Benito, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Stanislaus, Tulare and Ventura.

Mr. Wilson had previously considered the Senatorial race from the Thirty-fourth District and had completed his petition for this office, but at the earnest solicitation of many of his colleagues in the real estate business and large real estate owners throughout the district, he decided to change his candidacy for the higher and more important office. He has lived in Los Angeles for fifteen years and was, before he entered the realty field, a newspaper writer. As secretary of the Los Angeles Realty Board, he became prominent throughout the State and nation by reason of his building up that institution to the largest of its kind in America. He was organizer and general manager of Los Angeles' two successful land shows, which served to advertise the State to hundreds of thousands of people and brought many eastern people as permanent residents to California. His work has brought him in contact with many taxation matters and he is considered eminently qualified for the position of member of the State Board of Equalization.

Favors Better Service.

J. O. Hayes, Republican candidate for Governor, yesterday said that while he is in favor of abolishing all commissions that have been created by the Legislature he is not opposed to the State Railroad Commission. "This commission is now charged both with the regulation of the railroads and also with the control of the public utilities of the State," he said. "I am heartily in favor of the State exercising a wise and just supervision over these activities that are quasipublic in character. To remove all supervision over them would be a step backward, which I could not favor."

"The plans I have in contemplation are designed to simplify and improve the State service and to increase efficiency as well as very materially to reduce expenses, but not to eliminate all public service. I favor concentration of authority and responsibility to the end that we may have better service to the people."

Marryin' Judge to Run.

Justice of the Peace J. W. Summerfield is a candidate for re-election. He has married nearly 6000 couples during his incumbency and likes his job. He has been here since he was 13 years old and is a graduate of the University of Southern California College of Law.

Cline Files Petition.

The nominating petition of Sheriff John C. Cline, containing the names of men and women prominent in all walks of life throughout the county was filed yesterday. Among the signers were the heads of all the banks of Los Angeles, leading men in the real estate field, many noted lawyers, employees of all the industrial plants of the county and representatives of all the women's clubs.

Chinese for Woolwine.

"The Woolwine-for-Governor Chinese Club of Los Angeles."

This is the novel title of the latest unit of the political organization of Thomas Lee Woolwine, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor, and was so named by Mr. Low Chew, No. 313½ Apablasa street, an officer in the Los Angeles parlor of the Chinese Native Sons.

Mr. Low is an ardent admirer of Woolwine's, and although he has been called in the draft and expects to leave for American Lake in command of twenty-three Chinese on July 22, he has laid the foundation for an effective working organization to survive him here.

DESERT STORM BRINGS JOY TO DRY FARMERS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RANDSBURG, July 13.—A freak storm, accompanied by vivid lightning and heavy thunder, added thousands of dollars value to dry farms in Freemont Valley late today. The precipitation at Randsburg was an inch and three-tenths in less than fifteen minutes, which is declared to be the heaviest at this season in ten years. Dry farmers are jubilant as the rain is unusual at this season of the year. A cloudburst is reported between Atolia and Kramer.

POLITICS.

The American Game.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

The eleventh hour is nigh and Jimmie Rolph still is undecided as to the Governorship contest. Some of his closest friends declare he will salt his money and let the other fellows fight it out. Others just as close expect him to announce his candidacy as late as the 17th inst., the last day upon which nominating petitions may be circulated.

Personally, I can't see why so much interest is taken in San Francisco's multimillionaire Mayor, unless it is figured that his unlimited bank roll might cut some ice in the scrap. Surely his record in office would not commend him to the public, because Californians admire a man with a spine, men who will not bow to the dictates of the labor-union gangsters. I would say that it will make mighty little difference in the general result whether Mr. Rolph runs or not; and unless he gets pleasure in throwing his money away he better stick on his present job, try to run his own city a little better and forget the State.

As migh have been expected the gubernatorial candidates are spreading themselves as the campaign progresses and all of them are getting more or less space in the daily press. For awhile none but the incumbent could get into the news columns and then only through war endeavors. With only six weeks intervening, the aspirants must make things hum if they would get the people interested.

Francis Jonas Heney seems to be doing the least. It is true that he made a trip to San Diego the other day and spoke, but he was coldly received and the visit did him little or no good. It is reported that he was even unable to get vice-presidents to adorn the stage with him. There was no enthusiasm and the audience was glad when he finished reading his "extemporaneous" speech.

Thomas Lee Wolwine is making things hum through the central part of the State. He has received encouragement everywhere and press reports are to the effect that not more than one out of every ten old-line Democrats will vote for Heney. When it comes to partly loyalty, Democrats are just as consistent as we of the G.O.P. and they hate a flopper. That is why they may be expected to spurn Heney and give their solid support to Mr. Woolwine.

Hon. Walter Bordwell is rapidly forming a strong organization. Though he got into the fight pretty late, he will no doubt be a factor. He is an honest to God Republican, which is more than some of 'em can say.

San Francisco's sturdy District Attorney, Charles M. Fickert, was with us a few days during the week. He met a lot of old-time friends and made a lot of new ones. He is preparing to wage the kind of campaign that wins.

Charles A. A. McGee, former pal of La Follette, who is just as bombastic, says there is nothing to it but McGee. He figures that there will be 450,000 votes cast at the primaries, that 150,000 of them will be divided between Heney and Woolwine with the latter getting the majority. Of the remainder, he figures to grab 150,000 and does not care how the rest are divided among the others. What a sad awakening!

Gov. Stephens is not worried, says Joe Crail, who is the incumbent's local field agent. He pulled a coup the other day when he started circulators after the Progressive signatures. Heney had planned to get them, but there are only 5000 to nab and the Stephens crowd gobbled so many that it is beyond human endeavor for the Democrat to get on the Progressive ticket. I may be mistaken, but it is my opinion that Gov. Stephens will never file the Progressive petitions. He only wanted the signatures to keep Heney from getting them.

Editor Hayes made a tremendous hit yesterday, when it became known that he stands for the abolition of every darned State commission, and he says there are seventy-five of them. If he keeps up this sort of propaganda he is liable to win the plaudits of a long-suffering public.

If Congressman Randall can get no better recommendation than that given him the other day by Champ Clark he better kiss himself good-by. The House Speaker asked the people of the Ninth District "not to be deceived by Randall's war record." He might as well have implored the people to remember the sinking of the Lusitania. How can they forget either? While the Ninth District is bone-dry and Randall is crazy about prohibition, that is not the supreme issue before the people. Winning the war is the only question of importance. Randall has tried time and again to block the President's war measures and he cannot truthfully deny it. With such a lamentable record he has nerve to ask the suffrage of the people and any good Republican will give him the beating of a lifetime. It is too bad that the four candidates for the Republican nomination—Flowers, Odell, Mushet and Reagan—cannot get together, for any one of them could put the skids under Randall if he would make a lone fight.

The most important political event of the week was the organization of the Los Angeles Association for the Betterment of Public Service. It is really a non-political assemblage, just a gathering of leading business men who are sick and tired of the reckless expenditure of State funds. The association plans to get behind legislative candidates who will pledge themselves to a programme of economy. This is a step in the right direction and should be a winner. When the business men of a community get worked up over conditions as deplorable as they now are in the State government they can bring about the proper change. God pity the candidates who oppose such a programme.

Here are some of the candidates who have pledged themselves to carry out the programme of the Association for the Betterment of Public Service:

Sixty-first Assembly District, Robert G. White; Sixty-third, Sidney T. Graves; Sixty-fourth, George A. Lynch; Sixty-sixth, M. M. Ferguson; Sixty-seventh, A. Burlingame Johnson; Sixty-eighth, E. R. Shepard; Seventieth, Frank A. Merriam; Seventy-first, Paul Otto and Henry J. Carter; Seventy-second, Madison Marine (if he will run;) Seventy-third, E. R. Bromley (maybe;) Seventy-fifth, Edwin L. Baker.

State Senate: Twenty-ninth District, Dwight Hart; Thirty-fourth, Charles W. Lyon; Thirty-sixth, W. F. Knight.

Mayor Woodman's plan for eliminating every municipal commission has the approval of nearly everyone. It is said the Realty Board, Chamber of Commerce and other business men's organizations are preparing to get behind the Mayor and put the plan over. It was not the best politics, probably, because a Mayor usually wants a lot of positions to hand out to friends; but Mayor Woodman does not play politics. He wants efficiency in the city administration and I believe the people are with him. I would not say "to hell with friends;" but I would say it is the duty of a Mayor to be for the people first, last and all the time. And that is the record Mayor Woodman is piling up.

Shirrell Osborne, son of the Congressman, has entered the race in the Third Supervisor District. He may be a formidable contender. The folks over there like the Congressman and the more they investigate his son the better chance he will have. He is a clean, upright young man. This will be one of the hottest races in the county. There are scads of candidates, including F. E. Woodley, incumbent; W. M. Humphries (probably the best man for the job,) C. J. McCormick, Miles Gregory, A. P. Stewart—all good fellows.

A. P. Fleming, who has been itching to get into the Assembly fight, yesterday told me that he will make the run in the Seventy-second District. He is a well-known, public-spirited man. He is chairman of the Harbor Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and for fourteen years has been a director of the Y.M.C.A. Better still, he says he will accept the programme of the Association for the Betterment of Public Service.

Porter S. McNutt is making a vigorous campaign for the Assembly in the Sixty-first District. He is a straight Republican and made a fine race two years ago.

Chaim Shapiro, near friend of the I.W.W. and their ilk, will be the principal speaker this afternoon at Socialist Hall. He is a candidate for Superior judge. Can you beat it? No, no, Pauline, you can't tie it.

About the sorest politician in California is Senator Arthur H. Breed, candidate for Lieutenant Governor. In a letter to the public he takes a few well deserved wallops at Chesty Rowell for assuming that he is the political dictator of California and telling him (Breed) to get out of the race. Mr. Breed considers Rowell's suggestion an insult to the electors. He further heaps coals of fire upon Chet's head for the remarks the Fresno editor made about Joe Rominger, the south's candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Here is what Mr. Breed said about Rowell:

> "I do not question Mr. Rowell's right to play at being a political dictator, but it would be much simpler for some of us if his paper were more widely circulated because then we could more readily learn the latest mandates that he had put forth. At last I found one, however, and read his article in which he takes a fling at Senator Rominger, one of my opponents for the nomination, sneers at Mr. Snyder, the Democratic nominee, and concludes by suggesting that I withdraw from the fight in favor of Mr. Young.
> "Mr. Rowell's inclinations toward Heney for Governor have been well known for some time. It has been openly discussed, not because it would have any particular effect upon the campaign, but because for a time Mr. Rowell was more or less prominently identified with the Progressive party. Now, when Mr. Rowell openly asks that I withdraw in favor of Mr. Young and goes out of his way to insult Senator Rominger, who has thousands of staunch friends, particularly in the south, it would appear very definitely that Mr. Rowell's heart is not with the Republican nominee for Governor."

As I have said before, W. M. Humphreys, former associate of Gen. Chaffee in building the acqueduct and one of the men who secured the first development for our great free harbor, is a candidate for Supervisor in the third district.

This year the question of economy enters all political campaigns and on this issue Mr. Humphreys has an argument that is almost unanswerable. While member of the City Board of Public Works he had personal supervision over the street department. In one year he turned back to the city $134,000 of the appropriation made for his department. This surplus is a striking contrast to the deficit of nearly $1,500,000 under the last Board of Supervisors. Retrenchment means something more than a political catchword when uttered by Mr. Humphreys.

Mr. Humphreys has been actively engaged in business in Los Angeles for more than thirty years. His father was president of the Council at the time the site of the present City Hall on South Broadway was purchased. He has been a member of the Park Commission, Harbor Commission, Board of Public Works and of other important city commissions and his record of public service is his best asset. This is in pleasing contrast to a number of other candidates this year whose public records are heavy liabilities.

J. L. Matthews, of Covina, candidate for the office of Supervisor in the first district, filed his nominating petition yesterday. His petition was a large and representative one of the electorate of his district. Mr. Matthews, who has been editor of the Covina Argus for the past twenty-five years, is the opponent of J. J. Hamilton, the incumbent. As a private citizen he has been active for years in public matters dealing with the growth and prosperity of Los Angeles county, but this is the first time he has ever sought public office. His friends are perfecting an organization which will wage an energetic campaign in his behalf in every section of the district.

UNIQUE CELEBRATION.

Birthday Party will be Given for Benefit of the Red Cross.

Miss Elizabeth May Strawn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Strawn, lumber dealer of Angeles Mesa, is to have a unique birthday party on Tuesday. Birthday gifts are taboo, but every child in the Mesa, and this means at least 100 children, has been invited to the festivities and all of the proceeds from the fete that has been arranged will go to swell the Red Cross funds. Every child is to bring a penny for each year of her age and this money will be donated to the war fund.

This is only a part of the plan. An immense birthday cake, with a massive Red Cross in the center is the piece de resistance. It is done in national colors. Chances on the cake are to be sold, and more revenue for the Red Cross is sure to accrue. The winner will have the honor of cutting the cake. Ice cream is to be given to each little one and there will be a liberal amount. Plans for the birthday include, many games and war-time patriotic songs.

The home of Mrs. Strawn at No. 5746 Victoria avenue, Angeles Mesa, is commodious. The wide lawns will be decorated and there will be a short programme.

ALHAMBRA, July 13.—Plans formulated by the reorganized Alhambra Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held this week contemplate an active campaign by that organization to aid all forms of war work. Present attention will be devoted to helping the various precinct societies in the War Savings movement and a committee from the chamber was appointed to cooperate with them in their work. Another committee was named to canvass the city and obtain, if possible, a pledge from every home to display the American flag during all of every day until the end of the war.

At Camp Lewis.

EVELOPMENT BATTALIONS MAKE WEAK RECRUITS REAL FIGHTERS.

cial Training and Sometimes Slight Operations Turn Many, at First Unfit for Overseas Service, into Material for First-class Combatants.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

P LEWIS (Wash.) July 13. —Health protective work at Lewis has been developed gh degree and all suggestions further safeguarding the soldiers which give promise of being are immediately given a Activity of the cantonment officers and the precautionary measures which they have have resulted in the camp, one of the best records in from a health standpoint.

the latest protective moves hibit National Army men ding week-end leaves or in communities where danger of exposure from Daily reports are received by camp medical authorities from the boards of health of the States of Washington, Oregon and Idaho giving the contagious diseases in the State and the cities and counties in which such cases occur. In a number of cases soldiers have been denied furlough to places which the reports showed had cases of communicable diseases.

In cases where the diseases are not considered malignant and it is necessary that the soldier visit the city for business or other reasons, he is permitted to go.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES.

The camp authorities also are cooperating with city boards of health in the various States from which the men come to the cantonment. In the event that a man is discharged because he has some contagious disease which, while not incapacitating him, still is of such severity as to exclude him from the army, the fact that he has the disease is communicated to the board of health of the city from which he came. In some instances, of course, the men so affected are sent to the base hospital, where they are cured, but there are some contagious diseases, like trachoma, which requires years to cure, and which are a cause for rejection.

Among the latest protective measures at Camp Lewis are the swat-the-fly and swat-the-mosquito campaigns. Fly traps are being placed in the various messrooms and barracks and excellent results have been obtained. Casualties in the ranks of the mosquitoes are heavy and woe be the mosquito spied by a soldier, even though his alibi be that he belongs to the harmless Puget Sound variety instead of the New Jersey type.

Warnings are posted over the wells in the vicinity of Camp Lewis in cases where the purity of the water is questioned, and the soldiers are not only prohibited from drinking the water, but the owners are ordered to boil it for their own use.

FOR PHYSICAL TESTS.

Representatives of local and medical advisory boards from many sections of the Coast will attend special demonstrations and instructions in the method and manner of physical examinations of selected men under the new physical standards to be given at Camp Lewis July 15 to 20. The demonstrations have been arranged to cut down the number of rejections necessary on physical grounds at the cantonment mustering office.

Mileage from the home station to Camp Lewis and return will be paid by the government, it is announced, for not to exceed two members of each medical advisory board who attend two of the demonstrations.

Of the new men received at Camp Lewis in June, nearly 16 per cent. were rejected. Although draft boards had examined many of them under the old regulations, they had not re-examined them before sending them to camp, and there was evidence that the new rules were not being strictly followed, it is said.

Local boards are asked to have the eye, ear and nose specialists of the medical advisory board on hand when the men of the July draft entrain for the cantonment. Instructions are that no men under sixty-three inches in height are to be allowed to entrain, and no registrant is to be sent out who has a pierced ear drum, regardless of whether it is discharging.

Despite the new rules for height there is one soldier in camp who is only five feet one inch. He is William E. O'Rourke. Officers insisted on discharging him, but the young Irishman pleaded to remain at the cantonment, and finally the rule was waived in his case.

O'Rourke captained his draft delegation from Heppner, Or., and was in no mood to be denied entrance to the army when he reported at the camp. He said he had several brothers and a number of relatives in the scrap, and that he was going to get in the mix-up, too.

After due insistence O'Rourke's name was affixed to an enlistment card. Out of his company of 250 men O'Rourke passed second highest in the difficult pyschological test, so his officers expect him to make an excellent soldier.

Members of the June draft who have come before the military exemption board with applications for release from service have found in nearly every case that their arguments were found insufficient for a discharge. Marriages since and before the draft have been used for months as an excuse for asking exemption, but officers have ruled that this is not sufficient.

MARRIAGE NO RELEASE.

The board ruled that marriage and the assumption of new obligations thereby overruled the plea of dependency of parents. It was held that a man with dependent parents and subject to the draft should not assume new obligations, and the board could not recognize such dependency claims.

"The men who married after the draft took effect," said an officer, "were supposed to know that this would not release them, as their first obligation was to the government. Had they not married their parents would have been entitled to the $15 allotment, and an additional $10 a month each for the father and mother. In case of marriage, the allotment, according to law, must go to the wife."

Three battalions of the depot brigade, the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth, have been designated as development battalions, and to them will be assigned men unfit for service overseas. Men who go to these units will remain with the organizations until they are fit for combatant service or are discharged from the army.

Many of the National Army men now unfit for fighting under the Stars and Stripes in France can be made so by slight operations or special training, officers declare. There are a number of aliens in the detachments who will be taught to read, write and speak the English language.

Those men in the development battalions who do not qualify for overseas service, but who are still considered capable of doing combatant work, will be assigned to National Guard units or placed on special government work.

WHAT SOLDIERS READ.

Many persons ask what the soldiers at Camp Lewis read. The quickest way to answer that question is say that they read everything—that is, everything that is good for them.

Here is a list of the books found in one barracks the other day: Three French text-books, a vest pocket dictionary, an English rhetoric, an English grammar, "Spanish in Twenty Lessons," and a book entitled "Applied Business English." There was a text-book on psychology, three books on philosophy, including Haeckel's "Riddle of the Universe," a book on industrial chemistry, one on "rational typewriting," and the library of "Half Hours with the Best Authors."

Essays were not unduly popular, but three volumes were found, "Reflections of a Bachelor," Emerson, and the letters and diary of Alan Seegar.

Fiction was represented by Zane Grey, Henry Sydnor Harrison, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ralph Conner, Rudyard Kipling, Baroness von Gutten, Cyrus Townsend Brady, David Graham Phillips, Theodore Dreiser, Robert Grant, Mary Shipman, Andrew Lord Dunsany, Mary Vandergift, Jean Potter, Jean Webster, Thomas Dixon, Bulwer Lytton, McCononghy and Sheldon, William McLeod Raine, Arnold Bennet, Israel Zangwill and "Christine."

There were also a number of religious books, military books on many subjects, most of them well dog-eared, medical works, six volumes of poetry and many magazines.

WAR'S CAUSES TOLD IN SIX LANGUAGES.

"How the War Came to America," a pamphlet of fifty pages originally issued in English by the Committee on Public Information at Washington, D. C., may now be found in the sociology department of the Los Angeles Public Library translated into six different languages. It appears in German, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian Bohemian and Swedish. These may be borrowed from the library on cards and it is hoped the attention of non-English speaking members of the community will be called to this means of reading, "each in his own tongue," the causes and aims of the war.

Several of the languages in which this pamphlet is issued are not represented by any local newspaper.

Beautiful Silk Frocks

(Their Moving Day—Monday!)

At $12.50 and at $19.75

—If The Broadway's policy did not forbid the use of price comparisons, and we could tell you right now, the former selling prices of these lovely dresses, we feel sure that you would resolve, as you are reading this, to be here Monday morning—and would make an extra effort to be here bright and early!

—Such winsome models—soft chiffon taffetas, taffeta and Georgette combined, crepe de chine and satin.

—Bolero, basque and blouse effects—skirts pleated, gathered, draped or in tunic fashion.

—Street and afternoon dresses—and a few evening frocks—

—There Are Also Dresses of Fine French Serge

—Some of these are silk braid trimmed, some are plain tailored—just the sort of frocks for good practical wear.

—Their prices do not begin to represent their value—that is evident at a glance—but you must SEE them to appreciate this.

—Take our word for it, they're well worth coming to see—and as early as you can get here after the store opens Monday!

$12.95 and $24.50

Will Move These Stunning Suits in a Hurry!—It's Our July Clearance

—Garments do not stay long in this garment department of ours—we do not allow it!

—Stocks must be kept on the move—for new garments are fairly pouring in all the time—and they must have room.

—Here are the choicest of late spring and summer suits, to be sold at far, far less than their original prices—and the summer less than a month old.

—Among the Suits at $12.95

Are those of serge, poplin, black and white checks and mixtures, with trimming of braid, buttons, stitching. Some fitted, some belted and there are many in the becoming ripple-peplum style. If you want a pretty, serviceable suit, at a very low price, come for it, Monday.

In the $24.50 Suit Assortment

—All from higher-priced lines, of course, are some beautiful suits of men's wear serge—so good-looking, so well-tailored!

—There are swagger sports suits of wool jersey, in the high sports colors.

—There are suits of taffeta, of satin and of novelty silks.

—Suits that are faultless in finish and tailoring.

—You may just draw your own conclusions when we tell you they are suits from our very best lines—and to go at $12.95 and $24.50—the saving, in each instance, is one over which you may feel considerably elated! Third Floor.

—Half Price for Linen and Wool Riding Suits

—A small lot of smartly tailored riding suits to go Monday at half marked prices.

—Breeches and coat suits of black and white checks, natural linen, white khaki, oxford cloth and gabardine. Not all sizes—just a broken line, but if your size is here, and you are to have such a suit for vacation wear, you're fortunate!

—Come early Monday—it's advisable. Third floor.

July Clearance Coats at $10

—Long coats, short coats, utility coats, sports coats—Coats to be offered at $10, on Monday, that have been here at considerably higher prices.

—Velours, poplins, tweeds, boucle, black and white checks.

—There are loose-fitting and belted models—some are lined—and all have the novelty pockets, the modish collar and belt.

—To make room for incoming stocks, these have been given a price that will mean their early disposal. Third Floor.

New Velour Hats for Sports Wear

—Velour for midsummer!

—Yes, indeed, if Dame Fashion says so—she rules—Milady obeys!

—So, almost as soon as the magic word "Velours" was whispered, these stunning new hats were fairly flying westward, from the great eastern houses, where "NEWNESS" is the very keynote.

—No time was lost in rushing these velours from receiving room to the third floor—no time lost in having our artist picture them and in telling you about them through The Times.

Of course you'll want to know what "they're like," and while we can give you but a hint, here, through picture and written word, it will be unsatisfactory at its best—NEW hats should be SEEN!

—There are medium shapes — round, soft crown and medium brim, which is flat, drooping or slightly up-turning.

—Ribbon is THE trimming—and it may match exactly the hat color—or it may be in "harmonizing contrast."

—Among the colors are various shades of blue, gray, brown, orange, etc., and the prices are moderate in their range from $6.95 to $10.

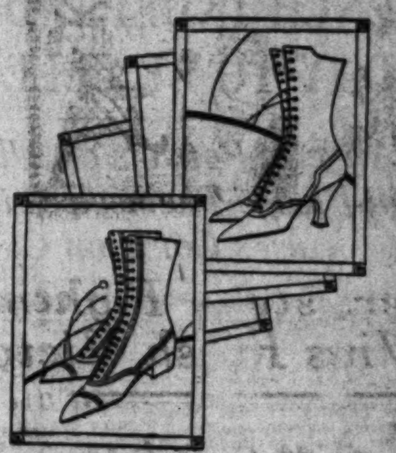
Monday to Be a Regular "Shoe Day"!



High Grade Footwear at $3.95

Such GOOD news from the Shoe Department! If we told about them the way we would like to—we fear that some of the news from other departments would be crowded out!

1000 Pairs in All!

—Beautiful, high-grade footwear—the quality of which, seems should not even be associated with such a low price!

—There's a reason for it, of course—and it is because this is a gathering of "factory hurt" footwear—somewhere, either on one shoe or the other of the pair, is a slight "hurt."

—If perfect, the price would be at least twice this figure!

—In the lot are those pretty brown and tan laced boots—some all leather, some with cloth tops.

—There are those smart grays and plenty of white Nubuck.

—You'll be delighted with them—and perhaps, the very pair you select, may have only the very slightest defect.

—Remember that these came from a factory that ranks among the best in the country, a maker of fine shoes.

—No phone orders filled.

—Come Monday. Aisle 8.

An Assortment of Exquisite Lingerie Blouses Has Just Been Received

—Prices are moderate, indeed, considering the real value of the blouses, being $2.50, $2.75, $3.50, $3.95 and $5.00.

—Materials are voile and organdy, and there are so many, so VERY many charming distinctive details of adornment that each blouse one lifts up seems prettier than its neighbor, yet the last no lovelier than the first!

—There are many blouses that are purely of the lingerie type, in materials and in lines and in trimmings; and there are others that are tailory in lines, with their high collar, their long tucks in groups, and there are quaint blouses, their collars finished with scalloping.

—One should visit the department just to see such blouses—a visit would be well worth while.

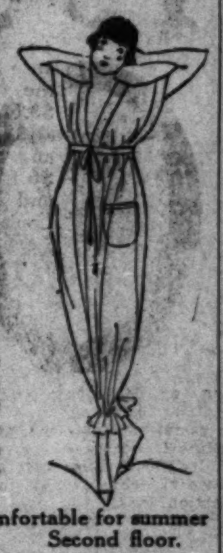
—However, to tell a bit about one or two:

—A voile blouse has a round collar, finished with old-timey scalloping, its neck is Y-shape, it has a group of wee tucks each side its front closing, which is defined with a pleated, scalloped frill.

—Price, $3.95.

—A blouse for the tailored girl has the two-in-one collar, which may be worn high or low, finished daintily with double hemstitching, just as are the front closing and the cuffs. This model is of organdy and is priced $5.00. 3rd floor.

A New Style in a One-Piece Pajama



Made of dainty pink crepe with blue stitching and blue silk cord around Empire waist.

—There are other styles, too, in this assortment, the prices of which range from $1.25 to $3.45. Some are of plain pink batiste, some are of the figured crepe and there are tiny ruffles and lace edging for trimming.

FRENCH INDEPENDENCE DAY TO BE CELEBRATED.

Los Angeles Patriots of Allied Nations will Pledge Themselves to Democracy's Common Cause.

of the engagement 'to contribute our last drop of blood, our last ship and the last dollar of our treasury, in aiding France to victory, to liberation of that portion of her territory now invaded, to free Alsace-Lorraine from German bondage, and restore her people to France, and, lastly, to exact from a ferocious enemy fullest compensation, as far as may be possible, for ravages, destruction, devastation, arson, pillage and murder.' "

"FRANCE-AMERIQUE."

Shrine Auditorium will be a fairyland of booths, and everywhere will be twined the flags of France and the United States and of the other allies.

An interesting example of the twin character of the celebration will be the "Pavilion France-Amerique," or French-American booth. This booth was organized by Mme. Maurice Fog, and she will be assisted by Mmes. Leon Curtet, Robert Crum, Frank Domecus, Martin Picherie, Picherie Pinains and Mlles. Mabel Birge, Ruby Cassou, Marie Court, Jeanne Court, Marie Eyraud, Helene Eyraud, Louise Feraud, Jeannette Feraud, Helene Grabet, I. Giacomino, Stella Masselin, Louise Mazy, Helene Mazy, Jeanne Pellissier and Jeanne Villon.

There will be a living Red Cross composed of young girls of the French colony, a tableaux representing the French orphans of the war, and countless other features, all to conclude with a great tableaux, "Victory."

A feature will be an auction of dolls. Mary Pickford, Blanche Sweet, Lillian Gish, Theda Bara, Bessie Barriscale and other noted film stars will dress dolls to be sold at this auction. All of the money goes to the French Red Cross. Mary Pickford's doll will be a double of Mary herself, and the doll's hair will be made of Mary's own hair.

A PRIZE AIREDALE.

Mrs. Anita Baldwin has contributed a prize Airedale to be auctioned. A brother of this dog recently sold for $2500 at an auction at the Hotel Green, Pasadena.

There will be plenty of music. The Submarine Base band will play during the afternoon and evening, as well as for the ball which will conclude the day's events. From time to time during the evening there will be special dances, among those to appear in these being Miss "Billie" Allen, a famous Broadway ballroom dancer, who has just arrived in Los Angeles. She will dance with Mr. Fowler.

An inspiring feature arranged by the French colony will be the tribute to each of the allies. A young woman dressed in the colors of Great Britain, for example, will appear on the stage, and sing the national anthem, "God Save the King," while another young woman will stand beside her and wave the British flag. The "Marseillaise" will be sung by Mlle. Antoinette Foix and France will be portrayed by Mlle. Helene Eyraud. Mlle. Juanita Amestoy will portray the United States. Mlle. Annie Brocq will be Jeanne d'Arc. Mme. Rose Dione of Theater Odeon, Paris, will recite the "Marseillaise."

Miss Tayo Pauline Hasegawa will represent Japan and the Japanese hymn will be sung by a group of small Japanese children. Teresa Giacomino will represent Italy and Ettore Campana will sing the Italian hymn. Elizabeth Chan will represent China; Mrs. S. Sartorius, Belgium; Araxi Jamcochis will represent Armenia, and Theodora Winieska, Poland.

The display of the flags of the Allies on the stage will be preceded by a parade of the nations through the hall. The American flag will be borne into the hall guarded by Maj. A. F. Judson, representing the Confederate War Veterans, and Capt. C. A. Phelps, representing the G.A.R.

At noon today a banquet will be tendered by the French colony to the French officers at Christopher's. The guests of honor will be Capt. P. L. Loriot, Lieut. H. B. Gognereau, Lieut. L. Groslier, Lieut. Bernheim, Sergt. Douvechan, Sergt. Peltret, Sergt. Kerovel and Sergt. Wolf.

The public is cordially invited to come to Shrine Auditorium from 2 o'clock this afternoon until midnight to celebrate with the French colony and all friends of France. Admission will be 50 cents. Every penny taken in today goes to the French Red Cross, which is working side by side with the American Red Cross caring for all who are fighting under the banners of the Allies.

The honorary committee on behalf of the French colony consists of Honorary President Louis Sentous, President L. N. Brunswig, Vice-president George Fusenot, and Mmes. L. Naud, M. Bertrand and L. Bouveron. The Executive Committee in charge of the celebration is composed of F. F. Pellissier, president; L. J. Christopher, vice-president; F. Viand, treasurer; Maurice Fog, secretary, and A. Blanchard, G. Bouveron, G. Grabet, Leon Curtet, F. Pellissier, L. Eyraud, L. Escallier, J. Viole, M. Eyraud, Jr. Reception Committee: George Lacour, Auguste Ferrier, M. Biane, S. Beginning of Liberty.

BASTILLE'S FALL TO FRANCE LIKE BOSTON TEA PARTY TO AMERICA.

BY LUCIEN N. BRUNSWIG.

TO THOSE who have read Alexandre Dumas' wonderful romance, "Les Trois Mousquetaires," (The Three Musketeers,) and are familiar with the atrocious abuse of power of the French kings, the abrupt imprisonment, incommunicado, oftimes until death, of those who displeased them, the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille is ever a pleasing memory. It stands for the French people a bit like the "Boston Tea Party" for Americans.

During the minority of Louis XIV, Mademoiselle de Montpensier, a Princess of the royal blood, commanded the governor to fire the cannons of the Bastille upon the people of Paris. On the fated 14th of July, 1789, when again the commander of the prison, Gouverneur de Launay, instead of meeting the just demands of the people, ordered the artillerists to bombard the people assembled for their rights, the hour of liberty had come.

The furious mob escaladed the ramparts with the true "furia Francese" and the bloody heads of Gouverneur de Launay, as also of "de Flesselles," the Prevost des Marchand, "the traitor" were among the trophies, affixed on pikes, paraded through the streets of the capital.

THE PEOPLE'S FURY.

A youth of less than twenty years, whose name was to become famous and whose head was ultimately to fall into the basket of the guillotine, Camille Desmoulins, harangued the people, standing on a table in the grounds of the Palais Royal. The people were furious at the king having surrounded Paris with Austrian, German and Swiss mercenary troups. Mirabeau, the magnetic orateur of the Assemblie Nationale, echo of the public's emotion, moved to petition the King to dismiss these foreigners. Louis XVI disdained the request, which had the support of his Minister of State, the virtuous Necker. This popular official was dismissed in disgrace. The people rose en masse, demanding his return. But the King was obdurate and ignored the people.

The "tocsin" rings from the churches, calling the citizens to arms. This day becomes the Saint Bartholomew of the Patriots. The flag chosen is of the color of Cincinnatus, the color of American liberty and democracy. Upon churches and public edifices are placarded the trilogy the symbol which was to endure for all time in France.

LIBERTE
EGALITE
FRATERNITE

The thousands of companions of Rochambeau and Lafayette had brought back from America the seeds of the Revolution which was to shake the old European monarchies to their foundations. And, with the fall of the Bastille, the French people once having tasted the sweets of liberty, autocracy and despotism could not stem the torrent.

BLINDNESS OF KINGS.

The blindness of the power of kings is proverbial, and when the faithful Duc de Liancourt endeavored to draw Louis from his apathy, showing him the true situation, the unanimity of the people in their demands for reform and the urgent necessity to meet the nation, and of the National Assembly granting them concessions. "Mais c'est une revolte," exclaimed Louis XVI, half awake only to the danger. (But it is a revolt?) "Non, Sire, c'est une revolution," retorted the Duke (No, Sire, 'tis a Revolution.)

This episode has gone down to posterity, and it is this celebrated and just word which closed the old era and ancient regime of France. The autrocious traffic in "Lettres de Cachet," carried on openly by the minions and favorites of the kings, is almost beyond realization. For a substantial consideration paid to them, these parasites procured from the king a "lettre de Cachet" (sealed letter) which was an order for incarceration in the Bastille prison, for an indefinite period and often for life. Thus could a jealous woman avenge herself upon an unfaithful lover, or a powerful enemy eliminate a weaker one. All this without trial of justice, or guilt on the part of the victim in most cases.

The famous "iron mask" was first taken there prior to being sent to rot in the Isle of Sainte Marquerite.

Shortly after the storming of the Bastille, Lafayette, the youthful general of the American War of Independence, now a matured man and chosen by the Revolutionary party as commander-in-chief of the National Guard of Paris, sent a beautiful trophy to his old comrade Washington, then President of the Republic of the United States of America. The keys of the Bastille in a delicate casket were the token from the great Democratic apostle of French liberty to the "Father of His Country." And today, at Mt. Vernon, near Washington's tomb, these keys are treasured among the reliques.

ARE AGAIN UNITED.

The spirit of the Minute Men of the American Revolution against tyrant and despot, a German king on an English throne, had accomplished its fateful tran-Atlantic voyage and found France a fertile field. The Allies of 1776, who then fought shoulder to shoulder for American independence, democracy and liberty, are again united in a struggle to free the civilized world from the cruel yoke of the Prussian and Hessian foes as of old. And it is meet that Americans should join France on this eventful anniversary in a pledge such as our great President, Woodrow Wilson, has recently given pronouncement. In his language, "Let us on this day pledge ourselves that we will willingly and gladly give to the last ounce of our blood, the last ship of our navy, and the last dollar of our treasury, to secure for chivalrous France a victorious peace, the restoration of her occupied territory, the return of Alsace-Lorraine, and adequate compensation, insofar as possible, for the ruin of monuments and devastation of her cities and territory."

French heroism has, during four long years, withstood the attacks of the Teutonic hordes, and words of cheer from this side will find welcome echo "over there." A million of our sons are with them, more millions are training, but the civilians of unfortunate France have been sorely tried. In the words of Gen. Pershing, "Buck up the French people if we are to win the war." Remember his visit to Lafayette's tomb shortly after landing, his emotional message to the French people: "Lafayette, we have come!" signifying that the debt of blood and of gratitude is now about to be cancelled.

Programme.

FRANCE WILL BE HONOR GUEST AT PARK TODAY.

THE patriotic rally at Exposition Park this afternoon under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce will bespeak the admiration Angelenos have for the French republic, as the entire programme will be given over to honoring the anniversary of the Fall of the Bastille.

The musical programme will include the singing of French martial songs and national anthems by Prof. J. P. Poulin, musical director of the Ellis Club, assisted by members of the organization. Instrumental numbers will be rendered by the Coast Artillery Band, under the direction of A. E. Ball, who has announced that his programme will include several selections by French composers.

A. W. Fry, prominent in patriotic work, will deliver the principal address, telling of the heroic struggles of France for national freedom and dwelling upon the close bond of relationship existing between the French and the American peoples.

W. P. Jeffries will serve as master of ceremonies. A seating capacity for more than 7000 persons has been arranged and the programme will begin promptly at 3 o'clock. The armory, the museum and State exhibit hall will be open to visitors throughout the afternoon.

THE OLD BASTILLE.

BY HOWARD WILSON.

Each wrong goes down as did the old Bastille,
A crumpled mass of royal pomp and pride;
The force of steel must yield to force of steel,
Right moves toward right with sure, compelling

Dreams come to light in black, abortive pain;
Swart-hooded clouds with crinkled lightning's
Frown with the potent music of the rain,
And souls of men leap to the trumpets' blare.

When tyrants thrive men mate their souls with
And prison walls shut out the light of day;
Not force, but love, shall mark the bridal year
When flowers bloom again in dead Cathay.

Time holds no guerdon for the lust of kings,
Each gilded throne but marks a passing dream;
A golden thread runs through the weft of things
And men must follow where the beacons gleam.

Who wears a crown shall bear an equal trust,
In truth must know his nation's woe and weal,
Else all his royal plans shall fall in dust,
As dust of years consumes the old Bastille.

FRENCH FINANCIER TO BE LUNCHEON GUEST.

MAURICE CASENAVE WITH HERO OF PICARDY WILL BE HERE ON TUESDAY.

Reservations for the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at which the guest of honor will be Maurice Casenave, minister plenipotentiary and councilor of the high commission of France in Washington, must be made before 5 o'clock tomorrow evening, according to announcement made yesterday by the chamber. The luncheon will be Tuesday at noon at the Jonathan Club, following the arrival of the financier and Lieut. Verider, hero of Picardy, at 10:15 o'clock at the Southern Pacific depot.

Minister Casenave is said to be one of the world's greatest authorities on finance and economics. He is making a tour of the principal cities of the United States to obtain first-hand information relative to commercial conditions and the probable situation following the war. He was one of the principal speakers at the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at San Francisco last week. It is expected that he will have a message of exceptional interest for business men and manufacturers of Los Angeles. As principal adviser of the French high commission in Washington, his recommendations are of great importance. Lieut. Verider will relate some of his personal experiences recently in the Picardy battle zone.

Minister Casenave will go to San Diego on Wednesday and upon his return will be the guest of the French colony of Los Angeles.

The chamber has named the following committee to take charge of the entertainment on Tuesday: Hector Alliot, Stoddard Jess, J. F. Sartori, R. McD. Taylor, Leon Escallier, Capt. John D. Fredericks, Arthur Letts, George I. Cochran, Hugh P. Stewart, George Fusenot, Maynard McFie, L. J. Christopher, Camille Sentous, Fred L. Baker and H. Jevne.

ADMITS HE GAVE FALSE TESTIMONY.

MAN AWAITING SENTENCE ON FRAUDULENT MINING DEAL CONFESSES TO THE JUDGE.

T. W. Taylor, a local mining property broker, who was convicted by a jury in Judge McCormick's court, Friday, on the charge of securing $500 from Charles H. Jones, an automobile dealer, for an option on what was represented to be a copper mining prospect in Mariposa county, Cal., and who will be before the court tomorrow morning for sentence, requested that he be allowed to make a statement to Judge McCormick in chambers, yesterday, and he was accommodated.

During the case it was testified that Herbert Taylor, evidently another mining promoter, had been told by one Alfred Bell, to go to Mr. Jones, who was at the time considering whether he should invest $500 in the proposition and represent himself as a member of the firm of Nelson & Company, of San Francisco, telling Jones that if he bought he (Taylor) would give him $30,000 for the property, the upset price of which had been fixed at $7000.

At that time Mr. Jones had paid but $100 of the $500 due on the option. He immediately began to see a fortune in sight, and seeking Taylor, at once paid the balance of the purchase price. After he had secured the option he sought the alleged "Nelson" to make a sale to him, but he could not be found.

On the trial, H. E. Taylor denied that he had known of any such arrangement, but yesterday he informed Judge McCormick that he was in the room at the time, and heard Bell tell Herbert Taylor to make the representations to Jones, and that his testimony in that regard was false.

During the hearing, the name of Alfred Bell, who

AMERICA'S FIRST-LINE FIGHTERS TRAINED TO BE "DEAD-SHOT" MEN

National Army Soldiers Taught to Fire Straight and do Lots of it—Sunshine Division will be Big-Caliber Unit When the Time Comes for Action.

BY JOHN N. BLACKBURN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP KEARNY, July 13.—Maj.-Gen. Frederick S. Strong, commander of the Sunshine Division, stood beside a new recruit who was taking the test of a soldier, that of shooting at what he is supposed to hit. The general is greatly interested in this phase of training, for, after all, a man has to be a good shot to be a fighting man in the American forces. The man aimed a bare second or so and—blam! He hit the bullseye. The general watched longer. This began to be interesting. Blam! and again a bullseye.

The commander turned to Capt. L. J. Nissen, range officer for the One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Infantry, a California unit. He asked for the man's score. It was totalled up and was found to be forty-six out of a possible fifty hits on the 100-yard rifle range. The general asked for the other scores, and the record for the 100-yard range was forty-eight and for the 300-yard range it was forty-three. The general asked the man if he had ever done any shooting before and the surprising reply was that the soldier, practically a raw recruit, had never fired anything but a shotgun before in his life.

In this account is epitomized the tingling feelings and surprises the officers of this division have been experiencing in the last few days in testing out the marksmanship of the recruits who recently arrived from Camp Lewis. The California men, who arrived a few weeks later, will have equal opportunity to demonstrate their ability with the army rifle, and it is generally believed that they will have the same remarkable record.

TAKING NO CHANCES.

The American army heads are taking no chance. If a man cannot shoot straight, if the chances are not patent that he will be able to kick off a German at 300 yards, he will be put in some part of the service where the use of a rifle will not be the important part of his war industry. While he will not necessarily be a noncombatant, he will at least have duties which will not depend upon his ability to shoot. In other words, the American soldiers who go to the front are to be "dead shot" men. They have to shoot straight and lots of it.

But the man who makes a low score at the start is not always to be judged as a poor hand with the rifle. This has been shown repeatedly in the tests that started this week. By the side of each recruit stands a veteran of the rifle range, a man who watches every movement of the rifleman, watches his eye and arm and acts as a sort of coach to the new soldier. It is just like the good old American game of football. The coach may talk real cross to the players, in spite of the fact that each player could quit if he wanted to, but he would not. The coach tells the new man how to become almost perfect in shooting. It is the same spirit in the army as in football.

MAKING BULLSEYES.

Capt. J. E. Noble, range officer of the One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Infantry, made up originally of Arizona men, was coaching a new man. The man took great interest in his work, a trait typical of these truly American men. The rifle coach stood near as a sort of promptor.

"Ninety-three," shouted the coach.

"Now," said the captain, "the fire from the man on your right disturbed you that time."

"Ninety-four," called the coach.

"The man on your left bothered you that time," said the captain.

"Ninety-four," repeated the veteran rifleman, and then he called "Ninety-five." And that number meant a bullseye. After that the new recruit got bullseyes, one after another.

In the One Hundred and Fifty-ninth men were found ten men who were left-handed and who shot that way. This seemed a problem at first, and it was. But not for long. The men just had to shoot right-handed. A blindfold was placed over the left eye and the man made to shoot. In this way the ten men changed from left to right.

THE RIFLE TEST.

Lieut. R. W. Benedict, in charge of the range for the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Infantry, a former Colorado unit, had been telling his men about the rifle test. He had been training them in sighting and aiming by means of an apparatus which saves the use of ammunition on men who never saw a gun before. He made a trip through the regiment last Saturday, prior to the trip to the rifle range on Monday.

Much to his surprise he saw squads out at work. The men had been given liberty and told to leave camp if they wished. Instead, he found they had organized into squads, all of their own volition, and without even suggestion from their officers and were practicing at sighting and aiming. Instead of taking the day off the men spent Saturday, their holiday, at work. They wanted to learn.

"They are just average Americans," said the officer, "but that's it, they are average Americans, endowed with intelligence and a great desire to learn, and to fight."

These same men went on the range. When it came to shooting from a prone position, lying "belly-buster" on the trench, a man was given the laugh if he missed a target. In fact, most of the men made ten hits out of a possible ten.

NO "ACCIDENT."

As a rule the officer does not tell a rifleman that he is doing wonders. Instead, the officer drops the hint that it must have been an accident. Nine times out of ten, the man grits his teeth and shows the officer that there was no accident. That is the spirit of it all.

The other day a platoon was marching from the rifle range to camp. One man was tired. He was doing more work than he had ever done before in his life, but he stuck to it. He walked along and it was a hot, dusty road. He pressed his lips together and kept at it. A first lieutenant came along and noticed the man. Did he banter the man? Did he call him down. No. This young lieutenant simply reached over and grasped the soldier's rifle and carried it to camp. Not a word was spoken and the protestations of the private fell flat. This is the new spirit of the army. The officers act as coaches and leaders, not as arbitrary dictators. An enlisted man can always get justice, and if he is in the right the officer's duty is to see that he is dealt fairly with by all over him.

VOLUNTEERS ALL.

An officer on the rifle range jumped up from a seat on hard adobe.

"Four of you men bring up some more ammunition," he called out.

Four men sprang from the nearest squad and went on the jump.

"That's it," he said, wagging his head, "that's what I like — volunteers."

And that is a sample of the other side of it. These two incidents actually happened and illustrate that not only is the army here in the training willing and eager to get things done, but the officers are the big brothers of the men. They are all getting ready to fight for the same cause and they are going after it like the devil his victims.

Capt. Herbert J. Simon, a Venice and Los Angeles man, and range officer for the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, the old Seventh California of Los Angeles, has had many years' experience on the range, but his eyes were opened when the new men of his regiment appeared on the target sections. He confessed that he had expected to see many red flags, which mean misses, but instead the men got bullseyes.

"A lot of these men must have been squirrel hunters," said an officer.

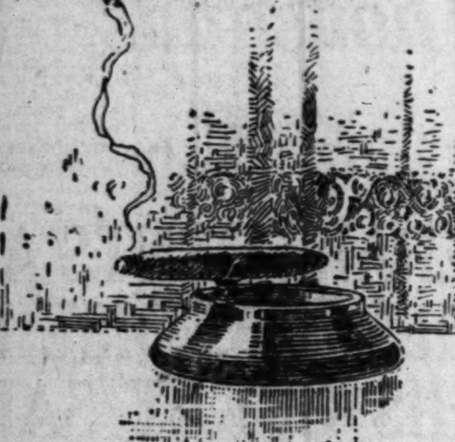
ARE QUICK TO LEARN.

It has been found that the percentage of men capable of learning, and rapidly, is very high. One veteran officer said that in six months the new men would be finished soldiers, which means they would be top-notchers. As a matter of fact, they will probably have completed their training in two months or so.

The army heads have adopted a new method in training men to shoot. While men learning to be riflemen and marksmen used to find obstacles in their way, now the plan is to help a man, make it easy for him and encourage him, thus gradually giving him confidence.

When a man who has never shot before has to pull the trigger for thirty or more shots in four hours, where every shot counts for or against him, his nerves are liable to be tugged a bit. The coach at his side quiets him and helps him in every way.

But the very fact that these men are so anxious to learn and to shoot, so as to qualify as first-line fighters, certainly shows that they are anxious to pit their strength against that of the squareheads. The whole cantonment is alive with activity and the answer is going to be that the Sunshine Division will show up as ibg caliber when the time comes for action.



Strong tobaccos may be a man's weakness but weakness for "light hearted Havanas" expresses the virtue of moderate smoking.

Drs. WHITE AND WAINWRIGHT:

Dear Sirs—While you have not asked me for a testimonial, possibly you will give a short one from me space, should you get up a new pamphlet. Also that these few lines may be read by some one or more of my many friends and former customers in the Mississippi Valley (Quincy Territory) or in the Inland Empire (Spokane Territory.) I wish to say: I had inward piles for thirty-five years and for the last ten a "full crop." So much so for the last three years, I have had no time to attend to anything else. I hope that none of my friends that may chance to read this will so foolishly procrastinate in taking treatment as I did. The total pain of becoming completely cured in my case amounted to less than the pulling of a small tooth. Had I a business to attend to, I would not have lost three days' time. Doctors White and Wainwright, you are "master mechanics" in the treatment of piles. Not for $2000 would I have mine back. I thank you. Yours Truly, J. W. HELME,

Letters from a Rookie.

CAMP KEARNY, June 29.—Dear Tim: Well, old scout, I got my hands full. Believe me, Xanthippe, I know what it means to be boss. Coming right out of a clear sky, the skipper says, "Buck, I hate to do it, but you got to act as a corporal and help train the rookies." I says, "Well, captain, you're the boss, but you gave me the job of saddler here and there aren't any saddles in your outfit and I have been getting along fine."

So that's how I joined the circus at the rookie camp. For a while I had the job of weighing them. One guy stood up and was weighed and they said to him, after he had been weighed, "Get on the scales." And they kept it up till that guy was weighed five times and I says, "Say, believe me, Xanthippe, that guy oughta weigh enough now. I got him five times." And the lieutenant said he guessed that was enough and let the guy pass. I guess so, too.

And the colonel comes along and says, "Say, Buck, you're a speed demon (and I guess I am, but not at running.) You go over and get Capt. Cadres of the provision company." And I didn't know where to go, but I started. Every officer I asked laughed and said he guessed that captain was in the next street, until there weren't any more, and one tried to send me back. Then I quit looking and looked for the captain of a cadres in a provisional company. But I knew that's what he meant all the time. They can't fool me, Tim.

The lieutenant says, "Buck, take this squad over for examination, and don't lose any of them." So I made up my mind I wasn't going to, for when a man's a corporal he's got a lot of responsibility and it don't pay to make any mistakes. Believe me, Xanthippe, I wrote and told Nell how I had been honored and that the captain said he just couldn't run this army if it wasn't for me. Of course they need men like me and Rawhide Kelly and Sergt. Fisher and Cowboy Smith, and when they shift a lot of work on our shoulders, we got to be examples to the others. So I found a spool of tape and I says, "Lieutenant, what's this for?" He says, "That's army red tape. That's what they tie us up with." So I tied every darn man in that squad. I put a ribbon on each arm and, believe me, Xanthippe, I didn't lose only two of them.

And then I had to teach the rookies how to salute. They got it all right. They would salute almost anything now. If an army mule wore puttees, he'd get his salute all right. One guy came up to me and he was carrying a loaf of bread. He says, "Say, Corporal, which hand do you salute with?" I says, "The right, of course." "Well," he says, "I was up against it just now. I saw the commanding general coming on my right and the officer of the day on my left. And I didn't know which to salute. I was carrying a loaf of bread at the time." I says, "Well, what did you do?" He says, "I stuck the bread in my teeth and saluted both." I says, "Well, believe me, Xanthippe, nobody can kick on that."

I told him it wasn't as bad as the way I did when I was just a common rookie, and I'm getting along in the army, that's me, Tim. I'm a corporal already. I knew that when one of the generals was promoted it would leave an opening for me. I went downtown and met Nell. She came down from Los Angeles and believe me, Xanthippe, I swelled out my chest when I walked along the street with her, 'cause she sure can put on the dog. And we met some friends and they said, "Buck, you go out and get two dozen buns," and Nell says, "Buns, the kind you eat; don't get no bun on." And I went out and got the buns and was walking along with my coat on my left arm and the buns in my right. Just as I got near the apartment an officer came by and I saluted with my right and all the buns scattered all over the street. I gathered them all up and went on and the lady with the officer thought it was a good joke, but she wouldn't have if she heard what Nell said. She swore I got a bun inside instead of the two dozen to eat. That's the way with a woman. You tell her the truth and she's sure to think you're lying. But if you fake up a good, first-class lie, she'll pet you and say what a fine fellow you are. You gotta lie to her once in a while or she'll think you haven't any pep.

But you take a horse; it's different. The horse has to believe you, 'cause it can't answer back. And that would be fine for a woman, if she just had to listen to what you have to say. Of course, you can't tell what a horse is thinking about you.

I been giving these guys squads east and west all week and believe me, Xanthippe, I am tired. And eat? You'd think they haven't tasted a bite since the draft law was passed, the way they dig into things with their bread hooks. The way they go after that bread reminds me of some of the French dinners I used to get in old Los. But I guess I gotta wait until I get to Paris and find Harry Williams before I get any more like 'em. And believe me, Xanthippe, when I get over there I'm going to adopt my own burial ground for the Huns, me and Rawhide, for we each have to get ten of those squareheads every day, or we'll feel like we wasn't doing our duty, and when it comes to shooting straight, that's me, Tim. I can hit almost anything, Tim; even without looking at it. I haven't got back my dog yet, Tim, but I guess the old hound will come in one of these days. I think he must be chasing Germans out of the State. Well, I see the draft didn't get you yet, but that's all right. Maybe you can start a farm or save stamps, or raise an orphan asylum. I'm going out with the engineers next week, and I'll tell you all about it.

Your friend, BUCK.

TO DEFEND PAUPERS.

Six attorneys volunteered yesterday to defend paupers appearing before the United States District Courts in response to appeals sent out by Federal Judge Trippet. At least twenty attorneys have been requested to volunteer because of the number of pauper cases on the calendar. The six attorneys are: Miss Mab Copeland, Miss Mildred Bullfinch, Walter R. Stevenson, Kenneth E. Matot, Dana Ong, and Sam B. Dannis.

IRONWORKERS GO NORTH.

Iron moulders and core-workers to the number of seventeen, formerly employed at the Baker Iron Works, were given government employment in the San Francisco shipyards and left yesterday for their new posts in charge of Thomas H. McCracken. The men were employed by Emil J. Bernatche, in charge of the Federal employment service here. Their expenses were paid by the government.

Welcomed.

MARINES HERE, GIVE CITY GLIMPSE OF WAR'S WORK.

"WE'RE the first to fight for right and might, and to keep our honor clean," sang more than 600 marines, many of them California boys, when they arrived here under command of Lieut. Newton Best on their way from a Pacific port to an eastern training camp. This occurred a few days ago, mention of it being withheld till the present in accordance with the voluntary news censorship.

These men, the "fighting arm of the navy," so-called, were given a stopover here for more than two hours between trains. Many of them strangers to the city, they all pronounced themselves as pleased with Los Angeles and particularly delighted with the two dozen members of the Junior Patriotic League who, under the direction of Miss Margaret Johnson, head of the canteen, gave them candy, fruit, writing materials and smokeables at the station.

Lieut. Newton Best, the commanding officer, is a former resident of this city, where he was for some time a captain in the militia. Fourteen months ago he transferred to active service and has since been connected with the Marine Corps. His arrival in town yesterday called forth more or less of a reunion of friends, for the benefit of whom he put his command through a series of "fatigue" maneuvers. They then lined up and sang a number of their battalion songs.

Over 25 per cent. of the marines in this contingent are college men, Lieut. Best stated, who is the sole commissioned officer with the men, although he is assisted in the company by R. H. Dunn, "the fighting first sergeant," a former undertaker who was appointed by his commander after his announcement that he could whip any man in the battalion.

LOOKING ON AT CAMP KEARNY.

CAMP KEARNY, July 13.—Lieut. George T. Newhall, who was recently appointed a first lieutenant, and was attached to the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, has been transferred to Camp Pike. Lieut. Newhall was a Coronado man, and had charge of the Grizzly pigeons and war dogs when he received his appointment, which was based on Spanish-American War experience.

Schallert Promoted.

Edwin F. Schallert, who used to write of musical and dramatic affairs for The Times, has been made a sergeant and is attached to the division surgeon's office. He was with the One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Infantry.

Steps Ahead.

Capt. Herbert J. Simon of Venice and Los Angeles is acting commander of the Third Battalion of the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry. Maj. James A. McKnight being on special duty.

New Mexico Visitor.

Brig.-Gen. John Barrodaile, New Mexican National Guards, retired, and his daughters, Miss Grace and Miss Rebecca, were visitors at camp Wednesday. The general called upon Lieut.-Col. Samuel L. Saltmarsh, division inspector, who was once a lieutenant under him.

Several Promoted.

Several promotions of importance have been announced. Capt. John D. Atwood, who has been instructor in heavy machine-gun work, was made a major and placed in command of the One Hundred and Forty-third Machine Gun Battalion. This is a New Mexico outfit, to which the major was formerly attached.

Lieut. George H. Shea, who has been aide to Gen. Strong for several months was made a captain. Capt. Shea is from the regular army and has had considerable army experience. He will continue as aide to the general.

Second Lieutenant John W. Bauman, One Hundred and Forty-third Field Artillery, and Second Lieutenant John A. Lowe, Military Police, were made first lieutenants. Lieut. John R. McFie, who was recently promoted and attached to the One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Infantry, was transferred to the Military Police.

Trade Testing Soon.

The new trade testing of the army will begin here soon. Trade testing, or the work of finding out how expert a man is in his trade, by means of a standardizing process, is being given in instruction to officers and noncommissioned officers attending the personnel school here. The uncertain human element is eliminated by this process. A man is questioned by a certain process, and the ramifications extend to all his experience in his trade, of which the army has found about 3000. Practically every one of these can be used by the army, though a man is not always given his own line of work, that being regulated by the demand. The personnel school is being conducted by Dr. E. K. Strong of the Committee of Classification of Personnel at Washington, and Maj. E. H. Weston, an adjutant from eastern headquarters at Governor's Island.

WILL RECRUIT HERE FOR JEWISH LEGION.

THOSE OF FOREIGN CITIZENSHIP SOUGHT FOR WAR SERVICE IN PALESTINE.

In response to a request received by the local Zionist workers from the Central Jewish Legion Bureau in New York, a Jewish Legion Committee of Los Angeles was organized here yesterday, the purpose of which will be to carry on a propaganda among the local Jewish of foreign citizenship to enlist in the legion, for service with the British army in Palestine.

The officers of the committee are Rabbi Isidore Myers, president; G. Bloom, vice-president, and I. Naumoff, secretary. These have already put themselves in communication with the British recruiting office in Los Angeles and have undertaken to popularize the Jewish Legion.

The committee yesterday received a telegram from R. Lewin Epstein, national secretary, New York, stating that recruiting for the Jewish Legion will close in eighty days, that none will have an opportunity after that time to enlist, and that a drive is being inaugurated throughout the country looking towards the creation of a large Jewish army for Palestine service.

This fair is to be made educational and instructive. It will be a wonderful opportunity for school children to see the resources of the State. The directors plan to place in the thirty-nine buildings something from every county in California that will show to those who visit the fair some of the many things the State already is famous for.

Indorsed by the United States government and backed by the approval of the President, the directors feel that it is possible to make of the fair something quite unlike anything that has ever before been attempted outside of a great world exposition. There will also be features that have not been possible even in world fairs, as the fact that the nation is at war is to be brought home to the visitors in a manner that will emphasize to all the true conditions across the water and at the same time show the part California is taking to help make the world safe for democracy.

The goal at which the directors of the California Liberty Fair are striving is not financial success, as this is not to be a money-making event. Emphasis is being laid on the fact that the public is to be given an opportunity to learn. The student can come and see in a few days what it might take thousands of dollars and months of travel to see in any other manner.

FULL INFORMATION.

A call has been sent out to prospective exhibitors to get their entries in early. The headquarters in Central Park, recently opened, is prepared for those who desire the necessary information concerning the classes of exhibits, the entries, the prizes and the limitations in the several classes. Everything that the exhibitor wishes to know may be learned from Secretary F. E. Davison, who is on hand with a corps of assistants.

For those who desire to exhibit, the secretary declares that the rule of "first come first served" must be followed. There are to be no favorites. The public is asked to understand that it will not be necessary to wait until the buildings are completed to select space. Ground floor plans of all of the buildings are now ready and the vantage spots can be seen at a glance.

Said Secretary Davison yesterday, "This is an exhibit for the farmer, the live stock dealer, the hog raiser, the poultryman, the pet stock fancier, the horse breeder, the agriculturist and horticulturist, and in fact, everybody. This is to be a great fair. We have the indorsement of the United States government and we are to have a great exhibit sent here direct from Washington. The buildings are to be erected speedily and the exhibits are to be placed in plenty of time."

...less than six months dur-
...Civil War, and who were honorably discharged, and who are now receiving a lower rate.

"Those who are 72 years of age, or over, and who have served six months, are entitled to receive $32 per month; those who served one year, $35 per month; one and one-half years, $38 per month, and two years or over, $40 per month.

"These increases will be granted automatically, and without application of any kind to the Pension Bureau, to all soldiers and sailors now pensioned under the act of May 11, 1912, and who have attained the required age and served the necessary length of time.

"Soldiers and sailors who served during the Civil War and are pensioned at lower rates under some other law, but who are entitled to pension under the act of May 11, 1912, will be required to file an application under that act in order to receive the benefits of the new law.

"The Pension Bureau will make these allowances with all the dispatch possible under existing conditions. A special force for the adjustment of cases within the provisions of the new law has been organized, which will handle these cases exclusively.

"It should be borne in mind by those concerned that there are now nearly 268,000 pensioners under the act of May 11, 1912, and all are urged to exercise patience and consideration. While every effort will be made to hasten this work, there will be no avoidable interference with the progress of claims now on file, or hereafter filed under other laws. A special effort will be made not to interfere with the adjudication of widows' claims.

"It will be wholly impracticable to make any payments at the increased rate on July 4, 1918; but it is hoped that the payments due August 4, 1918, may be made at the rate provided by the new law.

"It will not be necessary to write to the bureau about these increases. Letters of inquiry will simply delay the work of making allowances.

"No attorneys' fees will be allowed or paid for services in securing increase of pension under the act of June 10, 1918."

ATHLETIC DIRECTORS FOR ARMY NEEDED.

MEN OF PERSONALITY SOUGHT FOR OVERSEAS WORK WITH Y.M.C.A.

W. J. Ford, local representative of the military bureau of the University of California, has received a call from F. L. Kleeberger, physical director at the university, to recruit athletic directors for overseas work with the Y.M.C.A.

"The demand is for men of vigorous personality (expert athletic coaches are not the great need,) who can meet the men in a man's way, and through simple athletic programmes, other entertainments and personal services, bring the comforts and atmosphere ... the soldiers at all times," said Mr. Ford yesterday. "Long marches under pack and days of fighting, without rest, in the trenches, demand men trained to 'play the game.' The intelligent athletic trainers of the past have preached clean living as necessary to the winning of the game, and have called upon the men's loyalty to one another as the motive force to maintain the principles of morality. The Y.M.C.A. physical director is expected to preach this religion of service, and through his resources of personal service and his ability as an organizer of sports and entertainment to divert the men from destructive forms of recreation to constructive ones.

"Men of the type who can do this work are wanted to help the boys when they start the real drive for Berlin."

CLUB FAIR WILL HELP WOMEN'S HOSPITALS.

TO AID in putting Los Angeles across for the $50,000 hoped to be raised for the American Women's Hospitals in Europe, which represents the war activities of the national association of the women physicians of America, the Liberty Club will give a great fair and carnival on July 19 and 20, on the grounds at No. 600 St. Paul avenue.

A great tent will be erected on part of the grounds and booths of all sorts will be installed in different places. Within the tent varied programmes will be given, assisted by noted film stars and vaudeville performers, and there will be dancing in the evenings. In the large swimming pool several well-known swimmers will give exhibitions of fancy stunts in the water. There will also be a miniature wild west show on both days.

Lengthy addresses will not be a feature of the fair, but short patriotic talks will be given by several well-known speakers. Among those who will be heard are Rabbi Magnin, Mayor W. T. Lisenby of Long Beach and J. Stitt Wilson. The Liberty Club Junior Trio, composed of the Egloff sisters, will be heard in various musical selections.

Among those who will contribute to the programme is Mrs. W. E. Wild, who founded the club and is now the wife of a retired banker of Visalia. Mrs. Wild will cast horoscopes for the women's hospital fund.

LECTURES WILL BE GIVEN ON THE WAR.

EFECTS OF THE STRUGGLE TO BE DISCUSSED BY NOTED SPEAKERS.

Aspects of the war will be discussed in a series of free lectures by members of the faculty of the southern division of the summer session of the University of California at 8 o'clock in the evening in the Friday Morning Club House, No. 920 South Figueroa street. Each lecture is distinct from classroom offerings and all are open to the public. Titles of these lectures and the dates are:

Tomorrow: "French Plays and the War," by Prof. Henri C. E. David, a native of France and a member of the University of Chicago faculty.

Saturday, July 20: "Music and the War," by Arthur Farwell, New York composer and musician.

Monday, July 22: "Some Old-fashioned Naval Battles and a Modern Comparison," by Morris E. Speare, instructor in the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

Wednesday, July 24: "Art and the War," by Prof. Eugen Neuhaus, University of California, artist and author of works on art.

Saturday, July 27: "Newspapers in Wartime," by Prof. Harry F. Harrington, University of Illinois.

Monday, July 29: "The history of the Red Cross: How It Originated and How It Grew," by Dr. Stockton Axson, Rice Institute, Texas, now national secretary of the Red Cross Society.

Wednesday, July 31: "The Great War: Some of the Ethical and Psychological Blunders Which Precipitated It," by Dr. Stockton Axson.

Thursday, August 1: "The American Red Cross in Europe," by Dr. Stockton Axson.

Friday, August 2: "After the War—What?" by Dr. Stockton Axson.

On Tuesday, July 30, Dr. Axson will give a public lecture at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the Los Angeles High School building, on "The American Red Cross at Home."

This series of lectures is designed to make the thinking public realize the effects produced by the war in ...

Hooray! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear The Greatest of All Human Blessings.

Thousands of women no longer resign themselves to the thought that sickness and distress are natural. They know better, for in Mother's Friend they have found a wonderful penetrating remedy to relieve many dreaded experiences.

Nervousness, bearing-down and stretching pains are among the disheartening and distressing experiences women everywhere say they entirely escape during the period of expectancy by the use of Mother's Friend.

Here is a remedy that softens the myriad of broad, flat abdominal muscles just beneath the skin, enables them to expand without the usual strain upon the ligaments and nerves and assists nature to make it possible for women to go through maternity without many of the dreaded symptoms so familiar to a host of women.

By regular use throughout the period the muscles expand easily when baby is born, and pain and danger at the crisis is consequently less.

Mother's Friend is for external use only, is absolutely and entirely safe and has been used by thousands of women awaiting the greatest time in a woman's life for over half a century.

Write the Bradfield Regulator Co., M-32 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their "Motherhood Book," so valuable to expectant mothers, and in the meantime obtain a bottle of Mother's Friend from the nearest drug store. Begin its use strictly according to directions with every bottle, and thus fortify yourself against pain and discomfort.

WILLIAM FARNUM HERE.

CELEBRATED BIRTHDAY IN THE GRAND CANYON.

William Farnum and his company, under the direction of Frank Lloyd, returned last week from the Grand Canyon, where they were taking scenes for the Zane Grey story, "The Rainbow Trail." There were twenty-seven in the party, and six Fox film horses. It was the largest motion-picture company that had ever been down in the canyon, and the party remained eight days—another record for motion-picture companies.

The party was lodged at Hermit Creek Camp, 3500 feet below the rim of the canyon, to which camp the party went on mules down the seven-mile Hermit trail. Eight pack mules took the company's paraphernalia to the camp, and during the stay of the Farnum company at the camp, the Hermit trail was closed to visitors. Each day pack mules brought food for the party and every one agreed that it was the finest grub they had had in a long while.

In many of the scenes Mr. Farnum, Mary Mersch and Ann Forrest wore skins, as the idea was to show the three living in a valley from which there was no egress. In some way the girls protected themselves, but Farnum got one of the finest sunburns he ever had in his life. His shoulders were raw after the first day's work. There is probably no question that the burn was painful, but Mr. Farnum bore it with the noble patience he has so often exhibited in the interests of art as hero of the films.

The Fourth of July, besides being Uncle Sam's anniversary, was also Mr. Farnum's birthday, and in the evening the members of the company gave Mr. Farnum a birthday party, during the course of which the star was presented with a box containing a vibrator with all its different parts, which, as everybody knows, is the purveyor of great comfort after a hard day's filming.

Another present which was a source of surprise and delight to Mr. Farnum was the presence of his little daughter, Adele, who, with Mrs. Farnum, had come down the trail during the day, while the company was at work on location, to meet him on his return.

Among those in the party besides Mr. Farnum and Mr. Lloyd were Scotty Dunlap, assistant director; Billy Foster, cameraman, and William Burress, Ann Forrest, Mary Mersch, Billy Nye and Bill Harrison, actors, while the company of cowboys included Pete Leon and Buck Gebhart.

ERNEST SHIPMAN OPENS OFFICE HERE.

To help eliminate guess work in the making of feature pictures is the mission of Ernest Shipman, who has formed a chain of working associates and representatives which more nearly covers the independent field than any similar organization now in operation.

Certain productions are now under way, upon which Mr. Shipman has secured the approval of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit and other prominent buyers of special features. This practically insures an immediate sale, provided the pictures are properly made.

The doctoring of pictures which have been a drug upon the market is another successful department of Mr. Shipman's business. An instance may be cited in a recent well-known production which as a nine-reel offering went down to failure in New York, but which revised and altered to suit present marketable conditions, is now selling as a six-reel special at a rate which insures the owners approximately $70,000 for their investment.

Mr. Shipman has established temporary offices at No. 730 South Olive street.

NEW PICTURES ARE PLACED ON MARKET.

Trade announcements this week reveal the fact that a new brand of pictures is being placed on the market. This new product is to be known as Plaza Pictures and will be released by the W. W. Hodkinson corporation.

It is understood that three stars who have been popular in motion pictures will appear in the productions under this brand name. Anita King and Kathleen Clifford are two of the stars, and the third name is not yet ready for announcement.

Mr. Hodkinson also announces that he will place his own men in the field to sell this product, also the Paralta Plays and the Douglas natural color pictures, the distribution of which latter he now controls.

MAY ALLISON IS HUNTING A HOME.

House hunting is these days one of the many activities of May Allison, Metro star, who has recently arrived from the East. That is, she is house hunting by proxy, her sister doing the actual leg work required in the irksome task of finding a happy home, as Miss Allison herself is extremely busy on her new picture, "The Return of Mary."

After a thorough canvass of the suburbs of the city, Miss Allison has about decided to locate in Hollywood, she having found a residence on La Brea avenue which has sufficient grounds for a war garden, and which Miss Allison plans to lease for several months. In the meantime, the star is living at a Hollywood hotel with her mother and sister. She says that if her present plans mature she will build a home in Hollywood, which her mother may occupy the year round. It was rumored a short time ago, that somebody else—a masculine somebody—was about to secure the legal right to buy Miss Allison a home, but she denies there is anything in it, and says that she will continue to buy her own homes—for a while, anyway.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN FINDS NEW FORTUNE.

"Perquisites are what you get besides what you get," is a line from an old comedy. And now it looks as if Charlie Chaplin's perquisites might amount to a tremendous amount, since the comedian really is making money hand over fist from the lemon grove surrounding his studio.

And not only this. Charlie has a new idea. It is that of going into the manufacture of lemon sticks. Not candy sticks, but the small, slender sticks used by manicurists and which are an adjunct of every dressing table, which heretofore have been made from orange wood, but which he says he has found on investigation can be made just as well from the wood of lemon trees. A big wholesale drug accessory house in the East has offered to take all the sticks that can be turned out, and Syd Chaplin, Charlie's brother, has plans under consideration for a small factory near the studio.

ROY GETS A THRILL NOT IN THE SCRIPT.

Precipitating an avalanche of boulders while swinging from a lariat over the edge of a cliff, Roy Stewart, Triangle's cowboy hero, had a narrow escape from serious injury one day last week while working on his latest picture, "Cactus Crandall." Only the presence of mind of his director, Cliff Smith, saved him.

The company was working in Sulphur Canyon, near the Triangle's ranch studio in Santa Monica Mountains. Stewart was making his getaway from a band of Mexican outlaws. Tying his lariat to a tree he swung over the side of a cliff and descended, hand-over-hand. When within twenty feet of the bottom, a shrill cry of warning from Director Smith caused Stewart to look up, when he beheld a huge boulder, loosened by his weight on the rope, toppling on the edge of the cliff. Stewart's first thought was to swing in and seek cover in a cave in front of him, but Smith called over, "Jump and run for it!" Acting in a second, Stewart obeyed and made his escape amid an avalanche of rocks. He was found to be stunned when dragged to safety by members of the company, the huge boulder having missed him by mere inches. The cave was completely filled by the avalanche, and had Stewart sought Alhambra.

Commencing today, the Alhambra announces the opening of the first United States official government war picture, "Pershing's Crusaders," the eight-reel propaganda film released by the Committee on Public Information's division of films. This feature is now playing to capacity in several of the large cities, including New York and San Francisco, and the press and public have accorded it the highest praise, declaring that it is the best compilation of war pictures sent to this country since the beginning of the European struggle. Do you realize that you are at war with the Hun? That is the question that Uncle Sam asks in this wonderful production that has taken the country by storm. If you do not, he is sure you will after seeing this picture.

Quinn's Rialto.

Nazimova, in "Toys of Fate," her second great screen sensation, is now playing at Quinn's Rialto. Undoubtedly the most singularly attractive personality of the screen or stage, Mme. Alla Nazimova has become a sensation over night. Born in Russia, and living in this country since childhood, this famous actress occupies today one of the foremost niches in the hall of theatrical fame. "Toys of Fate" undoubtedly will eclipse her former accomplishments. It is the story of a young gypsy, loving and hating, fiery and untrammeled of nature, who is made the instrument of fate to bring to justice a man who has spoiled her mother's life.

Tally's Broadway.

A young girl still in her teens Marion Davies appeared before the public first in the chorus of a Broadway musical comedy, where her dainty beauty, fresh charm of face and piquant manner at once attracted the attention of first-night habitues, critics and casual theatergoers alike. In March, Miss Davies read Katherine Haviland Taylor's novel, "Cecilia of the Pink Roses," and became imbued with an ambition to do something more substantial and soulful than being starred in musical comedy. In April she had a company of prominent players and a very capable director hard at work on her first motion-picture production, an adaption from the story that first gave her a desire to become a star of the screen. The picture will be the attraction at Tally's Broadway next week.

Grauman's.

All the cunning and quick American wit is brought into play in "The Kaiser's Shadow," the latest Paramount photoplay, in which Dorothy Dalton, famous Thomas H. Ince star, appears for one week, beginning tomorrow, at Grauman's. The story originally appeared in serial form in one of America's leading magazines under the name of "A Triple Cross," by Octavus Cohen and J. U. Giesy. The photoplay has been strongly assisted in its effects by Director R. William Neill, under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, and by the intricate stage settings, which are characteristic of all Ince productions.

Miller's.

Theda Bara is coming to Miller's for a week, beginning today, in a sensational and thrilling film play entitled "The Clemenceau Case." This is a picturization of Alexandre

WALTER CATLETT IS POOH-BAH OF SHOW.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

"OF COURSE, you know," declared Walter Catlett, as he wiped the per-sweat from his brow, "how every actor, when he sits back at rehearsals," wants to get right out on the stage and play every single part in the piece himself. He could show 'em, by the mighty Melpomene, he could, what regular acting is!"

It was at a rehearsal of the new Oliver Morosco-Elmer Harris-Harry Piani musical comedy at the Majestic, and, having shown Broadway he was some boy, our own Walter Catlett is with us once more.

Only now he's Walter Catlett, impresario, if you please, with horn-rimmed glasses and everything! In fact, to be specific, he's the pooh-bah of "Look Pleasant," which goes on at the Mason tonight. He has stage-managed, directed, groomed, rebuilt, rewritten, designed the scenery and "written" the dances. Also he confesses he has, so to speak, denatured some of the spicier Harris epigrams, so that now "Look Pleasant" is a show that no boy may be afraid to take his dad to see. Aside from which, Mr. Catlett has nothing to do except play the star role.

And just as a nice little exciting piece of news, we pause to announce that with the launching of "Look Pleasant," Walter Catlett enters on a career as a full-fledged stage director, if not with Mr. Morosco, then with another producer who has already made him an offer.

Do you remember how Walter Catlett, back in the old Burbank days, used to be famous for making two laughs grow where only one grew before? Why, he'd have been able to make a musical comedy of "Romeo and Juliet" if ever he had tried. And the critics used to get irritated and scold, but it never did any good—or harm. Catlett just knew human nature and he knew human nature liked to laugh. That's what finally put him on New York's Broadway and what has kept him there ever since, and that will keep him there as long as he will stay, while we go Catlettless out here.

HOW GOOD AMERICANS ARE MADE BY MUSIC.

Somewhere in New York there is a little church whose one peculiar charm is a congregation of some twenty-five Spanish-speaking people—Cubans, South Americans, Central Americans and Spaniards who gather every Sunday to worship in their own way, which is individual, and in their tongue, which is charming. Nothing about either of these things is unusual, but what is of interest is the fact that these olive-skinned foreigners are, through their church and the music which forms a part of it, learning to be true Americans. The unique feature comes at the close of the service.

After the benediction of the priest, a vested chorister, accompanied by two diminutive assistants, solemnly and ceremoniously brings in an American flag. This is held high up where all can see it, and out of the throats of twenty-five or more Spanish-speaking foreigners rise the notes of "America." But instead of the familiar "My country, 'tis of thee," come words of softer accent and stranger sound. For instead of singing in English, this tiny congregation sings our hymn in the language which has meaning to them. At the end of the song the flag is carried out at the head of the recessional. This marks the close of the service. The effect both artistically and emotionally is fine—a real and earnest show of Americanization and patriotism portrayed in a way that carries meaning to the participants. How great a step this is in the right direction cannot too highly be appreciated.

Much can be done through the medium of music in the way of Americanization. And when to this is added the improvement of making the music intelligible to the singers, the way is shortened by half.

It is a hard task to instil the ideas and ideals of America into the heart and mind of a new arrival to our shores. It is doubly hard when there is no way of making them know to him in his own language. One of the channels that every educator takes, is the one of the love of song that is known to be inherent in every one. The foreigner is quick to learn the melodies that breathe the spirit of America. Add to that a translation of the words into his own tongue, and he will soon sing himself into an appreciation of what America means.

MUSIC ESSENTIAL, EDISON'S VERDICT.

"You ask me if music is a human essential," said Thomas A. Edison, when interviewed by the Etude recently. "To the Eskimo, or South Sea Islander, no. To the American, Frenchman, Englishman, Italian, yes. Mere existence demands nothing but food, drink, clothing and shelter. But when you attempt to raise existence to a higher plane, you have to nourish the brain as well as the body. I don't think there is any sane person who would say that books are unessential to the maintenance of our civilization in America. Yet, after its school days, probably less than one-fourth of our population reads with serious purpose. Music is more essential than literature, for the very simple reason that music is capable of releasing in practically every human mind enlightening and ennobling thoughts that literature evokes in only the most erudite minds.

"Music, next to religion, is the mind's greatest solace, and also its greatest inspiration. The history of the world shows that lofty aspirations find event in music, and that music, in turn, helps to inspire such aspirations in others. Military men agree that music is essential to soldiers both in camp and in action. The "Marseillaise" is worth a million men to France. Music is not less essential to those the soldiers leave behind them. Instead of decrying music, the demagogues and others, whose hysteria or self-consciousness has distorted their vision and befuddled their brains, should urge the nation to make more music, to hold more concerts, to have more community singing—in short, to do everything that reasonably can be done to make America a singing nation during the war. When the casualty lists begin to fill the pages of our newspapers, we shall need music to sustain our national spirit. The man who disparages music as a luxury and non-essential is doing the nation an injury."

"Among the Pines."

Miss Fannie C. Dillon, composer-pianist and teacher of harmony, will again open her out-of-door studio, "Among the Pines," on Mt. Wilson, this summer. All who have enjoyed this original and unique mode of combining pleasure and progressive study during the summer months have pronounced it a real success. The use of the xylophone in this work is an interesting feature.

"Land of Our Hearts."

This year's annual music festival of the Litchfield County Choral Society, held at Norfolk, Ct., during the first week in June, was doubly interesting because of the first performance of "Land of Our Hearts," a cantata for chorus and orchestra, by George Whitefield Chadwick. Mr. Chadwick, who is known as the "dean" of American composers, has given one son to the army and another to the navy in defense of the country. This act of patriotism and sacrifice was one of the causes which led him to write the cantata.

CANADIANS GOOD FIGHTERS.

It is very gratifying and encouraging to all over here to watch the growing enthusiasm of the French Canadians and to see how splendidly the young men are entering on their military duties. Even the women are anxious to share in the great work of overthrowing the common enemy.

The profound impression which a visit to France creates makes one feel that if all our French-Canadian confreres could realize what has happened and what is happening across the channel, every man of military age would rush to join the colors. The French Canadians at home should and must be stirred by the vivid realization of conditions in France and by the fact that their French-speaking brothers now in France are proving splendid fighters and are among the best and bravest in the field.—[Sir Edward Kemp in the London Star.

Cross, topliner of the bill that opens Monday July 15, has so long been with Lois Josephine that will be surprised to see him but the fact that he is alone will have one good effect; it will concentrate attention on his clever abilities, not distracted by the presence of a talented and pretty co-partner. Another well-known personage on the new bill is Edwin Stevens, also a factor in vaudeville and the legitimate, who now has as co-star his former leading woman, Tina Marshall. The new firm offers for the coming week a sparkling comedy, "The Birthdays of Dolliver." Fred Whitfield and Marie Ireland have added Lew Murdock to their staff and will appear in a rube satire, "The Belle of Bingville." Tyler and St. Clair will prove their claims to artistic work upon that kindlingwood orchestra, the xylophone. The bill retains the delightful Lucile Cavanagh, "The Honeymoon," with Glen Anders and company; Barry and Layton and Gardner and Hartman. The regular cash box office sale for the coming engagement of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt at the Orpheum will be opened Monday, July 15.

Walter Catlett.

Morosco.

Business is good at the Morosco, where the celebrated firm of Potash & Perlmutter have been turning customers away at every performance, and where they will be seen for one more week in their latest offering, "Potash and Perlmutter in Society," beginning with today's matinee. Despite war conditions, Potash and Perlmutter can always be depended upon to furnish laughs by the gross. And laughs are needed now more than anything else. A week ago the Morosco offered for the first time in stock here an elaborate production of the celebrated New York success, "Potash and Perlmutter in Society." The house immediately filled to capacity. It has remained so at every performance.

Pantages.

The second and last week of the special return engagement of Singer's Midgets starts at Pantages today. The Lilliputians have been packing and jamming the popular Broadway vaudeville emporium for the past seven days, with kiddies from 6 to 60. "The Dancing Girl of Delhi," an oriental fantasy from tales of the Mohammedan courts, will be presented by "Brother" St. Denis of the famous Ruth St. Denis family of dancers, as the special added feature of the week. Other vaudeville turns will be the Lucy Lucier Trio, harmonious funsters; Rose and Ellis, acrobats; and Pat Barrett, in exclusive song talk.

Burbank.

With six acts of bigger and better vaudeville, and Eileen Percy and Franklyn Farnum as the photoplay stars in the thrilling mystery playlet, "The Empty Cab," the Burbank offers for the coming week a programme that is worth the money. The vaudeville portion of the bill will be in charge of Juggling Matheu, babbling balancer; the Chi-Che Trio of comedy cyclists; Genevieve Knapp, well-known local society girl offering a repertoire of interpretative dancer; the Three Melody Maids, harmony singers and funsters; Irene Franklin, well known in the music world of Los Angeles, who will render a number of selections on her silver-throated cornet; and Lou Worth, the minstrel man.

Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome will offer a week of good entertainment beginning tomorrow's matinee, when the management has made a specialty of getting a series of laugh makers. The De Pace Opera Company head the programme. Then Ray Snow, with his man-about-town air, will "speak his piece." A guaranteed trouble-remover, or a method whereby you may produce new laugh wrinkles, is the skit of Jones and Johnson, colored artists. Charles Glockner attempts to juggle water, and spills and surprises are the result. The Archie Nicholson Trio have voices that please and a line of comedy that is always good. Grace Orma, with her excess height, is good for a smile any day. A magician and manipulator of cards is Al Day.

BILL "LOOSENED."

Bill Herschell, who write "Long Boy," lives in Tecumseh place. The other evening, while Bill sat on his front porch worrying about when he would have to cut the grass, a parade approached from the east and turned into Tecumseh place. In the front line were three little boys with drums, then several boys with flags. Next came the commander, a 12-year-old one. Behind him were little boys with home-made rifles. Then came the Red Cross nurses, about a dozen of them. Two nurses drew a little toy wagon fixed up as an ambulance. Other Red Cross nurses were grouped around a big flag. The parade halted in front of Bill's house. The commander turned, and with much gruffness, said:

"Now, I want you all to sing like I told you or I'll knock you loose."

The commander wave his arms and the youthful paraders began singing "Long Boy" for "Long Boy's" father. It was wonderfully sung. The paraders looked up at the front porch and Bill applauded, applauded with true delight. Finally the parade moved away.

Bill didn't know that he was expected to throw money in the flag. The next evening the kids in Bill's street decided to organize a parade. They were not going to take any chances on Bill escaping a contribution to them, for a little Red Cross nurse appeared at the door to warn him. She rang the bell and Bill answered.

"Say, Uncle Bill," she said, "are you going to be home about 7 o'clock?"

"Certainly," he replied. "Why?"

"Well, us children in this street are getting up a Red Cross parade and when we hold out the flag you'd better put something in it."

And when the parade halted at Bill's an hour later the father of "Long Boy" had to "loosen."—[Indianapolis News.

FAREWELL MESSAGE TO HIS MOTHER.

DYING YANKEE SOLDIER FINDS GOOD ANGEL IN FRENCH HOSPITAL.

An American soldier lay badly wounded in a French hospital. He was dying and he knew it, and he wanted to write a last letter to his mother back home in the States.

He was one of several Americans who had been carried a few days ago to this hospital where every one was French, from the chief surgeons to the youngest of the nurses, and the least of the orderlies. Most expert had been the treatment and most tender the care these boys of ours had received, but here was one of them calling for some countryman of his by whom he could transmit his farewell message home.

There were no English on the premises and the only Americans were those comrades of his who could not help. There was a hurried canvass of the hospital. Finally, a Frenchwoman came forward who said she felt sure she could speak and write the wounded boy's tongue well enough to serve him. Like her father, she had spent some years of study in America, and like him she had mastered its idiom and its accent.

She was soon cheering the boy with the friendly sound of English words, and a little later those in the ward saw her settled at the side of the cot, bending forward from time to time to catch the phrases of this mother's letter which would not wait till Mothers' Day.

The boy died, but not before he had finished the letter. It is now on its way home. And some day some one will tell the mother that the woman who set down the last message of her son in France was the daughter of Georges Clemenceau, Premier of the French Republic.—[Stars and Stripes, France.

WHEN THE GUNS SPEAK.

They used to be called "cannon" and they "roared." Wellington at Waterloo had 156 of them—not enlough of them to be missed from a reconnaissance in force on the western front. Yet they "roared" in poetry and prose for many a decade thereafter.

"Cannon" have become "guns," although, when Lord Roberts died in France, Kipling for the sake of meter, reverted to the older words:

"Three hundred miles of cannon spake
When the master gunner died."

Note that while the 156 field pieces of Waterloo roared the 8000 guns that accompany a modern field army "spoke." There being no word that adequately describes the upheaval of sound at their discharge, no attempt is made to fit one to it. The guns speak to good effect, as on the Piave, along the Marne, in Flanders.

Statesmen are eloquent, but, pacifists to the contrary notwithstanding, the ten-inch howitzer has the floor. When, in the opinion of the Allies, the time comes to discuss peace and it goes through it will be because the guns second the motion.—[New York Herald.

RED CROSS AFFAIRS

East Hollywood Auxiliary.

The workers of the East Hollywood Red Cross have the following record to show for their past six months' work: Sixteen thousand surgical dressings made, 884 hospital garments, 1014 knitted articles, 200 filled kits for the navy, costing $2 each, and ninety "housewives." In all $2200 was spent on materials and they now have on hand $1200.

Besides the work in the auxiliary-room, for the past two weeks the women have been serving lunch in Albert Cohn's Main-street store, the entire returns being turned over to the Red Cross. The first week Mr. Cohn donated all the food and the second week the local packing-houses supplied it. From 100 to 200 people crowded the lunchroom every day, and over $300 was cleared.

Garden Fete and Bazaar.

The Forty-second and South Park Red Cross auxiliary will have a garden fete and bazaar next Saturday afternoon and evening in South Park. An elaborate programme has been planned.

Piano Recital for Red Cross.

Some $20 were raised Thursday for the Red Cross auxiliary of the Los Angeles section of the Council of Jewish Women by little Miss Harriet Krystal. The little girl is 7 years old and the pupil of Mrs. Joseph Carter. The recital took place at the home of Mrs. Noah Krystal, No. 305 South Manhattan place, and the gifted young pianiste delighted her audience with a programme of some length and variety.

Girls Give Benefit.

Two 10-year-old girls, Jane Oliver and Helen Cerf, gave a Red Cross benefit Saturday afternoon at No. 439 South St. Andrews place. They had many pretty booths and made $35 for the cause.

Garden Party.

Cuddle Doon, the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Thomas, was the scene of a delightful informal Red Cross garden party Sunday afternoon. An informal programme was given by Mrs. George Fusenot, Miss Margaret Johnson, Mrs. M. Newman, Miss C. Apple, Miss M. Hasse, Miss Grace Gubb, George Varnum and Clyde Mohler.

Assisting Mrs. Thomas were Harold Reynolds, E. N. Nettleton, T. Minford, A. Drenan, A. Brown, C. Ayres, R. Haims, S. Raymond, Phil Johnson, N. Slayden, F. Anderson, T. T. Flag, G. Dunlop and the Misses Ruth, Violet and Ellen Andrews, Karla Scheanum, Gwendolin Chaplin, Jame Culberson, Margaret Hauber and Alberta Bertranel.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Fusenot, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Fitzgerald, Mrs. James Bastabler, Miss D. Bastabler, Mr. and Mrs. W. de Mille and Misses Agnes and Margaret de Mille, Dr. and Mrs. J. Haims, Mrs. M. Fisk, Miss M. Hirshi, Mr. and Mrs. F. Armond, Mrs. Branville Bramen, Mrs. F. Pool, Mrs. E. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. N. Tyler, Parley Johnson and Mrs. H. O. Eversole.

Another Tea House.

La Caseta del Sol, the attractive Red Cross tea house overlooking the Santa Monica Canyon, is open from 2 o'clock until 7 o'clock on Sundays, and delicious refreshments are served by Santa Monica society women and their daughters. During the summer months the tea house will be under the chairmanship of Mrs. Isaac Milbank.

Heads Department.

Miss Martha P. Hodges has been appointed chairman of the reclamation department of the Y.W.C.A. Red Cross. This department will instruct workers in how to utilize and remake partly-worn garments and hats, and in the darning and refooting of stockings.

Seeing a City for the First Time.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer tells of a young fellow from Alaska who is seeing the city for the first time. He is 20 years of age, was born and reared in Alaska, and until the other day when he landed in this county had never seen a skyscraper, nor any other building built of brick or concrete. He had never seen a paved street, nor a passenger elevator, nor a drawbridge. He had never attended a vaudeville show, nor eaten in a restaurant where there was a cabaret.

But don't waste your sympathy on this young man. Rather is he to be congratulated. His delight will be greater than any we can know. His interest in life itself will be enhanced beyond what we can hope to reach. To contemplate the things still in store for him, and to recall how few things are in store for the rest of us—well, the young fellow has a tremendous advantage over the fellow who has been brought up in the city.

It is the memory of our first experience that counts, anyway. Our first circus, our first love affair, our first view of Niagara Falls—or New York, or anything else strange and startling, it is the first experience that is remembered longest and with greatest pleasure.

We who have grown up and developed in this country, accustomed to these things that are now giving so much interest to the Alaskan boy, can't appreciate what it must mean to behold them for the first time. It must be enchanting, to say the least. — [Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

HOW CATLETT RUNS THE SHOW.

While dancing three steps to the right, and then stopping to write an epigram, and then dancing three steps to the left, pausing only to tell the scene painter that: "My God! This is the first time I ever knew that Wall street, Forty-second street and Broadway all meet!" Catlett nevertheless had a moment to tell how it feels to be an honest-to-goodness stage director. That's how he came to say that every actor always wishes, during rehearsals, he could play every role.

But alas, now the chance is his, Catlett confesses drolly that some of the experiences of a stage director are enough to make you go home and throw your grandmother into the fire.

"For instance, the director who is also the star certainly has no chance to become a comedy cameo. He discovers on the last day that he knows how everybody looks except himself.

"The most trouble the director experiences, of course, is in licking the manuscript into shape, because when rehearsals begin new ideas constantly develop. Whole scenes have to be discarded, whole dialogues rewritten. For instance, the first scene of 'Look Pleasant' was laid on the roof of a photograph gallery; then we discovered that this wasn't feasible, and rewrote the whole scene so as to place it inside the gallery. Then, Johnny Jones, we'll say, has a perfectly killing song about types in a photograph gallery. But along comes Totty Two-Shoes without any song at all, and as Totty simply must have a song to go with her red hair, the number is given to her and a monologue is handed over to the highly aggrieved Johnny Jones. Then we must get laughs from everywhere and anywhere. Why, sometimes in building up a scene I've got my best laugh from a stage hand.

"Then there is always a boneheaded chorus girl who balls up the dancing. And she's always the prettiest one and you can't discharge her. But at that, you may inform the public that 'Look Pleasant' has a hand-picked girl chorus with every member inside the draft age!"

The company has rehearsed all day and all night until 5 o'clock in the morning, and is back at the theater at 10:30 o'clock. After a gulp of good, hot coffee, Mr. Catlett discards the traditional pre-premiere pessimism and is ready to make a joke once more. "All I can say is"—he points to novel style of back drop which will be used in the second act—"all I can say is they've improved the Jersey shore a lot in the last five weeks."

Just then Harry James started the orchestra off on Harry Piani's music. And that music simply won't let your feet behave. If it doesn't stir your blood as nothing has since the fascinating rhythm of "So Long, Letty," I'll eat my hat. Not that it is like the "So Long, Letty" music. It is mostly sycopation, but there is a vibrant, martial quality to it, too, in addition to its thrilling tunefulness. Harry James is having his troubles with that music, for it is as tricky as the deuce. He is directing with tears in his eyes and great oaths in his soul, and as he calls down one of the chorus girls another one in knickerbockers turns to her:

"Why, yes, dearie, sure—it's sang just the way it's spoke!"

Walter Morosco, forgetting at moments that he's a regular grown-up manager who shaves, kids around with the actors; Marion Van Tyne is trying to get a wink of a nap on top of a big box; Dave Butler is limbering up his legs for a dance, and Frank Darien is limbering up his upper notes for his rube song—you know, Frank was the professional rube of the old Morosco stock company; Lela Bliss practices her mental science and says she isn't a bit tired, dearie, not a bit, and then promptly falls sweetly asleep on the nice, warm shoulder of Juliette Day; Jack Pollard dances solemnly in a corner by himself, and Virginia Foltz warbles a suffragette song. By the by, a suffragette these days is a bit of an anachronism, isn't she?

Oh, yes, Mr. Catlett has "discovered" an embryo musical comedy star; in fact, two of them. One is James Gleason, who hasn't played in musical comedy since the "Quaker Girl," and the other is Juliette Day, both of whom Catlett declares will be famous some day.

"I've put Jimmy Gleason through all the paces," said Catlett, "made him do everything low comedy except a Keystone pie; and as for Juliette Day, you'd think to see her dance that experience with the Ben Greet Players was the one thing essential to the training of a musical comedy queen."

Miss Harriman "Flops" Eggs.

An American soldier now in France writes to a friend in New York as follows:

"The Y.M.C.A. here is a great institution. We are able to get ice cream, regular American style food, see American newspapers and magazines and be waited on by Mrs. Vincent Astor and Miss Ethel Harriman, if one is lucky. The latter fried some eggs for me one night, and a guy in one of Joe's Third-avenue restaurants couldn't have flopped them over with greater cleverness than she did. Her mother brought that girl up right, I'll say.

"I forgot to say that we can get water here also. Water elsewhere is regarded as the stuff to bathe in (about yearly, I'd say) and put under bridges. Vin blanc and vin rouge and other "vins" of different color are the only liquids besides beer and cordials and aperitifs and stuff like that that seem to exist under Franch auspices."—[Washington Times.

The Newest
Bracelet Watches

It is but logical that the women of the Southwest should look to Feagans & Co. for the newest models in bracelet watches.

This store was among the first in this country to sense the ultimate standard adoption of the wrist watch. Favorable relations were thereby early established with those leading manufacturers who have been responsible for the bringing of the wrist watch to its present remarkable stage of perfection of time keeping accuracy and refinement.

These early established connections enable Feagans & Co. today to show not only the largest selection of wrist watches in Los Angeles, but the very newest models produced.

Prices start at $15.00 for a seven jewel "Elgin" model in twenty-year gold filled case, with bracelet—and $23.00 for a Geneva model also in gold filled case, and $40.00 for a beautiful small-size "Elgin" octagon model in 14-karat solid gold case, with ribbon bracelet—and on up to $175.00 for the extremely small models, fitted with the finest grade movements made in Europe and America and the gem set models up to as high as $1500.00.

New Seth Thomas clocks just here direct from the Seth Thomas factory. Small size $4.50 to $10.00—Larger ones—that strike—from $11.50 to $45.00.

Warm Weather Models

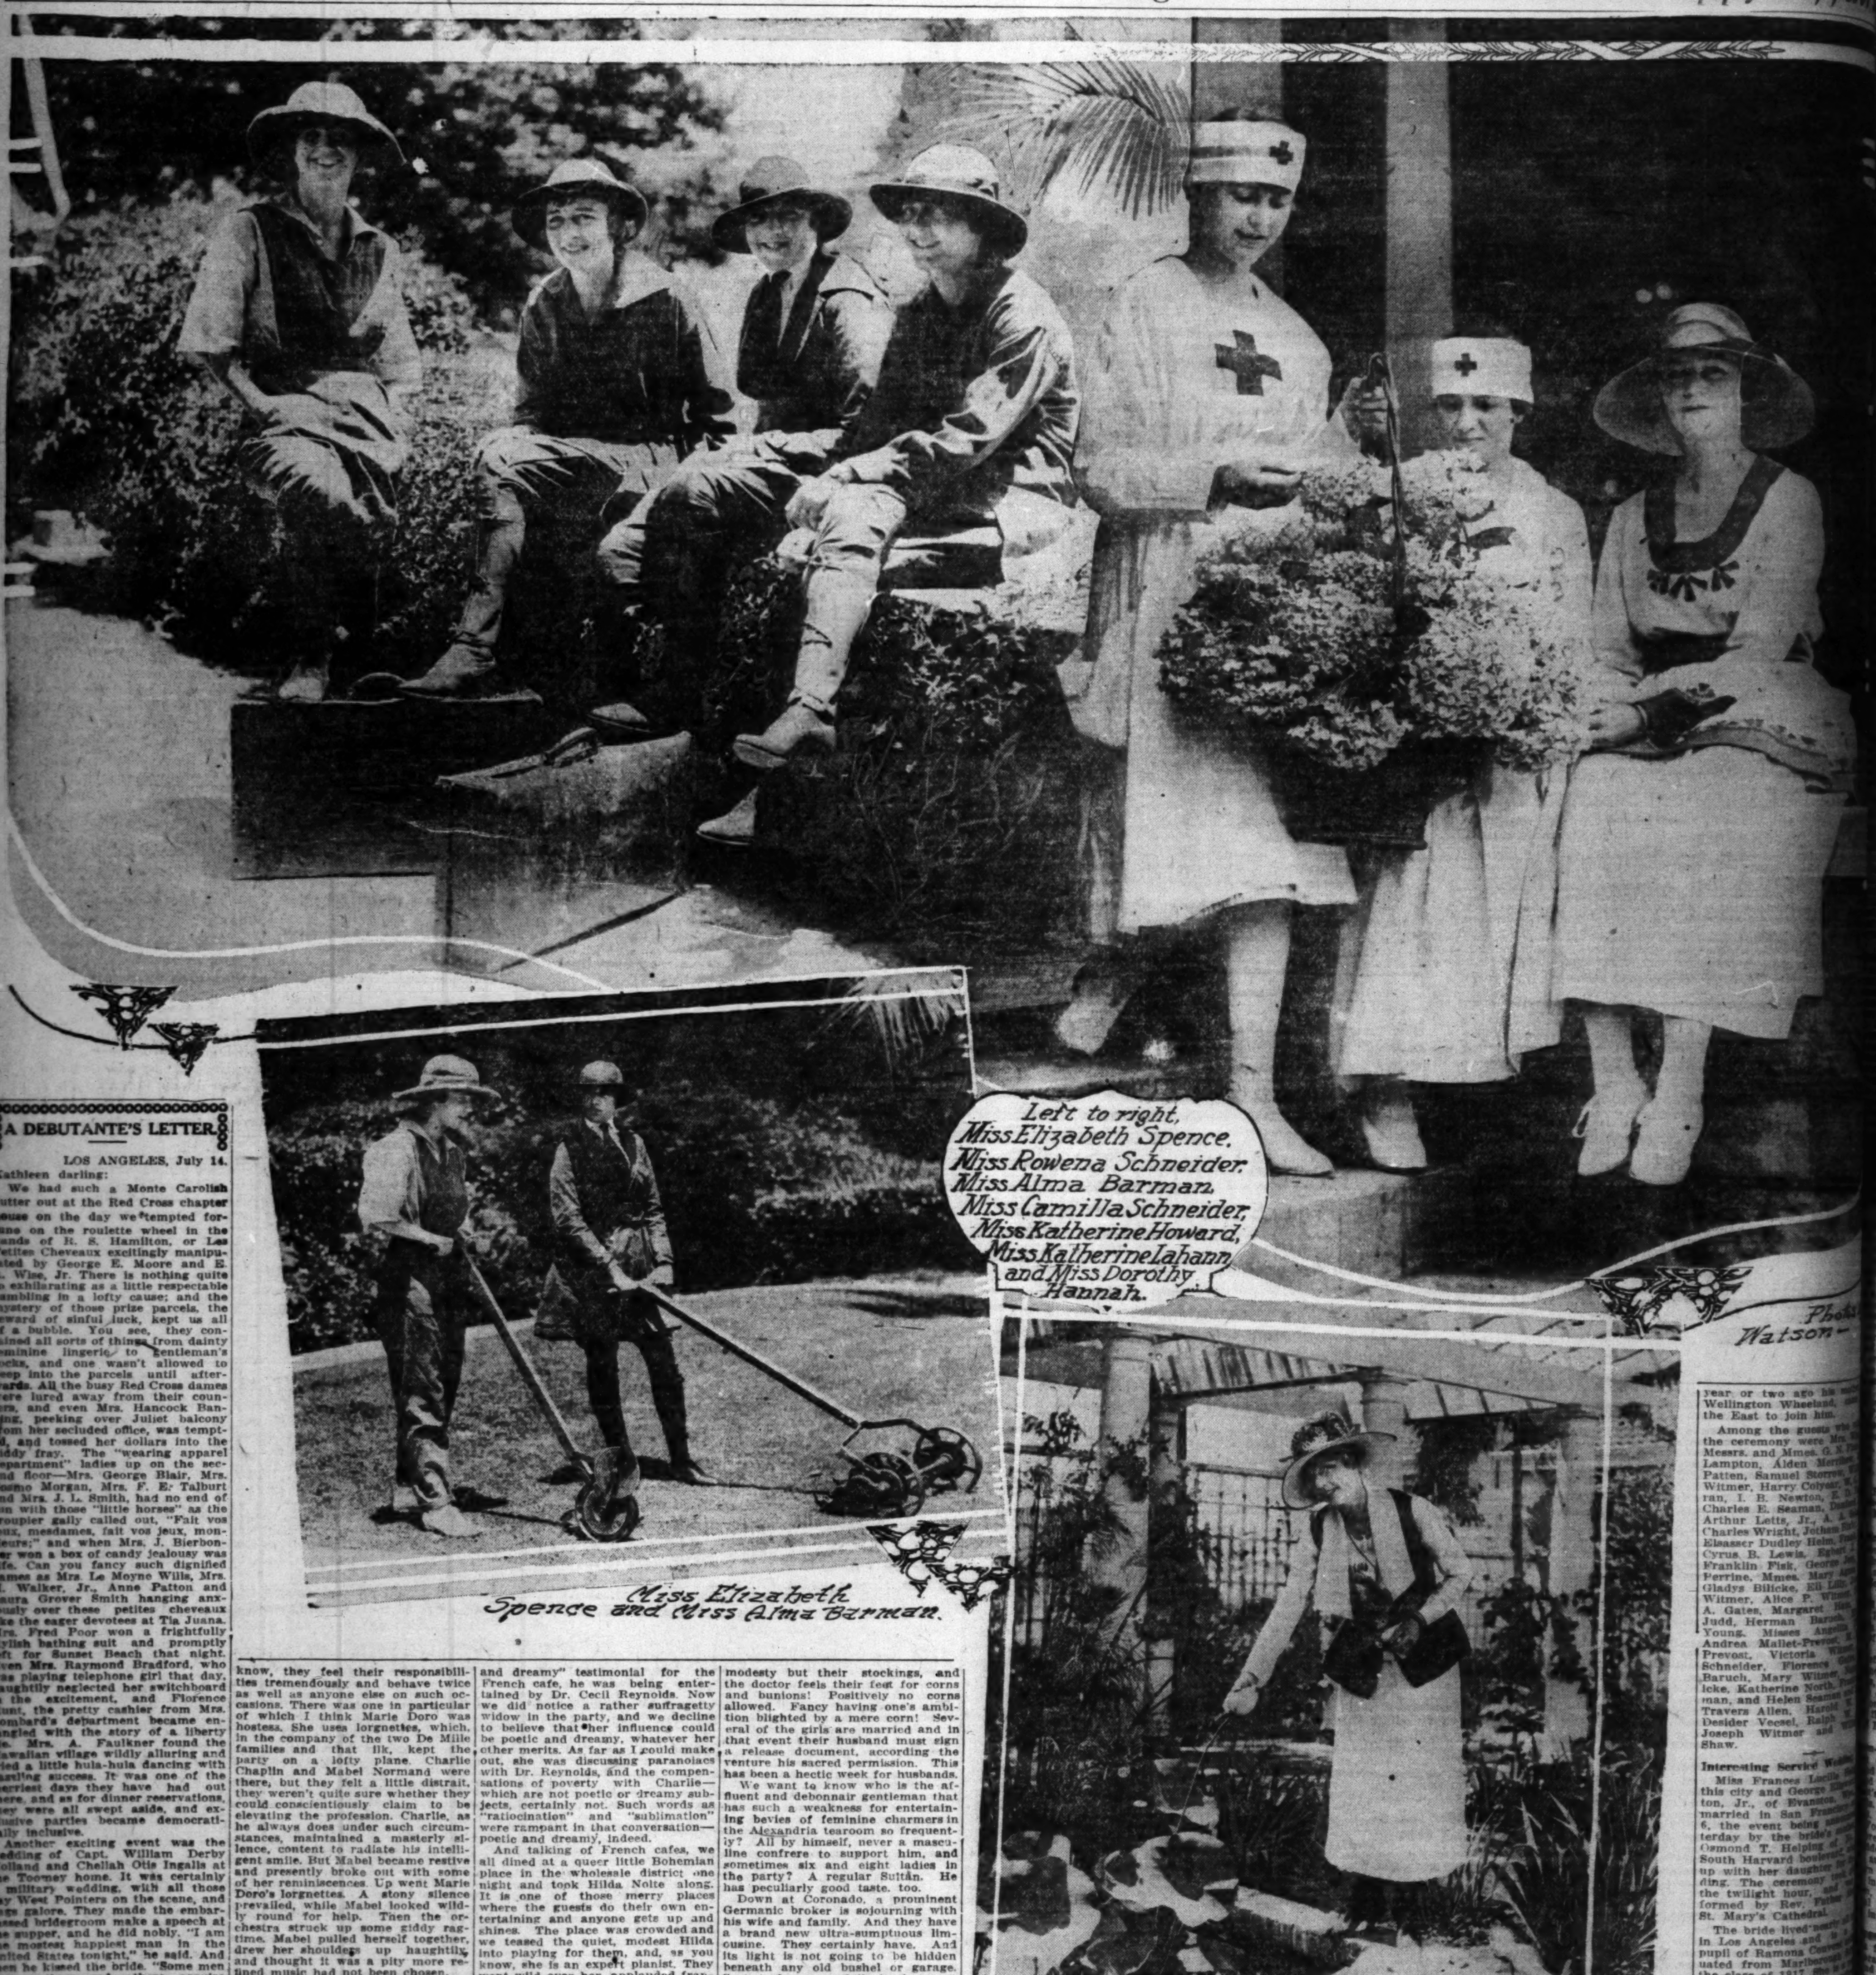
The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—A Hundred or More Happy Affai



Left to right, Miss Elizabeth Spence, Miss Rowena Schneider, Miss Alma Barman, Miss Camilla Schneider, Miss Katherine Howard, Miss Katherine Lahann and Miss Dorothy Hannah.

Miss Elizabeth Spence and Miss Alma Barman.

Mrs. George Derby Holland.

In society's realms.

Misses Spence, Barman and Rowena and Camilla Schneider are all members of the Marlborough School contingent that went to the "Eddie" Maier ranch last week to pick fruit. Misses Howard, Lahann and Hannah are active Red Cross workers. Mrs. Holland was Miss Chellah Ingels until her wedding last week. Photos by George Watson, The Times staff photographer.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, July 14.

Kathleen darling:

We had such a Monte Carolish flutter out at the Red Cross chapter house on the day we tempted fortune on the roulette wheel in the hands of R. S. Hamilton, or Les Petites Cheveaux excitingly manipulated by George E. Moore and E. A. Wise, Jr. There is nothing quite so exhilarating as a little respectable gambling in a lofty cause; and the mystery of those prize parcels, the reward of sinful luck, kept us all of a bubble. You see, they contained all sorts of things from dainty feminine lingerie to gentleman's socks, and one wasn't allowed to peep into the parcels until afterwards. All the busy Red Cross dames were lured away from their counters, and even Mrs. Hancock Banning, peeking over Juliet balcony from her secluded office, was tempted, and tossed her dollars into the giddy fray. The "wearing apparel department" ladies up on the second floor—Mrs. George Blair, Mrs. Cosmo Morgan, Mrs. F. E. Talburt and Mrs. J. L. Smith, had no end of fun with those "little horses" as the croupier gaily called out, "Fait vos jeux, mesdames, fait vos jeux, monsieurs;" and when Mrs. J. Bierbonner won a box of candy jealousy was rife. Can you fancy such dignified dames as Mrs. Le Moyne Wills, Mrs. H. Walker, Jr., Anne Patton and Laura Grover Smith hanging anxiously over these petites cheveaux like the eager devotees at Tia Juana. Mrs. Fred Poor won a frightfully stylish bathing suit and promptly left for Sunset Beach that night. Even Mrs. Raymond Bradford, who was playing telephone girl that day, naughtily neglected her switchboard in the excitement, and Florence Hunt, the pretty cashier from Mrs. Lombard's department became entangled with the story of a liberty pie. Mrs. A. Faulkner found the Hawaiian village wildly alluring and tried a little hula-hula dancing with dazzling success. It was one of the merriest days they have had out there, and as for dinner reservations, they were all swept aside, and exclusive parties became democratically inclusive.

Another exciting event was the wedding of Capt. William Derby Holland and Chellah Otis Ingalls at the Toomey home. It was certainly a military wedding, with all those gay West Pointers on the scene, and flags galore. They made the embarrassed bridegroom make a speech at the supper, and he did nobly. "I am the mostest happiest man in the United States tonight," he said. And then he kissed the bride. "Some men have mothers, and others acquire mothers—I mean, I am getting the most wonderful mother in the world tonight," he said later, and Mrs. Ingalls beamed. Then he kissed the bride again. "I can't tell you how glad I am to be with you tonight," he added politely. And then kissed the bride again. The bridesmaids were most piquant young ladies, especially Helena Murphy, with whom Merrick Reynolds danced all the evening. She is a cutey brunette with mischief in her eyes. But none of them surpassed the charms of the pretty Dresden china bride. Mrs. Baker P. Lee, wife of the officiating pastor, certainly added eclat in a pearl-encrusted gown of Egyptian design which Theda Bara might have envied. Mrs. Toomey, too, was resplendent in a diamond dog collar and necklace and a pink satin gown, all of which she carried well. The bride cut the cake with hubby's sword.

Ever been to a moving picture dinner party with the high-brow members of the profession? You know, they feel their responsibilities tremendously and behave twice as well as anyone else on such occasions. There was one in particular of which I think Marie Doro was hostess. She uses lorgnettes, which, in the company of the two De Mille families and that ilk, kept the party on a lofty plane. Charlie Chaplin and Mabel Normand were there, but they felt a little distrait, they weren't quite sure whether they could conscientiously claim to be elevating the profession. Charlie, as he always does under such circumstances, maintained a masterly silence, content to radiate his intelligent smile. But Mabel became restive and presently broke out with some of her reminiscences. Up went Marie Doro's lorgnettes. A stony silence prevailed, while Mabel looked wildly round for help. Then the orchestra struck up some giddy ragtime. Mabel pulled herself together, drew her shoulders up haughtily, and thought it was a pity more refined music had not been chosen.

Charlie, by the way, loves to tell of his crushing at the hands of Paderewski. The far-famed pianist had visited his studio out here and taken a polite and intelligent interest in Charlie's pie-throwing technique. But that was long ago. They met again in New York, and Charlie, who confesses his discomfiture in the presence of sanctified greatness, braced himself for the encounter. But there was no "Hello, Paddy old man." "Good old Charlie." No, the pianist bowed stiffly, gravely, and Charlie was left with the awful responsibility of saying something. "Been playing lately?" he at last ventured with his best smile. And Paderewski drew himself up, raised his eyes mournfully, and slowly answered. "No, I shall never play again. Never. I have dedicated my life to Poland." Which of course is not a good opening for a light conversation, and, according to Charlie's account, he beat an ignoble retreat.

Which reminds me, the night Charlie Chaplin signed that "poetic and dreamy" testimonial for the French cafe, he was being entertained by Dr. Cecil Reynolds. Now we did notice a rather suffragetty widow in the party, and we decline to believe that her influence could be poetic and dreamy, whatever her other merits. As far as I could make out, she was discussing paranoiacs with Dr. Reynolds, and the compensations of poverty with Charlie—which are not poetic or dreamy subjects, certainly not. Such words as "ratiocination" and "sublimation" were rampant in that conversation—poetic and dreamy, indeed.

And talking of French cafes, we all dined at a queer little Bohemian place in the wholesale district one night and took Hilda Nolte along. It is one of those merry places where the guests do their own entertaining and anyone gets up and shines. The place was crowded and we teased the quiet, modest Hilda into playing for them, and, as you know, she is an expert pianist. They went wild over her, applauded frantically and made her play again and again. Wasn't it wonderful to find such an appreciative audience in a little cheap cafe? Our table just basked in reflected glory. Hilda, you know, had "four years in Germany," too—and only got out nine months ago. If only she were not so quiet and retiring, what stories she could tell us!

So many of the girls who have enlisted for Red Cross service abroad and hold their certificates, have been receiving exciting orders from Washington this week anent passports, photographs, inoculation, character letters, medical examinations, etc. Clergymen, judges, doctors and club presidents have been besieged for those character letters—one never quite appreciates how good, how distinguished, how beloved one is until they solicit character letters to enable one to leave the town.

The girls say the medical examination is merciless. They are permitted nothing to shroud their modesty but their stockings, and the doctor feels their feet for corns and bunions! Positively no corns allowed. Fancy having one's ambition blighted by a mere corn! Several of the girls are married and in that event their husband must sign a release document, according the venture his sacred permission. This has been a hectic week for husbands.

We want to know who is the affluent and debonnair gentleman that has such a weakness for entertaining bevies of feminine charmers in the Alexandria tearoom so frequently? All by himself, never a masculine confrere to support him, and sometimes six and eight ladies in the party? A regular Sultan. He has peculiarly good taste, too.

Down at Coronado, a prominent Germanic broker is sojourning with his wife and family. And they have a brand new ultra-sumptuous limousine. They certainly have. And its light is not going to be hidden beneath any old bushel or garage. So it is drawn up daily in the court yard of the hotel and the Germanic offspring play therein while momma and poppa sit affably upon the porch. When the naval band performs on the lawn, momma and poppa and all the little kinders go and sit in that limousine, just like a box at the opera, that all may see and admire. It is quite touching. The chauffeur, in a uniform de luxe lends due distinction to the occasion. It is a tremendous possession to have to live up to. Just at present it dominates their gentle Teutonic lives.

And, by the way, among the summer's great hits is that made by Florence Kays at Coronado, where she is ensconced with mother and sister for a month. Oh, the captains fluttering around at the balls and the bowling parties! And fancy being called downstairs by phone for "just one more dance" after a girl has discreetly gone up to her room with mother at 1 a.m.!

So long, darling.

Your irrepressible

BETTY.

That is what is ahead of us.

Now, instead of taking a vacation in the goods and fashion centers I am going to help my patrons to save money.

Until the oening of the Fall season—and the time is short, I will make Ladies' made-to-measure suits for

$40 and Up

And will give the best and biggest bargain to be found in Los Angeles, and guarantee the advance Fall fashions.

Take early advantage of this wonderful opportunity!

Tustin.

THE street fair and dance recently given by the Knights of Pythias for the Tustin branch of the Red Cross Society was the first of twelve entertainments planned by the local Red Cross Society to be given monthly during the year. The central block of Main street was brilliantly decorated with twinkling lights, while waving flags and red, white and blue bunting formed a canopy for a dancing floor beneath. The square was crowded with people from Tustin and others from every point in Orange county. A pike on the east end of the square boasted many tents housing attractive wares that were eagerly bought by generous patrons. The Elks' Band of Santa Ana rendered patriotic music and the Past Grand Chancellor, Robert G. Loucks, attorney from Los Angeles, gave an inspiring address. Later dancing waxed merrily, with the result that $250 from that source was added to the Red Cross fund. The auction of "Stella," a roly-poly pig, was opened with a bid of $10, the successful bidder redonating "Stella." The bidding was resumed and "she" was finally knocked down to Charles Bowton at $36, the little porker bringing the total sum of $46. "The country store" on the pike sold $90 worth of groceries. Many soldiers of Tustin families were present at the benefit, and were the guests of the entertainment committee.

The King's Heralds, a juvenile missionary society of the First Methodist Church of Santa Ana, were the guests on a recent Wednesday afternoon of their leader, Miss Alice Saunby, at her attractive country home near Tustin. The young people were brought by automobile to their destination and were most interestingly entertained with out-of-door games under the lovely shade trees. The letter also pays high compliment to the American forces and their equipment, and to their achievements on the battle line. It also describes enthusiastically the scenic beauties of the country, the quaint villages and the heroic endeavors of the French women. Capt. Chaffee wrote vividly of an interesting visit to the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he was a guest at luncheon, and where he found old classmates of his among the doctors. EDWIN STEVENS ON PERSONAL FRIENDSHI

Edwin Stevens

To appear at Orpheum wi Marshall in "Birthdays o ver."

"I LOVE the stage and all it stands for," said Edwin Stevens. "In the beginning of my career I was a mining engineer. Things went wrong. I knew I had a big baritone voice and so I drifted onto the stage, and here I am. And yet, if I had to do it over I would not do it. Why? Because the end is bad.

"We may live too long and not know it. Take the leading man when the gray begins to streak about his temples, when his waist line becomes convex instead of concave. Sad? Can there be anything more tragical?

"I do not feel this way because the stage does not pay, nor because we are not respected, for we are when we deserve to be, but because it is a hard thing for an actor to put by anything. We have some good friends, and if we are decent chaps we meet decent fellows. Sometimes we are asked to houses just to recite and sing, it is true, but no artist objects to entertaining if he is not asked simply as an entertainer. I enjoy doing all I can for my friends from a song or a recitation to doing card tricks or hypnotizing. But when Mrs. Moneybags asks Mr. Stevens to appear at a reception say, and do a certain stunt for which he is to be paid a certain sum of money, Mr. Stevens always declines.

"I have friends in almost every city. I know a lot of people who like to take me into their homes, and that is the true test of your valuation by your friends. When I can sit down in a man's house I feel that the fact of my being an actor has nothing to do with my being there. I must be there because he likes Stevens, the man, and if he likes Stevens, the actor, so much the better.

"And right here let me speak about thanking the actor. When you are pleased, let the actor know it. It is all he gets in the way of knowing whether he is a success or a failure. You say 'Thank you' for the smallest attention anyone pays you out of the theater; why not say 'Thank you' by a handclap to the man or woman who entertain

"I have had a very succes reer, but I would not go thr again if I knew as much abo gan as I do now. I would my retorts and assays and g

New Wine for Old.

THEATER OF IDEAS IS CONTEMPORARY TREN

BY TRUMAN B. HANDY.

"AUDIENCE psychology," said a theatrical producer to me recently, "is the bugbear of our profession. Styles change as rapidly as immortal woman transmutes her beauty and we never know what is coming next. It's a weighty problem."

When my friend, the manager, spoke he voiced the sentiment of everyone who has ever tried to please General Public. Any purveyor of fads has had to deal with the problem, and many of them have never been able to even attempt to arrive at a solution. One can't please all of the people some of the time, any of the people all of the time, nor some of the populace any of the time. We must have our fads. They are our pet poodles which we cherish as dearly as our children. And they never last very long.

Fortunately for humanity, fads and styles are constantly changing. Like the wave-washed coast, they can never be depended upon for immutability, but, on the contrary, the change is generally for the better. At least such has been the case with the theater—which is only a spasm, after all.

It used to be, for instance, that comedy, and particularly such of the kick-and-bite variety as was purveyed by De Wolf Hopper, Jimmie Powers, Jefferson de Angelis and the never-to-be-unpressagented Eddie Foy, relied solely upon slapsticks and horse play for a hearing. Without the bursting of an inflated bladder over the head of one of the characters or the tripping down of another as he walked across the stage, life was not worth the effort in the olden days.

But now our stage comedy is solely of situation, of the risque or the verbally ridiculous. Gone with the epoch of powdered wigs, musical comedy drinking songs and the Gloradora girls is the day of the comique, whose only claim to merit lay in the power to give a donkey-like wiggle to his ears. And likewise there have passed into oblivion the incongruous and misshapen legs that once passed for funny, the sneeze that made De Wolf Hopper famous, and the beery nose turned roseate by a tiny crimson electric globe illuminated at intervals. For the bridge of that self-same nose has spanned a score or so of years—years which have borne witness to the naissance of a new and more analytical cast of public mind, and which have seen the need of more complex, less boisterous happenings en scene to produce desired risibilities and the consequential box-office returns.

Francis Wilson's liaison with an armored mummy in "Erminie;" Frank Daniels's gyratory eyebrows in "The Wizard of the Nile;" the horse play of De Wolf Hopper in "Panjandrum" and "El Capitan" and "Wang," and the stationary propensities of the Powers's right leg are gone forever. And so are the bats, the intrepid French the Bowery bruisers that active work as society buil ancient movies. Once in a even today, one manages by to skip into a slapstick, but get a laugh.

For dramatic mise en the concomitants of comed changed. The trick of the dian's headlong entrance center with an aftermath bottle or two, or the grand appearance of a tramp on in the basket of a balloon two husky negroes while the stands at salute, are consi cient history and treated The diabolic hocus-pocus sticks has heard its swan at the time when Barn Barnum.

And we laugh no more slapsticks of the movies without situation today is not even considered fun grand finale slide of the Kops as they land at the no longer tickles our ribs consider it funny when mother-in-law, who, by generally resembles the Hans Christian Andersen gets a swat on the head masher wielded by her in-law, although we sympathize with him her at her face value. auto-suggestion make nowadays that the sight lous fatty being wooed a skinny pygmy is comique who tweaks his spurts water out of his tooth-spitting process of ized villain nor the sight gamed heroine no more sides to split. "Laughi "Caught in a Cabaret," romances of screen Tillie forced naivete of comedy no longer attract, becau outgrown our theatrical with its penchant for larity and roister-doister.

Today writers of come ginning to look to the for their inspiration. wood's name written spells Rabelais. He is Moliere turned foolish; Cooper Megrue's grists date conceptions of the farceurs. George M. Cohan ica's tough little brother tically the sole inflecter bred-and-bought-in-Ame that has made him rich burn electricity and eat in New York City. Even Jack Lait has allowed sence of Ibsenism to slip then into his genre Gothe Bernard Shaw is reflected out the comedy ventures ick and Fanny Locke one can easily read Heijermann between the what George Broadhurst "plays."

Proving, of course, that really has taken a look ater of ideas, and that the have gone with them.

Keeping Abreast of the Times

The world is strangely forgetful. But it is not so strange, after all, when you pause to consider that there is a continuous effort to find a BETTER way. Old ideas are often cast in new molds, but it is the new mold that gives the idea its modern application.

A good store must be built upon the same principle. It is not enough that we should have served you well yesterday—or a year ago—or twenty years ago. It is what we are ready to do for you TODAY that really counts. We have tried consistently to work with that fact in mind; and a day that does not bring something tangible in the way of progress is counted a day lost.

Peg o' Los Angeles goes buying

Remember, girls, the story of Aladdin and the ring, which, when rubbed, brought him his wishes? Well, I've found something just as effective—it's "Rit." You want your white blouse made pink or blue or any other color? Rub "Rit" and it's done! Just a little cake of colored soap. You obtain best results by making suds of "Rit" in quite warm water, washing your waist in it—then rinsing thoroughly in cold water, and hanging it up to dry! Buy it at any dry goods store, grocery or drug store. "Never say dye, say "Rit."

You may have a cape or a capecoat and be very smart in either.

Miss Hendee designs the most unusual styles in "Kiddie Klothes!" See her beautiful assortment of drapery materials, too. Plain curtains are made up free. Beeman & Hendee, 948 S. Hill.

For the woman who is fitting herself to take the place left by a boy who is "over there," nothing is of more vital interest than a business training. There are many interesting studies that can be taken up at the Willis-Woodbury Business College under the direction of efficient specialists who take a personal interest in each student. Women are especially interested now in book-keeping and calculating. The Burroughs machines are used. This school specializes in the Gregg shorthand system. "Efficiency" is the slogan. Hamburger Bldg., 5th floor.

A brilliant luster ribbon imitating patent leather will be used on hats.

One way of doing your bit at this crisis is by using vacation time to prepare yourself for business. Everything is taught at the Modern Business College. Work is especially planned for the summer student. This school is famous for turning out experts. Zaner, Palmer and Spencer certificates awarded in penmanship. Suite 414 Metropolitan Bldg.

The call of the vacation demands skin protection. I suggest including Fletcher's Bleach Paste in your list of necessities. Used as a powder base it will save your complexion.

Wide silk braid is to be used on skirts.

Afternoon tea and luncheon at the Mary Elizabeth is now the popular diversion of many who appreciate a dainty menu and ideal service. Don't forget the Tea Room at the Top. Brack-Shops.

I've been hearing so much about ostrich plumes lately. It seems they are to be used extensively this fall on millinery. I'm so glad, for nothing enhances the natural grace of miladi like beautiful nodding plumes! The fan of ostrich feathers also lends a quaint charm to the wielder thereof, having a language of its very own. You will enjoy a visit to the Cawston Ostrich Farm in South Pasadena, where over 500 ostriches have their home. They make all the latest conceits in feathers there and display them in their salesrooms on the farm and at 723 South Broadway.

Coats of duvetyn and velours trimmed with Hudson seal will be very smart for autumn.

Extremely narrow or extremely wide ribbon is greatly in demand for sashes, hat bands, etc. The picot-edged ribbon is very good, indeed, and nothing is more lovely than a velvet ribbon sash on a crisp organdie dress! Robinson's have a most beautiful assortment and are now offering very wide taffeta ribbon in blue and pink at $1 a yard! Ribbon that has been selling at $1.75.

Skirts are to be much longer with slenderized contour.

I saw a woman today who had had her hair permanently waved two years ago and there was still wave in the ends! Mrs. Hudgen, that skilled operator, was doing it over for her, and as always giving each curl her personal attention. She has a diploma and has had seven years' experience. Eight curls for $5. Prom. 9. Brack-Shops. 14417.

Oh, Mrs. Jones! how beautiful and clean your piano looks! You say you use the same cleaner on it that you do on the furniture and auto? Bathtub, too? What a convenient thing to have about—something guaranteed not to harm the most highly polished surface—why that's Nonollo. I've been hearing about it. I'll order it from my grocer!

The Inverness coat will soon be often seen on our streets.

Reduce your hot, ungainly flesh and be attractive, comfortable and well! Take it off where you wish without effort, diet or drugs. Pleasant and healthful. Weight Reducing Co., 618 Brockman Bldg.

Nigger brown, battleship gray, navy and mahogany will be good colors for fall.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

THE Woman's City Club, being one of the few clubs open during the summer weeks, is becoming a sort of general club rendezvous, especially as it generously opens its doors to members of all clubs. Women miss their clubs almost as much as men do.

It is over the City Club luncheons that the merits of Dr. Jessie Russell and Mrs. Seward Simons as State Legislature candidates are discussed. It is there that club women cross-examine Mrs. Robert Holmes on her apparently imminent departure for France as a Red Cross nurse, for which she so faithfully served her noviate in the County Hospital—and hear her fearsome tales of physical examinations, character testimonials, passport flutters and impending inoculations. It is there they wonder what is happening to Dr. Lulu Peters in Chicago, who seems to have made herself solid with the press of the Windy City, since it is interviewing her on our California customs and manners—and she is certainly being quite complimentary. And it is there Mrs. M. E. Johnson is given a little absent treatment. It is there that Mrs. Clarence Van Graham's charming dress and hat are viewed, Mrs. Fred Hickok's new gingham dress, which she insists she made herself, and which exactly matches her eyes, is admired. It is there Mrs. Ella B. True is asked what frivolities she has been perpetrating lately. It is there Mrs. J. H. Osgood, who never fails in her attendance and gazes up so earnestly at the speakers from her front seat, is greeted. It is there Mrs. R. L. Cressy's latest tribulations which she always turns into such ebullient jokes, are told. It is there the club women wonder if Mrs. Chester C. Ashley will be the new president of the Big Sister League, and whether she is still cross with a certain other Big Sister, and whether Mrs. Mathew Robertson will influence many changes in Ebell's regime, or whether she, too, will offer up Ebell platform on the altar of announcements ages long, and keep temperamental artistes on the qui vive waiting for their programme.

So, while Mrs. Herbert Cable and her disquisitions on "Making Childhood Safe for Children" is the chief item on the club programme at the Woman's City Club tomorrow, she will not be the only lure. Goodness, there may even be another embarrassing flutter at a preliminary board meeting and another warm passage of words anent the obligations of friendship between two perfectly nice women with hopelessly different opinions. And there is always the chance that Mrs. Gertrude Brennan will arise to pitch a little verbal bomb into the harmonious company. Last week Estelle Lawton Lindsey was in the audience listening to a billboard programme. Billboards! Estelle's whole experience as a Councilwoman was blighted by that fatal word.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Mrs. Ambrose Boyd, who enjoys the dubious pleasure of being press chairman for the Wednesday Morning Club, is having honors thrust upon her. She has now been made field secretary for the National Council of Defense, which means that she will do a great deal of work and receive all the kicks, and be particularly lucky if gratitude nods as it passes by.

But in the meantime she has not been too busy to tell us that the Wednesday Morning Club did its patriotic duty in two ways at Lincoln Park July 4, when the club, under the leadership of the president, Mrs. Charles A. Holland, served a dinner to thirty soldiers, also a number of old veterans and their wives.

The members had provided so very bountifully that there was a great deal of food left, so the general public was given the benefit and the club realized about $10, which was turned over to the American Women's Hospital Association.

Installation of Officers.

Election and installation of officers of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Newby, at which time the following members were elected for the various offices:

Mrs. John N. Holland, No. 1342 Lucille avenue, re-elected president; Mrs. G. A. Waxell, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Bryant, second vice-president; Mrs. Donald Macdonald, third vice-president; Mrs. G. F. Jackman, recording secretary; Mrs. R. D. Newby, corresponding secretary; Mrs. M. I. Clemmer, treasurer; Mrs. R. H. Pettes, federation secretary, Mrs. A. H. Farnsworth, press correspondent.

The auxiliary has enjoyed one of its most prosperous and delightful years under the leadership of Mrs. Holland, having devoted most all their meetings to Red Cross work, also making generous donations to relief for French and Belgium war orphans, and to the American Women's Hospital Fund.

The members will continue to meet during the summer months, devoting their time entirely to the making of garments and knitting for the Red Cross.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. Holland was presented with a cut glass vase.

Goldsmith Recital.

The recital and tea given by the pupils of Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, at her Kingsley-drive residence, was a great success artistically and financially. There were 100 paid admissions and the Red Cross benefited to the extent of $50.

Miss Esta Kite, Mrs. Gertrude Follansbee, Miss Edith Leisk, Miss Lora Clark, Mrs. Oliver Franklin Sherer, Sophie Freed and Gloria Joy distinguished themselves by their interpretations. Miss Ellalie Redin had charge of the musical part of the programme and interpreted selections from Liszt, Schumann and Debussy. Mrs. H. A. Slayden, Mrs. Clarence Van Graham and Mrs. L. C. Kimball presided at the tea and punch tables.

Red Cross Picnic Sale.

John H. Reagan Chapter, U.D.C. will hold a grand picnic sale in Westlake Park next Saturday, from noon until sundown, Mrs. J. E. Hartman, chairman, assisted by a committee composed of Mmes. Alice Lee Fowler, J. Burton Cook, K. Cunningham, Dixie LeGrand, R. J. Barton, Ralph Ingersoll, William J. Sykes, Paul W. Brown, Walter Osterlow, Edith LeGrand, B. A. Davis and the president of the chapter, Mrs. J. M. Black. Mrs. Sloan-Orcutt, Park Commissioners, will assist the chapter.

The members plan to sell home-made cakes, sandwiches, pickles, candy and coffee at various booths in the park, for their Red Cross work. The Fireman's Band has been asked to play from 3 to 4 o'clock.

Mrs. Paul Winthrop Brown gave a delightful five hundred party at her home, No. 3723 South Avenue 31, last Tuesday, for the Woodrow Wilson Bed, maintained by the California United Daughters of the Confederacy.

D.A.R.

The Daughters of the American Revolution will give a reciprocity luncheon in the tearooms on the fifth floor of the Brack Shops, Seventh and Grand avenue, next Wednesday, at 1 o'clock. Miss Irene Pasker of London will speak on "War Conditions." All reservations must be made not later than noon of the day preceding through the reciprocity chairman, Mrs. M. M. Maybury, No. 1315 South Harvard boulevard, telephone 72157.

At Sawtelle.

The president of the Woman's Club, Mrs. H. L. Snyder, has announced her committees and those who are to work with her on the executive board this next year. They are: Programme, Mrs. Thomas Price; music, book and drama, Mrs. E. W. Mecum; entertainment, Mrs. A. J. Stoner; civics, Mrs. C. S. Martin; legislature, Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich; home economics, Mrs. Mary Thode; door, Mrs. George Wiseman; hospitality, Mrs. Perry Dunbar; house, Mrs. C. X. Yeager; flower, Mrs. G. C. Stubbelfield; visiting, Mrs. Edward Bond; philanthropic, Mrs. G. S. Yant; auditing, Mrs. L. P. Waterman.

Hollywood Woman's Club.

The newly-elected officers and directors of the Woman's Club of Hollywood for 1918-19 are as follows:

President, Miss Jessica Lawerence; first vice-president, Mrs. Cecil Frankel; second vice-president, Mrs. Maud Davis Baker; recording secretary, Mrs. Orville Routt; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. H. Connard; treasurer, Mrs. Charles R. Van Tilburgh.

Board of directors, Mrs. A. R. Gates, Mrs. F. B. Lewis, Mrs. W. E. Bellknap, Mrs. R. R. Musser, Mrs. Frederick Morgan Steele.

The board announces the appointment of the following department chairmen: Art, Mrs. Gavin Witherspoon; drama, Mrs. Gustave G. Detzer; home economics, Mrs. L. A. Beebe; literature, Mrs. Eleanor Brodie Jones; music, Mrs. Bernard Brown; public affairs, Mrs. E. B. Weirick; social service, Mrs. E. B. Weirick; child welfare, Dr. Mary Hess Brown, Americanization and citizenship, Mrs. Francis A. Blackburn.

Study classes will be arranged and announced later.

The president announces the following chairmen of standing committees: Auditing, Mrs. Frederick A. Brown; decorating, Mrs. Charles T. Hovey; door, Mrs. Arthur E. Lockman; entertainment, Mrs. P. M. Young; finance, Mrs. Frederick Morgan Steele; hospitality, Mrs. A. R. Gates; house, Mrs. R. Musser; junior auxiliary, Mrs. Eugene M. Tilden; legislative and council, Mrs. A. L. Federation secretary, Mrs. J. F. Harington.

While the regular meetings of the Red Cross Auxiliary have been discontinued until the 22nd inst., the clubhouse will be open Mondays for the junior section, on Tuesdays for French, Belgian and Italian relief and on Thursdays for home relief.

Savant Speaks.

A group of State and welfare workers greeted Dr. George L. Wallace at the dinner given in his honor by the board of trustees of the Pacific Colony at the Friday Morning Club, last Tuesday evening. Dr. Wallace comes to California as an advisory expert of the Pacific Colony, which plans a State home for the feeble-minded and epileptics to be located in Southern California.

The need for further State accommodation for these unfortunate people has been agitating the public mind for the last six or seven years. It is estimated by workers that approximately 1500 in Los Angeles county alone should be cared for in such an institution.

Following a greeting by Mrs. A. S. Lobingier, president of the Friday Morning Club, a series of three minute talks dealing with the custodial and educational problems connected with feeble-mindedness, and the necessary prophylactic work involved, were given by Mrs. Carrie P. Bryant, Mrs. Dane Coolidge, of Berkeley; Mrs. W. S. James, Orfa F. Shontz, Mrs. Weyman, Dr. E. C. Moore, Fred C. Nelles, Dr. A. B. Sutherland, Mrs. Seward A. Simons, Mr. Chester C. Ashley and Senator Newton W. Thompson.

At 8 o'clock Dr. Wallace gave a lecture in the club auditorium, his subject being "Is There a Field of Usefulness for the Feeble-minded Child?" He illustrated his discourse with stereopticon views of the Wrentham State School, at Wrentham, Mass., of which he is superintendent. Groups of happy-faced children were depicted, their activities including the erection of institutional buildings, painting, carpentering, rug-making, laundry work, etc., while the recreation and sports indulged in are many and varied. A Red Cross surgical dressing department at Wrentham School makes more than 1000 dressings a week, and has made a record for accuracy and speed in the making.

A telegram of welcome to California was sent Dr. Wallace by Gov. Stephens. The board of trustees of the Pacific Colony includes Mrs. J. Powers Flint, Los Angeles; Newton W. Thompson of Alhambra, and Mrs. Dane Coolidge of Berkeley.

ACTOR JOHN DREW AS GRANDFATHER.

John Drew paused a moment on the sunlit threshold of the Hotel Algonquin the other morning, says the New York Sun, and, after buttoning just one button of his pin striped coat to fasten the garment a bit more snugly around thirty-two inches of waist line, he gave a tap to the top of his new straw hat (the hatband discreetly gay in the Racquet Club colors) with a gloved finger tip, thrust his morning cane under his arm smartly, and stepped forth with a new light in his eye to meet the air.

"Morning, gran'pa," said Harvey, the Algonquin's magnificent doorman, Harvey's uniformed figure bowing eight inches lower than ever before. "May I ask, suh, how your grandson, Mr. John Drew Devereaux, is progressing this morning?"

"Harmoniously, my good man," replied Grandpa John Drew. "My grandson, I should add, Harvey, has been progressing since his birth, just after midnight, from a clear, pure tenor to a high baritone, with a marked tendency, as dawn approached, toward more vibrant notes in the upper bass register."

ALREADY AN OPERA STAR.

"No doubt, Mr. Drew," commented Harvey, who is a privileged personage, "your grandson, Mr. John Drew Devereaux, will follow the family traditions and take up the stage as a profession, perhaps arriving in time to the heights of becoming a great operatic singer."

"Arriving, say you, Harvey?" cried Mr. Drew, a slight note of well-bred sarcasm in his tones. "Arriving! Great heavens, my good man, he's there now. He's there!"

Thereupon Grandpa John Drew, restraining a tendency to skip and run, walked snappily to the Racquet Club in Forty-third street.

Once inside he placed the name of his newest and only grandson, Mr. John Drew Devereaux, on the waiting list of the Racquet Club and then got in touch with President Hadley of Yale on the long-distance telephone. Grandfather Drew was on the point of matriculating Mr. John Drew Devereaux's in the class of '40 when it flashed upon him that perhaps Mr. John Drew Devereaux's mother, who was Miss Louise Drew, but for a year has been Mrs. Jack Devereaux, might also have some idea of her own as to the college her son is to adorn.

LOOKING AHEAD A LITTLE.

Also Grandfather Drew had a vague idea that likely as not Mr. John Drew Devereaux's father, who was Jack Devereaux, actor, but now is Lieut. John Devereaux, U.S.A., since obtaining a commission at Plattsburg the day before he married Miss Drew last summer, might want to offer a suggestion, so he canceled his long distance call and prepared the following notice for the next edition of Who's Who:

"John Drew Devereaux, A. B., Yale, '40; A. M., Oxford, 1941; honorary LL.D., Harvard, Cambridge, Yale, Trinity, American University of Berlin, American University of Vienna, United States College of Constantinople; president of the Players' Club, 1949-90; Shepherd of the Lambs, 1941-1994; president Yale Club of New York, 1938-1948."

Casus Belli.

"That's ma's war bonnet."

"There's nothing suggestive of war about it."

"There isn't, eh? You should have seen the war pa started when he got the bill for it."—[Detroit Free Press.

Miss Orfa Jean Shontz,

Who has just announced her candidacy for the Superior Court bench. She has been referee of the Juvenile Court since 1915, has heard 5003 cases, and is yet to have one judgment reversed, it is said.

ASPIRES TO BE OUR FIRST WOMAN JUDGE.

CANDIDATE HAS BEEN REFEREE OF GIRLS' JUVENILE COURT FOR THREE YEARS.

By Alma Whitaker.

Feminine pioneering in the realms sacred to masculinity teems with adventure, reeks of daring, and lays one open to a fearful dissection and public analysis. Hence the announced candidacy of Miss Orfa Jean Shontz for the Superior Court bench has created no end of a sensation, not only in local judicial circles, where her masculine confreres see their sacred citadel under attack, but among the women, who are enthralled by her courage.

It has been quite obvious that once women were eligible to election to the judiciary, and had established themselves as satisfactory exponents of the law, there were going to be women judges. But there haven't been any yet and if Orfa Jean Shontz is elected she will be the first woman judge in the United States. Of course, all her candidacy really means, is that she will have the name as well as the game, for since 1915 she has actually been the judge of the girls' juvenile court, under the title of "referee," has heard 5003 cases and never had one judgment reversed, it is said. It is a proud record, which few male judges could excel; in fact, strictly entre nous, I have looked up the records of our male judges, and precious few of them there are, who have not struck innumerable legal snags and had their judgments reversed by higher courts.

Naturally the men, while politely acknowledging her indisputable attainments, lack enthusiasm for her cause. Those with whom she has had direct association are, however, valiantly supporting her, as Judge Sidney N. Reeve, who appointed her referee, after competitive examinations, in the girls' juvenile court, and Judge James C. Rives, with whom she was associated for two years in the Probate Court.

But there are others. The pet argument seems to be that women are temperamentally unfitted to be judges, and they shudder to think of some disputive members of their sex suffering an interpretation of the law in their case at the hands of—a woman! But then women are temperamentally unfitted to be so many things, don't you know—mothers, teachers, cooks and wives—and lots of men are temperamentally unfitted to be fathers, husbands, officers, or cattle ranchers, for instance, but we don't hold it irrevocably against them.

Most men, especially in this particular case of Miss Shontz's candidacy, are reluctantly prepared to admit there may be "the exceptional woman." Well, we women consider Orfa Jean Shontz is the exceptional woman. Orfa Jean Shontz teems with calm and measured common sense, the most valuable attribute in the world. I have watched justice dispensed with sweet mercy in her courts, where constructive help takes precedence of punishment. I have seen hopeless human tangles neatly unravelled and courageous serenity restored in their place. Miss Shontz has an essentially tidy, orderly mind, and essentially well-balanced brain, and has never been known to be guilty of snap judgments or sentimental bias. That's why she figures so eminently in all the women's organizations, as president of the Professional Women's Club, as State chairman of legislation for the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations; as member of the Federation Legislative Council; and as national president of the Phi Delta Delta Legal Sorority. She is also on the Legal Ethics Committee of the Los Angeles Bar Association and a number of other legal organizations.

SOME UNIQUE TOWNS.

Kelberk, near Cracow, is a town which is located underground and is cut entirely from rock salt. There are 3000 inhabitants, all workers in the salt mines, and all the houses and streets are of the purest white.

There is probably in all the world only one town built of glass, and that is to be found near Yellowstone Park, in the United States. The glass is not artificial, but natural, being formed by ages of volcanic action. It is dark green or black in hue, but in every other respect resembles the artificial product.

Easily cut into slabs and impervious to the weather, it makes excellent building material.

Bareira, in Portuguese East Africa, is the only zinc city in existence. Zinc is the only material capable of withstanding the peculiar climate. It only took some thousands of people who make up the population six months to build the place. Hospital, church, arsenal and every dwelling is of zinc; the dead are buried in zinc coffins, and even most of the railway cars are of zinc throughout.—[Tit Bits.

COMING EVENTS ON THE SCREEN.

Dumas, the younger's famous novel of the same title, which has probably been read by more people than any other novel that this author of realistic stories ever wrote. Miss Bara is seen in the character of Iza, the serpent woman, and critics say that she never had a role that gave her more opportunities to display her talents. "The Clemenceau Case" was directed by Herbert Brenon, and boasts a great cast headed by William E. Shay. The usual added attractions will be shown, including "Current Events," and a snappy, happy Billie Rhodes comedy.

Symphony.

What has become of the dread organization of the Okhrana, the secret police dreaded by every class of Russia, and most of all by the Jews? At the height of their despotic powers in the days of the Czars, do they still wield their tyrannic weapons as is done in "The Yellow Ticket," which is shown at the Symphony this Sunday with Fannie Ward in the role of the unfortunate girl—or have they been ousted along with the Romanoffs?

Accompanying "The Yellow Ticket" on the Symphony bill, is an uproarious Harold Lloyd film, "Knocking the 'Germ' out of Germany." Lovely scenic pictures and a news picture also are on the bill.

Riviera.

Roy Stewart, Triangle's virile star, "who made the West famous," comes to the Riviera today in "The Fly God," his latest production, adopted from one of the well-known "Red" Saunders stories that ran recently in a leading magazine. "The Fly God" is, like all of Stewart's productions, a story of the West, and contains more than the usual number of thrills and daring feats of the dare-devil star and his Wild West cowboys. A love element has been interwoven with the series of startling adventures that gives the play a strong appeal to both young and old.

Clune's Broadway.

Commencing this afternoon, Clune's Broadway will offer for one week's engagement the latest J. Stuart Blackton photo-production titled "The World for Sale." This gripping story of the great northwest has been adapted to screen form from Sir Gilbert Parker's well-known novel of the same name, and it was Mr. Blackton's special privilege and pleasure to have the author at his side during the entire filming of the story. "The World for Sale" is a story that breathes the very essence of the out-of-doors and the charm of gypsy lore, together with a love story of more than usual interest. The scenes which were filmed in the heart of the Canadian forests deal with the feud between two small townships, one a French-Canadian, the other strongly English, as well as with the adventures of one Max Ingolby, who is one of the three men in love with charming Fleda Druse, the heroine.

Clune's Auditorium.

There are but six more days remaining for the people of this city to see the wonderful Griffith production "Hearts of the World," as it will close its second run at Clune's Auditorium next Saturday night. There have been hundreds of pictures shown in this city, the home of the moving picture industry, some great and others not so great, but there has one to yet be produced that will create the sensation in the picture world that "Hearts of the World" has made. This latest Griffith work of art has been a success from the first night it opened at Clune's Auditorium, proving as interesting and great in the other large cities of the United States as it has here in Los Angeles.

Superba.

Because of the hundreds of movie fans who wanted to see Herbert Rawlinson in "Smashing Through" at the Superba last week, but were turned away because of the capacity crowds, Manager Mathew Bridge will hold the picture over for another seven days starting today. Rawlinson has broken his record for attendance at the Superba, established by "Come Through." But the reason for this tremendous success over "Come Through" is because of the many points that make "Smashing Through" a bigger, bet

TENDER DOVES GIVE 'EM AN AWFUL SCARE.

The parachute pigeons of Cecil B. de Mille caused uneasiness, not to say downright fright, among some of the residents of Venice just the other day, the inhabitants apparently thinking some one was dropping German bombs down on them.

This occurred when Mr. de Mille and his company were filming scenes for his latest Artcraft picture, a war story, one scene of which shows carrier pigeons being dropped in a box by parachute to an American intelligence officer, who is back of the German lines. The parachute was dropped from an airplane according to schedule, but as the wind was high it did not settle in the way expected. Instead, it kept on floating, and Assistant Director Sam Woods started in pursuit of it. Finally he saw it fall in the distance, but by the time he drew near to it several residents of the beach city were circling about it nervously.

"Don't go too near," advised one old man. "Might be a bomb."

"Sure it is," said another. "I seen the airplane, probably a German come up from Mexico!"

The crowd was growing larger, when Woods pushed his way through and approached the parachute and the box.

"Don't go near, Mister," shouted the crowd.

But Woods picked up the box, and opening it, showed the crowd that the "bomb" consisted of two very innocent and rather frightened carrier pigeons.

HOW COULD YOU TELL THAT HE WAS INSANE?

It is said that the one screen figure today who has to her credit only one lone mash-note writer is Alla Nazimova, Metro star, who will appear at the Rialto this week. The star herself declares that the parts she plays are not food for inspiration to the mashers. She does declare, however, that the business men of this country are dreamers and visionaries, susceptible to impressions, highly emotional and ready to act on the spur of the moment.

The one lone masher on her list is one who wrote her not one note, but many. Not only this, he followed her all over the United States. His notes became so insistent and weird that the star turned them over to the authorities.

Not long ago, Mme. Nazimova was relating her experiences in connection with this masher to a man friend, explaining that the masher was, however, found afterward to be insane.

"Oh," answered the friend gallantly, "not necessarily!"

IS MARGUERITE CLARK RETURNING TO STAGE?

The rumor that Marguerite Clark, Famous Players-Lasky star, may return to the stage, at least for a period, is again rampant. This time the rumor has it that the young woman has been approached by representatives of William Faversham.

The piece in which Miss Clark's services are desired, says report, is "The Prince and the Pauper," adapted from Mark Twain's famous story. As will be remembered, she played in the screen version of the story put on three or four years ago by the Famous Players Company before that organization's amalgamation with the Lasky company.

In the stage version of "The Prince and the Pauper" Mr. Faversham himself will play the part of Miles Hendon, the swashbuckling gallant.

HALE HAMILTON TO COME OUT WEST.

It now comes to light that Hale Hamilton, who obtained release from the cast of George Broadhurst's new play, "She Walked in Her Sleep," in order to become a screen star for Metro, is to come to this city in October, following the making of a feature in New York this summer.

For his screen services, covering a period of three years, Mr. Hamilton is to receive a salary of $300,000. Mr. Hamilton was made a star by Metro, due to the fact that while working in the Metro pictures playing leads he was found to have secured a tremendous following.

It appears Mr. Broadhurst acted very generously in the matter. When he received word from Mr. Hamilton that the actor wished to be released from his stage obligations Mr. Broadhurst promptly responded: "Dear Hale, sorry as I am to lose you, I will, of course, under the circumstances, release you from our contract. The best of luck always. George."

CARMEL MYERS DOES HER PATRIOTIC BIT.

Carmel Myers, Universal star, now in New York, on the Fourth of July paused in the fascinating pursuit of buying clothes and went out to the United States training camp at Yapank, where hundreds of soldiers are stationed, and did her patriotic bit by entertaining the boys, at first with her shadow self and then with her real self.

The boys were on parade for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors who were guests of the camp that day, but in the afternoon they were gathered together at the camp theater, where they first viewed Miss Myers in "The Unmarried Wife" and then were treated to a view of that peaches-and-cream beauty herself. She made a pretty little talk and scored a big hit.

When Miss Myers returns to the U studio, which event is expected within the next two weeks, she will at once commence work on a Bluebird feature, "The Duchess of Dark Entry," with Paul Powell directing. The story was written by Perley Poore Sheehan, and the continuity is being prepared by Hope Loring.

W. L. SHERRY OPENS AN OFFICE HERE.

Offices have just been opened in this city, at No. 511 West Eighth street, by William L. Sherry, former distributor of the Artcraft-Paramount releases in New York State. This is the twenty-first exchange opened by Mr. Sherry in the United States in the last thirty days. William Alexander, district manager for the Coast offices, has just returned to Los Angeles from Seattle and San Francisco, after attending the opening of the exchanges in those cities. F. M. Steel, formerly of the Fox Film Corporation, has been engaged as manager of the local branch.

The Parex Film Corporation is the title of the new organization of which Mr. Sherry is president. The first release will be Paul Armstrong's "Romance of the Underworld," with Catherine Calvert, and the second release will be Mary Roberts Rinehart's "The Street of Seven Stars," with Doris Kenyon.

SHE WILL BUY SOCKS FOR BELGIAN BABIES.

"Please take this money and buy that poor child some stockings."

It was a kindhearted woman visitor speaking, and she tried to thrust a $5 bill into the hand of the guide who was showing her around the Triangle's big Culver City studios. "We are doing so much for outsiders that I feel like helping some of our folks here at home," she babbled on.

The group of visitors had stopped on a set where hard-warking actors were being put through their paces by Director Frank Borzage. A beautiful, black-haired girl, with big black eyes, had attracted the woman's attention. She was sitting wearily on a broken chair attired in a worn calico dress, and was stockingless.

"I'll ask her if she wants you to buy her some stockings," answered the guide. "You know, some of 'em are proud, even if they are poor."

After a few whispered words with the miss in calico, the guide returned minus the $5 bill, and assured the kind-hearted woman that Miss Alma Rubens would gladly buy stockings with the money—that is, stockings for the Belgian orphans!

Oh, yes. It was a scene from Miss Rubens's latest picture, "The Ghost Flower," which caused the star to be stockingless that day.

EDDIE POLO SEES SAMMIES GET SOCKS.

Sammies in the trenches who were former Universalites can thank Eddie Polo as the father of a movement that furnishes them with nice, warm sweaters, socks, mittens, wristlets and the like, for that well-known serial star, who is now working in "The Lure of the Circus," under J. P. McGowan's direction, is the fountain head of the wool supply.

Every week Eddie Polo donates two large boxes of candy to the movement. Then pretty screen queens make a canvass of Universal City, selling the bon-bons at 10 cents apiece. With the money received they buy wool to knit sweaters and other army comforts. Whenever a "Big U" man is called to the colors the members of the knitting club present him with the desired articles and he goes on his way rejoicing. Janet Eastman, Yvette Mitchell and Sally Starr are the prime factors of the organization.

Ince Signs Walthal.

Henry B. Walthal has been engaged by Thomas H. Ince to play the leading role in "False Faces," from the pen of Louis Joseph Vance, the feature to be released as a special feature by Artcraft or Paramount. J. G. Hawks is writing the continuity.

Arthur Goes to France.

Arthur Shirley, playing the heavy in "A Matrimonial Clean-up," Harry Carey's newest Universal film success, recently visited his brother, Bernard Shirley, who is occupying a front line trench in France with the Australian contingent.

Arthur Shirley went to France on a strip of film which was projected for the soldiers in a barn. In writing to Shirley the soldier-brother states that the men over there value all photoplay magazines and paste the pictures of their favorite stars on the walls of the dugouts.

Nazimova Not on Menu.

Bert Lytell, young Metro star, and George D. Baker, Metro's western manager of production, were lunching in a Hollywood restaurant the other day, and while they were waiting for the waiter, drifted into a discussion of the merits of screen personalities.

"And who, Bert, is your favorite motion picture actress?" asked Baker.

"Nazimova," replied Lytell. "I like Alla Nazimova."

The waiter was peering over Baker's shoulder.

"I'm sorry, sir," he apologized "but we haven't any of that on the menu today."

Knew His Bloomin' Name.

One of the soldiers who appears in the great war film "Pershing's Crusaders," which opens at the Alhambra Theater today, wrote a friend the following account of an experience of one of the Sammies:

"He was going over the top with a company of British Tommies," wrote the soldier, "when a big burly German got in his way. He jabbed him with a bayonet and shouted, 'I got you, Steve!' After the charge was over one of the British soldiers came up to our boy with a look of great consternation on his face, exclaimed: "Oh, I say, old top, you know it's bloomin' funny! How'd you know the bounder's name?"

Took His Own Medicine.

Douglas Gerrard, who directed Fritzi Brunette in "Should a Woman Tell?" is now a recruit at the Hollywood Officers' Training School. As he fell into line the other evening, he was scolded, bawled out, and generally ridden over roughshod by a clean-cut young man who seemed to take particular delight in making the director shuffle around like a roadrunner. The drill master was Eddie Laemmle, Gerrard's assistant director.

Stone Does Stunts.

Fred is certainly a rolling Stone these days. The famous Artcraft star is making his second picture, "Johnny Get Your Gun," and Fred is an authority for the assertion that the scenes are chock full of that kind of action which is called speed. Incidentally, Fred is getting lots of practice with his roping—not that he needs it to any extent—and is doing some daring and fancy throwing before the camera. In one scene he finishes a dance, leaps to a balcony and ropes a man through a window, dragging him from the back seat of an automobile.

Chip-of-the-Block Note.

That the three young sons of Thomas H. Ince have inherited their fathers' genius along dramatic lines, was proved recently when the boys staged a Red Cross benefit in the Ince garden at Hollywood, Cal. More than 100 children who participated were rehearsed by Bill Ince, 10 years old, and the affair netted the Red Cross a tidy sum. In order that their efforts might bear all the earmarks of professionalism, the Ince youngsters prevailed upon their dad to loan them costumes, scenery, lights and stage hands. Following the speaking version of the play, motion pictures were taken.

Mary Entertains Mrs. Schwab.

Mrs. Charles M. Schwab and party visited the Lasky studio, the other day, and were entertained by Mary Pickford and her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford. Afterward they watched Cecile B. De Mille as he directed several scenes in his latest Artcraft picture.

He Saw the Joke.

A sense of humor on the judge's part saved Jack Livingston, who has just completed a Triangle feature in which he has the lead, from paying a fine the other day when he was arrested for speeding.

Livingston had just finished doing twenty-four hours' work at a stretch, and was driving to his Hollywood home worn out mentally and physically. This he had explained to the judge, but his Honor instead on knowing more.

"It was all 'The Price of Applause,'" answered Livingston. With a quick smile, the judge recognized the fact that Livingston was doing a pretty piece of press-agenting, but he was so amused that he let the actor off on general principles.

Vivian Martin at Home.

Vivian Martin, Lasky star, is at home this week after a two months' vacation at Lake Louise, near Banff, Alberta, Canada. She will start work on a new picture soon at the Morosco studio.

Reicher With the World.

Frank Reicher, for several years director with the Lasky company, is now with the World Pictures.

Ethel Lind Came Back.

One day a little girl 15 or 16 years old came to the Mack Sennett studios looking for work as an extra girl. She was pretty and they gave her the job she asked for. She worked for a year or so, and then went back to school and finished her education. Last week she came back

They must have thought that my checks were worthless, or you must have thought so. I now inclose another and larger one. It is for $2500 of your American money, and, if that is not big enough, send it back, and I will make it larger, but some check of some denomination you must accept. If I gave you all the money I ever earned, it would not repay you for the time, years ago in Paris, you saved me from want. I shall expect you to come to Paris at once and be my guest. Answer yes by cable, and make us all happy. If you do not do this, you must never call on me again, as I shall refuse to receive you.

Affectionately, SARA.

"What shall I do?" asked the old fellow in a trembling voice. "She is bound to have her way. She always was like that as a child."

"Send the dispatch, cash the check and go to Paris," answered the friend.

"I guess I'll have to," said Levi, and he started for the telegraph office.

Anent the "divine one's" extravagances, it is said that she has never been able to separate her real life from her heroines of the theater, and throws her louis d'or about as though they were tokens of the stage. Up to her first visit to America, some thirty-odd years ago, she had been pretty constantly in debt, and frankly confessed that she was going to America for one thing, money. The money poured in upon her, and her creditors, who had followed her over, took it with both hands. Indeed the first person she saw in New York as she landed was one of her Paris money lenders.

"You here?" she exclaimed.

"Madame, I cannot live without you," he answered suavely.

• • •

During her first days in the United States, Bernhardt had a method of keeping track of the English language by tracing words back to their Latin roots. At one time she was engaged in a friendly controversy with her press agent as to the merits and demerits of Pittsburgh, the journalist upholding the city's claim and Sara opposing him.

"Pittsburgh," insisted the former, "is the most unique city in the country."

"Unique, that's the word exactly," Sara almost shouted, "unus meaning one, equus meaning horse."

Legend has it that it is owing to a mere trifling incident that Bernhardt did not spend her life "in trade" instead of on the stage. Once, in the very early days, having been given a part she did not like, she threw it up in disgust and made up her mind to open a confectioner's shop. She had taken to the idea so seriously, indeed, that she actually selected a shop. Its front pleased her immensely, and had she not gone further the business might have been concluded—and what would the footlight world have lost!

But before leaving, fortunately for all of us, the future diva wanted to see the back room and basement. The sight of these was too much for her nervous sensibilities. To spend one's life in such dark holes! Impossible! Back she went to the twinkling footlights. For once at least let all be thankful for gloomy basements and dark back rooms.

A few years ago, when Bernhardt was making a tour of the United States with an unusually diversified repertory, the public demand for extra matinees was so insistent that she often acted on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, as well as on those of Wednesday and Saturday. It so happened that the company playing "Madame X" in English was in Philadelphia at the time that Bernhardt was playing it there in French, and the manager of it wished his company to see the French company. He went to Madame's manager, and asked him—a little shame-facedly—whether Bernhardt could not be induced to give an extra performance of the French play on Friday. When approached in the matter Madame replied cordially that she would gladly give the extra performance, and the manager came back to the lobby, almost in a daze.

"There is a woman more than mortal," he said, "and capable of more work than ten men. She is going to give an extra matinee on Friday."

Whereat the ticket seller poked his head out of the window and called out loudly: "Extra matinee on Friday? Hell, what does that woman think I'm made of?"

All France has rung with the word that Bernhardt has been playing "at the front."

"Nothing could be more moving," said she, "than playing before such heroes. It was the incomparable event of my life. The warmth and heartiness of their applause was most touching. I was delighted with my trip.

"I even persuaded Gen. B—— to take me to a place near Pont-a-Mousson, which is usually bombarded by the Germans. The general refused at first, but then consented, saying: 'Since you insist, very well. You are worthy, Madame, to be at the post of danger!' I regard that as the highest compliment that has ever been paid me."

To which characteristic remark Madame has now added another fully as eloquent of that mood of eternal youth, which is, indeed, akin to "divinity:"

"My star is still in the ascendant," she said, on being interviewed after the Espagne had docked; "and while it is high in the heavens I have nothing to fear. I feel young and take joy in living, for my spirit is young and will never die."

How 'Bout the Trip Back?

The thing he liked to do best of all was not to go to a family reunion. One was on the schedule, however, and he had to go. It meant a long ride on the train. He was telling a friend about it.

"Yes, I'm going to a family reunion," he said, "and there's just two things I don't like about it. First, it's the trip there, secondly, it's the being there after I get there."—[Indianapolis News.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Women Who Knit.

Old and withered the hands that knit,
Or slender and white and young;
And the wool they're weaving, bit by bit,
If it spake with a human tongue
Could tell a tale of the tears that rise
Unbidden to eyes that see
A field of red and a smoke-stained sky
And the woe of the days to be.

Needles flying that flash and flit—
For ever the need grows great—
Are women's weapons and where they sit
They're spinning the web of fate.
Make warm the blood of the men that fight
That the soul of the race may live;
The wind creeps cold through a trench at night,
'Tis well that the knitters give!

Well that they weave of the wool, for wrought,
Like a cipher that hides its key,
Within those garments there lives a thought
They're sending across the sea;
It carries the message, this word that's knit
By the needles of love and pride,
That our women who smile and do their bit
Are in soul by our heroes' side.
—[New York Sun.

Home of the Heart.

Oh humble was the little home
Love built for just us two;
And so we bought us wings to roam,
And, when we could, we flew.

Now, gathered all the world can give,
How dark are the stars that beamed,
For the heaven where our dead hopes live
Is the home where young love dreamed!

Could you go back again with me,
Oh could we now return,
How dear that happy nest would be,
How bright the stars would burn!
—[Stokely S. Fisher in Farm Life.

Lufbery.

The ends of earth were a twice-told tale;
And the branching seas, twice told,
To grub for gold was a pastime stale,
And the meed of it left him cold.

The itch of his spirit onward drove,
And the longing lifting high,
Found a cradle his body learned to love
In a chariot of the sky.

Then the rarest reach of the ether keen,
The curve of the star pricked dome,
Were lanes where wildly he might careen,
And he knew them for a home.

Let lesser spirits pule and fret—
A thrall of the upper air,
He fought the fight to the full and set
The seal of his service there.

Then he felt the urge of the further gods,
And pliant to their spell,
Fled afar; for that cabined by the clods
Is only an empty shell.
—[Maurice Morris in New York Sun.

Twilight in Town.

Through the golden haze of the dying day
The cherries gleam crimson bright,
While friendly sparrows with drowsy chirp
Are bidding the sun good night:
Adown the harbor with motion swift
Two sea-gray steamers glance
With the joyous speed of ships that bear
Aid to our boys in France.

Long rows of brick on the busy street,
Where the cars roll to and fro,
Cool, leafy gardens behind them all,
Where the war-time products grow;
In red, white, blue, dear little Louise
O'er her pansies likes to bend,
While the camouflaged kitten my neighbor loves
Is chasing his Maltese friend.

But hark! from a near-by balcony
The lilt of the light guitar,
The music, the words of Italy,
As sung 'neath her skies afar;
In dreams I fly to Amalfi's shore,
To her road so white and still,
To her pipers playing beneath the stars,
And her wondrous, Old World thrill

Oh Napoli, fair Napoli!
With skies of sapphire blue,
Il Trovatore brings the tears
To eyes that long for you!
Venezia's canals no more
Her gondolas may bear,
While war and rapine fill the world
With hate and sad despair.

But while to snowy mountain peaks
The Austrian legions pour,
The gallant sons of Italy
Throw back their hordes once more;
And through the music clear and high
I hear a triumph song
The Jubilate of a race
That conquers ruth and wrong!

One speaks to the other as neighbors pass
In the gardens up and down;
"What news from the front?" "Has our blow been struck?"
"Are the bulletins good in town?"
And one or another softly hums
In our pacing to and fro,
With tender thoughts of the Long Long Trail
As our Home Fires softly glow.

Queer News About United States.

German newspapers just received here contain a precious bit of American "news" which ought to be disheartening to bachelors. The following is a literal translation:

"In Bloomington bachelor life is officially discovered. An investigating commission discovered that a great number of young ladies, widows, widowers and bachelors were each occupying large houses. If they should marry their houses could be turned over to other families to live in, and a great deal of expense, such as lighting, heating, etc., could be eliminated.

"So the women were given the privilege to demand a husband, and no citizen is permitted to refuse to marry a woman who demands him provided he is able to support a family. In desperate cases, where the man persists in his refusal to marry, a compromise may be effected which would compel the man to keep in his house and feed three orphans or two cripples for the duration of the war.

"The same measures are to be introduced all over the United States."—[Amsterdam Correspondence, New York Sun.

TEN DEAD GERMANS PAY FOR PUSSUMS.

BY RIFLEMAN PATRICK MacGILL

[Special Contributor to The Times.]

FRANCE, June 20.—I went into the dugout and sat down beside the stove. The night was very cold outside and the snow lay thickly on the sandbags that rimmed the parapet. But here in the dugout it was warm; a cheery flame burned in the brasier and the wood crackled as it burned. A candle was alight in a corner near the door and queer shadows played along the walls.

The dugout was a good one, spacious and well constructed. The whole apartment was evident of the taste and refinement of the soldiers who had made it for many a day the lodging of spare moments. The floors was swept scrupulously clean, the walls were fancifully papered with illustrations from English papers, and in odd corners, picturesquely arranged, were many tins of bully beef and boxes of biscuits. It takes very little, well placed, to give a touch of relief to the dark background, and in the art of dugout decoration Tommy knows no equal.

There were some eight men in the shelter. Two of them were Cockneys, gallant boys who had been through many fights and had seen war as it is waged by a merciless enemy; one had been at Oxford, another doted on Omar and recited poems to the dead on No Man's Land when he stood on sentry-go. On none of the men had war left any apparent traces; physically they exhibited no indication of the hardships which they daily endured. The most daredevil man was a little fellow some five foot three in height, shy and timid even in the company of his mates. But when bombing a German dugout . . . that, however, is a story in itself. Then there was Spudhole, the good-hearted Londoner, who was wearing the ribbon of the D.C.M. and amusing himself at the present moment by playing with a little fluffy kitten which he had discovered the night before when on ration fatigue.

"I found the critter prowlin' about the dump," said Spudhole, recounting the story of his find for the twentieth time. "I was just slingin' my load over my shoulder when I hears: 'Meow! Meow!' 'Wot's that?' I says to Stumpy as was wiv me. 'Wot's wot?' 'e says. 'Wot's sayin' "meow! meow?"' I says. 'I 'ear nuffink,' says Stumpy. ''Ear nuffink?' says I. 'There it is agen.' 'It's cat, I fink,' says Stumpy. And so it was, this little critter. It came up ter me and rubs itself agen my boot. I lifts it up and puts it under my arm and comes back to the trenches. Wasn't 'arf a job, I'm tellin' yer. 'Arf a pig or somefing in the sandbag over my shoulder, and a cat, this damned little cat, under my arm."

Spudhole placed the kitten on the floor and we all gathered round and watched it. It was a pretty little thing and looked irresistibly ludicrous as it raised its wondering eyes to the men in sheepskin. It went up to a bully beef tin which stood on the floor and crawled up on it. The tin overbalanced and the kitten fell on its back at my feet. It lay there for a moment, kicking out its little legs, and its eyes were full of the gravest astonishment.

"Wee pussums, pretty pussums," said Spudhole, and caught hold of one little paw with clumsy fingers and shook it gravely. "Wee, teeny, weeny pussums, sooveneer pussums . . . . Hey! yer big, blunderin' cat, you, wot d'yer want there?"

The kitten had got to its feet and was now smelling a sandbag which stood in the corner of the dugout. The standbag contained the rations.

"Smellin' the 'am, are yer, pussums?" said Spudhole, and felt that now was the moment to cement the man-and-cat friendship with an act of delicate courtesy. He opened his haversack and took out a thin slice of bacon which he had saved from his breakfast and held it over the kitten's nose. The kitten meowed plaintively and Spudhole succumbed. When it had finished its meal it rolled on the floor in an ecstacy of repletion. Then it scuttled under a seat, discovered a Mills hand grenade and rolled it out onto the floor near the brasier.

"Here, here, I say," said Spudhole, "you're a Boche, a blunderin' big Boche. Goin' to blow our dugout up?"

Thenceforward the kitten, known as "Pussums," became the pet of our section, although it was recognized as Spudhole's property. He was always playing with it and stroking it and making love to it. Spudhole loved it with quite a passion; the sweet girls of many a billet no longer appealed to him. "There are lots of girls," he often said, with an air of finality, "but only one Pussums."

But alas! The kitten's stay in our section was brief. It was murdered, deliberately murdered by a Hun, who shot the pretty little thing as it was sitting on the trench parapet up by Vimy Ridge.

Spudhole looked at the kitten, his kitten, as it lay dead and warm on the firestep; and he swore with more than accustomed vehemence.

"It'll take ten dead Germans to pay for you," he said, "and for every one that I kill I'll make a nick wiv me knife on the butt o' me rifle."

There used to be a little grave behind the parados of a trench up by Vimy Ridge. It may be there still if the German shells have not destroyed it. At its head was a stone with this inscription carved on it, an inscription which often puzzled soldiers who never heard the story:

"Here lies Pussums."

Spudhole is still alive and well. A bar has been added to his D.C.M. and he has now got ten nicks cut on the butt of his rifle.

RESIGNING FROM THE SORORITIES.

Seventeen girls of the University of Wisconsin have recently resigned from their respective sororities—Delta Gamma, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Kappa Alpha Theta and Gamma Phi Beta. They say: First, that as women now have an established place in college affairs, the sorority's original function of facilitating unified action among the women of the college is obsolete; second, that qualification for entrance is entirely artificial and undefined; third, that the "rushing" system is unwholesome, pernicious and undemocratic; fourth, that the great expenditure of money on trivialities is unwarranted, especially at such a time as this; fifth, that the women of the university, both sorority and non-sorority, would have a broader scope of friendship and a freer opportunity for development if social Greek-letter socities were abolished, and finally, that a caste system is projected from college out into the alumnae population of the country which is detrimental to those who are not fraternity women, and which is distasteful to the true American spirit. These reasons, of course, are not the whole of the argument, but they do present an exceptionally strong case. Nor have these independent young women ignored the problem of what is to take the sorority's place. They urge dormitories for the first two years in college, and voluntary groups, with less control than is necessary under the fraternity scheme, for juniors and seniors.—[The Dial.

HOW TO ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS.

The proper way to entertain a soldier or jackie at dinner in your home is to be the subject of a leaflet issued by the War Recreation Board, Illinois State Council of Defense.

Here are some of the instructions:

Seek out your man, be introduced and invite him personally to your home.

Show him an easy chair, magazines, the music machine or piano, and let him amuse himself.

Don't worry about style and "fixin's." Give him a good home dinner. Perhaps he would like to help you get it.

Give him the same treatment you would give your own boy, if he were home from school or business.

When he leaves, ask him to come again. Ask him to bring a friend with him.

SEEKS MISSING SON.

Mrs. Elva Cloud, No. 472½ South Lake street, has asked the police to assist her in locating her son, Lester, age 13 years, who disappeared from the George Junior Republic School, a month ago. He is described as 4 feet in height, weight 100 pounds, hazel eyes, fair complexion, heavy wavy sandy hair, powder marks around eyes, and a hole in the side of the head where a bullet was removed. When last seen he wore a navy blue Norfolk suit, with a military sweater.

More to the Point.

"Why do people marry in June?" sentimentally mused Mrs. Scrappington.

"Why do they marry at all?" snarled her pessimistic husband.—[Kansas City Star.

GAY PRINCE EITEL MADE DUPE OF BEAUTIFUL SERBIAN SPY.

Kaiser's Dissipated Second Son, Retired from Field Service, Plays Part in Berlin Scandal and is Laughed at for Being Fooled.

BY COUNTESS EMILIE ALSENBORG.
[SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR TO THE TIMES.]

[This is the sixth and concluding installment in the series of reminiscences by the Countess who for fifteen years was a lady-in-waiting to the German Empress. In 1908 the Countess was the recipient of the diamond star of the German Household Order. Since the war she has retired to her native country, Sweden.]

"MUCH too good-looking," the Kaiserin whispered to me; a trifle tartly. "Pray observe Eitel! He's completely captivated—has eyes for no one else. Who is she, Emilie? Of course, I know she is the wife young Rosenthal has suddenly discovered somewhere and brought home. But who and what was she before?"

We were at a reception given by old Josef Rosenthal at his mansion in the Kurfurstendamm, near the zoological gardens of Berlin. The Kaiser and Kaiserin had graciously consented to be present, for Rosenthal was a financial power in Germany, and with a war loan about to be floated, Wilhelm was very anxious to please the old Jewish millionaire.

My mistress's words had reference to the center of attraction that night—certainly one of the most beautiful women I have ever seen. Kuno, Rosenthal, the financier's only son, had recently met and married her; and the dark-eyed young frau's fascinating looks had created quite a sensation.

Little seemed to be known of her, so at the moment I could not answer the Kaiserin's inquiry. But having promised to gather what information I could, I contrived to get into conversation with young Rosenthal and offer my congratulations.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

"Thank you, Countess!" said Kuno Rosenthal, his plain, fleshy face beaming with pleasure at the evident impression his handsome bride was creating. And he was not slow to respond to my discreetly hinted interest. "Yes, it was rather sudden—my own parents were as much surprised as anybody. But, you see, it was a case of love at first sight with us. I met Vranya in Budapesth—she is a Hungarian; and, as she is an orphan, with no living relatives whatever to raise objections, we were married at once."

"Quite taken Berlin by storm, hasn't she?" he added delightedly. "Even His Highness Prince Eitel has been most attentive to her."

I could not help reflecting that had I been in the young husband's place I should not have felt so gratified by Eitel Frederick's interests in my wife. Kuno Rosenthal did not know the Kaiser's second son as I did.

My thoughts strayed to Prince Eitel's own wife, who was not present, but probably at that minute sitting neglected and miserable in her palace. The fat dissolute bully of the Kaiser's family had hunted long and widely for a suitable match before he persuaded Princess Sophie Charlotte of Oldenburg to yield him her heart and fortune. This she has assuredly regretted ever since; for bad husbands as the Hohenzollerns make, Eitel Frederick is the worst.

DANGEROUS ADMIRERS.

Prince Eitel Frederick, over-stout and dissipated, had about this period been suffering from severe heart attacks. Thus he had retired from so-called active service in the field, and been appointed to some ornamental position in connection with artillery and ordnance supply—a fact which has direct bearing upon what I am about to relate.

But young Frau Rosenthal was to receive a higher distinction that evening than Prince Eitel's admiration. I was not surprised to observe that the Kaiser had maneuvered Frau Rosenthal into an alcove, and stood eagerly chatting with her there, the while he held her slim ringed fingers in his.

I am not sure whether my mistress had noticed this also, but when I had rejoined her the Kaiserin contrived to move around the ballroom until we came near the alcove, and could distinctly overhear what was passing between her royal lord and the young beauty.

"Then you are really going to send Kuna away to Brussels, Your Majesty?" Frau Rosenthal was exclaiming. "Doubtless it is a great honor that you should select him for this post, but——."

"But what?" the Kaiser asked as she paused.

"But I don't want to leave Berlin—I have so recently come here," pouted the dark-eyed bride.

FLIRTATION BEGINS.

"Then why not stay," Wilhelm urged. "Of course, that would mean separation from your husband for a little. But I am sure Berlin does not want to lose you yet—the city would seem dull without your presence now."

I saw my mistress flush angrily as she caught the Kaiser's flattering words.

The Kaiserin was seething with jealous displeasure. I know that on reaching their private suite she vented it in angry sarcasm at the expense of Wilhelm and Prince Eitel and the charmer. Her irritated lord hotly retorted, and the upshot was that the Kaiserin vowed she would never receive the bewitching Hungarian at the palace.

Meanwhile Kuno Rosenthal had departed—alone—to Brussels to take up the important post for which he had been chosen by the Kaiser. But I soon had visible proof that his wife was neither pining nor neglected in his absence. Riding one day in the beautiful Grunewald forest, between Potsdam and Berlin, a car passed me in which Frau Rosenthal was seated, with Prince Eitel Frederick by her side.

Court functions on any considerable scale were then much less frequent than before the war, but one was held at the Neues Palais. And it would be difficult to describe the Kaiserin's amazement and indignation when young Frau Rosenthal, looking radiant and lovelier than ever, appeared among the guests, and advanced to bow before the Empress.

THE INVITATION.

My mistress summoned the court chamberlain to her side.

"How does the Frau Rosenthal come to be present without having been invited?" she demanded.

The official looked astonished and uncomfortable.

"But she was invited, Your Majesty," he stammered. "His Highness Prince Eitel instructed me to send a card to her—I understood it was by your desire!"

The Kaiserin was beyond speech, and dismissed him with a curt gesture. Uneasy and curious to know what would follow, I observed my mistress catch Eitel Frederick's attention and beckon him into an anteroom. Later she confided to me what had passed there.

"Eitel, I demand an explanation!" she had flung angrily at her son. "How dared you have that woman Rosenthal invited here without my authority, and against my known wish. You have introduced her to my presence by a disgraceful trick!"

"I had to do it by a trick just because I knew you had a grudge against her!" reported the bloated coarse-looking Prince. "Why should the best looking woman in Berlin be slighted and shut out from court affairs without any proper reason for it?"

THE KAISER'S DEMAND.

"That's my concern!" snapped the Empress. "And I'll show both Frau Rosenthal and you that I'm not to be insulted and defied. I shall instruct the court chamberlain to order her car and request her withdrawal instantly!"

"I think you'd better not!" sneered Eitel. "There will be the deuce to pay if you do. The Kaiser is delighted to see Frau Rosenthal here—he has just been telling her so!"

With that Wilhelm himself came upon the scene, and Eitel Frederick bluntly told him what the Kaiserin had threatened to do.

"You must do nothing of the sort, Dona!" said the Kaiser, with an alarmed, wrathful frown. "If Eitel has been forced into this method of having justice done to Frau Rosenthal, you have only your unreasonable prejudice and spite to blame. Indeed, in my own interest and the state's, I am glad he did so, for your attitude to the frau was becoming talked about, and I don't want to offend the Rosenthals. I insist that you make no scene, and that the frau be treated with all honor."

"I'll put a stop to this scandalous behavior somehow!" the Kaiserin declared; and for once took the side of a daughter-in-law. "If Eitel's wife had the spirit of a mouse she would not permit such a state of things. And she won't if I can help it!"

GROWING SCANDAL.

The result was the appearance, by the Kaiserin's request, of Princess Sophie Charlotte at the palace. I had no wish to be mixed up in the affair; but my mistress summoned me to the boudoir and insisted on my repeating all I had heard about Eitel's flirtation with the Hungarian beauty.

Princess Sophie listened with an air of icy indifference, and turned to the Empress.

"Nothing of this is surprising or of much interest to me," she said with quiet bitterness. "I have long since ceased to care what Eitel may do. If I don't mind saying that, you need not mind the Countess hearing it. Eitel married me only for the money I would bring him and this Your Majesty knows very well. And I would not lift a finger to interfere between him and this Rosenthal creature or any other—I should be very glad if he ran away with her and never came back!"

Thus the interview was a failure from the Kaiserin's standpoint; yet it was to lead most unexpectedly to startling developments in the direction my mistress desired.

GAY CHATTERBOX.

Next day I happened to be engaged all morning in a shopping expedition in Berlin, and had gone into the Adlon restaurant for lunch, when I was greeted by an acquaintance, little Ina Ritzmeyer, who begged leave to join me at the table.

"Well, Countess!" My lively young friend bent across to inquire confidentially as we ate. "Are we to have a fresh court scandal soon—over Prince Eitel and Sophie Charlotte, with Frau Rosenthal as third party in the case?"

"I've heard nothing of the kind," I replied. I had no mind to disclose anything to this gay irresponsible chatterbox, particulary as I knew she was the fiancee of Capt. George von Lowenfeld, Equerry to Eitel Frederick.

"Possibly there may be other complications," she laughed. "For I have a tiny suspicion that Prince Eitel is not the only string Frau Rosenthal has to her bow. Though you will tell me nothing, Countess, I'll let you into a little secret I learned from George the other day.

"It seems that the Prince sent George to Frau Rosenthal's house with a message from him, and being told she was engaged he sat down to wait for her. After a little while Frau Rosenthal came out from an adjoining room, talking earnestly with a strange young man.

A SERBIAN BROTHER.

"George noticed they were speaking in Serbian—for in the early days of the war he was attached to the Austrian army under Gen. Potiorek, and picked up a smattering of the Serbian language from prisoners. Well, George observed that Frau Rosenthal was confused and taken aback as she saw him there, but she introduced the stranger as her brother, on a flying visit to her in Berlin, and just returning to Hungary. Of course, that might be true—and it might not!"

I scarcely heard the rest of Ina Ritzmeyer's chatter, absorbed as I was in startled reflection. Frau Rosenthal had been talking in the Serbian tongue—to a brother of whose existence, as I knew from Kuno Rosenthal's own words, her husband was ignorant!

Driving back to Potsdam, I could think of nothing else. Finally I determined to inform my mistress of what I had learned.

When I had done so the Kaiserin was excitedly eager and triumphant.

"Emilie," she cried, "I felt sure that woman was not all she ought to be—there was too much mystery about her. And now, with this clew in our hands, I'll make Wilhelm and Eitel acknowledge I'm right—I shall not rest until I get to the bottom of things. I shall send for Engelbach at once!"

THE SLEUTH-HOUND.

Herr Engelbach, I may explain briefly, was a man who had been employed as the Kaiserin's secret agent in various delicate and private matters. He had always proved himself discreet and trustworthy, and wholly enjoyed by mistress's confidence. Engelbach responded promptly to the Kaiserin's summons and that night quietly departed for Hungary.

In Budapest and other parts of Hungary Engelbach diligently traced out the identity and origin of young Rosenthal's wife. And he discovered that Vranya Stephanovich, now Frau Rosenthal, was not a Hungarian, but of Serbian blood and birth; that she was privately known to be in sympathy with that devastated and conquered country and its allies; and, further, that she had no brother alive.

The Kaiserin's excitement and exultation were extreme now, but she yielded to my persuasions and disclosed the result of Engelbach's inquiries to Count von Wedel and the Emperor.

At the symposium yesterdav Hari Kari Shamose, the Nipponese nightingale, proudly exhibited to the sunny secretary a souvenir postal card which he had received from the Mikado, approving the fraternal sentiments the bard had expressed in his Fourth of July oration. There are no seas so wide but that the hands of friendship may not span them. This was the sentiment expressed by the mighty ruler of Japan to this humble subject.

There will be no quarrel with Japan so long as Hari Kari Shimose does not go to sleep at the switch.

The discovery at Edendale of the love letters of Adam and Eve, and the proof thereby that the place is well named and was the original garden of Eden, continues to be one of the two great sensations of the time—the other one being the war. Some three of the seven letters thus far revealed have been deciphered and as the earliest known forms of amatory literature they are frought with the deepest interest.

Prof. Watts Eaton Hughes, who is known as an archeologist, as well as a pinochle player, reported yesterday that by working nights with the aid of his strong glass he had been able to interpret another of the notes of Eve and apparently the fourth in the heptagony. The translation as furnished by him to the secretary was as follows:

"Adam Dear: I worked all the week writing you a letter and then the old elephant couldn't haul it to the postoffice. I found a soft piece of red sandstone and wrote all over the concrete wall at the viaduct, but we couldn't budge it and the snake laughed his head off. I made the loveliest pictures on it. Now 'He who who runs (to Glendale) may read.'

"I saw the garden you speak of when I was at Klondike Park. Nothing doing. It looks too snakey.

"I thought I was going to have the grandest surprise for you, but its all busted to bits. A pretty bird used to sit in the apple tree and sing. One day I saw her carrying bits of moss and tiny twigs and she made the nicest little bed you ever saw. Then in a few days I climbed up and there were four little round-speckled objects in it. I forgot all about it for a week or two when one day I heard the oddest squeaks coming from it, so I climbed up again and what do you think? There were four little fuzzy baby birds. I asked the serpent, who is so wise, and he told me all about it and took me down to the lake and showed me where the old Dodo had made a bed like it. That gave me an idea, and I made myself a dandy nest and sat around in it every day for a week, but nothing happened, so I went down to old Dodo's nest and rolled three of her eggs up the hill and carefully put them in mine, and then jumped in on them. I hate to tell you what happened! They all smashed to pieces and smelled to heaven, so I can't surprise you with a little mess of birdies.

"Yesterday I went for a walk with the Snake on the hills above Silver Lake and we saw the loveliest place, and a beautiful creature came out, looked at me, smiled and threw me a kiss. I asked the snake who it was and he said 'Julia Eltinge.' I asked if she was a real lady, and he said, 'Not on your life.' I felt all fluttery inside and wanted to go closer, but the old serpent snaked me back to Eden. Please keep away from that hill, Adam, I'm afraid that lovely golden-haired creature will steal you.

"It was very good of you to ask me to go for a ride with you, but if you can't ride any better than I can it would be sort of an Eohippus on you, and only done in the movies.

"Come home early, darling, and always wear your smoked glasses when you pass the Keystone.

"GOODY, GOODY, the apples are getting ripe!

"SUNDAY EVE."

"That sounds more like September Morn than Eve," exclaimed the Cheerful Idiot.

But there it is.

Kart Seymour, the wind-bitten Herodotas of Altadena, after taking two large doses of painkiller, came down to the studio and knocked loudly for admittance. He said that he wished to be numbered among the elect and to prove his quality he recited a revised edition of Bingen on the Rhine, a section of which is as follows:

Stuttgart o'er the Brine.

A soldier of Wurst's legion was fumbling with his pen;
There was dearth of advertising—dearth of advertising men,
But a comrade stood beside him while the ink was flowing fast,
And wondered if each ruddy drop might be his hero's last,
The stricken soldier faltered; he raised a trembling hand:
"I fear I never more shall see that dear old Fatherland,
"Tell your comrades when you gather and raise the foaming stein,
"That Ich gekommt from Stuttgart, across the heaving brine."

There was hardly a dry eye in the house as the recitation was completed, although several complained of parched throats.

Carew Doyle, the eminent word painter, was desirous of contributing to the closing chapters of limericks of persons and places. By the use of a shoe horn he was eased of this morsel:

"How I loved the bewitching Yoette,
Whose tresses were swarthy as jet.
But alas! my love dyed—
She used peroxide,
She is blond who was once a brunette."

Majolica Ware, who keeps books in an undertaking shop and recites obituary poetry at the Saturday evening rallies at the morgue is always finding odd things in the graveyards of her country. She reports this fragment from a slab in an Arizona cemetery:

"Here lie the bones of Zebulon Wade
Who stood 130 in the shade,
If heaven don't have his sort of weather,
He'll quit that place and head for t'other."

In connection with the collection of lyrics about Adams there was a hearing for Sunset Sallie who found by consulting a sand gazer that the matter with her was this:

Adam's Apple.

When Adam took his first bite of that apple,
He little knew the scrape he'd got us in.
Thenceforth each mother's son has had to battle,
Against the lure of the old apple bin.
For ever since that episode of Adam's
With Eve, the tempting apple and the snake,
Man's sure to be around when fruit is falling,
And the very choicest pippins he doth take.

Tommy Tomtom Thompson, the ten-toed terror of Tioga, was also numbered among those present and he entertained the company with this glittering example from his collection of gems:

Our Last Boy.

Now our last boy has gone away,
To answer his country's call—
And Daddy and I, are left alone,
For this one meant our all.
He left his Ford and his girls behind,
And donned his suit of khaki—
And none could say as he marched away,
That he was the least bit slacky.
He told a fib about his age,
So Uncle Sam would take him—
He was tall and slim, with his five feet nine—
You could count every rib, where they joined his spine,
But his hand never shook as he went to sign,
And in uniform, he was grand and fine.
In the uniform of the U.S.A.,
To Kaiser Bill he seemed to say,
I have crossed the pond and I mean to stay
Until you and your hordes, have been made to pay.

Adam Simp, the grand old bard who takes time to write his country's songs gave forth this complaint.

The Boob War.

The big war, the boob war,
Nobody knew what 'twas for.
But it wasn't very pleasant,
For the peasant or the pheasant,
It was fought about a bauble
And it made a lot of trouble,
Oh, unlucky is the opal—
Sought for, fought for eastern opal,
That they call Constantinople,
And some for fun are fighting,
And some old wrongs are righting,
But those are most delighting,
Who like other people's money—
Thrifty spenders, money lenders—
Money grabbers and the dabblers,
And gabblers and war warblers,
So good-by.

Down in the studio the director, David Oliver Tobasco, was making pictures in the impressive club spectacle of "Prunes, or the Bloody Trail of the Death's Head Vampire," which will shortly be presented. In this production the Cheerful Idiot has been asked to pay the part of a waffle, but he says he is no good in tragedy and begs to be excused.

But the pictures are going on just the same, including those in which Volisa Van Bush Veredevere takes part and in which the baby Bernhardt was filmed before her departure for New York.

It will be some picture.

They are already talking about it.

After the symposium the club members took part in the work of the studio.

In the meantime all applications for membership, all happy thoughts, or limericks of persons and places as well as reports of discoveries of weird instruments of historical relics may be addressed to Eugene Brown, editorial rooms, The Times.

THE IRISH VILLAGE.

A Glimpse of Life Among the Mosses and the Heather.

Ireland wears her beauty unselfconsciousciously. She owes it all to nature. . . . She owes it to the vivid coloring of luxuriant mosses that hang, damp and glistening, from her rocks, to the thrusting spikes of rugged golden gorse and stains of purple heather.

For both gorse and heather love Ireland and grow where they can find a foothold from mountain top to valley's end. Wild thyme spreads itself in purple carpets over the hills and lines the borders of the bogs, so that, at one's every step, its sweetness fills the air. Untouched from year's end to year's end, the land maintains its spirit of savage, careless beauty, its luxuriance of hardy growth, its wild prodigality of color under skies of peculiar and striking clarity.

Ireland's happy-go-lucky, poetic country people maintain an existence that is similar to the existence of the growing things. They are part and portion of the wild nature about them. They ask for little else but leisure undisturbed, or for so little of toil that it leaves long quiet hours for loitering over the hills or sitting in the sun for the enjoyment of evenings spent in long drawn-out and often witty conversation. They have little and desire little.

Those groups of tiny whitewashed cabins that form the villages fall as naturally into the landscape as do the great gray and brown boulders on the hills. With walls a foot and a half thick and a thatched roof they can withstand the worst of winter storms and in summer remain cool and airy with open door and slow burning turf fire.

The true Irish village is composed of cabins. When, in a place, buildings rise to two stories and attain to slate roofs, then, properly speaking, that place assumes the dignity of a town, although the life carried on within it differs little from the life that is led in the villages.—[Christian Science Monitor.

SYMPATHY WAS MUTUAL.

Following the fake purchase of the German battleships, the Goeben and Breslau, by the Turkish government, (as everyone knows, the vessels were not sold at all, the Turkish flag simply being raised on them and their names changed in order to conceal the violation of neutrality in getting them through the Dardanelles and cementing the Turko-German entente,) there was great rejoicing in the Constantinople German colony and among the deluded Turks.

Writing of these momentous days in the World's Work, former Ambassador Morgenthau relates a bit of diplomatic repartee. A few weeks after the above incident, he says, "Djavid Bey, Minister of Finance, happened to meet a distinguished Belgian jurist, then in Constantinople.

"'I have terrible news for you,' said the sympathetic Turkish statesman. 'The Germans have captured Brussels.'

"The Belgian, a huge figure, more than six feet high, put his arm soothingly upon the shoulder of the diminutive Turk.

"'I have even more terrible news for you,' he said, pointing out to the stream where the Goeben and Breslau lay anchored. 'The Germans have captured Turkey.'"

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-datest.

The newest knitting bag has a frame of heavy leather, into which is set a coin purse, also of leather. The bag is of silk, either plain or moire.

Gingham frocks for runabouts have tabliers both back and front, sometimes of the striped or plaided gingham edged with plain color, again of plain color, with the gingham biased as an edge. These tabliers give the straight line effect desired in the season's silhouette.

Hats to match the organdy or gingham frocks, which are airy as the dresses.

The "war veil" of white chiffon with a band of black or navy passing around at the chin-line, giving a mysterious effect to the face beneath. Such veils are a boon to those whose chins or neck-lines are all too revealing!

Capes are growing in favor, their all-enveloping folds favoring both the too slender form and that which is too ample.

Now is the Time to Buy:

In the sales instituted with the determination that no stocks shall be carried over until fall, garments of all descriptions offered at war-saving cost.

Fruit jars at conservation prices, during the coming week, affording double opportunity for thrift; in first cost and in providing for winter food.

The fireless cooker which you have long wanted. In a sale this week, you may save on first cost and you will save inestimably in the long run, as the Good Housekeeper has amply proven.

House dresses, in a sale of such. Nowhere is a woman's daintiness more fully attested than in the manner of her dress at home. High-class bolivia coats for use this fall. A clearance of styles so good as to be useable next season, affords saving in these certain to be wanted garments.

Farmerette Launchings.

Launchings, mind you—not lynchings! The lynchings may come later, when the farmer's wife—but why speculate in remotely possible futures! I refer to the great crowds gathered daily, to watch the embarkation of the farmerettes, in front of the Chamber of Commerce Building. One can scarcely pass for the jam of—well mostly men—seeing off the farmerette stages. Such "bon voyages" are heard—not said aloud, of course, as: "They'll never stand the work!" "That's a pretty one!" "Too good looking to be a good farm hand!" "George! They look pretty in those clothes!" And many of the onlookers seem to silently express the wish that they were going along. A row of bleachers, at that starting place, with admission charged the lookers, might help pay stage fare for the farmerettes.

Paving the Way.

Time was when the girl about to start upon a hiking trip moved with trepidation along the downtown street, and made sure to display her haversack and her canteen to prove that she was really going hiking and to furnish an excuse for the array. The farmeretting has made such suits so common that no excuse is needed and khaki breeches feminine are a common noun, and of small renown. How long will it be, I wonder, until we shall be as accustomed to see the full fledged and full trousered gingham garments, for shopping wear and office use?

Peaceful Pajamas.

Or rather piece-full—one piece at that. I refer to the newest of feminine pajamas, made in one piece and resembling—if they will please pardon the imputation—those garments worn by circus clowns. Of course the clown make-up need not necessarily follow, since girls dislike so to make up.

Basementing.

"This is my week for basementing," said Evelyn, when I met her recently. Now Evelyn did not formerly take cognizance of basements, and so I was somewhat surprised and required an explanation. "Well, you see, several of the basements have become so high class and yet are so helpful in war savings that I have taken to patronizing them," said she in answer to my inquiries, and enumerated her basement favorites. "I go home laden with loot on special basement days," said she triumphantly.

New Jewelry.

"Summer jewelry" has come to be the term for that light and colorful addenda to the airy toilette which comes into use during the warmer months when formal attire is laid away. Among the newest is the jewelry in black with brilliant color combinations, such as scarlet, blue, yellow in either an amber tint or a true orange color. These, in earrings, brooches, necklaces, are extremely popular, furnishing as they do, a needed touch of high light to the costume of white or pastel hues.

A Touch of Quaintness.

The same touch of quaintness required in the costume is popular in the home. The Windsor chair is just the article of furniture for giving this wanted touch. A sale during the coming week, brings such chairs into reach for dollars so very few as to astonish the would-be purchaser.

Delicious Conserve.

The Good Housekeeper revels in making a preserve most delicious. Apricots and pineapple, half and half, is her favorite. When apricots are most plentiful, she puts up for the coming year—and in case pineapples are scarce, she either uses canned ones, or puts up the apricots and awaits the time when pineapples are plentiful, to combine the flavors.

Crystal Gazing.

Gazing at that table of crystal dishes, for use upon the porch tea table, may not have the charm of the mystical crystal gazing, but it is sure to set you to planning something lovely for summer porch pleasure. At that big housefurnishing house, there is such an array of novel condiment dishes, tea and coffee appurtenances and glasses which look so alluringly sippy that you are certain to be convinced of their qualities for porch use. Truly, we should make more than we do of the out-of-doors, here in Southern California, don't you think?

THE CONDUCTORETTE.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) July 2.—The future of the woman street car conductor, her desirability and usefulness, is a problem to which the public, the government, organized labor and capital are devoting much attention. The conductorette just now finds herself the storm center of a variety of criticism. Getting her chance as a result of war emergency, she has not yet passed the stage of experiment. What is to become of her is a matter of uncertainty.

Broadly speaking, the public has betrayed no definite impression regarding the conductorette, except that she should be given a fair chance. Where possible it has tried to make allowances for her shortcomings, and, where evident, to recognize her virtues. It frowns when it is charged that the conductorette is more disposed to make cat's eyes at the motorman than categoric eyes at the transfer ticket; and it smiles when told that her diplomatic courtesy fares better in the management of crowds than the "watch your step" discipline of her male prototype. But the public has reserved decision.

Organized male labor, and to a large degree organized female labor, is avowedly hostile to the conductorette. It is said that women are difficult to organize. In most cases they are content to work longer at a fixed maximum wage than are men, possibly because their obligations are fewer. Though it has been shown that many conductorettes are compelled to support families on their earnings, the woman breadwinner does not happen often enough in any sphere of industrial life to make her a predominant type.

Most women's trade union bodies are likewise disposed to view the conductorette with distrust. The general attitude of woman labor leaders on the question was expressed by Miss Lenore O'Reilly, secretary of the Women's Trade Union League of New York, who said: "While there is one unemployed man, no woman should be put to work in any field of distinctly manual labor."

Labor for the most part is willing to concede the contention of street railway operators that the conductorette became a necessity because of the dearth of available male labor. It holds, however, that the reason for this scarcity was the failure of the operators to offer an adequate wage to prospective motormen and conductors. It points out that nearly all of the companies which have employed the conductorette, have in the past consistently refused to allow their employees to organize.

With the recommendation of the National War Labor Board to the President that street railway employees be paid an increased minimum wage, labor believes that the one excuse for the conductorette has been removed. Afforded the prospect of decent pay the work of street car operation is attractive to enough men to fill whatever vacancies may exist in the rosters of the companies concerned. It is extremely likely that organized labor will attempt to bring the War Labor Board to a decision on this point.

The government, though it has not yet placed official condemnation on the conductorette, is disposed to regard her with misgiving. Through the Department of Labor, it recently made an investigation into the conditions affecting woman street railway employees. The report of Benjamin M. Squires who led the investigation asserted a belief that the operation of street cars "is one of the last occupations into which a woman should be lured or forced."

In taking this view Mr. Squires does not see in woman a menace to the welfare of other street railway employees, so much as in street railway employment a menace to the welfare of womankind. The woman, he says, is not physically equipped to stand the strain required of a street car conductor. He cites the nervous tension resulting from riding all day on a car that is constantly starting and stopping. This coupled with the necessity of standing up for long periods, is something which women cannot undergo without serious danger to their health. In connection with the matter of health it might be mentioned that a large proportion of the women conductors prefer to be assigned to night runs, giving various reasons for this preference. Some of them are mothers who wish to look after their children during the day.

Street railway capital is suspected of a secret fondness for the conductorette. It explains her existence on the ground of necessity, but officials of the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Employee's Union are prone to believe that even were the necessity removed, the operators would endeavor to retain the woman conductor as a permanent institution. She is punctual, painstaking and evinces much interest and liking for her work. Besides she is said to have the merit of "loyalty to the company" so dear to the heart of the traction magnate. In this regard very little evidence is obtainable save statements from various street railway presidents in cities where the conductorette has been tried to the effect that she has so far proved satisfactory.

But whatever the attitude of capital toward the conductorette, Mr. Squires has made it clear that capital has not made the provision for her comfort and well being that might reasonably be expected. In his report to the Labor Department he shows that in many cases the companies failed to provide adequate rest-rooms and lunch-rooms for the women employees, and that they were, in some instances, compelled to share the rest-rooms and lunch-rooms used by the men. This state of affairs was most frequent in Brooklyn, where the grand jury made it the subject of an investigation. It must be said, though, that the companies are now endeavoring to provide proper facilities for the women.

And in spite of everything the conductorette seems pretty well satisfied with her job. Available figures show that, out of the 1100 women conductors employed by street car companies since last December, less than one-fifth the number have left the service. This may be explained by the fact that it provides higher wages than most of the women could earn in any other line of work. But being a conductorette, in itself, seems to have a fascination for women. Each day the employment officers in cities where the conductorette is in vogue, are besieged by swarms of the sex ranging in age from seventeen to sixty. At first a great deal of indiscriminate hiring and firing resulted, but now the selection from applicants is being made with the greatest care.

While it cannot be said that the public is losing interest in the conductorette, certainly whatever novelty she possesses for the street car rider is fast wearing off. He no longer thrills when he is told to "move up front, please" in a soft contralto instead of a bass growl—though he usually does move up. Even rural visitors are beginning to take the conductorette as a matter of course.

Yet the average passenger as he watches the conductorette swinging along the running board, adjusting a recalcitrant hairpin or two as she goes, punching transfers with one soiled hand and operating the door lever with the other, deftly answering the while a dozen questions and giving a score of directions, wonders if it is right that women should do such work, and if it is right for the State to permit them to do it. And as he watches he puts the question to himself—will she last?

COMMODORE BLACKTON MAKES A DECISION.

COMMODORE J. STUART BLACKTON, sometimes called the "master of screencraft" by his admirers, is the last of the prominent men in the motion-picture industry to become imbued with the California spirit. Blackton arrived here a short time ago to make but two photoplays, but he soon forgot how many pictures he intended to make in Los Angeles and sent word to New York City that he was "off of them for life."

Sunny Salubrious Southern California is to be congratulated upon having made so quick a conquest of a man who for nearly two decades has been a live and consistent booster for the cultured and effete East.

While he has been in Los Angeles, Blackton has finished "Wild Youth," by Sir Gilbert Parker, which was shown here recently, "Missing," by Mrs. Humphry Ward, and "The World for Sale," a thrilling Canadian story.

Commodore Blackton has large real estate holdings in the East, which he will now place in a caretaker's hands while he returns to take up the like in Hollywood. His most pretentious eastern holding is his summer home at Oyster Bay, directly adjoining that of Col. Roosevelt. The Blackton sixty-five acres at Oyster Bay is one of the chief show places of that part of country. In Brooklyn, Mr. Blackton has a beautiful town mansion of forty rooms. He also owns a major portion of one of the largest film studios in the East. Yet, with all this, he has decided to relinquish everything in the neighborhood of New York and settle down, bag and baggage, in Los Angeles.

Commodore Blackton has been quietly searching for a place where he can make a composite of all that he has in the East, plus a few pet ideas impossible in the frigid atmosphere encountered between Forty-second street and the Rocky Mountains. Right here in Los Angeles, well within the city limits, he feels that he can replace his too-distant Oyster Bay property and invest it with all the city comforts he has come to expect from his Brooklyn mansion.

J. Stuart Blackton is a world-wide traveler. He has observed the beauties of all the parts of the globe and is alive to the peculiar possibilities of Southern California for the combination of country home health with city pleasures and creature comforts.

'Tis Smith Center.

THE MOOT QUESTION, "FATTY'S" BIRTHPLACE.

ROSCOE "FATTY" ARBUCKLE says he is getting tired of being accused of a different birthplace every time he picks up a newspaper or magazine. The various towns range from almost "Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands." Once and for all, Fatty wants the whole wide world to know that he was born in Smith Center, Kan.—and proud of it.

It is true that he departed with his family from that Kansas metropolis at an early age—in fact, he was exactly one year old,—emigrating to Santa Ana, Cal., but the jovial rotund comedian claims Smith Center for all time despite cyclones and such impediments.

As to the date of his birth, the fat fun-maker has been exempted in the draft (cause obvious) and the curious can draw their own conclusions about his age.

"My parents raised me to be anything but an actor," says the commander-in-chief of the army of fun, "and that is undoubtedly the reason why I became one."

The comedian's pet diversions after a hard day at the strenuous work of making people laugh are driving two high-powered motor cars and swimming in the surf at Long Beach near his studio. Fatty Arbuckle is rated as one of the cleverest amateur swimmers, having picked up many tricks of the water art at Honolulu. His constant companion either in the ocean or at the wheel of one of his cars is "Luke," the famous bull terrier comedian.

"PERSHING'S CRUSADERS" A BLOW AT AUTOCRACY.

INTO the widely popular domain of motion-picture producing has come a new and powerful factor. Uncle Sam is now presenting all over the United States one of the most intensely interesting pictures of the day, "Pershing's Crusaders," showing what our government is doing to strike down autocracy, gives a vivid portrayal of our boys here and "over there."

The New York Tribune recently said: "This is the first war of submarines and airplanes—it is also the first war of moving pictures." In "Pershing's Crusaders," which is presented by the State Council of Defense, you see our American boys in the front line trenches. You see Secretary of War Baker and Gen. Pershing inspecting our preparations in France. You see the first German prisoners captured by our brave boys—two dozen disheartened, defeated Boches.

You also see what Uncle Sam's countless civilian army is doing "over there." Miles of cantonments grow over night. Fleets of airplanes darken the skies. Massive ships of steel and concrete speed down the ways. Mighty guns and projectiles are made before your eyes. You realize that every American is doing his best to help win this war. Our great navy, our huge and growing army, and all our immense resources of field and mine and forest, are in this struggle to the successful end. It is indeed a picture that every soldier's mother, wife or sweetheart will want to see. You may see your boy "over there."

"Pershing's Crusaders" is the first of big pictures to be made by our government.

Car Jolt Sets Thigh.

After being in the Pottstown Hospital for more than nine weeks with a fractured leg, Constable Albert H. Keifreider was able to be about with the aid of crutches. The bone had knit all right, but he could not walk. Yesterday he went on a trip with his son Harry in a motor truck to Philadelphia. Near Norristown he was thrown violently against the side of the truck when it struck a ditch.

A few minutes later he discovered that he could walk with ease. Doctors explained that the officer also had been suffering from a dislocated thigh, which was jolted into place when the truck hit the ditch.—[Pottstown (Pa.) Correspondence Philadelphia Record.

WOUNDED SOLDIER.

Tells of His Experiences After Being Hit in the Eye by a Bullet.

"Since I came back from the great adventure across the channel minus an eye, says a soldier quoted in London Ideas, many of my friends have displayed a lively curiosity as to my feelings when I was hit, and in the intervening time—some fifteen or sixteen hours in my case—until I found myself safely tucked up in a hospital bed.

I don't regard this as a morbid curiosity. It is a natural desire to get hold of the emotions of another in circumstances that they have never known themselves.

What did I feel? I have often asked myself that question since and found it not easy to answer. My impressions are confused and not at all clear. I was hit by a machine-gun bullet, which pierced the rim of my steel hat and cut a straight wound from where the hair joins the forehead at the side to the outer corner of the eye.

I had no pain—at least, I remember none. I was very dazed, but quite conscious. I heard my company O. C., who was within a yard of me when I was hit, shout "stretcher bearers," and then ask me where my field dressing was. "In my right-hand tunic pocket," I said.

I felt them taking the field dressing from my pocket, and I felt them binding the gauze pad over the wound and tying the tapes behind my head. All the time I saw nothing. I had closed my other eye and kept it closed.

The wound, it seemed to me, was across the cheek bone and just under the eye, whereas it was really about an inch and a half higher up. The dressing, of course, covered the eye, and I began to wonder if it was affected.

"Is my eye all right," I asked the captain, but to this I received no answer, and after a while I lay back, feeling faint.

I heard the captain discussing with the head stretcher-bearer the possibility of taking me back at once to the regimental aid post, which was 1000 yards in the rear of us, the way lying over open country and the going being very bad. There had been an advance four days before, you see, and our communications were in the air. The stretcher-bearer said it would be dark in a few minutes, and he didn't think he could find his way except in daylight.

The captain was talking to me again. "Can you stick it until daylight?" he said.

That sounded rather like a challenge. "Yes, I'll stick it all right," I said. But I was conscious of a bitter disappointment. What I wanted more than anything else on earth was to get between sheets and go to sleep, and another night in the open wasn't a pleasant prospect.

I asked for a waterproof sheet and put that over my head—it was raining hard—and tried to sleep. I remember asking once or twice during the night from under my waterproof sheet if it was light enough to go back to the dressing station. When dawn did break and we set out on our journey I was much happier.

I was operated on at the casualty clearing station. The wound was cleaned and sewn up and the battered eye removed, but I have no impressions at all of that. I have a dim recollection of being carried on a stretcher from the ward where I lay into another room, where I was lifted on something flat. My tired brain had just sufficient life in it to grasp the fact that this might be an operating table when I smelt chloroform and retired into unconsciousness. My next memory is of awakening in bed and feeling quite comfortable.

I stayed that night in the C.C.S. and went on in an ambulance train next day to one of the base hospitals. Still I had no pain from the wound, but my head ached damnably, and I remember inwardly fretting at the jolting of the train, and looking forward to a hospital bed where I could lie still and be quiet. Food didn't interest me much, but sleep did.

It was the next day in the base hospital when I first began to sit up and take notice, and when I first knew that my eye was gone.

Recognized His Whistle.

When a long troop train pulled into Brookfield one day recently, en route for the East, a passenger train was sidetracked to make way for it. Leaning from one of the windows of the first train, a soldier put his fingers in his mouth and let out a shrill and prolonged whistle, writes A. A. Jeffrey. At once a window in the passenger train was opened and a young woman put out her head. "That's Joe—I know his whistle," she said, and sure enough, there she was face to face with her brother. Their home was at Monroe City, and neither knew that the other was en route through Brookfield.—[Kansas City Times.

CALE YOUNG RICE, TRUE POET, IGNORED BY LEADING "CRITICS"

The Bright Young Men Speaking with Voices of Authority Condemn Him—He has Been Writing Poetry Continuously for Twenty Years and in the Midst of a "Renaissance" is Unmentioned by the Professional Encouragers of Bards—Some Examples of His Verse.

WRAITHS AND REALITIES. By Cale Young Rice. The Century Company, New York.

IF I HAD my way about it Cale Young Rice would be locked in some tall battlement tower and a jug of water and a loaf of bread would be handed in to him from day to day in exchange for lyrics only. One of the few features that are not pleasant in his work is the diversity of moods, a fine testimonial to his versatility perhaps, for, as in this book, there are narratives, didactic verse, songs, pastorals, metaphysical reachings and lyrics; and on one page the ear is tuned, the mood evoked, only to be shattered on the next by something, likely as not exquisite, but of different pitch and another mood. In the writing of lyrics he is unsurpassed, unequaled as far as my appreciation is concerned, by any modern. True there are very few lyrical voices, but those are good—Alfred Noyes particularly and Sara Teasdale within her selected boundaries; and where a hundred ears are familiar with those names, scarcely one has heard, or at most remembers, that of Cale Young Rice. Yet he is an American, has been writing continuously for almost twenty years, and has produced poetry enough to have made a half-dozen sons of the muse deservedly known.

Though we are in the midst of what the enthusiasts call a "renaissance of poetry"—and some magazines and many books, anthologies, "studies," essays, estimates, affect pride in and generosity toward American poets of all schools and cults—his name is rarely mentioned. And it happens, to the greater shame of the pulpiteers holding forth in magazines and authologies, that there are certain qualities in the poetry of Cale Young Rice that are not debatable. His sensitiveness, intellectuality, poignancy and other qualities that are matters of subjective impression may be denied and the denial defended. When a man of the prominence of Clayton Hamilton says that Browning is a poet far inferior to Tennyson and is praised by none other than the cheap "intellectuals," and by these only because they want to appear as understanding something the common herd cannot, any kind of a denial and defense for it may be expected from the less distinguished brood of American "critics."

So some of them, wonderfully well fortified by ignorance of orthometry, may deny that Mr. Rice has a technical skill in versification—mere mechanics, if you please, a thing provable as Euclid—that has not been seen to any extent in this country since Poe and Longfellow. And I am encouraged by the vision of apoplectic rage that will gripe many of my brother—and sister—reviewers when they hear of it, to assert that Longfellow had a technical mastery exceeding that of Poe.

There are depths within depths to poetic technique. The vers librists contemptuously term it a "strait-jacket"—a "sweat box"—that is, the form of versification called, for want of better word, "classic." They seem to think it merely a matter of feet and rhyme, whereas it is vast as the ocean of language, and Amy Lowell is the only one of vers librists who, in addition to being a poet of extreme excellence, has demonstrated profundity of verse technique. Some vers librists have asserted with an air of distinction that their queer typographical effects are efforts to make the rhythm (admittedly obsecure) suitable to the thought; as though there was never an "old style" poet worthy of the name poet who did not take those effects so much for granted as part of his work that he never thought to mention it as any kind of a distinction. A simple illustration out of Cale Young Rice's "Far Quests," published some years ago, and containing a poem, "A Lydian Bacchanal": This is a description of a mad rout, love-mad, wine-mad, written in breathless and swirling iambic dimeter until the climax is reached, the dancers tired, and then the poet without changing the meter slows down the rapid action by the choice of words that, though still rhythmic and poetical, simply cannot be read rapidly. It is regrettable that Mr. Rice did not write an introduction or add a foot note, or in some way call attention to this so that the reviewers might know about it.

And in speaking of reviewers, critics and such, I have too much admiration for Miss Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry, to believe that she considers Mr. Rice as valueless as her silence and, if not silence, brevity indicate. I can understand and, in a degree, excuse Miss Monroe's antagonism—usually silent. In Poetry she has made a long, hard, uphill fight to compel recognition for poets who are not classical, poets rebellious and insolently modern; and she has gradually gathered about her a legion of writers that adapted from foreign soil the standard of "Vers Libre"; so that for her to continue the compliments that she once gave Mr. Rice would be to praise those forms and ideals which are not without merit, but which, if given much encouragement, might again reduce poetry to tailpieces and filler for fiction magazines.

But that Mr. William Stanley Braithwaite, compiler of anthologies, ecstatic commentator of every form and type of verse, seemingly in possession of a cornucopia for a fountain pen to shower blessings on every unlucky wight that a cunning publisher can seduce into paying for the publication of poems, and who, until very recent years, was a decrier of "free verse" which he now applauds with the loudest in the effort to maintain his role as the foremost encourager of poetry—that this same Mr. Braithwaite should, with a protracted silence that must be construed as malicious, wholly disregard Mr. Rice and his efforts, is rather mystifying. I invited Mr. Braithwaite to explain or comment on his solicitous silence, but the invitation seems to have been discarded to that limbo wherein he has also sought to cast the poet himself. Mr. Braithwaite is culpable, or something more, for his conspicuous silence, because he is, by as nearly a general public as a writer on poetry ever gets, considered generous and the chief source of criticism. That—except as a wholesale collector of magazine verse and a compiler of current bibliography—he is entirely worthless to anybody that is capable of analyzing a preference does not, of course, impair such popularity as he enjoys.

Another critic, one Clement Wood, whose contribution to poetry in practice does not indicate any great amount of feeling or knowledge in the subject, has lately, in the New York Call, taken it upon himself not only to play Macaulay to Montgomery, but has torn a passion to tatters in condemning all persons who have spoken favorably of Mr. Rice; and as some of these include eminently scholarly critics of England, whose knowledge of technical matters it is folly to question, the inference is that Mr. Wood has either failed to read Mr. Rice (we have Andrew Lang's word for it that critics read only prefaces) or he is possessed by some animus that leads him to viciousness.

Cale Young Rice has written much that I do not care for, some of it is in "Wraiths and Realities." I seldom read books—particularly of poetry—determined to find something good. I get no pleasure out of praising a book; what I write is simply the result of the book's reaction; and until reviewers become publishers' readers they have unusual impudence to speak of "discovering" anybody. Dismissing and censuring the old, the established, and "discovering" the new has become quite a critical fad. The appreciation that can praise something recent only by condemning something else, can, for instance, praise Amy Lowell only by disparaging Cale Young Rice, is not of very high value or much of a compliment to the poet favored.

And if it is pointed out, as it can be, that Mr. Rice has on occasion allowed technical imperfections to appear, it may be that he nodded or again it may be he knew what he was about. I have found instances of both. Any reviewer can find a thousand errors in Milton. A Robert Bridges can show that those "errors" were subtle intentions: and much of the trouble with the lack of understanding and appreciation for Mr. Rice is due to the fact that he aims for and achieves effects of which the average modern American poet knows nothing and does not care about.

It perhaps requires remembrance of Saint-Saens's "Danse Macabre" to get the fullest impression of this which might well have been inspired by the music rather than by an old print:

"I heard a great rattle of bones in the night,
And saw the dead rise from the earth—a sight!
They carried them lanterns of will-o'-the-wisps,
And their speech cackled and broke with lisps.

"They flung shrouds off and got in a ring,
And knuckle to knuckle I saw them spring.
Their hair blew off, and skull to skull
They gabbled and danced interminable.

"And thigh-bone rattled with bone of thigh,
As tooth and tongue were spat at the sky.
And they chaunted a chilly, gibbering chaunt
Of how the dead have never a want.

" 'For what want we of the Universe,
We who have six full feet of clay
'To be for our cuddling bones a nurse,'
They clacked to a rasping roundelay.

" 'What want we of the Universe?
We lie in the dust there snug and still;
And the quick may have their batter or worse:
We have what's best—we have our will.'

"So with cackle, gabble and dance,
With rattle of joints and jig and scream,
Then back to their graves with skitter and glance.
They dropt. Zounds! What an idiot dream!"

And he must be an extremely peculiar lover of poetry who can read "Transmutation" without a flush of amazement at the soft resonance that evokes the mood of solemn ritual in an old Italian church. At the sound of a bell "in a dull and dirty cupola" the poet's fancy bears him:

"To a little town in Italy, a church in sunny Italy,
Beneath calm silvery olive trees.
And a lake is lapping by, lap-lapping at the fisher boats,
And mountain peaks are lifting snowy mitres to the breeze.
And a mass is being said, and a prayer is in a hundred throats—
Soft, and asway with mysteries."

And of the same quality is "Chanson of the Bells of Oseney," a mood swung high by sheer technique, as moods are always evoked (vide Poe, or anybody else;) and through it all a rich and sensitive poetic feeling that is as absent from contemporary poetry as willful elimination can make it. Not since the earlier work of Maurice Hewlett and Vernon Lee has anyone that I know of excepting Mr. Rice caught the misty spiritualism, half sensuous and part ascetic of Italy. This is particularly true in his poetic dramas, none of which appears in "Wraiths and Realities," although he has two dramatic fragments that show, not only his imagination, but the choice diction and balanced weight of every word. Whether in phantasmal realities, as the "Danse Macabre," or in lyrics, with very few exceptions the word used seems under scrutiny the inevitable word.

It is in the lyrical efforts that Mr. Rice most nearly puts off mortal vestures:

"Will the earth-poetry of Greece never die?
Sitting in the green wood, lonely, was I,
When I heard the voice sing, centuries away,
From the Vale of Tempe, from the gods' sway:
April is a naiad
Slipping from a pool;
May a leafy dryad
Hiding in the cool;
June is a wood nymph
Teasing them to play;
Till comes, later,
The hot-hearted satyr,
August, their awaiter,
To frighten them away!
Will the earth-poetry of Greece never die?
Still for its youth must the whole world sigh?

And anyone who thinks that the roughness, almost awkwardness, of the opening and closing lines, with their slow, dragging words, are unintentional, need only to reread the pagan chant between them to see what keenness of ear and surety of word Mr. Rice has; and a second glance will distinguish how, with "centuries away" and "From the Vale of Tempe, from the gods' sway" he slipped imperceptibly into the lilt that follows. When such illustrations as that occur and reoccur through the length of a poet's voluminous works it is folly to dismiss them as accidents or to assert that the hypnotized critic is seeing magic where it is not.

In the present volume Mr. Rice has two experiments in narrative verse. I care nothing for the narrative—or perhaps I should call it "plot"—of "Old Garth's Jess" or the tragic story of Maisie in "Wraithwood Hill," as relatived by Mr. Rice, but the effortless vividity, the unstrained rhymes that fall like heavier cadences in the rhythm, are not excelled by Mr. Masefield, who has won himself a distinguished place with that sort of verse, and that sort alone.

It is such poems as "Brother Beasts" and "Songs to A. H. R." and "Waste" that Mr. Rice shows with what singing sweetness and simple imagery he can remove himself from artfulness and cunning workmanship, singing effortless as a bird at sunrise.

"I flung a wild rose into the sea,
I know not why.
For swinging there on a rathe rose-tree,
By the scented bay and barberry,
Its petals gave all their sweet to me,
As I passed by"

is the opening stanza of "Waste."

One reason undoubtedly why the young critics flare up at Mr. Rice's name is because he is frequently didactic. I like didactic expression and rhymed platitudes as little as anybody can; and there are certain words, too abstract and too much in the mouths of untrained, uncultivated poets that he uses; and I would like him to have a synonym for "God," and it happens that frequently his religious feeling carries him to devotional exercises from which I flee with stopped ears; but for sheer poetry, the exalted mood and sensitive feeling, sensitive expression, with the lambent flame of thought playing through it, combined with what approaches a perfection of rhythm and subtle rhyme, one must go outside of contemporary life to find something of similar excellence. And if faults, and some things not likable cannot be forgiven such a poet, then ghouls might as well be turned into Westminster Abbey and the critical Turks again fire the libraries.

NORMAN HALL, PRISONER.

All doubt as to the fate of Capt. James Norman Hall, who fell some weeks ago behind the German lines, is cleared up by word which has just been received by his publishers, Houghton Mifflin Company, from the International Red Cross, to the effect that "Capt. Hall has been reported officially by the German Red Cross as a prisoner." The Red Cross does not yet know Capt. Hall's prison camp address, but hopes to secure the information very soon. "High Adventure," Capt. Hall's thrilling account of his experiences with the Lafayette Escadrille and the American Flying Squadron will be published by Houghton Mifflin Company.

"SPECTRA" A HOAX.

Some months ago a book called the names of Emanuel Morgan and Anne Kish. It assumed to be poetry and the preface indicated the quite usual desire of new poets to found a new school.

Through the New York Times the revelation has been made that the whole thing was a hoax gotten up by Witter Bynner and Arthur Davison Ficke as a parody on the freakish forms which contemporary verse has been taken. The Spectrists were solemnly praised by many reviewers, roasted by some and discarded contemptuously by most. "Reedy's Mirror" waxed enthusiastic, and so did many others. Mr. Bynner, who has exposed the secret, seems to feel that he has put a great joke over on the critics because none of them penetrated the hoax, as though in these times when the entire sincerity of the whole schools of freaks is doubted—it is more charitable to doubt the sincerity than to believe the Lord inspired them with no more taste or ability than has been shown by many, if not most of the neoteric cults—one can pause to inquire into what may possibly have been the motive behind any particular book; and "Spectra" is no more like parody than the very solemnly issued "Others."

I said at the time that it was no worse than many of the other volumes, being unintelligible and worthless.

Mr. Bynner said "the book was reviewed all over the country. Well-known poets and editors wrote in praise of it. We had stated that the two authors lived in Pittsburgh, because we believed that there would be less danger of the secret being ferreted out there, since interest in schools of poetry is not the big thing in the life of the average Pittsburgher. But we had to do something about the letters that came to the poets, so we gave, as Emanuel Morgan's address, the address of a lady in Pittsburgh whom I know—a lady who hates everything that savors of Vorticism or Imagism!—and she, poor thing, was promptly deluged with letters about Spectrism. Some people even appeared in person to pry into the lives of the founders of Spectrism, and my poor Pittsburgh friend had to say that Mr. Morgan was out or sick or in New York and answer stacks of mail declining invitations for him and Miss Knish to lecture and attend banquets."

Mr. Bynner declares that one admirer, unsuspecting the true character of "Spectra," declared it was "the best thing since Shakespeare." One youth wrote a letter to "Dear Mr. Morgan," enclosing samples of verse and asking, "Please tell me—am I a Spectrist?"

In the meantime Ficke and Bynner let Marjory Allen Seifert of Moline, Ill., into the secret, and she, taking the name of Elijah Hay, produced a lot of "Spectrist" verse that appeared in various magazines and won praise from Alfred Kreymborg—the high priest of the freak cults.

Reedy's Mirror retorted, when discovering how it had been hoaxed, that "Spectra" was far more successful than anything either Bynner or Ficke had previously done; which, being perhaps in a degree true, shows what a stupid, sensation-gorging animal the public is, for both men are poets who have done much that deserves intelligent appreciation.

MAGAZINE VERSE.

THE GOLDEN TREASURY OF MAGAZINE VERSE. Compiled by William Stanley Braithwaite. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

This is a very acceptable book, the most acceptable of any of Mr. Braithwaite's collection that I have seen and incidentally—perhaps not incidentally, either—it contains the shortest foreword.

The verses have been selected from magazines between 1905 and 1917, but the work of recent years, as is perhaps natural, appears in the largest quantity. It would have been interesting, though perhaps of no particular value, if the date of publication had been given. There are, I should judge, between four and five hundred pieces, and though the sins of omission appear to be many, it may not be gratuitous fault-finding to remark that Edgar Lee Masters is not represented by anything out of "Spoon River Anthology," and that Amy Lowell's "Lead Soldiers" is absent. True, some twenty and more pages are given to her "Guns as Keys: And the Great Gate Swings," which is a notable piece of work, being very much alone in its sustained force and polyphonic majesty.

"The Golden Treasury," as a piece of book-making, is artistic, resembling the Oxford Press format, with blue cover, gold lettering and a pleasing quality of paper. There is some reason for setting the sale price at $2.

DREISER AND "FREE."

A good story comes out of Boni & Liveright's office about "Free and Other Stories," a volume of short stories by Theodore Dreiser, which is to be published this month. When the dummy and jacket of the book were submitted to Dreiser, he said: "For Heaven's sake, don't call the book 'Free,' but name it 'Free and Other Stories.' If you don't, people will think this is another novel by me, and it seems that some people don't like my novels. This is the first book of short stories I've published, so give it a chance." There are eleven stories in the book, three of which Edward J. O'Brien has placed among the ten best written in the last few years. The title story appeared in the Saturday Evening Post a few months ago.

AMERICA FIRST.

A GUIDE TO THE NATIONAL PARKS OF AMERICA. Edited by Edward Frank Allen. With Maps and Illustrations. Robert McBride & Co., New York.

FINDING THE WORTH WHILE IN THE SOUTHWEST. By Charles Francis Saunders. With Map and Illustrations. Robert McBride & Co., New York.

Mr. Allen's guide to the national parks is thorough and detailed, and the maps are real maps, the advice practical, and the information concise and of the nature expected. Other books have been more detailed but less comprehensive and of larger bulk. This small book offers suggestion on seeing the Yellowstone, the Glacier, Yosemite, the Rocky Mountain, Mount Rainier, Sequoia and Gen. Grant parks, the Grand Canyon, the Canadian national parks, and others, many others. One is not likely to realize there are so many national parks. The various tours in each are described briefly and the most impressive scenic effects noted.

Mr. Saunders in offering suggestions for the worth-while in the Southwest has had a larger territorial order to fill, but his familiarity with the subject has made available for the tourist a great deal of information that it would be laborious to glean from other sources. Naturally he has stressed the interest of the Indian life and communities and also given attention to the Spanish features; and he has been instructive and illuminating. This may be taken as a companion book to his "Finding the Worth While in California"—a book that Californians would profit from reading.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS.

Accident to Lieut. Pat O'Brien.

Lieut. Pat OBrien, author of "Outwitting the Hun," has just sustained another fall from an airplane, this time two thousand feet in Texas instead of eight thousand feet behind the German lines. He is suffering from a broken nose and is badly shaken, but as as soon as he had climbed out of the damaged machine he started joking and said he was ready for travel. Shortly after the publication of his book, "Outwitting the Hun," by Harper & Bros., Lieut. O'Brien started on a lecture tour and has been flying in different aviation camps in the United States, as well as doing splendid work during the Third Liberty Loan campaign.

Donald Hankey.

E. P. Dutton & Co. say that Donald Hankey's two volumes of articles descriptive of the life, thought and feeling of men at the front, "A Student in Arms," of which the first series was published a year and a half ago and the second a few months later, continue to sell as steadily as they did during the first year of their publication. More than sixty thousand copies have been bought in this country and wherever people are reading the more thoughtful kind of war books Hankey's are always a topic of discussion. Many copies have gone to France with our soldiers and what they think of them is told by a soldier lad from Massachusetts who wrote to his mother two months ago: "I wish you and dad would read 'A Student in Arms,' byDonald Hankey. People back home always want dope on the war, by which is usually meant stories of the V. C., bursting shells, raids, etc. But there is another phase of war experience, and that is the effect of war on the inner man, his outlook, his philosophy; all of which are so deliciously handled by Hankey that I wish I had written the book myself. His thoughts to a great extent, especially as regards the church, are the same that I have often thought. This book will give people back home an insight into the philosophic side of life at the front."

William Wordsworth.

Although it may seem a bit unexpected, even startling, to see a book of critical literary appreciation come out of France just now, nevertheless, "The Early Life of William Wordsworth," by Emile Legouis, professor in the University of Lyons, which E. P. Dutton & Co. are publishing, has a singular appropriateness to the present time, although it was written some twenty or more years ago. It covers the first twenty-eight years of Wordsworth's life and devotes special attention to his life in France during the revolution and his friendship with some of its important spirits. A prefatory note by Leslie Stephen discusses briefly the curious contrast presented by Wordsworth's youth, with its enthusiasm for progress and liberal ideas, and his later life in which he became an extreme conservative.

Enforced by Dog Whips.

That the German officers carried small whips with which to accentuate their commands—given in a snarling and bullying tone—to the soldiers, is one of the many intimate points noted by Capt. A. Radclyffe Dugmore in his book, "When the Somme Ran Red," just published by Doran Company.

Falling into the enemy's hands, Capt. Dugmore escapes, or rather is let go, and then the famous camera hunter of African lions gets permission to go at once into the thick of the fray at Alost and take pictures of the German army in action. His camera is spotted and he is greeted with a shower of "German hail." He had almost made his escape when he was wounded in the leg by a shrapnel splinter.

As an eye-witness Capt. Dugmore lays great stress on the wonderful marksmanship of the Belgian soldiers.

The Gentle Hun.

Although by popular report, the German aviator is supposed to be the most chivalrous type of German extant (except when he amuses himself by bombing hospitals and Red Cross stations) the national characteristics will crop out upon occasion. An amusing example of this outcropping of "Kultur-Schrechlichkeit" is to be found in the reminiscences of Von Richthofen, the famous German flyer, a translation of which has just been published by Robert M. McBride & Co., under the title of "The Red Battle Flyer." Richthofen describes a meeting between his father and his brother and himself after a separation of many months. The old gentleman had arrived at the camp where the two brothers were stationed early in the morning, and while both of his young hopefuls were engaged in an air fight, Lothar, the author's brother, alighted near his father and greeted him affectionately with the remark: "Good morning, father. I have just shot down an Englishman." A moment later the author alighted and hastened forward. "Good morning, father. I have just shot down an Englishman," was his greeting also. It is not related that the father there and then blessed his worthy offspring, although we are assured by the author that the elder Richthofen was a delighted man all day.

Mr. Bennett Serving Posterity.

The London Nation says of Arnold Bennett's much discussed book, "The Pretty Lady," "one may imagine this novel acquiring a kind of immortality as representing, in days to come, the manner in which the great catastrophe crashed in upon a society whose life may well seem then frankly to have been incredible."

"Professional Honor."

Grace Fallow Norton, the poetess, who translated the letters of the young French officer of a French tramp steamer which make up the "Odyssey of a Torpedoed Transport," says in her preface: "He said, in anguish, 'All we shall have for our funeral oration will be silence everywhere.' But he had already written his own epitaph and that of his brave companions: 'You know what professional honor is!'" The last quoted phrase occurs in one of the letters to his friend, in which the author speaks of parting from his wife: "What a profession ours is! Life seems so beautiful—one launches into it like a ship on the sea. But when, to support a wife you adore, you have to earn a living at the price of never being with her—it's the worst of all. "THE UNWILLING VESTAL"

THE UNWILLING VESTAL. By Edward Lucas White. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

A PUGNACIOUS preface begins: "The title of this romance is likely to prejudice any reader against it. There exists a popular delusion that fiction with a classical setting is bound to be dull and lumbering, that it is impossible for it to possess that quality of bravura slangily denominated 'punch.' Anybody will be disabused of that notion upon reading this story."

The preface then goes on to remark that those who do read it will probably conclude that it "cannot be based on any sound and genuine knowledge of its background," but "the details of rule and ritual, of dress and duties, of privilege and punishments are set forth in accordance with a full first-hand and intimate acquaintance with all available evidence touching the Vestals; including all known inscriptions relating to them, every passage in Roman or Greek literature in any way concerning them, the inferences drawn from all existing or recorded sculptures and coins which add to our knowledge of them, and every treatise written since the revival of learning in Europe in which the Vestals are discussed."

There is no internal evidence perceptible to me that Prof. White has exaggerated his familiarity with that distinguished and unique phase of the Roman religion. Seldom has information been more pleasingly diffused throughout a story, and one draws very near to the intimate life of the virgins that kept the sacred fires lighted.

As for the story itself—it has "punch." But it is not the "punchy plot" that makes "The Unwilling Vestal" a tense, entertaining book; it is the fact that the author exhausts the dramatic possibilities of every climacteric incident. He builds up his climaxes, creates interest, carefully sustains and intensifies it, then delivers the "punch." It is fine narrative art to do that; not the finest kind of narrative art, perhaps, but of so much value that there are few authors who can afford to treat that phase of story writing with disdain. There are many such incidents in Prof. White's book; although when Brinnaria, the youngest of vestals, leaps into the arena to save the gladiator who looks much like the man she loves, the author is only building for a larger dramatic scene. The man she loves eventually does appear in the arena, and gladiator after gladiator is sent in against him, until at last, worn out and wounded, he lies on the sands, and before all Rome the Emperor tests her poise and courage.

Brinnaria does not want to be a vestal. She is in love; but pestilence comes upon the city and she is claimed as an eligible maiden and goes into the thirty-year service. A high-spirited and lovable girl, something of a madcap despite the restraint and dignity of her office, she my career as a laboring woman began. The work is not unpleasant and certainly not lonesome. The mechanical skill needed is not extensive. The elevator is operated by a lever that swings along a graduated scale on which is marked "up," "down" and "stop." The speed of the car is regulated by the distance the lever is moved toward the up or down point. A full sweep of the lever, as I learned the first time I handled it, starts the car with a jerk that lands you half way to the next floor before you catch your breath. Only practice can make a person perfect in stopping at floors.

There is no such thing as unskilled labor. No matter what the job, some skill is required. That was proved to me on the elevator. It looked so easy just to swing that lever back and forth, but it takes skill and lots of it to make the car answer the lever with exactitude and nicety required.

RUSH HOUR WORK.

The rush intervals began about 7:45 in the morning and continued for probably an hour. During that time all ascending cars were crowded and must be dropped from the top with extra speed to make up for the time lost in stopping at each floor going up. Then again the rush for luncheon at noon, back again at 1 o'clock, and again at around 5 p.m. the rush is heavy. At other times of the day the work is easy.

I found, for one thing, that Los Angeles either is singularly free from the so-called masher, or else there is something preventing the activities of the species in that particular building. I talked with several of the girls regarding their experiences with "fresh" men and not one had had any unpleasantness. That record covered more than a year and speaks well for the Southland's manhood.

At the office building the uniform consisted of a short skirt and a short-cut suit coat, both of a dark-blue color and made of good material. Each girl furnished her own uniform, but I understood the company would advance the cost if necessary.

I remained on the job from 8 a.m. till 4:30 o'clock that afternoon, with half an hour off for lunch. I wish I could have kept the job. I enjoyed the day and there was not an unpleasant experience to record A large sign in the elevator declared it a violation of law to speak to the operator. Whether the law is such doesn't make much difference so far as the protection of the girls is concerned. They do not need the protection. It is a consensus of experience that woman is accepted as a member of the working community and so long as she remembers that fact herself she will find no one paying any attention to the feminine.

"HANDLING" WOMEN.

At the department store the work was much more difficult. Most passengers are women, and, from the depth of my experience, I am ashamed to confess that handling a crowd of women is vastly different from handling a crowd of men.

The office building elevators during the rush hours were filled with men and most of the observations were humorous, certainly good natured; during the rush hours at the store the elevators were filled with women and the observations were—well, different, to say the least.

The rush hours at the store were not so well regulated as at the other place. There might come a rush at any time, and during the eight hours I put in there I did not see the operator of any elevator seated even for a minute. Each of the several floors of the building has a different variety of goods. The elevator operator is supposed to call the list of each floor as it is reached. With from ten to twenty different articles on sale on each floor, and those constantly changed, and with the sales in different departments to remember, there is a constant strain on both mind and voice.

I hadn't been twenty minutes on the elevator before that much-bedeviled man had been "called down" by two customers, one floor walker and a department chief. And in no instance did I think the calling was warranted. The operator only laughed when I questioned him about it. "That's part of the job," he said. "I count those things in with the salary at the end of the week. As long as the weekly envelope covers the 'calls' I can stand it."

However, at that it is part of the job, and we women who expect to get and hold our places in industry, trade and commerce must be prepared to take the bad along with the good. But operating an elevator in the Los Angeles business world is considerably more than just pushing the button in a well-trained lift in an apartment-house.

SAILORS' SWEET TOOTH.

Sixty Thousand Dollars Worth of Candy is Eaten Monthly by Sailors at Great Lakes.

Much comment has been heard upon the statement made in the Bulletin recently that only one-fourth of a pound of sugar was allowed to be served each man in Great Lakes in all the food placed before him each day.

"It's bad not to have enough sugar; our systems need it," one bluejacket was heard to remark.

If anyone doubts that the sailors at this station get enough sugar to eat, let him look at the records which show how much candy the ship's stores sell.

During the months of April and May, and thus far in June, according to Assistant Paymaster James D. Boyle, who is in charge of the eleven stores, the men at Great Lakes consumed $175,000 worth of candy.

SOME APPETITE FOR SWEETS.

This money is spent in buying on an average 50,000 pieces of bar candy every week, not counting 20,000 bars of chocolate. Three thousand large boxes of candy are purchased every seven days. In the same length of time 10,000 packages of crackerjack are consumed. The Great Lakes sweet tooth also demands over 15,000 packages of cakes and cookies every week.

Besides these tidbits, the pay envelopes are considerably thinned by purchases of tobacco in various forms. Between May 22 and June 12, just 2.040.000 cigarettes from ships' stores went up in smoke. At the close of a week's business the stores invariably find they have sold about 20,000 cigars and 14,400 packages of tobacco. Of course matches are necessary to smoking, and although apparently no one ever buys matches, judging from the amount of borrowing done, those who know insist that 1,020,000 boxes of matches are sold weekly.

SOAP AND JAM.

Of course it is only natural that with all of the reviews being staged of late, shoes become dusty, and the stores now sell 10.000 cans of blacking each week. Other articles are sold in large quantities every week, including 5000 bars of washing soap, twice as much toilet soap, and innumerable jars of jam.

So, after all, Mr. Bluejacket gets enough sugar in his system, thanks to his hankering after good things.

As the hot weather continues, it is expected the sale of ice cream cones will become enormous. Eleven stands are being erected to handle the cone fans, and already, with only four stands in operation, an average of 1000 cones an hour is being sold.

A profit of 15 per cent. is made on all goods sold, which money goes into the coffers of the Athletic Association, according to Mr. Boyle, who said that $18,000 was netted last quarter.

As these figures do not include the amounts sold at the Navy Relief canteen or cafeteria, some idea of Jack's appetite for sweets may be gained.—[Great Lakes Bulletin.

Souvenirs for Susie."

Don't go hunting "souvenirs for Susie" when you next go up front. If you do, you are more than likely to deprive Susie of the only Souvenir she really wants to have you bring back from the war—namely, yourself.

"During the recent battle of Seicheprey, the Germans, in addition to mining the village before they were driven out, scattered helmets, bayonets, belts and other equipment about temptingly; counting on the fondness of American soldiers for souvenirs. Each was attached by a wire to high explosives, and a few American soldiers, eager for keepsakes, were wounded in this fashion."

The quotation is from the report of a news agency correspondent who was up there when it happened, who saw, and who knew. Souvenir-sapping is one of the Boche's favorite little dirty tricks. A word to the wise.—[Stars and Stripes, France.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

In the shipyard at Vancouver, Wash., there is a woman who is working successfully as a calker. Mrs. G. R. Underwood, who has two sons in the United States Army, both now overseas, determined to seek a place where she could serve her country to the best advantage, and she found employment with a shipping corporation.

"On one occasion, when her four assistants failed to appear for work, Mrs. Underwood alone managed the machine and kept the supply flowing steadily out to the men in the yards, so that no calker had to wait for his oakum," said the head of the corporation. "She works until she is ready to drop. The vision of those two magnificent boys is constantly before her, and she feels that every stroke she puts in safeguards them 'over there.'"

Forswearing the use of tobacco for a month, prisoners in Great Meadow Prison, Glen's Falls, N. Y., have started a "smoke" fund for American soldiers and seamen. Every convict is supplied by the State with a package of tobacco on Saturday nights. On a recent Sunday nearly every prisoner dropped his package into a basket on which was pinned a poster reading, "Tobacco for the men of our army and navy." Nearly 200 has been contributed in cash.

The woman who is head of the colored Red Cross work in Chattanooga, Tenn., is an enthusiastic and efficient worker in all war-relief agencies, according to Bishop Lambuth of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Her father, who is a negro of wealth, had donated fifty head of cattle and sheep to the American Red Cross. The proceeds of the sale of the cattle and sheep will be used for the furtherance of work in the State and for the purchase of Red Cross supplies.

Tubercular soldiers of Minnesota, rejected by the army or returned because of prevalence of the disease, will be helped by the Red Cross chapters of the State. A cooperative plan for their care has been arranged by officers of the northern division of the Red Cross, the State Advisory Tuberculosis Commission and the Minnesota Public Health Association. By the plan, local Red Cross chapters will investigate the circumstances resulting in return of a Minnesota soldier and then will notify the public health association and members of the tuberculosis commission, who will arrange for a diagnosis. If the soldier is committed to a sanatorium, expenses will be borne by the local Red Cross chapter in the soldier's town or city.

About 4000 orphan children and many times that number of grown-ups were guests of the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks at Ebbets Field. It was the annual field day for orphans, who were taken from institutions to the field in automobiles provided by members of the lodge.

After a parade of children, headed by the bands from St. John's Home, Hebrew Orphan Asylum and Shannon's, the little folk enjoyed a circus. It included clowns, acrobats, aerialists and trained animals. A feature was the dedication of an Elks' service flag containing 371 stars. Congressman John J. Delaney, Exalted Ruler, presided.—[New York World.

OAKLANDER SAYS CAMPS MAKE MEN.

Life in training camps makes up for all that is desirable in the way of physical and moral education, according to the opinion of John R. Glavin, an Oakland boy now with the One Hundred and Eighteenth Aero Squadron at Brooks Field. Writing to "The Boys of Oakland," through the Tribune, Glavin says:

"Just a few lines to let you know how myself and a few of my old pals are getting along here. If the mother or the wife of any khaki-clad boy now in camp is worrying about him, let her please, in the language of Chimmie McFadden, "forget it." He is a better man in every sense than when he left her. His own mother would hardly know him. He is as hard as nails and almost as brown as his shirt.

"There is a sparkle of health and vigor in his eyes. He comes in from a hard day's work with a swing in his gait, a smile on his lips. He is learning that a canvas cot may be sweeter than a couch of down. He is getting good food, well cooked. He is far from any evil influence and his life is in the open among simple, pure-minded folks, and the men over him are not only officers but fathers.

"He is learning that discipline is the best thing that can come to a man, because it teaches belief in one's self and one's fellow men. These American sons of American mothers have blossomed into men in the truest sense of the word.

"Here's what we do every day in camp: Reveille, 5:15 a.m.; assembly and calisthenics, 5:30; mess, 5:45; drill, 6:15; to work at 7 a.m. until 11:30; dinner, 12 m.; return to work, 1 p.m. until 4:30; retreat, 5 p.m.; supper, 5:30; taps, 9:30; tatoo, 11 p.m."

PASTORS THANK CITY.

Committee Expresses Appreciation of Courtesy of Council in Matter of Taxes.

A committee of ministers yesterday sent a communication to the City Council expressing the sincere thanks of the pastors of Los Angeles for the courtesy shown them by Chairman Mallard of the Finance Committee and Deputy City Clerk Robert Dominguez in protecting the church against special taxation. The Council has adopted the policy of refusing to collect taxes upon church property whether the owners file the necessary affidavit required by law or not.

In referring to Mr. Dominguez the committee said he is the kind of employee the citizens of Los Angeles having business at the City Hall wish to meet in a public office. Mr. Dominguez has been an employee of the city for twenty years. The committee of pastors consisted of Charles H. Walton, First Cumberland Presbyterian Church; George Steed, South Main-street Methodist Episcopal Church; W. C. McIntire, Edendale Methodist Episcopal Church; E. Payne, Harmony Baptist Church.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to this work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

REFINISHED—

HUDSON AND
CARS.

We have an excellent assortment of refinished Hudson and Maxwell open and closed models—any one of them a car that you can be proud to own.

A refinished Arnold USED Car not only gives you satisfactory service, but satisfies your pride as well—something that not every used car does.

For the professional man, we have an unusually interesting line of closed models just now, Hudson sedans, Hudson convertible roadster, and Dodge sedans.

Arnold sales and service policies are right, or the House of Arnold would not have sold almost 10,000 motor cars.

Poultry and Poultry Supplies.

FOR SALE—GERMAIN'S POULTRY COLUMN.

THIS IS THE LICE SEASON.
Practical poultry raisers are using Conkey's Lice Powder to free their birds of these pests. Lice simply can't live where this powder is used. For mites—use Conkey's Lice Liquid. Paint it on roosts, in nests and in all crevices.

USE CARBOLA FOR VERMIN.
Carbola is a white paint and disinfectant combined. It is twenty times stronger than carbolic acid. It makes everything bright, white and clean; will not flake or peel off; unexcelled for poultry houses—should be used inside and out.

PRESERVE WOOD WITH CARBOLINEUM.
One coating each year should be sufficient to keep wood in good condition. It is a germ killer and wood preserver combined. Use on poultry houses, sheds, garages, etc.

FOR THE MOULT.
Coulson's Condition Powder should be used right now to put fowls in condition for the moult. It tones up the system, regulates the digestive organs and causes fowls to assimilate a greater portion of their food. Feed during moult and GET MORE EGGS WHEN EGGS ARE HIGH.

FRENCH'S POULTRY MUSTARD.
If your hens do not have a high standard of vitality they will not lay eggs. French's Poultry Mustard produces MORE EGGS, and should be fed regularly throughout the year. It increases stamina and FERTILITY.

E Z EGG PRESERVER.
—the fresh egg equal.
Buy a crate of eggs now and preserve them by the E Z method. You can have fresh eggs in December—at half the price you would have to pay then. Eggs preserved by the E Z method can be boiled, poached and the whites beaten, just the same as with a fresh laid egg. This method is economical and simple—and leaves no objectionable odor or taste as is the case with most preservers.

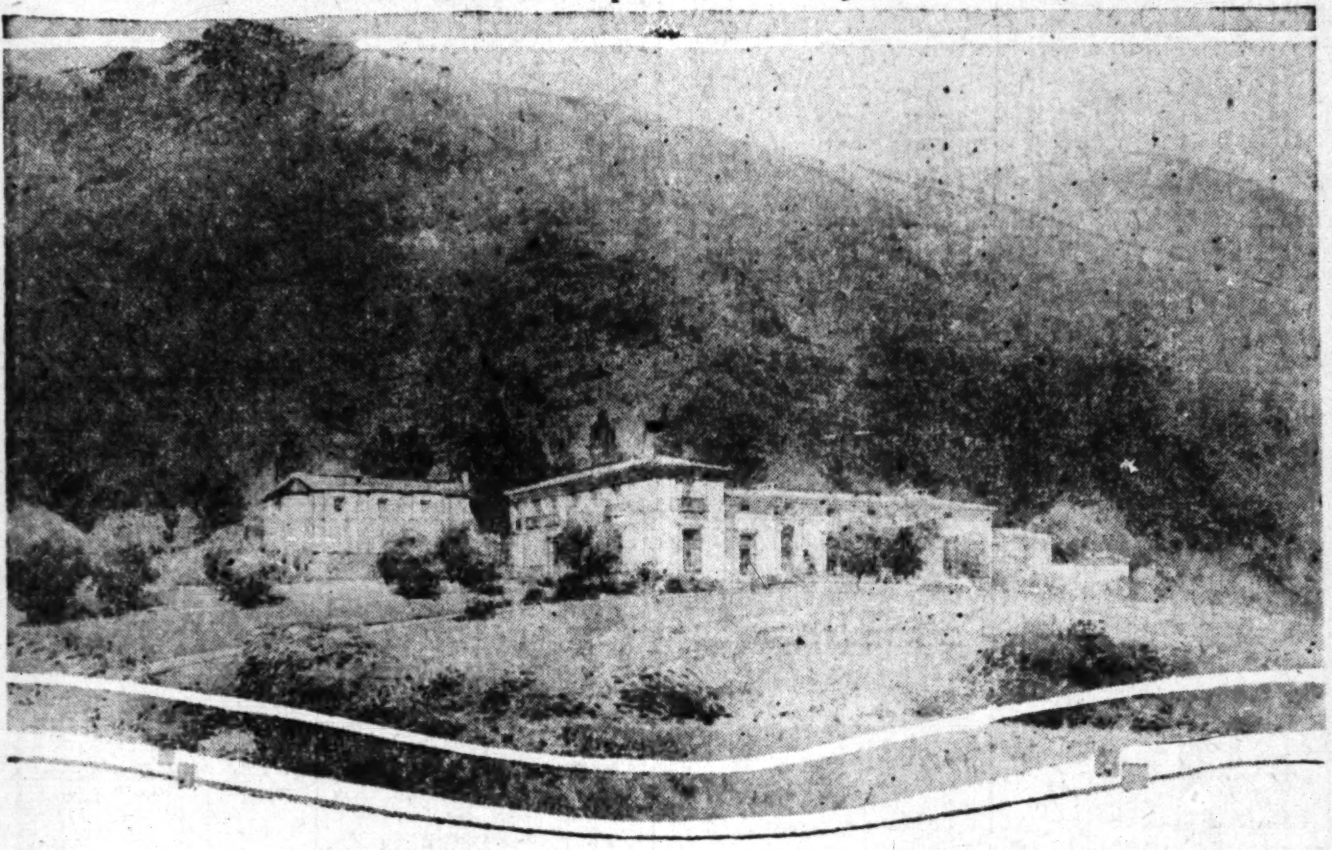
state of affairs is ex- part, of course, by the impression that existed for a long time that the government was desirous that every kind of activity excepting that connected directly with the prosecution of the war should cease. Secretary McAdoo has now made it plain that there was never any intention that the business life of American communities should slow down to stagnation or that any activity associated with the normal development and progress of the country should be discontinued. A people suddenly deprived of the ordinary means of livelihood could not be expected to buy government bonds or contribute financially to the war and such a curtailment of business and development as many have believed was wanted by Uncle Sam would undeniably have led to just such unfortunate and undesired consequences. The direct prosecution of the war comes first, certainly, but the next thing is to keep business and industry going along as smoothly and evenly as possible on the home front. For everybody to crawl into a shell or close up shop would defeat the very purposes the government has in mind.

What Los Angeles needs is that a lot of its people should forget the exciting days when real estate was changing hands so fast that the County Recorder could hardly keep track of the transfers and get down to earth. Those were wonderful, memorable days, but that there was a little of the hectic in them no one can now deny. Had not Los Angeles been built on so sure a foundation, the lively years that so many are now wistfully remembering would have been succeeded not by a mere lull in activity, but by a disastrous crash. There is every reason now why there should be a general resumption of real estate and building activity along conservative and necessary lines for the conditions industrially make investments now more than ever secure. Uncle Sam is willing that all necessary improvements go ahead and that there should be an investment and business activity such as has been associated with normal times.

The war will be won and over with some day and then things will go ahead with a bang. If civilization and democracy win, and they are winning right now every day, America is bound to enter upon such an era of prosperity as she never knew before. Those investors in Los Angeles who are clear-seeing and far-seeing enough to read the signs of today and tomorrow and to act are the ones who will be congratulating themselves in the years to come. The others, and especially those who persist in waiting for another real estate millennium before venturing into the field of investments, will have to be content, when investment activity really returns, with buying on a high market, and there are those among them who will one day loudly bemoan their present short-sightedness.

Reminiscent of Old Spanish Days in California.



Residence of Maj. J. H. H. Peshine, U.S.A., retired, at Santa Barbara.

IS REMINISCENT OF FORMER DAYS.

NEW SANTA BARBARA MANSION PLANNED ON SPANISH LINES.

Notable among the many beautiful homes of Santa Barbara is a large place now being completed by Maj. J. H. H. Peshine, U.S.A., retired, in the old Spanish section of that city. The house contains eighteen rooms and stands in a tract of several acres against the hills, looking towards the mountains. Myron Hunt of this city is the architect.

In design the residence is reminiscent of the buildings of early Spanish America. It stands beside an older house that has been in the possession of Mrs. Peshine's family for many years, having belonged to her father, Gen. Ord, whose name is so closely associated with the development of California.

The house is of hollow tile construction and is built around a patio, into which open the principal rooms. The second floor is given over to guest rooms, there being one ground floor wing for the use of the owner's family and another for servants. The hall is of large dimensions and has a height of eighteen feet. The dining-room is sixteen feet high. The wood ceilings and carved wainscoting of both are features.

In keeping with its character of an old California estate, the place has a chapel, this being in a separate building of an architectural style in keeping with the residence. In this house of family worship is an elaborately-carved altar of Spanish design.

RESIDENCE SALES.

Residence sales are reported as follows by James J. Donahue: To Harry Levitt, bungalow at No. 957 Fifth avenue from Mr. Cornwall, $8000; to Frank Price for Charles Kersting of Sierra Madre, ten-room residence at No. 838 Fifth avenue, $10,500; to M. V. Hartman, eight-room residence, No. 856 South Wilton place, $8500; to Miss Caroline Webb of New York for William Cline, residence on southeast corner of Ingraham and Norton, $15,000; for E. R. Mennell to Constance Gless, residence at No. 337 Westminster, $9000; for Paul Hancock to Thomas Leech, seven-room bungalow at No. 147 Ridgewood place, $7500; for Mr. Pretz to Mrs. Pottenger, chalet at No. 969 South Wilton place, $7500; for Miss C. Eleanor Reese to Frank Ditmar, lot at Tenth street and Fifth avenue, $3000; for Mr. Jansing to Miss Knapp, lot on Fifth avenue, near Tenth street, $2400; for Mrs. J. R. Cox to Mr. Vennum, corner Tenth street and Fourth avenue, $3000; for Miss E. Rice to R. Lavitt, corner Tenth street and Fourth avenue, $3000; for Mr. Judson to Roland Zehr, house at No. 2270 West Twenty-second street, $6500; for Joseph Finn to Mr. Adams, bungalow at No. 1724 West Forty-third street, $6200; for Mary Ziegler to George Mack, bungalow of nine rooms at No. 914 Fourth avenue, $6500.

MOVE TO BEACH.

Carroll J. Daly & Co., realty brokers, who for years have had offices in the Byrne Building in this city and in the First National Bank Building in Venice, have discontinued their Los Angeles office and will henceforth carry on their operations entirely from the beach quarters.

BUYS FINE HOME.

New York Man Acquires English Type Residence in Windsor Square Section.

Giles & Laack report the sale of a beautiful English-style home at No. 540 Lucerne boulevard, for Stafford W. Bixby, to Robert L. Rayner, a retired capitalist of New York. The house contains ten rooms and three baths and is on a lot 74x190 feet in size, improved with choice shrubs and trees. The consideration is given at $16,000.

The same firm reports the sale of a seven-room colonial bungalow at No. 245 North Gramercy place for Ben L. Gubser to Mrs. Jenny Symons of Chicago, the consideration being given at $6250.

Two lots on Van Ness avenue have been sold by S. M. Cooper to Charles R. Wagner through the same brokers. The purchaser, it is understood, will build houses on the sites.

NEW RESIDENCES.

Three Fine Houses for Windsor Square Tract—Other Westside Projects Announced.

Three large houses are projected for immediate erection in the Windsor Square subdivision in the western Wilshire boulevard district. The largest is for A. B. Nitram and will contain twenty rooms, being of hollow tile construction. The plans were drawn by Frank Meline, who will also build the residence. S. M. Cooper has planned and will build two twelve-room residences in the same tract for William F. and Leroy W. Newbert. Other new residences for which contracts have been let in different parts of the city, include the following:

Eleven-room house for F. Bradford, No. 7054 Lynwood avenue, Hollywood; eleven-room house for S. C. Lentz, Serrano avenue, near Wilshire boulevard; ten-room house for G. H. Rector, No. 718 South Hobart boulevard; nine-room house for Mrs. Laura A. Kenyon, Gramercy place, near Sixth street.

AT THE HARBOR.

Shipbuilding Plant to Start New Buildings at Once—Contracts Let for Flats.

The Southwestern Shipbuilding Company will start work this week on a number of buildings at the site of its plant in the outer harbor district. The structures will include an emergency hospital, a shed for the housing of gas apparatus, an office and a storage building. Other new projects now about to go ahead at the harbor include the following:

Recreation building for San Pedro Y.W.C.A. on Ninth street, near Mesa street, structure to be 65 by 120 feet in size and one story high; sixteen-room flat for Gust Johnson at Nos. 910-16 South Center street, San Pedro; sixteen-room flat for H. J. Eggers, No. 599 West Twelfth street, San Pedro; eight-room double bungalow for Minnie S. Butler, Gaffey street, near Seventeenth street, San Pedro.

LARGE AUTOMOBILE BUILDING PLANNED.

WILL STAND AT FOURTH AND OLIVE; BIG WAREHOUSE PROJECTED.

One of the largest automobile buildings yet projected in Los Angeles will be erected by F. M. Dimmick, lessee of the Clark Hotel, at the northeast corner of Fourth and Olive streets. The structure will cover a ground area of 95x120 feet and will be four stories in height, being of reinforced concrete construction. It will contain a modern garage and storage facilities for 300 cars. Dodd & Richards are the architects and the Winter Construction Company has the contract. The structure, it is understood, will cost about $60,000.

Another large structure for which plans have just been completed is a two-story warehouse to be erected by C. M. Gay & Son at Santa Fe avenue and East Twenty-seventh street. The building will be 120x150 feet in size. The same concern has had plans drawn for a frame shop building 80x140 feet in size to be erected next to the warehouse. Fred L. Somers of Pomona has the contract for both buildings.

LEASES GARAGE ON SOUTH WALL.

BIG TRANSFER COMPANY TO OCCUPY CLOSE-IN PROPERTY.

The Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, represented by W. H. Harris of its business leasing department, has just closed a deal whereby the Los Angeles Transfer Company has leased for a term of years a large structure at No. 634 South Wall street, known as the Wall Street Garage. The property contains 31,000 square feet of floor space, all on one floor, and is owned by E. N. Davidson. The consideration involved in the transaction is not given.

The transfer company, which for years has handled a large amount of the depot and other carrying business of the city, and which has recently been reorganized under a strong management, will, in its new quarters, have the most modern equipment and facilities. Its location just east of the business section and between the depots and the downtown district is a convenient one for its purposes.

TO SCHOOL MAN.

High School Principal Buys West Side Home—Other Residence Transfers.

Charles Cooper, with Robert Marsh & Co., reports the sale of a ten-room house at No. 2262 West Twentieth street for Mrs. Edith Coleman to William A. Dunn, principal of the Polytechnic High School. The lot is 50x150 feet. A cash consideration of $6500 is reported to have been paid for the property.

Mr. Cooper also reports the sale of a ten-room house at No. 1402 Victoria drive to George Sturdevant for Mrs. Laura Eshelman, and the sale of a six-room bungalow at No. 732 North Wilton to Miss Dora Stuart, the considerations being reported at $6500 and $3500, respectively.

JEFFERSON HOME A BIRD REFUGE.

Jefferson Island, former home of Joseph Jefferson, in Iberia parish, Southern Louisiana, and named by him "Bob Acres," after the character in "The Rivals," made famous on the stage by the actor, is to be developed into a sanctuary for wild fowl by Lawrence Jones and J. Lyle Bayliss of Lexington, Ky., who recently purchased the property.

It comprises 10,000 acres. A contract has been awarded for the construction of a dam along one edge of the property in order to re-establish a cypress swamp drained some years ago. When the water accumulates it is purposed to establish an immense heronry, in order that the many species of herons in Louisiana, especially the egret, may build nests and raise their young over water, as is their habit.

In addition, the new owners of "Bob Acres" have petitioned the Louisiana Conservation Commission to set aside Lake Peigneu, adjoining the property, as a wild water fowl refuge. The lake is a noted resort for ducks during the winter months, and they flock there by the hundreds of thousands.

More than one-third of the land embracing Lake Peigneu is included in "Bob Acres," and owners of other property adjoining have signified their desire to prohibit the shooting of wild fowl on the body of water. Under authority granted by the State, the conservation commission will prohibit shooting when a petition signed by all adjoining property owners is received, and establish it as the first of a series of interior refuges planned during the coming year.—[Washington Times.

Expansion.

FIRM LEASES LARGE SPACE.

Dry Goods House to Greatly Increase Facilities.

Takes Three Floors of Big Concrete Structure.

Tunnel will Join Building with Old Quarters.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through its leasing department, reports having closed a lease with the Cooper, Coate and Casey Dry Goods Company, jobbers of dry goods and notions, whereby this concern is to expand and occupy the first and second floors and basement of the ten-story Manufacturers' Building at Nos. 747-749 Santee street, recently erected by M. J. Connell.

The total floor space involved in the lease is 30,000 square feet, which, in connection with the present building of the Cooper, Coate and Casey Company at the southeast corner of Seventh and Los Angeles streets and a warehouse used by the same concern, will give the firm a total of 190,000 square feet, or practically four and one-half acres. The latest expansion is declared to have been made necessary by the company's increased export business with Mexico, South America and the Orient. The entire second floor in the Manufacturers' Building will be used for the manufacture of women's garments.

An unusual feature in connection with the arrangement is that a tunnel 276 feet long, 10 feet high and 10 feet wide, is to extend under a private thirty-five-foot alley from the rear of the building now occupied by Cooper, Coate and Casey Company into the basement of the new building. This tunnel will be used for the purpose of transferring goods from the new factory into the shipping-room of the older building. For the purpose of making these transfers of goods, a specially-planned and built electrically-operated truck has been devised and installed.

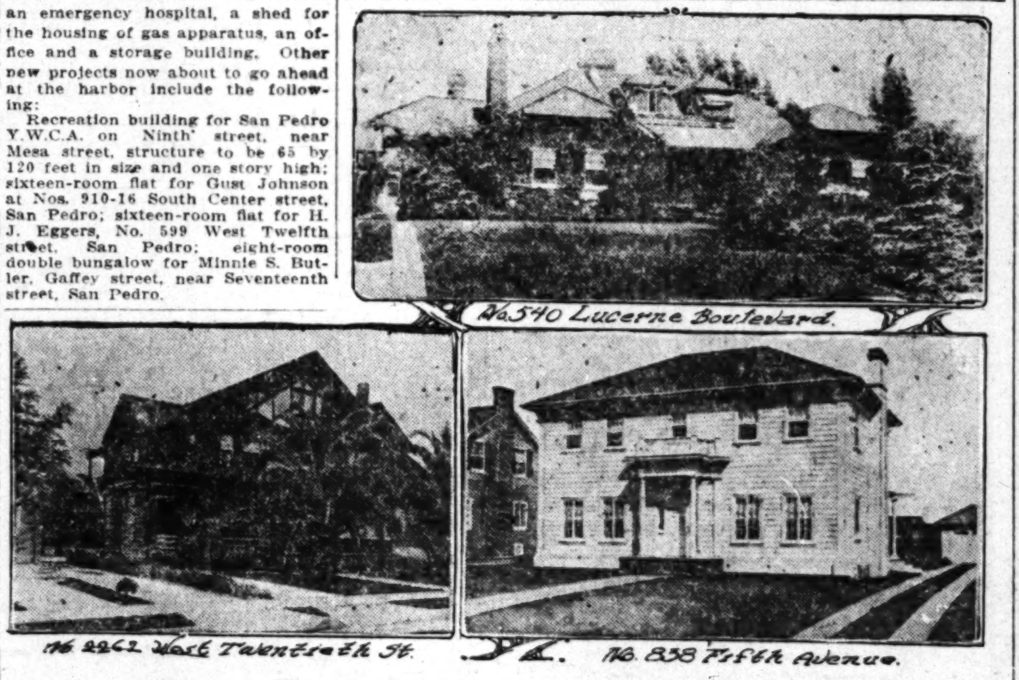
The officers of the Cooper, Coate and Casey Company are: M. G. Cooper, president; H. R. Coate and Edward Casey, vice-presidents; Gustav Danielson, secretary, and J. M. Jordan, treasurer.

LARGE COURT PLANNED.

Hollywood Woman to Build Group of Apartments—Flat for South South Rampart Boulevard.

A large apartment court, which, it is reported, will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, is to be started at once by Mrs. Ethel M. Richmond on Bronson avenue, just north of Hollywood boulevard in Hollywood. The group was planned by Arthur S. Heineman and will be constructed by Herbert S. Heineman. It will consist of five buildings, three to contain two five-room suites each and two to contain two four-room suites each. The site is 130 by 220 feet in size.

Other income improvements projected for early construction in the residence districts, include a twenty-room flat for Mrs. Ella B. Squires, to be built at No. 312 South Rampart boulevard, and a twelve-room flat for William Warren, to be erected at No. 510 Lucas avenue.



Fine places that have just changed hands.

The Lucerne boulevard house was sold through Giles & Laack; the Fifth-avenue residence, through J. J. Donahue, and the Twentieth-street dwelling through Charles Cooper, with Robert Marsh & Co.

This house is actually worth $20,000 in the present market, and is offered at this low price only because the owner needs the money. FOR SALE—
WHAT IS YOUR IDEA OF A HOME?
Is it merely a place to hang your hat—stuffy, close, little rooms where you eat, sleep, dress, lounge and walk around on tip toes after 9 o'clock for fear of disturbing your neighbors? Or is it a cosy, homey spot with all the modern conveniences, where you can do as you please, with plenty of breathing space, with a garden, flowers, a few chickens and a tidy little bank account in the bargain. If it is the latter, you will be interested in Sunnyside Garden Acres Addition, where families in moderate circumstances enjoy the freedom of their own homes, raise their own vegetables and poultry and pay for their homes like rent. Here you may buy a home for as little as $1800, small payment down and $20 a month, or if you don't want a home now you can get a quarter acre of land for $600 and up, 10 per cent. down, $10 a month and build your home later. FREE excursions leave our office at 10 A.M. every TUESDAY, THURSDAY AND SATURDAY.
Come along on the next excursion and see these independent happy people. Get your ticket as early as possible. Do not delay for the choicest sites will soon be gone. EMIL FIRTH, 346 S. BROADWAY, 60167, MAIN 2543. BRANCH OFFICE, 129 E. OCEAN AVE., LONG BEACH.

FOR SALE—I HAVE A CHOICE TRACT OF 3 acres, with 5-room bungalow. No better soil in the country. No stones or gravel and as fine soil as you ever saw. A fine, rich, sandy loam garden soil (no adobe,) just the kind you have been looking for. And the water is most excellent and soft, SO ABUNDANT AND CHEAP that you can irrigate an acre for 25 cents. The location is good, only 35 minutes from Broadway on the P. E. car line, with 46 trains daily. Good stores, school and church only 4 blocks. And the price is away down, less than you think, and if you haven't much money, very reasonable terms can be arranged. Sounds good, doesn't it, but it looks better, and upon investigation will prove all that we claim. If you are still looking for that little ranch where you can reduce the high cost of living, don't carry this ad in your pocket for a week, but come in early monday for full information, photos and a free ticket to the property.

BUSINESS CHANCES—
Of Many Kinds.

ONE OF OUR CLIENTS SAID TO US THIS week, you never advertise a list of what you have to sell. Our answer was, if we advertised everything that we have had listed with us during the last six years, we would have to buy a little paper of our own. Most likely the people who read this ad are interested in buying or selling a business of same kind, and to those people we want to impress you with this fact, that we do not have to take second place to any firm or individual in this city, when it comes to selling or exchanging a business proposition, or getting you located in business in any part of California. We have been at it in the same stand for years, and positively will not take up your time or waste our own trying to sell something to you or for you, unless it is worthy of sound investigation. It is easy to sit in our office and write attractive ads, but it's not so easy to pay for them at the rate advertising is today, and we could never hope to do it, were it not for the fact, that we deliver the goods at the right price and understand our business. This, together with courteous treatment of our clients, has built up a business for us that we are justly proud of. RATTRAY, 1003 Title Insurance Building.

Stocks and Bonds.

SALES OF SHARES REACH YEAR'S LOWEST RECORD.

Barely Hundred Thousand Change Hands in Short Session.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—The low record of the year on the stock exchange was made today, transactions barely reaching 100,000 shares. Important stocks fluctuated within the smallest area, but some obscure issues moved one to two points, mainly upward.

Relatively more activity was manifested by Corn Products, American Linseed, American Ice, Booth Fisheries and similar specialties than by the recognized leaders, but this movement exerted no influence.

United States Steel and associated industrials and equipments were firm at the outset, but cancelled part of their gains in the moderate selling of the final hour.

Rails were lifeless, many investment issues remaining unquoted. Sumatra Tobacco was subjected to bear attacks at an extreme loss of 3½ points. Coppers, oils, motors and other usual favorites were almost as stagnant as rails.

The bank statement failed to correct in more than slight degree the previous week's severe loss of cash, actual excess reserves increasing by about $30,000,000, with an expansion of almost $63,000,000 in loans. Reserves of members in the local Federal Reserve Bank increased by $41,000,000, or little more than one quarter of last week's contraction.

The only noteworthy feature of the irregular bond market was the inclusion of new 4¼'s issues, resulting from conversion clauses in previous issues. Total sales, par value, aggregated, $1,775,000.

Old United States fours advanced ½ per cent. on call during the week.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

Dullness was the overshadowing feature of an uncertain week in the stock market, dealings showing almost progressive diminution. The restricted scope of trading was in keeping with the scant turnover.

Professionals tested the market for vulnerable spots, basing their operations on domestic developments, some of which were inclined to temporarily impair quoted values. Chief among these were the firmer money rates and cumulative signs of pressing financial requirements by industrial companies.

United States Steel retained its leadership but was under incessant pressure, yielding at its worst some five points from the previous week's final price. There were many rumors respecting the steel corporation's future dividend policy, but these were founded on mere conjecture.

Rails were motionless the greater part of the time, the controversy between large holders of railway securities and the government anent the stability of net income, remaining unsettled. The bumper crops forecast by the July report produced no results in the transportation group.

Proposed new war taxes, mobilization of labor and recurrent charges of profiteering were offset to a degree by the Federal Reserve Board's survey of businesses, which was of a most optimistic character.

War news and foreign affairs as a whole offered ground for encouragement and exchange rates indicated further progress towards equitable adjustment.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $56,202,470 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $29,769,230 from last week.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Mercantile paper, four months, 6 per cent.; six months, 6 per cent. Sterling sixty-day bills, 4.72½; commercial, sixty-day bills on banks, 4.72; commercial, sixty-day bills, 4.71¾; demand, 4.753; cables, 4.76 7-16. Bar silver and Mexican dollars unchanged.

MAXIMUM AT CLOSING ON LOCAL EXCHANGE.

UNITED EASTERN AND LIBERTY BONDS FURNISH MOST BUSINESS.

A large percentage of yesterday's light trading at the Los Angeles Stock Exchange occurred just before the close of the call. The early stages of the session were punctuated with frequent pauses, but the movement tended steadily upward, with a maximum at the end.

United Eastern and Liberty Bonds furnished the greater part of the day's operations, although mines denoted further activity.

Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank stock appeared on the list for the first time in a month and sold at 300, the closing bid, with 315 asked.

The oil list was prominent, with sales of Union Oil at 104 and General Petroleum at 102.50, while Mascot Oil advanced one point, selling at 202.

Tom Reed was the feature of the mining list, opening at 1.70½ and declining one-half point at the close of the call.

The Los Angeles bank clearings for the week ending yesterday were $31,163,275.10, against $30,779,636.92 for the previous week, an increase of 383,638.18.

Increased activity at the shipyards and new business enterprises are regarded as undoubtedly the largest factors in running up the clearings.

Oranges and Lemons.

THE CITRUS MARKETS: WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

DISTRIBUTION of the comparatively few cars of Valencia oranges remaining is now a matter of keen interest. Jobbers throughout the country have been frantic in their offers on spot cash basis but they cannot expect to buy what does not exist. The next four months can show only 2250 cars of oranges for the entire country and when the weather warms up a little at eastern centers the orange prices will probably take on new levels and show unprecedented averages. It is only a question of how much some people are willing to pay per dozen rather than do without the delicious Valencia summer orange. The market at the present time is full of new apples, peaches, plums and berries and melons which have to a certain extent diverted consumers' attention from oranges, in spite of which the market has prevailed strong for the week on a basis of $6 to $6.25 f.o.b. the cars California. The purchasing power of the public is stronger than ever, the quality of the product is superb and the supply strictly limited to a point far below normal demand; in the face of such a statistical position it is no wonder that f.o.b. inquiries are insistent but owners of the present supply show no desire of naming any reasonable price for future shipment.

LEMONS.

The lemon situation is considered very satisfactory notwithstanding slight declines in all eastern markets. California has a visible supply of several hundred carloads in curing houses ready to supply a demand that seems inevitable to arise with the first change of the weather in humid America. For the past three weeks eastern sections have had decidedly cool weather with thermometer in big eastern cities ranging around 58 to 70 deg. Fahr., and in some places as low as 50 deg. This cooler weather was also combined with heavier offerings and heavier shipments of foreign lemons. Five weeks ago there were only 5000 to 20,000 boxes of foreign lemons afloat with a local submarine danger that caused speculators to remove all limits from the lemon market. Today there are 203,775 boxes of foreign lemons afloat and submarines considered less dangerous than a lightning strike. Those two features have taken all the specks out of the speculators and the trade has been buying from hand to mouth during the past four weeks and are now bare of store stocks and likely to become active buyers at the first turn to warmer weather. In spite of those adverse conditions which upset a strong speculative situation and lowered the market from early expectations, the actual results today are better than in any year on lemons at this time for eight years.

The sales of foreign lemons at New York last week were 800 boxes of Verdellis, average $6.80, and 13,000 boxes of Ticioppis, showing heavy decay, at an average of $3.80 per box.

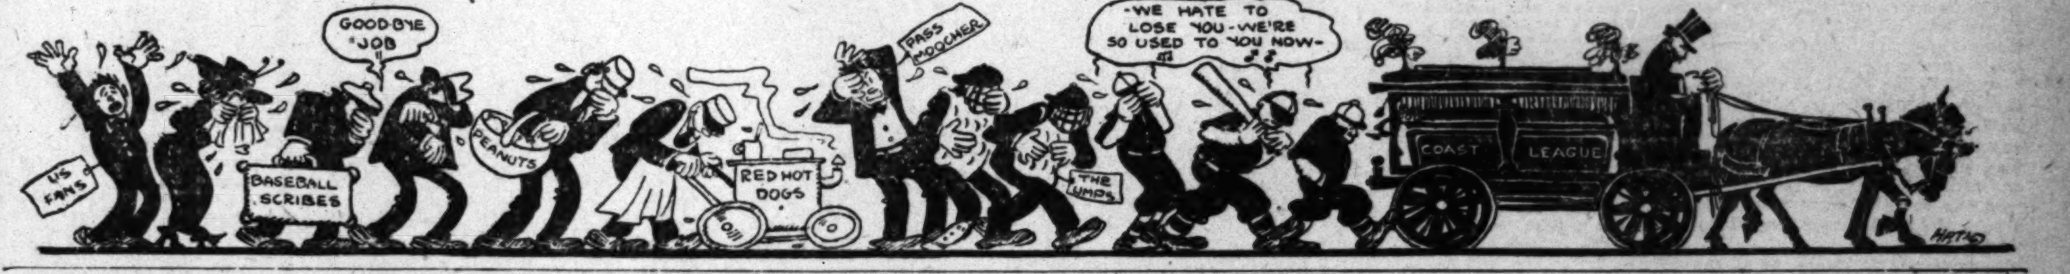
Through its network of seventeen branches and numerous information bureaus the Automobile Club of Southern California is working out a complete motor transportation system for the use of the Federal government. Pledge cards have been issued to members of the Auto Club and hundreds of machines are being lined up for war service in the interests of the United States Marshal's office, District Attorney, Department of Justice and Internal Revenue Department.

Motorists are hastening to list their cars on this honor roll for real war work. Secretary S. L. Mitchell of the Auto Club states that there will be a large number of cars on call, enough that no one person will be requested to serve more than once in sixty days. Long runs will be taboo, the club's branch system making it possible to relay parties that must go farther than is usual on such calls.

At present the Auto Club is providing on an average of five machines a day for the use of Uncle Sam.

Work or Fight Order Clamps Down Lid on Pacific Coast League.



WHAT BIG LEAGUE SLUGGERS ARE DOING.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Heinie Groh, the Cincinnati infielder, maintained his batting lead in the National League. Averages including games of Wednesday give him a mark of .352. J. C. Smith of Boston drove Merkle of Chicago out of second place with .336; Hollocher, the 21-year-old sensation with Chicago, advanced from eighth to fifth place in the list of leaders with .310.

Chicago and Cincinnati are on even terms in club batting with .267, while New York has a one-point advantage of Chicago in fielding with .971. Leading batters for thirty-five or more games: Groh, Cincinnati, .352; J. C. Smith, Boston, .336; Merkle, Chicago, .325; Daubert, Brooklyn, .320; Hollocher, Chicago, .310; Paskert, Chicago, .309; Mann, Chicago, .304; Roush, Cincinnati, .302.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, batting champion of the American League, is blazing the trail for the 1918 batting supremacy. Averages today give the Detroit star a mark of .371, as against .355 for George Sisler of St. Louis, the leader a week ago. Sisler, however, still leads the Georgian in base-stealing with thirty against twenty-five. Bobby Roth of Cleveland is between them with twenty-seven. The averages include games of Wednesday.

Frank Baker of New York drove out his 100th hit during the week. New York is showing the way in team batting with .267 and Boston in team fielding with .970. Leading batters for thirty-five or more games: Cobb, Detroit, .371; Sisler, St. Louis, .355; Baker, New York, .341; Burns, Philadelphia, .336; Pipp, New York, .317; Milan, Washington, .314; Walker, Philadelphia, .311; Hooper, Boston, .306; Ruth, Boston, .302; Murphy, Chicago, .302.

War Measure.

READY TO CLAMP LID ON COAST LEAGUE'S COFFIN.

Taps Sounded After Today's Games; Several Players Get Eastern Offers.

AT THE end of this afternoon's game at Washington Park taps will be sounded—the Pacific Coast League will be a thing of the past. The organization has decided to disband until the war is over. As the race for the last three weeks has been close between the two local teams it has been decided to play a post season series between the Angels and Vernon for the 1918 pennant. The games will open next Wednesday afternoon, the first club to win five being awarded the title.

The San Francisco team will leave for home tonight. Almost all the members will seek positions in the shipyards at San Francisco or Oakland. O'Doul and Pick may be grabbed by some big league team, but according to the way Pick talked yesterday it is more than likely he will join the Submarine Base at San Pedro.

MAY GO EAST.

Fournier and Crandall of the Angels have been asked to name their lowest terms by the Boston Red Sox. Fournier, who gets part of his pay from the Chicago White Sox, may find some difficulty in having the Red Sox management take over his Comiskey contract. If, however, it can be mutually settled he will leave at once for the East.

Zeb Terry doesn't know just what he will do, but it is almost a certainty that he will go back to the big brush. Next to Hollocher, he is probably the best shortstop in America today. Johnny Butler will return to the Standard Oil Company at Whittier, while Jerry Downs will enter the automobile business in San Francisco. Joy Pepe will remain in Los Angeles.

THE FUTURE.

Walter Boles, although he is a lawyer, may seek some other occupation, but will remain here at all events. Sam Crawford is very much smitten with the Los Angeles climate and will probably make this his home. He has not received an offer as yet from the big leagues and declares he will hardly entertain one unless it is at a figure that would tempt almost anybody. Manager Killer will remain here and continue his practice in the osteopathic line. Rube Ellis will look after his ranch at Rivera. Pitcher Brown may go back to the big leagues. Fittery may go to the shipyards at San Pedro.

Ensign J. B. Cook of the San Pedro Submarine Base was present at Washington Park yesterday and had a talk with a number of the San Francisco players. It was to Cook that Charley Pick declared he might join the Sub Base. Cook also sounded a number of well-known baseball followers as to their opinion about a four team shipyards and Submarine Base league.

HOLIDAY BASEBALL.

The ensign was of the opinion that the Submarine and naval teams at San Pedro and two of the shipyards nines could play on holidays, Saturday and Sunday for many weeks to come. Some of the best ball players in the country are now at San Pedro and an excellent organization could be made up. It was Cook's idea to have two of the teams play in Los Angeles or two in either Long Beach or San Pedro under a set schedule with a percentage of the receipts to be turned over to the Red Cross fund.

If the plan consummates the league will be formed at once and will start a short time after the post season series between the Angels and Vernon. The whole matter would be up to Lieut. J. L. Nielson, who would have to give his consent. Johnny Powers who has a lease on the Washington Park grounds would be only too willing to aid the good cause. The Submarine Base team is one of the best in the country and always plays fast ball. They took the Chicago Cubs into camp at Washington Park this spring and have beaten the best teams on the Coast. Howard Ehmke, their crack pitcher, was with the Detroit in the American League for several years.

SWIMMING BOOSTED.

Cleveland Yacht Club has had built a two-story bathing float and will endeavor to interest all its members in the art of swimming. The club will endeavor to add 200 members and thus reach the 1000 mark.

It's Pretty Nearly All Talk Anyway.

TALK OF GASOLINE SHORTAGE SHOULD HAVE NO TERRORS FOR THE MOTORIST.

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD.

WE HEAR a lot of talk in these days of a possible shortage of gasoline and the likelihood that the government authorities will forbid so-called pleasure motoring before long. If it becomes necessary to win the war to stop motoring or anything else, I'll be the first to put my old bus in the garage and turn the key on it. But I do not believe that there is going to be any shortage of gasoline and even if there is I want to point out a few ways in which car owners can keep their vehicles running without depending on the conventional fuel. Further, we know now pretty definitely just about what maximum of gasoline per annum this country will produce and we know also that the number of motor cars, trucks, tractors, motor boats, etc., is increasing each year and that the increase is far more rapid than any augmentation now apparent in the gasoline supply. It is possible, therefore, that some years hence a time may come when there will not be enough gasoline to go around. My remarks then will apply equally well to that day when the gasoline supply is no longer adequate to the demand.

To begin with it must be understood that the oil refiners are every year improving their methods of extracting gasoline from crude oil. By what is known as crackling processes they are now able to get anywhere from 20 to 50 per cent. of gasoline from a given quantity of crude oil, in place of the 8 to 10 per cent. that used to be obtained when they used the old-fashioned distillation method. It is reasonable that improvements will continue to be made in extraction methods until perhaps we shall be able to get nearly gallon for gallon from the crude. However, that is some time in the future and we have help nearer at hand.

The first and most obvious substitute for gasoline is kerosene, of which more is produced each year than gasoline. The modern engine can be made to run on kerosene without any radical change in design or construction. In fact you could pour kerosene into your fuel tank tomorrow morning and operate the car on it without any trouble, except in starting. This latter difficulty is easily obviated by fitting the engine with a priming device, operated from the dash, by means of which a little gasoline will be injected into the cylinders for starting purposes. Then after the engine has been running for a few minutes and is thoroughly warmed up, the kerosene feed is switched on and the engine continues running without a hitch. There are on the market today many kerosene carburetors, designed to permit the use of this heavier fuel, even more efficiently than can be done with the ordinary carburetor and priming equipment. So you see we have immediately available a way of practically doubling our fuel supply overnight, which removes impending shortage some distance away. In this connection I may note that the oil companies favor throwing the present cuts known as gasoline and kerosene into a single product, which would be called "motor fuel." This I think disposes of the fear that we shall have to store our cars before the war is over and wait for better times.

But even supposing that a time comes when the united efforts of gasoline and kerosene are not enough to keep our cars running, there are still possible fuels derived from other bases than crude oil, which would serve very well to keep our motor vehicles running.

To begin with there are benzole and coal gas derived from coal, of which latter there is a supply now in sight sufficient to last the world 250 years at its present rate of consumption. Benzolo is exactly as good as gasoline for motor fuel, but at the present time the production of this product in this country is almost negligible. Benzole is a by-product of the process of turning coal into coke and this latter operation is profitable only in connection with certain industries, which have flourished in Germany, but not in this country. Simply to extract benzole from coal would make the price of the fluid about $4 a gallon, but if the coal is used profitably in some industry and the benzole comes merely as a chance result of this use, the fuel can be sold at a price within reason. The industries over which Germany has so long had control are now being established in this country and as they grow in volume after the war, we shall see benzole become a much more familiar fuel for use in motor vehicles, particularly trucks.

The motor vehicle of all types has taken such a hold on our modern life, commercial and social, not to mention military, that it is inconceivable that it should ever be permitted to pass into the discard simply through failure of fuel to drive it.

FORD TRACTOR AGENCY FOR THREE STATES IS SECURED.

WORD was received yesterday from Detroit telling that Billy Hughson, president of the William L. Hughson Company, now in the home of the automobile industry, has secured for his company the distributing rights for the Fordson tractor for the States of California, Nevada and Arizona, without doubt one of the biggest automotive deals ever pulled off on the Pacific Coast. This tractor, of which so much has been heard in the past few years, has been officially adopted by Great Britain and thousands of them have been shipped abroad. Mr. Hughson wires that the tractors are now ready for distribution in this country and the first carloads will soon be on their way to this city. The Hughson organization at the present time distributes KisselKars, Federal trucks and Doble steam cars, in addition to having a Ford agency for both trucks and passenger cars.

TWO POWER RANGE
Eight

Peerless Economy Is Based Upon a Saving Along Several Lines.

In the first place the price of the Peerless Eight is much less than any other multiple cylinder car which pretends to be in a class with the Peerless; in fact, there are six-cylinder cars that sell for more, although their gasoline, oil and tire mileage is known to be much less than the new light-weight Peerless Eight, which has eighty-horsepower when you want it, and yet can be driven peacefully over mountain grades in the lower power range, which is specially designed for economy and smoothness.

Remember, a Peerless Eight is one of the lightest high-grade cars that has ever been produced; due to the quality of material and workmanship, there is not a weak spot in it.

The present price of the standard models in four and seven passenger bodies is only $2780, delivered at Los Angeles. A demonstration means no obligation to purchase and all we ask is an opportunity to show you a car that is really different from anything you have ever ridden in.

Demand Increases for Motor Cars and Why

Motor cars and trucks are filling the ever-widening gap left in our transportation system by the requirement of much of the railway equipment for handling war goods.

The rapidly increasing number of ships will call for more of the railway facilities to carry war goods to the sea ports. There are no other vehicles than Motor cars and trucks to replace the freight cars used by Uncle Sam.

The forty-mile truck haul of yesterday has been lengthened to the thousand mile trip of today with road conditions as the only limit of economy for short hauls.

Motor vehicles must handle the local traffic of both men and goods for they have proven the most efficient and economical transport for local and interurban transportation. Adequate, prompt and economical transportation is vital to the life of the nation.

An acute shortage of new vehicles exists now and prices during the war and for some time after are certain to be higher than at present.

BUYING NOW means assured transportation under your own control and a gilt-edged investment.

Interesting.

MOTOR ENGINEERS SEE MECHANISM OF WARFARE.

Liberty Motors, Captured German Planes, Tanks, Tractors are Exhibited.

BRINGING back glowing reports of the increased industrial activity that is apparent throughout the country, Watt L. Moreland, general manager of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, has arrived home after a three weeks' trip.

Mr. Moreland attended the meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, held in Dayton, O., at which more than 1500 members were present. The most important and attractive event of the convention was the display of machinery developed since the beginning of the war.

According to Mr. Moreland all the various sizes of war tractors were on display. There are four sizes, the smallest of which hauls field guns, while the ten-ton tractor transports seven-inch howitzers.

Concerning his trip, Mr. Moreland stated: "One of the principal features of the programme was the demonstration of the five-ton tractor. This war creation was sent through a growth of timber, across ditches, through veritable seas of mud and through territory inaccessible to horses. It was one of the most interesting exhibitions of a martial nature ever staged in the country.

"It would do the heart of every true-blooded American the world of good to be brought face to face with the mechanical development and progress that is now taking place in the United States. Seeing these war pythons spit their defy to heretofore unsurmountable objects, has the effect of bringing home to us the seriousness of modern warfare.

"The progress made by our engineers since our entry into the European 'free-for-all,' is almost inconceivable. Perfected war machinery of a sundry nature has already resulted, and production is now nearly 100 per cent. To really realize what is being accomplished, one must come in contact with these 'fighting implements.'

"In addition to the tractor exhibit, there were Liberty armored trucks, Liberty airplane motors and planes of all kinds. A very interesting part of the exhibit, was the war truck all bedecked in its camouflage, the vital parts being armored.

"Every part of the Liberty airplane motor was on display. In fact, there was one building devoted exclusively to the exhibition of the Liberty motor and airplane. The famous Haviland plane, equipped with the Liberty airplane motor was one of the principal attractions. This plane is now being built by the Wright-Dayton Company. In addition there were captured German flying machines, which, as may be expected, received close inspection of all. Special attention was paid to the captured Benz and Mercedes motors.

"There were British, Italian and French planes and motors available, all of which were put through tests. To prove the assertion that the government is going full speed ahead with the airplane programme, there were at one time fifteen airplanes in the air, which had been assembled that morning. In one particular plant that I know of, the output amounts to twenty planes and parts for fifteen each day. In other words, practically thirty-five planes are being turned out by this plant daily, and it is expected that this number will be doubled in a few days.

"A fact which may be of real news to the public is that the Liberty motor, which was the butt of much scorn and criticism lately, has been thoroughly tested out by Great Britain, France, Italy and this country, and has been accepted by the Allies for use in their planes. The navy has also adopted this motor, as I met an engineer formerly employed by the Moreland Truck Company, who is now engaged in research work for the navy.

"A remarkable feat is now being accomplished in the assembly of planes across the water. Recent tests show that within two hours after receiving parts of the Liberty plane, it can take the air. Airplanes are now positively carrying mail from Washington to New York City, making one round trip daily. To make a long story short, anybody who declares that the Liberty motor is not suitable for use in this present crisis is either willfully lying or is ignorant, for this motor has stood the supreme test and is now considered the best airplane motor in the world.

"As for the class 'B' Liberty truck motor, increased orders have already been placed for a number of these transporters. This particular model has been declared superior to all others.

"In regard to the truck situation in the East, I noticed a very perceptible shortage of trucks. This is not caused wholly by lack of materials, rather transportation facilities for moving trucks to parts of the country are inadequate. Production of trucks has increased 100 per cent., but the fact still remains that the shipping new truck equipment is at a standstill.

BATTERY BUILDING A SPECIALIZED JOB.

"Battery building is today a highly-specialized, complex industry," said a Hobbs Storage Battery Company official last week. "To build good batteries requires more than capital, plant and men. Experience is indispensable. We are particularly fortunate in having in our factory a corps of experts who have had practical experience in scientific battery construction covering a long period of years. This condition, coupled with the fact that the Hobbs battery has indisputably valuable intrinsic features, and is delivered fresh to western motorists from the Los Angeles factory, is causing a strong and ever-increasing demand for our product."

FARMERS STRONG FOR TRUCKS NOW.

Lately the farmers are seeing the advantage of the modern motor truck, which does their hauling more quickly, more efficiently and very economically, says Mr. W. D. Wright of the Wright Motor Car Company, who recently took over the agency for the Selden line of trucks. These trucks are made into five different models, ranging from a one-ton to a five-ton truck, which gives one a wide enough range to satisfy the demands of any modern business.

CAPT. CLARENCE SMITH EN ROUTE TO FRANCE.

Capt. C. F. Smith of Smith Brothers, distributors of Peerless and Paige automobiles and Peerless trucks, is en route for France, according to Stanley W. Smith. Capt. Smith, who is adjutant of the Three Hundred and Sixty-first Infantry, visited his family and relatives in Los Angeles for a period of two weeks before leaving Camp Kearny with his command.

SERVICE STATIONS ARE NAMED BY FIRM.

WELL-KNOWN BATTERY WILL BE REPRESENTED IN A BIG DISTRICT.

The Electric Equipment Company, distributor for the U.S.L. battery in seven western States, reports several new service stations added to its list of those in Southern California.

Among the more recent appointments are those of the following service stations: St. Andrews Garage, No. 1877 West Jefferson street; George Walker, San Fernando, Cal.; G. W. Birdley, Santa Ana Ignition Works, Santa Ana, Cal., covering Orange county; George R. Black, formerly the Roberts Auto Electric Company of San Bernardino, Cal.

The company still has several choice service station territories open, and expects in the near future to announce other appointments. The U.S.L. battery is now used as standard equipment on every Overland car, which is one of the big sellers the country over, and on a growing number of other makes.

OUT OF DOORS IS LURE TO DRIVERS.

MOTORISTS ARE SPENDING VACATIONS IN PARKS AND MOUNTAINS.

Since the days of "before the war" summer travel into and through California's great natural playgrounds has increased prodigiously—not alone with those sufficiently wealthy to travel abroad but also on the part of the great mass of people of moderate means.

Having made one such trip almost every one feels that the summer is lost without a trip to Tahoe, or Yosemite, Sequoia or our own Big Bear country in the San Bernardino Mountains. "Traffic this year is probably not nearly as heavy to these points as heretofore," says Lynn C. Buxton, "because of conditions due to the war, but we have had many of our customers come in for some minor repairs before starting out on one of these long trips and only this week we had five different Liberty car parties stop for a moment at the shop as they were on their way to the great out-of-doors."

MOTOR TRUCK IN ENDURANCE TEST.

Work accomplished by Acason five-ton model motor trucks in the development of Hog Island from a swamp to the world's greatest shipbuilding yard, was enormous in volume, and the performance of the trucks bordered on the marvelous, according to an official of the American International Shipbuilding Corporation. An inquirer approached this official to ascertain whether reports of one Acason truck running night and day for twenty-one days without engine stoppage had been reported correctly, and the official stated that when a starting crank broke, drivers kept the motor running while awaiting the arrival of a new crank, and when that came they decided to ascertain whether the motor would run continuously for 500 hours, and reached 504 without trouble.

Most Fortunate.

NEAR-ACCIDENT HASN'T ANY SERIOUS RESULTS.

A CURIOUS "near-accident" was related in the Lord motor salesroom the other day by Mr. W. E. Mitchell of the Puente Oil Company regarding the recent Cirgonian Club picnic at Orange County Park. As Mr. Mitchell and his party were touring out near Fullerton on the way to the picnic in a Velie roadster, they came upon two machines stopped beside the road, their owners evidently in conversation. As Mitchell attempted to speed past them, one of the cars suddenly started up, not hearing the Velie's approach, and swerved directly across the road in a turn. Knowing he could not stop his machine in time to avoid a smash-up, Mitchell jerked his car to the left and drove off the road, landing eight feet below in an unplowed field.

"Upon taking the car into the shop immediately upon my return to the city," states Mr. Mitchell, "I was astounded to find upon calling for same that nothing wrong had been found anywhere. I supposed, of course, there would be something in the way of broken bolts, sprung springs, etc., and I want to say that any car that will come through a jolt like that without showing any affects whatsoever is some car."

Mr. Lord of the Lord Motor explained the matter by calling attention to the exceptionally strong and sturdy construction of the Velie throughout, and the long, heavy elliptic spring equipment.

LIBERTY SIX

YOU have probably heard that the Liberty is "different."

To appreciate this you must get into the car—to drive it or merely to ride.

You will not have gone a mile before you will say, "There is a difference in the way the Liberty rides and drives."

You will have made the same discovery that is daily being made wherever Liberty cars are in use.

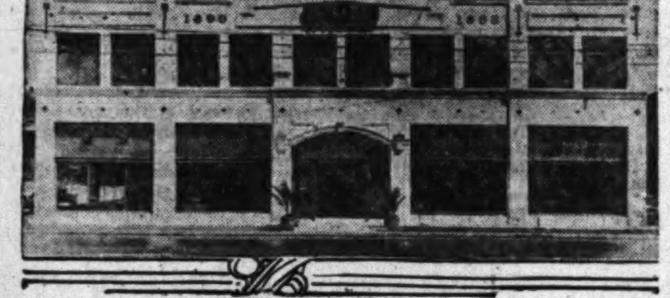
ANOTHER BRANCH OPENED BY CLUB.

The Automobile Club of Southern California has established a branch office in Santa Monica which will be in charge of H. T. Brantley, a former insurance man and for five years a resident of the beach city. A temporary location has been secured in the Chamber of Commerce Building, but more spacious quarters will be occupied shortly. This is the seventeenth branch to be established by the auto club.

PART OF FLAT FILE GOOD METAL TOOL.

The part of a flat file which extends down into the handle, makes an admirable tool for enlarging a hole in soft metal, simply by thrusting it into the hole and working it carefully around. It will not make any impression on hard metal, however.



Here we have the latest thing in the motor business.

This is the new plant of the White Motor Company on South Figueroa street, the most modern building in the city.

BEAUTIFUL NEW PLANT OPENED BY LOCAL FIRM.

THE White Auto Company, distributer of White trucks and Stephens automobiles moved last week from its former location at Nos. 1017-19 North Alameda to its magnificent new home at Eighteenth and Figueroa streets, and which is unquestionably one of the finest and most complete establishments in Los Angeles given over to the retail distribution of motor vehicles.

That O. R. Fuller, head of the company, in spite of an expected reduction in automobile output and conditions incident to the prosecution of the war, went ahead with his long-cherished plans of expansion and erected a building that from color scheme to mechanical details has brought forth words of admiration from all who have been shown through it, shows his faith in Los Angeles and the future.

Two stories high and constructed of reinforced concrete, the building has a frontage on Figueroa of ninety-eight feet and a depth on Eighteenth of 155 feet. The first floor is devoted to showroom, sales manager's office and his force, sales offices and telephone booth, with showroom for used cars, garage space, employers locker-room and pump station (gas, oil and distillate) in rear.

The locker-room with forty lockers, hot and cold showers and well-equipped lavatory is a model and indicates as much as anything else can how the head of the concern looks after his employees. The used car showroom, facing on Eighteenth street, is separated from the large garage floor space by sliding doors, the upper part of which are fitted with glass windows that are part of a generally well thought out lighting scheme. There are three entrances from the rear.

From the main showroom a staircase of comfortable incline and architecturally in keeping with its surroundings leads to the mezzanine on which are located from right to left, offices as follows: Board of directors, O. R. Fuller and private secretary, and general offices. The general color scheme is old ivory throughout with office furniture in keeping with the beauty of the interior. The ceiling of the immense showroom, which is ninety-eight by fifty feet, is supported by three pillars, each twenty feet high and which at their base are fitted with circular bench seats.

On the second floor is the stockroom with about 4000 bins and perfectly-arranged service department, which includes the last word in separate stalls, concrete wash platform and lighting and plumbing. This department is reached by a cement incline from the rear entrances and which is fourteen feet wide. In connection with the service department will be one devoted exclusively to tire vulcanizing and its equipment will be down-to-the-minute. The building will be heated by hot-air furnaces and the plumbing equipment carries hot and cold water.

"In the old plant which we have just vacated, we shall do all our repairing, rebuilding, body and machine work," stated Fuller, who further said that to date he had been able to make prompt delivery on White trucks and Stephens cars and that he expected to continue to.

"TIN LIZZIE" SAVES LIVES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BANNING, July 12.—Three lives were saved on the desert recently by the juice from four melons and a Ford "Tin Lizzie." Frank Bogartus, who lives in Los Angeles, was coming from the East with his wife and two small children, and at Needles bought three watermelons and put them in the machine. Between Needles and Barstow the radiator of his Ford sprung a leak and he found himself out of water twenty-four miles from anywhere with the burning sun pouring down red hot streaks. Bogartus repaired the leak, squeezed the juice from the melons, put it into the radiator, and with this salvage, was able to reach the next watering place.

There are many Ford stories, but this is the latest.

DON'T LET CASINGS STAND IN THE SUN.

"During the extremely hot weather, when necessity requires the parking of a motor car at a place where there is no available means of protecting it from the blistering rays of the sun, good judgment dictates that some attention should be paid at least to the tires," says Clarence Ferguson, vice-president of the Lichtenberger-Ferguson Company, Pacific Coast factory distributors for Norwalk tires and tubes. "Even the finest of tire rubber," continues Mr. Ferguson, "will deteriorate when subjected continuously to excessively strong light and high temperatures. This is especially true of an inflated tire, for heat, besides injuring the rubber, causes the air within the tubing to expand, sometimes to such a degree that a blowout results."

NONSKID PATTERN ANSWERS PURPOSE.

The nonskid pattern of the Delion tire is shaped like a wishbone, the spread ends being on the inside. "This design," says H. M. Haldeman of the Pacific Pipe and Supply Company, distributors for Delion tires, "indented as it is, has a tremendous grip on the surface of the road and greatly reduces the danger from skidding. The indented wishbones of the Delion tires form a slight vacuum between the tire and the surface. As the tire rolls along the road the peculiar shape of this indentation prevents any undue friction which would tend to retard the forward motion of the car. The wishbones being staggered along the tread also give the tire greater grip on slippery surfaces."

NEW SALESROOM TO MARKET TRAILERS.

LOCALLY-BUILT TWO AND FOUR-WHEELED WAGONS WILL BE DISTRIBUTED.

A new retail salesroom for the exclusive distribution of trailers made by the L. A. Trailer Company has been opened on Main street just south of Pico under the name of the Utility Trailer Sales Company. Twenty standard models with capacities from 600 pounds to nine tons will be sold, including two and four-wheel utility commercial trailers, utility pole dollies, utility logging dollies and utility semi-trailers.

Every trailer sold by this firm is all-steel construction, with Bower heavy-duty roller bearings and heavy artillery type wheels. The patented steering device of this make of trailer is also unique, making as many as four or five trailers follow exactly in the tracks of the truck and eliminating side weaving, a most important item in the use of heavy duty trailers where the roads are narrow and crooked.

GOOD TIRES WOULD HAVE MADE A SALE.

READ ESTATE MAN DOESN'T WANT TO TAKE ANY MORE CHANCES.

A certain real estate dealer here in the city who prefers to have his name kept secret reported a rather amusing incident last week with himself the goat where he drove into the shop of the International Sales Company to have Gates-Half-Soles put on his tires.

"I was driving a prospect out to see a piece of land only ten miles from town and was particularly anxious to impress upon his mind how close in it was and what a simple matter to drive into town at any time. As luck would have it, however, I had a puncture going out and the same tire punctured on me coming back and because he got so hot and dusty waiting for me to fix the tire, my arguments were unavailing and I lost a good sale."

WEST HAS BETTER SUPPLY OF BRASS.

That in the matter of its supply of brass the Pacific Coast finds itself in much better shape than the East is the assertion of C. G. Harness, president and general manager for the Master Carburetor Company. "In the East brass is cast over again so many times that it becomes mottled and without regular color. On the Coast scrap material used in the making of brass cannot be transported to the East as the cost of transportation makes it prohibitive, which gives us an almost unlimited supply to choose from for our foundry, where castings are made for Master carburetors.

VAPOR MANIFOLDS BEING MADE FAST.

With the Holley Carburetor Company now turning out daily about 1600 Holley vapor manifolds for Fords, and with even a much greater capacity expected before long, another aid in the conservation of the nation's store of gasoline will make itself felt, according to an official of the California Sales Company, distributor of this distillate-burning device in this State. Even at that rate there should be about 250,000 of these distillate manifolds on the market in the next six months, and these are guaranteed fuel and money-savers for Ford owners who have them on their cars.

ADJUST CARBURETER WITH SPECIAL CARE.

In making carbureter adjustments, an operation the owner usually performs when the engine is cold, the new adjustment should be given a chance to prove itself before another change is made. That is, after making a change the engine should be run for a couple of miles, even if it misfires at the beginning while it is still cold. It may be that after it has warmed up to normal running temperature, the new adjustment will prove satisfactory. Give each new adjustment a thorough try-out.

If Other Makers Use The "Hot Spot" Why Don't They Know What It Does?

It has been amusing to us to see the avidity with which rival makers and especially salesmen, have echoed the Chalmers statements about the "Hot Spot" and its virtues.

If you believe all you hear, they all have the "Hot Spot" now.

But when you analyze the various assertions, you find that while they use the term, it is doubtful if they really know what it means.

For example, one maker advertises that the "Hot Spot" makes his motor start easier when cold. Now that is ridiculous. The "Hot Spot" does not come into action until it is made hot by the exhaust from the running motor.

So you see it has no bearing whatsoever on the starting of the motor, easy or otherwise.

It is that other Chalmers feature, the "Rams Horn" manifold, that makes the Chalmers start easy at all times, in all climates and with all brands of gasoline,—good, bad and indifferent.

We have featured the combination of "Hot Spot" and "Rams Horn" Manifold as giving to this car qualities possessed in the same degree by no other namely;—gasoline economy, smooth running, more power and easy starting.

It's a pity there is no way of patenting adjectives or copyrighting coined phrases—it would protect copyists from falling into ridiculous errors!

The terms "Hot Spot" and "Rams Horn" are coined phrases originated in Chalmers publicity and, according to all the ethics of advertising, they belong exclusively to the Chalmers.

So far as we are concerned, we don't care how many copy the terms—imitation is the sincerest form of flattery.

Nor do we object to other engineers applying the principles indicated by those terms—if they know how.

One of the rewards of leadership is to be copied—imitated.

But it would seem as if the engineer who tries to achieve results by adopting these Chalmers discoveries, might instruct the sales organization as to what each feature does—for surely someone is in error as to that if we are to judge by the advertisements.

By the way; you have read and heard much about these two Chalmers discoveries—do you really know what a tremendous improvement they, together, make in a motor car?

If you don't, just ask a Chalmers salesman—he will be delighted to tell you, and then you'll understand why everybody in the trade says, "This is a Chalmers year."

Proposed Heavy Tax on Motor Trucks Starts Big Fig

Drastic.

COMMERCIAL TAX PROPOSED.

City Council Would Hit the Motor Trucks.

Dealers' Association Puts up a Fight.

Heavy Assessment Would Hurt Business Men.

A proposed ordinance is before the Los Angeles City Council that in one way or another, if adopted and written into the statutes, will affect every resident of the city who in any way derives service from a commercial motor vehicle. That means practically every one, as at this time the motor car figures some place in the transportation of nearly every article of sustenance from the package of pins purchased at the department store to the shingles on the roof of the house.

The ordinance as now outlined would levy the following annual tax on motor trucks and delivery vehicles:

One ton or less, $6; two tons, $12; three tons, $18; four tons, $24; five tons, $40; six tons, $60; more than six tons, $80.

The levy on trailers would be $3 on those of one-ton capacity and up to $40 on those of six-ton capacity.

It would be applicable not only to the specifically designated truck, but to the converted passenger car, the passenger car having a delivery body and the unaltered passenger car that in any way serves as a truck or medium of delivery.

Opposition to the proposition has developed among owners of motor trucks and they have obtained the support of the Motor Car Dealers' Association. Indications at this time are that the scope of the ordinance may be extended to a general wheel tax and once more the motor vehicle owner made the catspaw of taxation as self-propelled vehicles would be made to bear proportionately more than horse-drawn vehicles.

J. A. Stoner, vice-president of the Motor Car Dealers' Association and representative of the motor truck interests on the board of directors, is one of the group of men who are seeking to obtain fair consideration for motor vehicle owners in the matter. He points out that the truck owner is now paying several taxes on his possession and the merchant who operates a delivery fleet pays even more.

Dave Smith, attorney for the dealers' association, appeared at a recent Council meeting when the motor tax subject was considered. Mr. Smith explains that under the city's charter a limit was placed on the tax on assessed valuations. This year's levy was the same as last and it now appears that owing to a loss in income from this basis the Council is seeking to make up the deficit from other sources and has singled out the motor vehicle, or perhaps all vehicles, for a general wheel tax higher than those that now obtain.

EFFICIENCY OF BEARINGS SHOWN.

Hyatt high duty roller bearings again demonstrated their wear-resisting, dependable qualities recently in the run of the Denby truck from Boston to Seattle.

Over miles of rough, mountainous roads, through almost impassable canyons, and contending with all sorts of weather conditions, the arrival in Seattle "without so much as tightening a nut" is only additional evidence of the durability of Hyatt bearings.

FIRST THROUGH TO LAKE TENYA.

News was received last week from Camp Curry that a Cadillac eight owned by Don Lee was the first car to make the trip this season from Yosemite Valley to Lake Tenya. The road was found in fair condition, but as the Cadillac was ahead of the road gang that was clearing fallen trees it was necessary to remove a large number of trees that had fallen across the road. As the party had made no provision for removing such heavy timbers, they stopped upon reaching Tenya Lake, as the blockade at the lake could not be cleared away without the assistance of dynamite.

TRUCK SURVIVES SIX MONTHS' TEST.

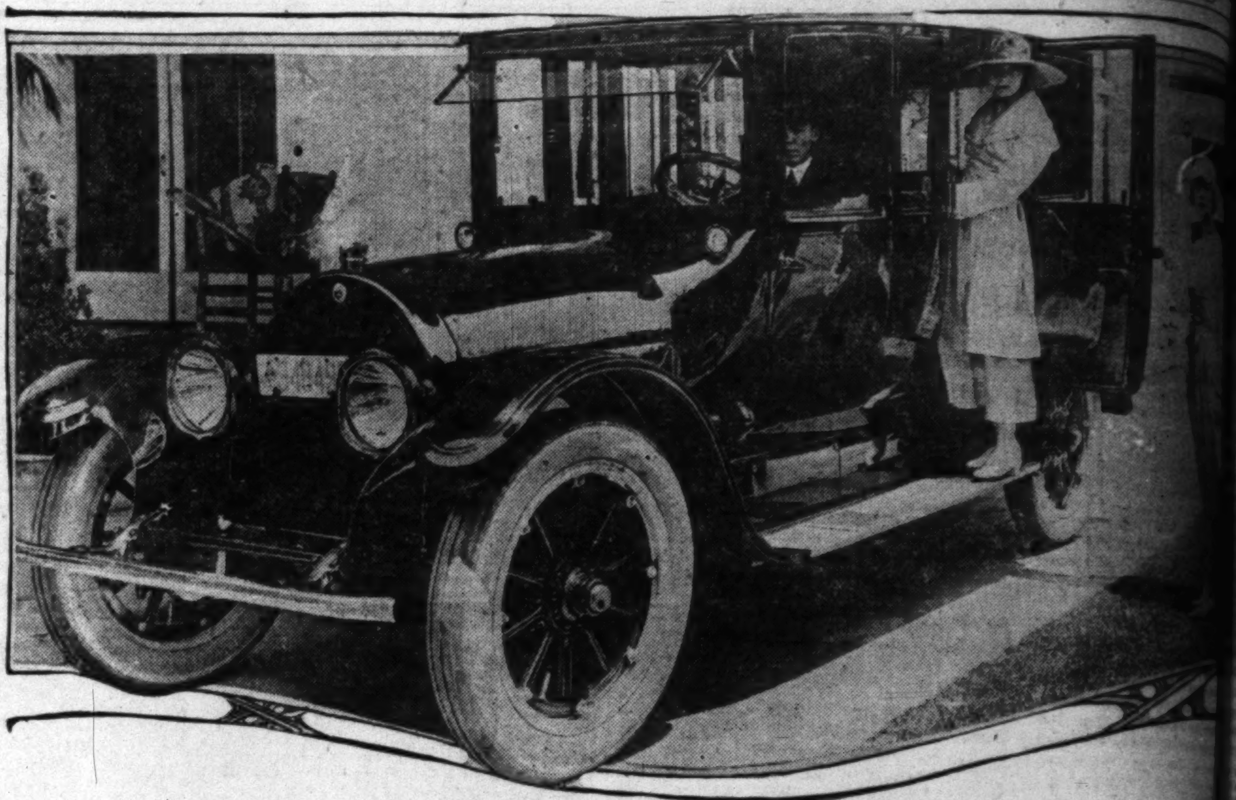
When a manufacturer with a world-renowned reputation intends putting a new product on the market, he must be doubly sure it will not in any way hurt the reputation of his other products.

Before the Ford Motor Company put their new one-ton truck on the market, it was tested on the streets of Detroit for six months, says J. B. Fahy, manager of Fahy-Atterbury Company, Ford dealers. This truck was run on an average of fifty miles a day carrying a dead weight of 6500 pounds, consisting of pig-iron and lead. The run was made without any repairs, and an average of eighteen miles to a gallon of gasoline was obtained.

EXAMINATION OF TIRES IS A SAVING.

"That the efforts of the Los Angeles newspapers to educate motorists that they must see to their tires more than they ever have before is bearing fruit, is evidenced by the increased number who are giving close attention to this important subject," remarked R. R. Colby, manager of Barney Oldfield's tire business at 1211 South Hope street.

"Scores of motorists call to have their tires examined and who apparently had never believed that it paid to have their tires retreaded by the dry cure process. Motorists who have at least 1000 more miles in their tires, in their desire to conserve them have had them examined, and been sent on their way rejoicing.



Just about the cutest thing we ever laid eyes on.

This is not an editorial remark about the Gish girls although we must admit that we feel that way, this is merely what the Gish girls they first saw the Cadillac eight suburban and here they are with the one they bought just last week.

PLENTY OF TIRES ARE BEING BOUGHT.

With the curtailment of automobile production, the induction of thousands of our young men into government service, with resultant cutting down of the use of automobiles, and the far-flung advice on economy of tires due to curtailment on tire production, one would naturally think that the volume of business transacted by local tire men would be cut way down. Such is not the case, however, with one local tire dealer, for the Osler Racine Rubber Company today is doing a larger business than ever before, and each succeeding month has shown an increase over the preceding month.

VETERAN TIRE MAN JOINS LOCAL FORCE.

An old tire man but a new face along Auto Row is Mr. H. B. Packard, who has just joined the forces of the C. Fred Thompson Tire Company, as one of this company's city salesmen for the Mason line of tires. Mr. Packard hails from Chicago, where he has been selling tires for years, and where he has an enviable reputation among tire men for his knowledge of tires from the selling end as well as from the technical construction end of the business.

EXPERT ADVICE WHAT IS NEEDED.

It does not pay to have tires retreaded or rebuilt unless the tire is in condition to stand it, and this can only be told by an expert tire man who has had years of experience, says Mr. B. F. Wade of the Wade Tire and Rubber Company, distributors for the all-red Tyrian tires. The difference therefore between losing money or making money on this class of work is simply a matter of getting expert advice.

FILM WORLD STRONG FOR ONE MAKE OF AUTOMOBILE.

CITIZENS of Hollywood, look out! Charlie Chaplin is learning to drive an automobile. The said Chaplin last week purchased a seven-passenger Cadillac eight, and Charlie immediately went into training for the purpose of learning to "chauff" said vehicle.

Among the recent Cadillac deliveries was one of the new seven-passenger Suburbans to Dorothy and Lillian Gish.

These young women became Cadillac enthusiasts through watching the work of the hundreds of Cadillac cars at the French front. They noticed the work being done under the most trying conditions and made their minds up that upon their return they would purchase a Cadillac.

Other new members of the Cadillac family in the picture world are Milton Sills, leading man for Clara Kimball Young, who has purchased a roadster; Ann Little of Lasky's, who has a four-passenger Cadillac, and Rupert Julian of the Universal.

The new Cadillac also made its appearance last week in the Fairbanks family, John Fairbanks, business manager for Douglas, having purchased his second seven-passenger touring car.

Local Invention Enables Trucks to Operate in Orchards.

URANT PROUD OF HIS RACER.

California-built Machine a Huge Success.

Remarkable Time is Made at Tacoma Race.

Will Probably Appear Here Thanksgiving.

Public officials, prominent motor [illegible] and scores of his friends turned out to pay honor to R. C. "Bill" Durant, millionaire automobile [illegible], on his return to his Oakland home this week. The big reception was prompted by Durant's clever victory in the $[illegible] Tacoma speedway race on July 4, and was proclaimed one of the most enthusiastic ever seen in the West.

Durant bore his laurels modestly and gave his Chevrolet special the credit for defeating such racing aces as Eddie Hearne, Earl Cooper, Eddie Pullen and Dave Lewis. Every car in the race was equipped with a special speed machine, which cost thousands of dollars each, but the "Made-in-California" Chevrolet showed them up without much trouble.

"I never handled a car that responded to every call on its motor like the new car," said Durant. "I never opened up fully, in spite of the [illegible] miles an hour credited to me in the twenty-five mile event. In the final heat of the day, the twenty-five mile number won by [illegible], I took it easy, for I had sufficient points to win the grand prize, and was content with second place in that portion of the program. The Chevrolet special had plenty of speed and endurance left, but I was rather tired and played safe for the big purse. "My heart was set on winning the Tacoma classic, and now that I have done so and hung up new Coast records, I will compete only once or twice a year."

PLENTY OF TIRES ARE ON HAND NOW.

That the embargo on crude rubber has caused undue apprehension on the part of those who operate automobiles and trucks is pointed out by J. R. Magee, district manager for the United States Rubber Company, manufacturer of the well-known make of United States tires. "To begin with there is a shortage of tires so far as we are concerned, but the shortage is due to the labor [illegible] alone. We have enough on hand for many months to come. But the needs of the war have so depleted our ranks that we need skilled men in the making of our tires. This shortage will be overcome," he said.

POLISH UP YOUR OWN AUTOMOBILES.

MANY MEN ARE NOW LOOKING AFTER REPAIRS ON THEIR CARS.

"When you know that business men—men of evident means—are employing part of their leisure time cleaning and repairing their cars, the realization comes forcibly to you that the campaign to conserve man-power, eliminate waste and increase the general efficiency of the nation, is bearing fruit," said W. H. Damon of the Damon Specialty Company, manufacturer of Nonolio polishes for automobiles.

"I have personally come in touch with many such in the past few months, and I find that although they are able to pay to have such labor performed that they consider it a duty they owe at this time to perform it themselves. While they are releasing men for what the government considers essential work, they are also learning more about the piece of machinery which they own and are thereby increasing its efficiency and their own."

HAND PUMP SHOULD BE GIVEN ONCEOVER.

YOU MAY HAVE TO USE IT AND IF IT'S OUT OF ORDER YOU'RE STUNG.

"Now that vacation time is here again, the thought of touring is uppermost in the minds of many motorists," said R. L. Sergeant, director of sales of the Samson Tire and Rubber Corporation, last week. "While the average motorist gives his car and tires a general looking over starting out on a long run, perhaps not one man in a thousand examines his tire pump. Motorists as a rule hate the very thought of pumping a tire by hand, and it is a fact that thousands of hand pumps are never used at all. This is of course through sheer luck. But when tire trouble occurs out on some remote highway, and repairs have to be made, or if the 'spares' need inflation, the tire hand pump becomes a mighty important article. Don't start out without a pump, and don't fail to test it thoroughly before leaving."

EMERY DUST JUST TURNS THE TRICK.

When a screwdriver bit refuses to take firm hold of a screw slot, a little emery dust sprinkled in the slot may do the trick.

TRUCKS NOW ABLE TO GET AROUND FRUIT ORCHARDS.

ORANGE and lemon growers of San Dimas and Claremont last week witnessed an interesting and successful demonstration of hauling fruit from groves by motor truck. Motor truck men have long believed that the soft, deeply cultivated soil of the citrus groves was impractical for a heavily loaded truck to negotiate, yet a two-ton Republic, specially equipped under the direction of F. G. Mott, head of the Republic truck department of Harold L. Arnold, hauled almost 9000 pounds of oranges on truck and trailer serpentined among the trees, turned sharp corners without difficulty or without injuring the trees, and proved the ability of the truck to drive the horse from his last place of refuge.

The growing use of the tractor in the citrus groves was one of the reasons the citrus growers have become interested in the use of trucks. The tractors have proved their ability to take the place of the horse in plowing or cultivating in the grove, but the average tractor is not suited for road work, such as hauling fruit to the packing-houses. Naturally, the fruit men did not care to keep horses for this purpose alone, and sought to solve the problem by having their local packing-houses purchase truck and do all the fruit hauling from the groves.

The difficulty of operating a truck in the soft soil of the orchards at once presented itself. Those who witnessed the demonstration last week declare that it has been undoubtedly overcome by the wheel equipment devised by Mr. Mott. It consists of a heavy steel flange about six inches in width, extending from the felloe of each wheel and giving the truck the appearance of being equipped for railroad rather than orchard duty. On hard road this flange does not touch ground at all, the truck riding solely on the rubber tires. But in the soft ground of the orchard the tires cut into the ground until the flanges engage the earth. The added bearing surface thus given prevents the loaded truck from cutting very deeply into the soil and permitted the Republic used in the experiment to travel with ease uphill or down in the foothill groves. On the flanges of the rear wheels diagonal cleats serve to give added traction.

In the tests conducted last week 145 boxes of oranges were carried on the Republic and the trailer attached. The gross weight of the average box is sixty pounds, giving a total of 8700 pounds of fruit hauled through the groves by the truck, while the added weight of three men brought the total to well over 9000 pounds transported by the two-ton Republic. Representatives from the Claremont and San Dimas packing-houses witnessed the tests and declared themselves perfectly satisfied with the ability of the truck to do the orchard work. The easier riding of the rubber-tired truck over the steel-tired wagons was declared to be an added consideration, as it reduced the likelihood of bruising the fruit in transit to the packing-houses.

COVER IS NEEDED FOR SPARE CASING.

If the spare tire carried on the rear of an automobile could sweat or occasionally squeeze out a few drops of perspiration it would last a great deal longer, states J. B. Wood, the distributor for Century-Plainfield tires and tubes. Mr. Wood explains that the vulcanizing processes through which the motor tire passes in the making remove absolutely every bit of moisture there is in the casing. Consequently, it is dry when the consumer puts it on the spare tire rack, and as it frequently stays there indefinitely, the drying out process continues unless some sort of protection is provided. For this reason Mr. Wood believes it advisable to cover every spare tire on the car.

The Supply of Super-Sixes is Running Low

Our Allotment Has Been Reduced—The Sales Demand Increases

It is well for all who plan buying Hudsons to know these facts:

It never was so difficult to plan for the future.

The newspapers have told you how automobile production has been reduced and how further curtailment is planned.

Our schedule of Hudsons for the future has again been cut down, the second revision since January.

When the factory had an opportunity during the winter months to build cars in excess of the demand, freight conditions made it impossible to get necessary shipments through to us. Now the production is reduced and will become still lower.

Present deliveries are just about enough to meet present needs.

As the season advances an acute shortage seems inevitable.

Then people will offer premiums for prompt deliveries of good cars.

It will come early to the Super-Six because of its popularity.

Almost 60,000 users already know its reliability.

These are times when proved cars are in greatest demand. Men want cars they know they can rely upon.

That is why Super-Six sales are so great.

It is why you should buy now if you plan buying at all.

If the car you now have is not fully dependable, you should change it without delay.

The production for the future may make it impossible if you wait.

FEDERAL DOUBLE CABLE BASE TIRES

Were tires perfect? Could no improvements be made?

Federal's answer is their exclusive Double-Cable-Base.

If tires are only armoured against attacks of road, they are only partially equipped to resist wear.

Federal's Double-Cable-Base prevents undue inside wear against the rim—at the same time making it possible to get more service outside against the road.

Four unstretchable cables anchor the Federal tire so correctly and securely to the rim that the longest, hardest use cannot make it shift.

No other tire has this wonderful improvement.

About Rebuilding Tires

We were the originators and pioneers of rebuilding tires. It was in 1912 that we hit upon this happy idea which has since been copied by almost every tire shop in the country, and during the eight years that we have successfully been doing this work we have gained an experience which places this shop in a class by itself in tire repairs and renders us more competent to diagnose.
Not every tire is worth rebuilding, as many motorists have found after paying to have it done, and yet some shops rebuild or retread any tire that is brought to them.

WE GUARANTEE OUR WORK

We have a reputation at stake. We examine a tire carefully and determine whether or not it is worth rebuilding. We make no charge for this. Every tire we do rebuild is covered by the standard 3500-mile guarantee.
Don't waste money on tire repairs. Be sure you get what you pay for. Bring your work to a shop that will give you a guarantee.

Liberal allowance for your old tires if you want new ones.

NOTE THIS
If you want a used tire, to our knowledge we are the only concern in the whole U. S. A. which guarantees used tires on a stipulated mileage basis.

TIOGA ROAD IS IN GOOD SHAPE.

Following is the bulletin issued by W. B. Lewis, superintendent of the Yosemite National Park. The Tioga road is now open and passable to automobiles from the western entrance at Aspen Valley to Porcupine Flat, the road having been put in a state of repair and is in a very good condition. From Porcupine Flat to the Tioga Pass practically nothing, however, has been done other than to remove the fallen trees and temporarily repair the worst stretches so motorists will find this part of the road somewhat rough. It is, however, entirely safe and no fear of serious difficulties need be anticipated. Tenaya Lake lodge on the Tioga road is open and motorists may find accommodations at that place.

HUSTLERS GIVEN MORE TERRITORY.

LOCAL DEALERS DO SO WELL THAT THEY ARE GIVEN ANOTHER STATE.

In recognition of the excellent results obtained by the Gates-Kelley Automobile Company in distributing Smith Form-a-Truck attachments, F. W. Hogue, Pacific Coast manager for the Smith Motor Truck Corporation, while in Los Angeles a few days ago, extended the territory served by the local firm to include the State of Nevada. This now makes Los Angeles the distributing center for the largest territorial unit in the country as apportioned by the manufacturers of the Smith attachment, as all of California and Arizona previously have been served from this point.

"Gates and Kelley are among the oldest dealers in this line of business in the country. They are aggressive and deeply interested in the welfare of the product they represent, so for these reasons we decided to extend their territory," said Mr. Hogue. "Our factory is a strong advocate of actual service, and Messrs. Gates and Kelley are pace makers in this department of the business."

NEW AUTO BED NOW REPRESENTED HERE.

COMPACTNESS IS A FEATURE OF THIS LATEST AID TO THE TOURIST.

Last week the Fischer Auto Bed and Camp Company of Seattle announced the appointment of Smith & Bolandas as their representatives and distributors for Southern California.

When a person stops to consider that the Fischer auto bed eliminates the necessity of a mattress, a tent for covering and the usual amount of extras necessary to make a bed comfortable, and takes up a space about as big as a presto-lite tank, it sure makes one sit up and take notice. The bed will appeal to any automobilist who enjoys life in the open. Excessive weight is eliminated yet the strength of the bed has not been sacrificed. It has been tested and will hold up under a dead weight of 2000 pounds.

WATCH YOUR CHAINS AND PRESERVE TIRES.

"In adjusting tire chains, extreme care should be used to see that they do not fit too tight," say Weinstock-Nichols, the Federal distributors, speaking of the many ways in which the careful motorist may increase his tire mileage. "Tire chains should fit loosely so that they may 'creep' a little in use. This not only gives better service from the chains themselves, but keeps them from continually cutting and wearing in one spot on the tread. Chains that fit loosely and are properly adjusted do not continually allow the cross chains to strike the same place.

WONDERFUL RECORD IS MADE BY PRIVATE CAR.

WHAT is believed to be a record run, distance and character of terrain traversed considered, was completed Tuesday morning, July 2, when Verne Dumas of Los Angeles arrived here from Hutchinson, Kan., in a Marmon 1917 roadster, after having been on the road five days and having reeled off 1860 miles.

Verne accompanied by his driver left the Kansas city Thursday morning, June 27 and logged 353 miles to La Junta his first day. The night of the second day found him at Las Vegas, N. M., 258 miles further on his journey. On the third day a total of 262 miles placed him in Magdalena, while on the fourth day he made 259 miles when he reached Winslow.

His last day's run is nothing short of phenomenal inasmuch as his driver lays no claim to being a professional in a racing sense nor a man of unusual staying powers. The Marmon left Winslow at 8 o'clock in the morning and Needles was reached a little before 6 o'clock. The two rested there until 10 at night when the journey was resumed and at 9:15 to the dot, the next morning the car was in front of Dumas's home.

"When we pulled into Victorville a Santa Fe train bound for the Coast was on the crossing and we waited for it to pass. We had the best of it when we topped the pass and on the level stretch after leaving the pass and where the track for a dozen miles or so parallels the road before San Bernardino is reached we had an early morning race that put pep into us," stated Verne when telling of the trip. "Passengers in the day coaches who had been awake at Victorville and the engine crew recognized the car and waved to us to come on. We kept abreast of the engine and I asked the engineer if that was all he had, and when he nodded his head, we left them there. I don't know the number of the train, but we had the little spin with it at about 6 o'clock, Tuesday a.m., July 2. The engine crew will remember it, as well as the express and baggage car crews, so it will be an easy matter to check me on the incident."

Verne has owned four Marmons, he stated, in the last eighteen months and now has two, his roadster known as the "Grey Goose" and a touring car which is used by his family. His roadster before he started on this trip had been run a little better than 90,000 miles, and has been put to hard usage in the Fredonia oil fields in Kansas, where its owner is operating.

Many are Interested.

EFFICIENCY CONTEST CAUSING EXCITEMENT.

JUST one month has elapsed since the motor truck efficiency contest was started by the Packard Motor Car Company, in which the contestants will compete for $5000 in cash prizes.

The large entry list in California shows plainly that the average truck owners, particularly the business firm, is anxious to find the best manner in which to operate motor vehicles and keep an accurate accounting system which will show in every detail the cost of hauling.

Many inquiries have reached Earle C. Anthony, Inc., California distributor of the Packard lines, as to why the national truck owners' cost system was adopted. "The answer is simple and convincing," said Anthony. "First the system is the result of the experience of owners operating every well-known make of truck on the American market, in all parts of the country, and over greatly diversified road conditions.

"Second, it is an absolutely unbiased one, that is, it is not gotten out by any one truck maker or by men favoring a certain make of truck. All of the leading truck makers have indorsed it and contributed their experience with those of the owners toward its perfection.

"The third, and most important reason is that if properly kept it will give to the truck owners or prospective buyers a true picture of what any make of truck can do under certain conditions. If the owner wants to find out what his trucks are doing as compared with what some other make of truck is doing under similar conditions, he has but to compare his cost sheets with those of another operator who is also using the national cost system."

Autos Mean Action.

AUTOMOBILES REAL AID IN WINNING WORLD WAR.

"THEY say that ships will win the war—that food will win it—that steel will win it—that money will win it," says W. A. Chapman of the Leach Motor Car Company, Dort distributors. Each claim is true in a certain limited sense, but no one of the elements named can alone win the war.

"Action will win the war—unhesitating, unhandicapped, intelligent action, that not only means more ships, more food, more steel and more money, but all and everything in which wholesome human effort figures. There is no one factor in promoting action that can be compared with the automobile. Perhaps the most impressive object lesson of this may be had from watching enterprises that bear directly on the war.

"Official Washington, as I saw it, carrying on feverishly an unparalleled programme, is the most conspicuous example. Then come the shipyards, the steel mills, the munition plants and other war industries which use thousands of passenger automobiles, as well as trucks, and would clearly have to slacken production if compelled to do without them.

"Those furnish but a few sidelights of the part the passenger automobile is playing directly in the conduct of the war. Indirectly its part is an even bigger one, though perhaps less spectacular. The loss of man power in civil pursuits necessitates greater individual accomplishment on the part of those left behind. Their duties are multiplied, not only by the demands of their regular vocations, but by the imperative call of patriotism. The efficient man of today must meet many engagements and meet them promptly."

It's a Good Business.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO BUY THAT AUTOMOBILE TODAY.

"THERE are many undoubtedly who have given thought to the buying of an automobile who have wondered whether they should buy now or wait until after the war is over and peace has been declared," said P. W. Wisdom of Wisdom & Co., distributer of the Lexington.

"Their line of reasoning seems to be that inasmuch as the price of cars has been raised by the war that it will be wiser to wait until this unusual and temporary condition has been removed when prices will drop to where they were before the terrible struggle started. There is no doubt that prices will be lower after the war is over for a general economic necessity will make a revision in order in all lines, in my opinion. But this revision will be gradual, of course, as a precipitate change, we are told by economists and financiers, would be chaotic.

"Because prices have advanced sharply on many necessities, the public have not ceased buying them. Not a bit of it. Certain luxuries and pleasures that cost more than heretofore have not been made taboo for the same reason, have they? That the automobile is a necessity was firmly established long ago, and that one should hesitate to purchase one until after the war on account of advanced prices—providing the prospective purchaser is financially able to—shows poor business judgment and a 'finicky' state of mind."

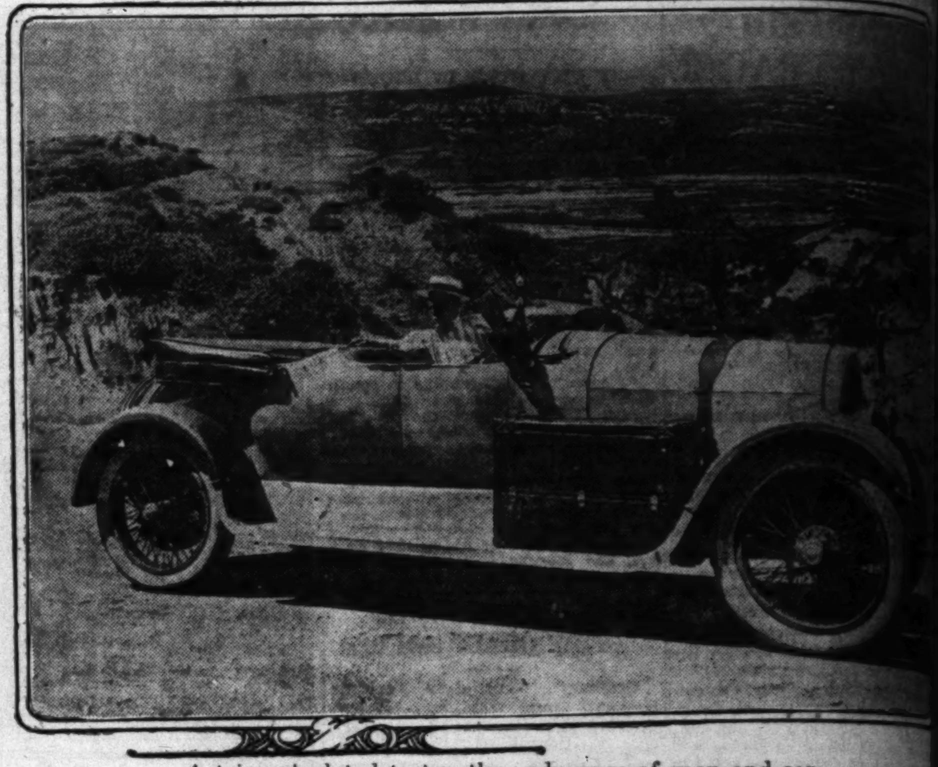
ARTIFICIAL FOG TO HELP MOTORS.

Artificial fog helped the British marines blockade the harbor of Zeebrugge and artificial fog is likewise helpful in other operations, including the running of an automobile motor. The Humidor, made by the American Humidus Company of South Olive street, is an arrangement to manufacture fog for your motor, the result being similar to that noticed when the machine runs during damp, foggy weather, more pep and smoothness in the running of the motor.

FORTY-SECOND AND FIFTH AVENUE FOR A SALESROOM.

AN AMERICAN-MADE motor car at last has invaded the almost sacred precincts of Fifth avenue, New York, by being established in a permanent home located on one of the most famous thoroughfares in the country and between the almost equally famous cross streets, Forty-second and Forty-third. C. T. Silver, metropolitan distributor of the Apperson line of cars, is setting the pace for other New Yorkers by opening an elaborate sales and showroom on the celebrated street. Most prominently displayed in a show window designed especially for the purpose is one of the new Apperson anniversary eight models, the body style of which Mr. Silver is credited with having originated.

Mr. Silver states in a letter received by Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the Los Angeles Apperson branch, that he had long coveted an opportunity to open a store on Fifth avenue. He had only waited for the time when he could present a car with distinctive body lines and a worthy chassis, and this combination has been realized in the new Apperson creation.



A trip calculated to tax the endurance of man and car.

This is Verne Dumas, a Los Angeles man, who arrived here a few days ago, having driven from Hu Kan., in his Marmon roadster in five days, covering a total of 1860 miles in that time. The c been run a good many miles before starting the trip.

AUTOS HAVE MANY SUMMER COMPLAINTS.

This is the season of the year when overheating troubles begin to be more or less chronic. There are many causes of overheating and the novice often has trouble in locating the real basic cause in his particular case. The cooling system is the first place to suspect. Any obstruction to the free circulation of the water results in overheating in hot weather. The rubber connections should be examined and the radiator drained to see if the water flows freely from top to bottom. After emptying the water system pour water in the radiator and see if it flows down quickly. Sometimes a drain cock may be clogged, inducing a restricted flow inside. Run a piece of wire up the drain cock to dislodge the obstruction. If there is an overflow pipe see that it is not clogged. Dirt often gathers in the lower opening. Tighten the fan belt to remove possible excessive slippage. It must be remembered that overheating sometimes results from bad handling of the car, from trouble in the lubrication system, ignition system, etc. But the first place to look is the cooling system itself

Red Cross Work is Much Helped by Use of Many Motor Trucks.

LIGHT TRUCKS ARE BIG AID TO WORK OF THE RED CROSS.

ANY rags, any bottles, any sacks, any cans, any r-a-g-s" is a junk man's [illegible] that is steadily diminishing in [illegible] since the salvage department of the American Red Cross started its work.

It was Mrs. Otheman Stevens who saw the possibilities of such a bureau and after convincing others that the plan was feasible and a possible source of profit the movement was started a little more than a year ago. In April of 1917 the salvage bureau turned into the treasury of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Red Cross a check for $50.50 which represented the returns for that month's work.

Just one year after the work had begun there was credited to salvage [illegible], a very handsome sum it was thought by those whose energy and effort had made the work possible, and the returns for the past two months indicate that the work will assume proportions little dreamed of by those whose vision caused the inception of the plan. For May the returns totaled $5570 and for [illegible].

Not all of the material collected is sold for junk, however, as the Red Cross shops find a ready sale for a considerable percentage of the goods brought in. There are many articles of clothing, jewelry, household utensils and furniture that after small repairs are easily sold. The shop at Red Cross headquarters at Tenth and Main sold $1000 worth of merchandise over its counters in May and then beat that record with a mark of $1215 for June. This material came through the salvage bureau.

Two-fifths of the volume of materials handled can be gotten from the tonnage of waste paper alone. This amounted to 309 tons in May and over 500 tons for June. The month of June was speeded up by the work of the schools which were working for a creditable showing in competition. The schools in May turned in 253,768 pounds of paper, 1663 pounds of scrap metal, 2574 pounds of rubber in various forms, and 30,068 bottles. The 250 auxiliaries scattered all over Los Angeles turned in slightly less paper and bottles, but five times as much metal and twice as much rubber.

Mrs. Bud Frankenfield has charge of the collection department and has organized it as efficiently and systematically as a big business thereby conserving efforts and increasing the volume possible to handle with the available help and trucks. Mr. and Mrs. Frankenfield worked out a card index system and a zone map that simplifies the work to the greatest degree. As Mrs. Frankenfield puts it, "We found that in many cases contributors were burning up 25 cents' worth of tires and gasoline to deliver 10 cents worth of waste paper to the salvage department. Under the present system there are 250 auxiliary stations in Los Angeles and when a person calls the Red Cross to notify them that they have something to donate, they are asked to deliver it to a near-by auxiliary if possible and if they cannot the chairman of the auxiliary in charge sends some boy or the next available motor car to bring the parcel to the substation. Then when there is a sufficient load a truck is sent from headquarters to bring it to the main warehouse at Sixth and Alameda streets."

There are four light trucks working all of the time for the bureau of salvage three of them manned at present by volunteers from the fire department, who take turns in driving a day at a time. The fourth truck is a Reo which has been loaned to the Red Cross for the period of the war by Earle C. Anthony, Inc. This car is operated by Mrs. Mosher who is the premier woman truck driver for the Red Cross in America.

Some days she handles as high as four tons of paper by herself as well as some minor loads. Most of the loading she does by herself, but at the warehouse usually has assistance. In addition to the four regular vehicles Mrs. Frankenfield has a list of 126 firms who have volunteered the use of their trucks on certain days or parts of days each week and many of the loads are picked up by these trucks as they return empty to the downtown stores from which they operate.

When a load is reported ready in a certain auxiliary station the bureau tries first to find some truck operating in that section that can bring it in, failing that, one of the regular trucks is sent or a truck that is putting in a full day as a contribution of some business house.

KEEP CAR IN GOOD RUNNING CONDITION.

The motor car long ago ceased to be a luxury, and now is undoubtedly indispensable. If the man who drives daily to his work or uses his car for calling on business associates has to do without it for a day, he soon is convinced of its necessity as a transportation medium. Yet it is up to every owner to help in giving his car that attention it needs to keep it in good running condition, in the opinion of H. C. McVey, local representative of the Oakland six, the car that transported five passengers and luggage to the Yosemite in the recent economy run on 13½ gallons of gasoline, when driven by F. I. Willey.

Here is the Reo truck donated to the salvage department of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Red Cross, and some of the work it is doing to advance the cause.

TRUCK ECONOMY CLEARLY SHOWN.

Four Maxwell trucks played a very prominent part in one of the biggest "moving jobs" on record, which took place recently when the entire furniture and office equipment of the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation was moved bodily from Washington to Philadelphia.

The Maxwells formed part of a fleet of fourteen trucks which left Washington early one morning recently. Of the other trucks, there were some which cost four times as much as the Maxwells, yet despite this, and the more important fact that the Maxwells were much more heavily overloaded, they were the only trucks in the caravan to reach Philadelphia without a mishap, and were also the first to reach Philadelphia and the first to reach Washington on the return trip.

The operation being a large one, the owners had determined to make an accurate record of the trip and keep strict account of the expense incurred by each truck. This was done and the completed chart showed that the Maxwell trucks had used less gasoline and oil than a touring car driven over the same route at the same time as a pilot car to the truck train.

EFFICIENT MAGNET TO FIND BROKEN METAL.

Only the man who has tried knows how hard it is on some occasions to remove particles of metal that have lodged in various parts of the mechanism. Broken gear teeth lodged in the transmission case may be instanced. Almost everyone knows that a magnet may be used for this work, but often the magnet is so shaped that it will not reach in certain inaccessible parts of the mechanism. By wrapping a twelve-inch bar of cold rolled steel having a nut run on the lower end, with three or four layers of No. 20 magnet wire, connected up with a six-volt storage battery or three or four dry cells, a magnet is made that will readily lift a really heavy piece of iron and will go in almost any part of the mechanism, no matter how inaccessible.

ELECTRICAL EXPERTS ARE ON THE JOB NOW.

LOS ANGELES BRANCH OPENED WITH FINE EQUIPMENT FOR SERVICE.

Los Angeles motorists will be interested in the announcement that the United Motors Service, Inc., has opened its new factory branch for service. This is one of the several leading cities to have a direct factory branch for service for the manufacturers of the three leading makes of motor car electrical equipment, Delco, Remy and Klaxon. The new branch is located at No. 1152 South Grand avenue.

Mr. J. D. Trindle, who was manager of the Remy branch, is now manager of the United Motors Service branch, and the organization is composed of expert workmen who have had full experience in handling the work on the other two makes of equipment, as well as the Remy. Many new ideas of service are featured in the new establishment. Everything possible is being done to insure the utmost convenience to the motorist, at the same time making sure that his work receives the most careful attention.

Fred B. Alexander has donated the trophy for the junior singles winner of the New York boys' tennis tourney, which will start July 8 on the courts of the Terrace Club of Brooklyn.

For the first time in twenty-five years no prize will be offered for light harness horses at the Long Branch horse show. The classes having failed to fill last year they were stricken from the prize list.

TAKE YOUR WHEELS WITH YOU—THIEVES GRAB THEM.

WITH the recent advent of the "wheel thief" in Los Angeles, the Automobile Club of Southern California is urging all owners of machines to place some distinctive mark of identification on the inside of their rims.

The especial victim of this new type of vandal is the owner who has a car equipped with wire wheels. Last Monday an interesting case was brought to the attention of Detective John Powell of the Auto Club's theft bureau. In this instance, Allan Craig, a resident of Fullerton, had purchased a brand-new car and taken it home as a surprise for his wife. Upon emerging to inspect the new chariot, Mr. and Mrs. Craig discovered it missing. About a quarter of a mile down the road they found their car lying in an undignified position flat on its flippers and minus its five nice new wire wheels.

HERE ARE THE FACTS AND FIGURES ON TIRE SIZES.

AT the request of the commercial economy board of the Council of National Defense a simplification of the line of pneumatic tires has been accomplished and all of the larger tire manufacturers are now operating under the new regulations, according to information that has been received by Roy R. Meads, president and general manager of the Pacific Rubber Company, distributor of Horseshoe tires on the Pacific Coast.

The new regulations have received the unanimous approval of the Central War Service Committee and it has also been approved by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the Tire and Rim Association and the tire and rim division of the Standards Committee of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

"Class E tires are to be discontinued at once; class D manufacturing will be discontinued November 1, 1918; class C manufacturing will be discontinued November 1, 1919, and class B manufacturing will be discontinued November 1, 1920, is the news that I have just received from the Horseshoe factory," stated Meads.

A Sad Tale.

FESTIVE SEALS SMEAR CHUCKER BILL PERTICA.

BY EDWIN F. O'MALLEY.

SAN FRANCISCO simply smeared it on Bill Pertica yesterday afternoon to the accompaniment of a minor melody something like 7 to 1. Bill had an off day. This is an alibi that has been worn to a frazzle in the heaving department. Bill went well for about three innings and then the trouble began. It listened something like this:

Fourth inning. Pick popped to Butler but Hunter came through with a single to center. Koerner shot one to left and Maggert hit infield, scoring Hunter. Hummel kept the ball rolling by singling to right, putting Koerner over the plate. Corhan flied to Killefer. McKee singled to center, scoring Maggert, but Hummel was out trying to take third; Killefer to Butler. Three runs and five hits.

This iced the game and it was only a question of hastening matters to the end. The Angels put one over in the seventh and threatened to make several in the ninth, but Maggert's swell catch of Downs's liner brought things to a sudden and welcome close. Kantlehner heaved a good game for the visitors. Although the Angels made eight hits off him, he kept them pretty well scattered. The score follows:

NORTHERN WRESTLER HURLS DEFI AT CHAMPION MILLER.

A PEPPERY missive, penned by one Charlie Olson of Olympia, Wash., and challenging Walter Miller, middleweight wrestling champion of the world, to a finish match burst bomb-like into sporting circles yesterday.

Olson admits that no other person but himself has the ghost of a chance of taking the title belt away from Miller and requests that blood-hungry young man to "quit beating it around the bush." Mr. Olson wishes to say "just one word" to the sporting fans of Los Angeles, but, since his remarks disseminate themselves over several closely written pages, they are too voluminous for publication.

AMONG THE FANS.

Newell W. Banks, who has been working several weeks in Detroit, helping turn out Liberty motors for Uncle Sam, was called for active duty on June 25. If he can fight like he can play, Old Kaiser Bill has seen his day.

J. A. Drouillard has been a veritable "Will-'o-the-Wisp" for several months. It has been "off again, on again, gone again, Finnagan," all summer. He is now located at Santa Paula; where he will be when next heard from God only knows, and he won't tell.

GAME NO. 99—GIUOCO PIANO.

Rubinstein's victory over Schlecter in their recent match gives the Pole a right to be considered as Lasker's next opponent in a match for the world's championship. Rubinstein has won every match he has played, having defeated Mieses, Marshall, Teichmann, Salwe and Schlecter. In my opinion he would give Lasker a harder struggle than any other player would, not even excepting Capablanca. The following game is one from his match with Salwe.

a—This is always dangerous. It needs energetic after play to justify it, but White never makes an effort to get an attack on the king's side with his advanced pawns, which are then merely weak.
b—Also rather weak. White spends two moves to force an exchange of bishops that does Black no harm.
c—Boldly planting the knight in a position from which it has no escape. However, it is in a very embarrassing place for White, who feels impelled to trade it for his bishop some moves later.

CALL BASEBALL AN ESSENTIAL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—Baseball was classified as an essential industry under the work or fight order by a local draft board in East Orange, N. J., in deciding today an appeal by Joseph Finneran, a pitcher for the New York Americans. Finneran was notified by the board that since he could support his wife and child better by playing baseball than in any other way he could remain with his team. His classification in the draft was 4-A.

THE "First-to-Fight" Boys. The U. S. Marines.

Before the Continental Congress authorized and uniformed either Army or Navy, it mustered into regular service on November 10, 1775, two battalions of American Marines.

Upholding their traditions for doing it first, the U. S. Marines, under Lieut. O'Bannon, in 1805 marched 700 miles across the Tripoli desert, hauled the flag of the Bey off Fortress Dorne, and ran up the Stars and Stripes, the first U. S. Flag to fly over a captured foreign fort.

In the realm of rubber, Goodrich always "does it first."

But whether Goodrich was making the first American pneumatic tire, the first American clincher tire, or the first American cord tire, Goodrich was always building—

BILLY PIERSON: "Well, Bob! I haven't seen you for months—where've you been."

BOB CURRIER: "Oh, I've been laid up for several weeks—it's pretty good to get out again too, I can tell you."

BILLY: "For heaven's sake—not hospital?"

BOB: "Yes sir, and I just dodged an operation."

—"What was the trouble?"

—"Why, Billy, the doctors called it some awful name, but it was nothing more or less than a "clog" in my intestines; waste that wouldn't move—poisoning me—breeding a fine line of serious diseases."

—"What did they do to you up at St. John's?"

—"They were all ready to operate for appendicitis. That food waste had accumulated in the large intestine, where the appendix is. I had had pains, and I always tried to cure them with pills or salts. That only shook up my system—flushed it hard—and left that poisonous waste right there, dryer and harder than ever. Taking a pill for for that condition is like driving your car up Ten Mile Hill to get the carbon out of the cylinders."

—"That's right."

—"Well, the doctor said "We'll see if we can't move that obstruction naturally before we try to operate." He put me on my back, and I watched the clock, counted my fingers, ate a diet and took Nujol. The Nujol softened that dry mass, moved it on, and after a while I began to be regular—my system is my clock now. I take a little Nujol morning and night just before tooth-brushing and I really don't know what it is to feel low. Pleasant to take too."

—"What does the Nujol do?"

—"Simply softens the contents of the bowels—without in any way interfering with digestion—and lubricates the ashes easily along the intestines. It's not absorbed. You get rid of every drop you take. For a man who doesn't exercise much, or who works so hard that he hasn't time to keep his insides as clean as his collar, it just helps nature out, see?"

—"Sure (he twists the self-starter) I'll bet there are thousands of men right now in the same shape you were in. Only one of them knows it and he just found it out. Hop in!"

—"Where you bound, Billy?"

—"I'm going to take you down to the drug store, and then if you're real good and you help me buy one bottle of Nujol, we'll go out and shoot about nine holes before supper. How about it?"

The car containing the Man Who Was Sick, and the Man Who Isn't Going to Be, gathers momentum and

The Rose

"Los Angeles" Wins

It will be a matter of intense pride to the people of California—Los Angeles in particular—and to all lovers of flowers, especially Roses, to know that California's famous Rose "Los Angeles" has been awarded the gold medal—the grand prize of the Rose world—at Paris, France.

This prize is presented annually by the City of Paris for the most perfect type of new seedling Rose in exhaustive competition extending over a period of two years and embracing entries from all parts of the world.

With the guns of earth's greatest war thundering fifty miles away and the city under bombardment by "Big Berthas" and Gotha aeroplanes, the judging in the Rose garden of the Bois de Boulogne Park was witnessed by an assemblage of thirty-five thousand people. This emphasizes the importance in which this award is regarded by the French nation and indicates the high degree of honor bestowed upon a California production and upon our home city of Los Angeles.

IMPORTANT NOTICE—owing to the enormous demand for the rose "Los Angeles," which it received on its own merits before this award was made, we sold our entire stock last season, but now have ready a limited number of plants, heavy two-year-old stock, balled from the field, for immediate delivery. This stock will be exhausted before the coming winter. If you want one or more plants, order NOW, otherwise you will be unable to have your order taken care of until next r.

"THEY SHALL NOT PASS."

By John C. Hamm, author of "Camping on the Rhine."

"They shall not pass."
With lips firm set, calm and deliberate,
Ten thousand times ten thousand times free men
Have made the world this sacred, solemn pledge.
The vow is sealed on many bloody fields
Where the rude cross, or stone, or monument
Of earth attests the last great sacrifice.
"They shall not pass."
The sightless eyes of children plead this cause,
And woman's outraged virtue makes appeal.
While mutilated forms in silence stand.
Ten thousand stumps that once were hands are raised
In witness of this final blood-bought oath,
"They shall not pass."
Thus buttressed by the fiendish work of Huns
The noble manhood of the human race
Struck hands with bruised, broken, martyred France,
America, France, England, Italy
Stand guard to do and die in Freedom's cause
That must not, shall not perish from the earth,
"They shall not pass."

Married Life of Helen and Warren

By Mabel Herbert Urner.

"ALWAYS late—everywhere we go," fumed Warren. "It's your infernal primping."

"I had to do my hair over," trying to keep up with his wrathful strides. "Oh, I shouldn't have washed it yesterday."

"Got the address?"

"Yes, I have the card." Helen felt the stiff envelope in her beaded bag.

They ran down the subway steps just as a train pulled out—a further delay that did not contribute to Warren's amiability.

"Dear, we'll only be five minutes late," glancing at the ticket window clock which was a quarter of seven. "We can make it in twenty minutes."

"Not if we wait here half the night!" glowering down the empty track.

An interminable three-minute wait, and they pushed their way into a stifling, overcrowded car.

"Why in blazes didn't we take a taxi?" growled Warren.

For once Helen doubted the economy of abjuring taxicabs. The heat was wilting her hair and the elbowing crowd crushed the freshness of her organdie gown

When at length they emerged, in disgruntled silence they hurried over to Riverside Drive.

"Now what's that number? Eh? What's wrong?" at her gasp of dismay.

"The card—it isn't here!" holding up the empty envelope.

"The devil it isn't!"

"But we can get the address from the telephone book," excitedly. "We just passed a drug store."

As they turned back to the corner pharmacy, Warren's muttered comments were emphatic and unflattering.

While he consulted the directory chained to the telephone booth, Helen, before the soda-fountain mirror, gave hasty adjusting touches to her hair.

"They're not listed!" explosively. "Now we're in a deuce of a fix!"

"Ask information," eagerly. "She'll give you the number."

"Not of a private wire—but I'll see if I can bluff it out of her."

The booth stifling hot, he left the door open, and Helen heard his heated, unavailing argument. Information would give neither the number nor the address of a private phone.

"Call up Nora," tensely. "Tell her to look on the desk for the card."

But apparently Nora too had gone out, for their apartment did not answer.

"It's right near here—they said it was only a few minutes from the station. We'll ask at the big apartments. Oh, we can find it—I'm sure we can!"

"Yes, in time for breakfast," snarled Warren.

"It's the only thing we can do—it's too late to go back."

Hastening on to the drive, Warren, who always loathed making inquiries, scowlingly approached the first apartment. No one by the name of Willard lived there, the brass-buttoned doorman informed them.

"See here," belligerently, when the next four houses had disclaimed any tenants by that name, "we can't keep up this wild goose chase all night!"

"What else can we do?" desperately.

"We can go to a restaurant, get our dinner—and go back home."

"Oh, they'd be furious! How could we ever explain?"

"That's up to you," he rasped. "This is your mix-up."

"Oh, we must find them—there must be some way!" frantically racking her resourceful mind.

"What's the use?" with irate disgust. "We're an hour late now."

"Oh, wait—just a second!" darting off toward a postman who was emptying the corner mail box.

"Willard?" to her breathless inquiry. "Yes, I think there's a Willard in the next block. Try that house with the globe lights out front."

His information was correct. The Willards lived there and were expecting guests.

The attendant of the white and gilt elevator shot them up to the tenth floor and directed them down the hall.

"We'll say the subway was blocked," whispered Helen, in fluttering agitation.

"We'll say nothing of the sort. You'll tell the truth, or—"

But here the opening door checked his vehemence. Helen had expected an accusing frigidity from even the maid, but the girl's face expressed only blank courtesy as she ushered her into the dressing-room.

"I'll not wait to fix my hair—I'll go right in."

Her distress would have been less acute if they had gone on with the dinner, but the guests were still grouped in the drawing-room.

"Oh, I—I'm sorry to be late," abjectly apologetic, as Mrs. Willard greeted her, "but we—"

"Why, that's quite all right. Have you met Mr. and Mrs. Bailey?"

The invitation had said "an informal dinner," but now as they passed into the dining-room the long glittering table suggested a banquet.

Twelve in all, appraised Helen as they were seated. With flushed embarrassment she lowered her eyes to the caviar canape. They had kept all these people waiting an hour—for it was now five minutes after eight.

"Oh, it was unpardonable for us to be so late," to Mr. Bailey by whom she was seated. "But we forgot the number—and—" she launched into a breathless account of their search.

Mr. Bailey's attention was polite and slightly forced. He appeared more interested in a bridge story that Mrs. Ellis, on his right, was telling.

Warren, across the table, seemed in no way disconcerted by their late arrival. He was talking to the hostess with careless unconcern.

Mrs. Willard's attitude Helen could not but admire. Whatever her resentment at her delayed dinner, outwardly she was quite unperturbed.

The hors-d'oeuvre was followed by iced bouillon. The fish course was crab flakes; the entree, mushroom timbales; and the roast, cold breast of guinea hen with artichokes vinaigrette.

Helen was devoutly thankful that so much of the dinner was served cold. Possibly that accounted for the hostess's unruffled placidity.

But Helen's discomfort was still poignant. She was still painfully conscious of her heat-wilted hair and powderless nose.

"Oh, yes," she murmured vaguely at some remark of Mr. Bailey's to which she had not listened.

Apparently discouraged by her wandering attention and monosyllabic replies, Mr. Bailey now directed his conversation to Mrs. Ellis.

The strain of their arrival had taken Helen's appetite. Any nervous tension always sent a lump to her throat and started a throbbing headache.

A raspberry mousse, coffee and cordials finished the dinner, which to Helen had seemed endless.

Again in the drawing-room she sought the corner of a secluded couch. Having started the evening "wrong" she could not hope to feel at ease. Her only thought now was to efface herself—to avoid the lime light.

Fortunately, Mrs. Bailey's willingness to give her "interpretation" of Russian folk songs kept her at the piano. This imposed upon Helen no greater strain than to assume an appreciative expression and murmur an occasional "How charming!"

It was almost 12 o'clock before the party broke up. Warren had ordered a taxi and Helen sank into its cushioned depths without a protest. Just then the heat and glare of the subway would have been unendurable.

"Ripping good dinner, that," as with yawning relaxation he lit a cigar and stretched out, his feet on the seat opposite. "Everything served cold—that's the wheeze for hot weather."

"Well, it was fortunate tonight," but Helen's comment was drowned by the honking of their taxi at a leisurely milk wagon.

"Wonder where they got that Cheddar cheese—that was the real thing."

Then noting Helen's unresponsiveness, "What's the matter? All in? No wonder after that scurry to find the house."

"Oh, it was ghastly! The whole thing was—"

"Yes, had us on the run there for a while," carelessly. "But your double blunder sort of evened things up."

"Double blunder?"

"Well, we'd have felt pretty awkward getting there at 7 o'clock—an hour too early." Then staring at her. "Great guns, didn't you find that out?"

"You mean it was an 8 o'clock dinner—and we weren't late at all?"

"Think that bunch would have been so pleasant—if we'd kept 'em waiting an hour for the eats?"

A dazed moment, as this explanation of the hostess's amiability and evident surprise at her effusive apologies now dawned upon her.

"Why—why didn't you tell me! Oh, I had a perfectly wretched evening—and all for nothing!"

"Thought you knew," with a shrug. "I was wise to it soon as we got there. Well, you were a juggins if you thought—"

"But the invitation said 7 o'clock—I'm mistake!"

"You couldn't, eh?" as the cab stopped before their apartment. "Well, I wouldn't do any betting on that."

Upstairs in the library Helen switched on the lights and flew to the desk. There was the card!
sure it did! I couldn't have made such a
"—dine with us very informally Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock."

"Now how about it?" jeered Warren, peering over her shoulder.

"Oh, how could I have got that wrong?" still staring at the plainly written "eight."

"Got it wrong?" with a derisive snort. "What stumps me is how you ever get anything right! But you certainly outdid yourself tonight. A double barreled blunder in one evening is going some—even for you!"

A REMEMBERED GRUDGE.

It is said that Queen Wilhelmina, as a child, found it difficult to learn the English language, and for that reason did not love England. The first map of Europe she drew showed an enormous Holland, a fair-sized Belgium and France, but an almost imperceptible Great Britain.

To draw particular attention to the diminutive island representing England, she wrote below it "Land of Miss." (her English governess.)

Years later the young Queen said to the British Minister at The Hague:

"Be sure to tell Her Majesty Queen Victoria that I do love Englishwomen, all Englishwomen."

To which the Minister bowed, and the Queen added:

"All Englishwomen who are not governesses."

Method of Glueing on Horseshoes

By Edwin Tarrisse.

IT IS probable that few persons observing a horse shod have failed to be struck with the crudeness and probable painfulness of the operation. The question has been asked: "Is there no way to protect a horse's foot except to nail a piece of iron to the hoof?"

Some reformers think that there is another way, and they have endeavored to introduce a shoe of leather, cemented to the bottom of the hoof. Some of these suggestions were not so long ago discussed by an expert in this relation.

He points out that the problem of avoiding the wear on the hoofs of domestic animals of the horse family, in conditions under which their services are ordinarily utilized, has hitherto been solved by very crude shoeing, but that, as at present practiced, this process cannot be considered excellent. It is inconvenient for the organ that it is designed to protect and it is also barbarous.

Shoeing necessitates serious precautions against bruising or wounding the horse's foot. Even when well done it includes operations that, in the long run, injuriously affect the structure and normal growth of the hoof, which is evidently not intended to be pierced with nails or to undergo repeated contact with red-hot iron. These processes often make the hoof fragile and brittle.

Again, although the operation is not, properly speaking, a source of great suffering when properly done, it is still a painful one. This latter consideration is one of those that the experts regard as an argument in favor of the use of a method to replace the piece of nailed iron by a real shoe. The iron shoe is nailed solidly to the horse's foot. This was an advance over processes less painful for the horse, but more complicated and less stable. From the point of view of stability it presents the maximum of safety from all standpoints and on all kinds of roads. Before it, recourse was had, to avoid wearing the hoof, to iron shoes attached by other methods. The Roman shoe was formed of a full plate of metal with a turned-up front from which proceeded a sort of handle bearing upon the front of the hoof. The rear part of the shoe, which was slightly raised, followed the shape of the foot. It ended at the middle of the back edge, in a buckle to which a strap was fastened. The bandle, buckle and strap evidently served to fasten the shoe to the horse's foot.

The Roman horsemen must have acquired rapidly great skill in putting on these shoes, but stoppages and accidents of all sorts were much more to be feared than with a method of fastening the shoe to the hoof itself and doing away with buckles and straps, which are always liable to be displaced or broken.

The shoe invented by one reformer has for its object the doing away of the brutal driving of nails into the hoof and the contact of red-hot iron. Nevertheless, it adheres, it is claimed, directly to the base of the hoof, for such adherence seems to be indispensable. Shoeing by means of nails was adopted to obtain just this advantage and to avoid the inconveniences of a less firm method of fastening. Adherence is obtained in this process by a mixture of gutta-percha and asphalt, which unites intimately, quickly and firmly the base of the hoof to the shoe. This sort of quick-setting cement gives a perfect and nonresistant contact.

As to the shoe itself, it is of leather, but may be made, according to circumstances, more or less thick, simple, double or reinforced, depending on the kind of horse and the nature of the services demanded. It would seem easy to adapt to the leather shoe outer nails which shall prevent the animal's slipping on the ice, in cases where this special form of shoeing will appear to be necessary.

hospital craft crowded with the wounded and the dying, may be looked to to attempt murder against troopships transporting thousands of heroic men on the way to avenge these unspeakable outrages.

I am not afraid, however. When I told you to go I spoke with every fiber in my being. If I knew that the ship on which you sail were to be sent to the bottom of the ocean I could not ask you to remain behind.

So I bid you au revoir and pray for God's hand to steer you past treachery and mishap, past the torpedo of the brutal butcher, past all peril. If it is willed that you come back to me safely, a mother's welcome keyed by a mother's longing awaits you; if not, good-by. Death is not the worst thing that can happen to an American.

With love from the fountains of my heart that flow alone for you, my hope, my pride,

Is German Nation Going Broke?

flated prices—only multiplied a hundred-fold—as the example of the barrel of flour and the gold piece.

But that is not the worst feature of inflated money. When the barrel of flour equals $5 and wages are $2 a day, it takes a workman two and one-half days to earn the flour; but when the barrel of flour goes up to $20 it takes the workman ten days to earn it. But after the war suppose wages drop to $1. The workman must work twenty days to earn that flour. So of debts contracted during the inflation.

To quote a financier of international repute: "Suppose a farmer who borrows $1000 now when wheat commands, say, $2.50 a bushel, should pay it off some years hence when wheat is back to $1. Then it would take 1000 bushels of wheat to cover what would be satisfied with 400 now." And that is what Germany will be up against with all her war debts when the war is over.

What This War Has Cost Germany in Dollars and Cents.

THE war—to quote the Mechanics National Bank—has already expended three times as much as the total indebtedness of all nations in 1914. Every month of the war is costing Germany double the entire cost of the Russo-Japanese War. Eight days of this war exceeds the cost of the Boer War. Three weeks of this war would pay the cost of the Franco-Prussian War. A month and a half of this war would pay the cost of the Civil War.

And it has to be paid, paid when deflation sets in and real values have to be laid on the counter for inflated debts. How is Germany going to do it? Just one desperate gambler's chance—indemnities, indemnities chiefly from the United States, which has the most gold.

Up to the present Germany has raised money for the war by loans. Up to the present she has shunned the very thought of taxes, for taxes can be levied only by the people's representatives, and they would demand an accounting, but the times is close when taxes must be levied to pay interest on these loans, and Germany sees the storm coming, for her last budget enacts one of the most remarkable laws ever framed, a law that out-herods royal tyranny before the French Revolution and makes Roman levies look like a boy's game of marbles.

The new law provides that all German subjects and all former German subjects who have been naturalized in foreign countries since August 1, 1914, shall be liable to "personal" taxation in Germany for a period of five years from the end of the year in which war with all great powers is ended.

Before any taxpayer gives up a permanent residence in Germany he must provide security to the amount of 20 per cent. of his capital or property. He must give notice and provide a full statement of his means not less than a month before he proposes to leave the country, and he must add to his financial statement any sums which he has invested abroad since August 1, 1914, and any sums which he has applied during the same period to the purchase of precious metals, precious stones or any objects of art, adornment or luxury.

So if All Highest Little Willie can't get the chink by the little shell game of passing the money out of one window and in at the other, why, then, he will just get it, so he will, by taking his precious people by the throat and squeezing it up as he did so gently with Belgium and is now gently doing with Russia.

Is Germany going broke? Of course not; and as a Wall street officer said, she won't break till an American rifle, butt end on, smacks in the top of Willie's helmet. Then it is an easy guess her financial system will crack like cut glass.

The Cotton Shirt of the Soldier

which the slivers are still further drawn out, and are wound upon bobbins. They are now ready for the spinning machines, on which the threads for both the warp and woof are spun. The threads are now as fine as those of spool cotton. They are of uniform thickness and are ready for weaving.

How the Cloth is Woven on Modern Machinery.

THE term weaving covers the processes of putting the threads together as you find them in the cloth of the shirt. The cloth is formed by two sets of thread. Those which run lengthwise are known as the warp, and the others, which cross the long thread at right angles, going over and under them from side to side, are the woof. To fit the threads for these processes they have to be spooled. They are wound from the spindles on bobbins, and from them the warp threads pass through machines which wind them evenly upon a long cylinder the width of the cloth. The woof threads are wound upon little bobbins, which are put into shuttles and thrown by machinery through the warp thread. They go so fast you can hardly see them, making a speed of 150 or more times to the minute. At the end you have the cloth used in the shirt.

There are many other processes in addition to those I have described, and there are other machines of wonderful efficiency for carrying them out. Much of the spinning and weaving is performed by automatic machines, and the complexity and magnitude of the operation can be appreciated only by going through the mill while the work is in progress. Some of the rooms I have visited cover more than an acre. There are scores of such rooms. I went through one five-story building which had seven acres of wonderful machines of one kind or another, and during my trip I saw 4000 looms making cotton and worsted for clothes for the army.

The same processes may be seen going on at hundreds of other great factories in different parts of New England and throughout the South, employing hundreds of thousands of the most skilled workmen and workwomen of Uncle Sam's great industrial army. The soldiers of the spinning and weaving divisions mix patriotism with their work, and almost every one of them is a subscriber to the Red Cross and the Liberty Loan. I saw the American flag in many of the rooms of this factory, and was told that the employees had gone over the top in their subscriptions to war charities, Thrift Stamps and Liberty Bonds.

PURSUING THE ILLUSIVE DOLLAR.

[Note —This is the true story of the start of the career of a gentleman who is now a successful business man in Los Angeles.]

BY A BARGAINING YANKEE.

MY FOLKS lived in New England in an old revolutionary house built in 1792. There was a house before that, but the British burned it down, filled up the well and did a lot of other stunts that have made our farm quite a rendezvous for historians ever since. Every once in a while they dig up another war relic.

But that's got nothing to do with me. What I started to say was that it was one of those ancient farms, run on ancient methods, and my earliest recollections embrace about the following daily programme:

Up at 5 and milked eight cows; cleaned out the barn; chopped corn stalks for fodder; fed the cows. Right here my schedule is punctured by the remembrance that I did all this barefooted and that on cold mornings I used to make a cow get up so that I could stand in the warm straw to keep my feet from freezing.

I walked five miles to school, taking my lunch in a tin pail and a pair of shoes hidden under my coat. I put them on at the schoolhouse, wore them in school and then took them off again. After school, and the five-mile walk back, I fed the pigs, brought in wood, milked the cows again and did the chores around the house.

For all this I drew my first weekly salary. It was one cent!

And the irony of the whole thing was that on Sunday I had to give it to the preacher!

Sometimes there was a little extra right on the farm. I recall that in apple-picking time I was allowed all the speckled apples in lieu of salary.

I made my first money as a barefoot kid picking up empty bottles along the flats of the Delaware River off Jersey. Sounds funny, but there was a good deal of river traffic, both commercial and pleasure, and many a bottle was flung over the side which eventually came to shore.

The peddlers were always looking for old bottles and rags, and we kids used to pick up quite a bit of money in that way. I was about 8 years old at the time.

Spotting Nests of Muskrats for Winter Harvest.

BUT all summer, wallowing there in the mud, I was figuring on winter and laying the foundation for more money. The river bank was infested with muskrats and during the summer they began work on their nests for the winter.

I used to "spot" the nests in the making so that in the winter time I knew just where to go to make a haul. There's good money in it if you get enough of the animals lined up.

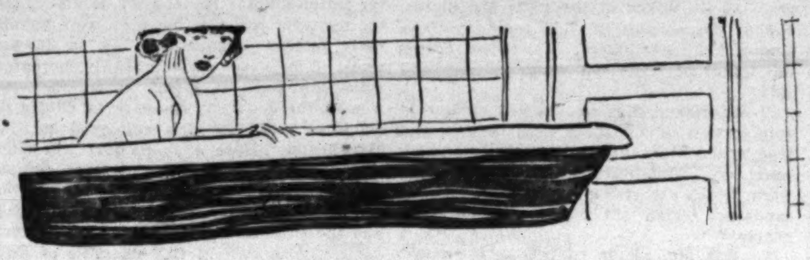
It was mighty interesting, too, now that I look back, but at the time there was mighty little romance in it—nothing but the lure of the dollar that was to be extracted from under the ice.

Chances are you'll be interested in the way we got muskrats. A lot of you wear their skins in one form or another, but probably have no conception of where they come from.

In digging up the bottles on the flats I had gotten acquainted with an old chap who made his living trapping the muskrats and he showed me how to do it.

They build their houses out of mud and reeds, something like the beaver. Some of these houses are five or six feet high and even larger in diameter. In the top is an air hole, for the entrance, you understand, is under the water on the bank of the stream, which is several rods away. I have captured as many as twenty animals in one hut.

We used to get from 18 to 25 cents apiece for the skins, and I have sold as many as 500 in a season. I used to get some grey squirrels, using a decoy, just the way you gun for ducks, and once in a while I'd land an otter. I remember once getting one so large that I got $36 for it.



From Fish to a Job in a Fruit Store.

NOW I'll jump a few years, and incidentally from fish to fruit. I was through school and landed a job in a wholesale fruit store.

Ben Franklin, when he went into Philadelphia with a loaf of bread tucked under his arm, had nothing on me, with dirty shoes, pants to my shoe tops, lunch in my pocket, and hot and tired after a ten-mile hike when I hit that fruit place.

I got $10 a week and my main job was to sort lemons. The good ones sold by the dozen and the bad by the hundred. I had to open the store in the morning, and there was a bunch of Italians that used to take advantage of the fact that for an hour I was there alone.

Two old women in particular used to come in, and while one kept me busy the other used to steal things. One morning I framed on them, arranging a pile of boxes on the same plan that a bear trap is hung so that a log falls on the bear.

It worked fine, for right in the middle of an argument with one old lady there came a crash. Back we rushed and there was he other old lady, a lemon still clutched in one hand, literally buried under the pile of boxes I had stacked up for her especial benefit. I never had any more trouble.

Counterfeits and How I Soothed My Conscience.

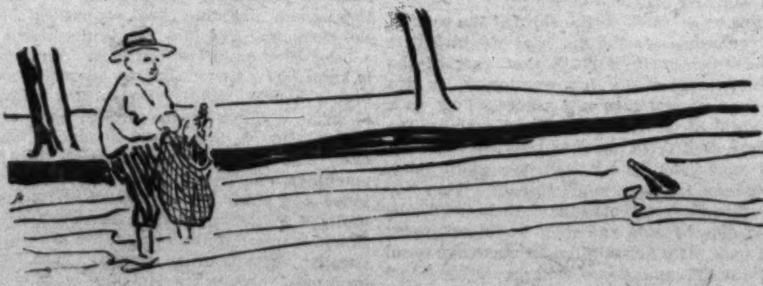
I NEVER could figure it out, but it seems as if the poor always have a lot of counterfeit money. It was always being offered and I had to look sharp not to get fooled.

Finally one day I was hooked for a counterfeit dollar and the boss made me keep it as part of my salary. I made up my mind that I'd get rid of it.

I timed myself nicely and burst into a shop just a minute before the ferry boat was to pull out. "Give me a tie," I shouted, slamming down my dollar. A moment later I had the tie and 75 cents change and raced for the boat.

Imagine how foolish I felt when I found that the boat I boarded was the incoming, and not the outgoing boat. I salved my conscience by going back and buying three more ties.

I suppose that looking at oranges and lemons all the time made me think a lot about California. Anyway, one day I took a hunch, quit my job, and bought a ticket for Los Angeles. It only cost me $56 to come all the way across, and I remember hitting Fifth and Spring with just $2.90 to my name.



I figured myself a fruit specialist, but there wasn't a look-in, which only goes to show that sometimes being a specialist is the bunk, so I put up a bluff, claimed I was an A1 carpenter and went to work on a job at Eleventh and Figueroa.

Made good, too, but I didn't feel at home perched on a roof and used to kid the people going by. I had been on the job less than a week when I got to talking to a chap who was amusing himself making all sorts of cracks at me, just to see what I'd answer.

Finally he said, "Want a job?"

"No," I answered. "I've got one."

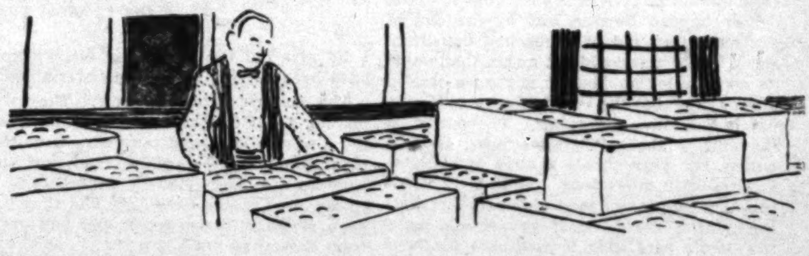
"But this is a better one," he argued, and to make it short I jumped off the roof into the picture-frame business. You know the stunt—house-to-house canvass with samples, taking orders. Maybe I sold you one.

The first day I was on the job I got eleven orders during the same length of time that the boss was getting six and his partner three. It was a funny job.

The Lady Who Stepped out of the Bath Tub.

I FOUND that the middle class did most of the buying, but at that you never could tell just where your best order was coming from.

One day I went to a likely-looking house and rang. No answer. I heard a sound inside so knew someone was there. I kept on ringing.



At last the door opened and there stood an eager, expectant woman.

"Madam," I said, "I want to sell you a picture frame."

"Is that what you've been ringing this bell all this time for?"

"Yes'm."

"Ye gods! And I got out of the bathtub and got dressed, just to answer the door. I thought maybe my husband was killed or something." Then she turned and called, "Here Towser, here Towser," but I never did wait to find out whether she was calling a poodle or a St. Bernard.

Peddling picture frames doesn't sound like much, and I found many who looked on me with something akin to pity, as I paddled from house to house. Just the same, that first month I made $116.50 clear profit, working on a 25 per cent. commission basis.

Indeed, the stunt worked out so well that it wasn't long before I was able to start a little place of my own, right on Broadway. Here I stuck for a year and did so well that I was able to sell out for a thousand dollars cash.

Selling Life Insurance in Philadelphia.

THEY say you've got to be here in California at least a year and a half before you like it so well that you never want to go anywhere else.

I guess it's so for now I think I'm a fixture, but at that time the murky East began to call me again and a friend in Philadelphia painted such a rosy picture of Quaker town that I bought a ticket and went east again.

My California experience had shown me that working the public isn't at all a bad proposition if you go at it with the idea of making good, so when I had a chance to solicit life insurance in Philadelphia I grabbed it, and began to line up the Quakers.

I got so I could say, "If thee will sign thy name here," without cracking a smile. I got along fine. At the end of six months I was high man among 950 solicitors. But they were always clamoring for more and more so finally I got sore and quit.

The Secret of All Salesmanship.

IN PASSING I might remark that the secret of all salesmanship seems to be to learn human nature. In some ways each person you go up against is different from all the rest.

Yet in other ways people are a great deal alike and can as a rule be placed in one of three or four groups before you have talked with them two minutes. Some have to be persuaded by logic, others through their vanity. Some are tender-hearted and buy because you place them in a position where they hate to turn you down. A lot buy just for spite.

This last is really a good tip for house-to-house salesmen no matter what your line may be. I figured out a stunt which, on a certain class of people, never failed to work.

I'd go up to a door and read the name plate, then go next door to sell a policy. Eventually, if my prospect happened to be of a certain kind, I'd ease in a remark to the effect that after all, the Joneses, who lived next door, were right, and I was wrong.

"What do you mean," demands the prospect. "Well, I reply, "they intimated that you couldn't afford to take a policy, even if you did need it. I made them a bet that you would take one." And nine times out of ten, I'd win.

IGNIS FATUUS.

Scientists have never explained to their satisfaction the light known popularly as the "will-o'-the-wisp,' and also known as ignis fatuus. The phenomenon has been attributed to the combustion of carbons and sulphurs ignited by sulphuretted hydrogen. This theory has been shown to be a fallacy by persons who have passed their hands through the so-called fire and felt no heat. The strange fire flies fastest over cemeteries and over lowland and swamps where no wind is blowing. Superstitious people attribute the flickering fires to the souls of the dead. The most plausible theory is that the phenomenon is due to radioactive emanations rising from beneath the ground.

IT IS a pretty thing, this apron, sort of quaint and old timey looking you know, with its little chintz design and rick-rack braid. It has a charm all its own and loses none of its usefulness by reason of being becoming. It is well fitting and big enough for almost any kind of work, the sort of apron one likes to have on hand to wear while getting dinner in the evening, after putting on a nice, clean dress, or to slip on to get up a little supper after the theater or on a Sunday evening. It only requires a yard and a quarter of cretonne, which can be picked up in a remnant any time so it is not expensive, you see.

A New Bath Robe of Cretonne for Warm Weather.

THIS bathrobe made of cretonne isn't so hot for this warm weather bathing and it can be made extremely attractive as there is such a variety of material to select from. It is the thing to make your slippers to match the robe.

How to Save Room and Shoes and Temper.

DON'T clutter up the closet floor with shoes. It is bad for the shoes, and the closet, and for your temper when you stumble over them. When the closet door happens to be left open it certainly looks better to see a neatly pocketed panel of artistic chintz, than a floor littered with shoes. Your best slippers may be kept in perfect condition in a well regulated shoe bag like this, where every shoe or every pair has its own compartment. Make some of the pockets larger than the others to accommodate your walking boots or even your husband's shoes, but do not make them all large as that will take up needless space. Several smaller pockets will give you more stowing-away room.

Rhubarb Cooked to Conserve Sugar, Flavor and Health.

PARBOIL the rhubarb as follows: Cut it into ½ to ¾-inch lengths and cover it with two or more times its own bulk of cold water. Put on stove and bring to boil. Continue to boil two or three minutes or until the rhubarb begins to pale, but not fall to pieces. Drain off all the water, barely cover the rhubarb with boiling water and continue boiling till thoroughly cooked. Use the same amount of sugar as required for apples. Remove from fire. More or less acid may be removed and the product adjusted to the most delicate digestion or taste by varying the amount of parboiling water. Do not peel the rhubarb. Its finest flavor lies in the exterior. If wanted for pies do not add water after parboiling, but put the rhubarb directly into the pies. The parboiling water is good to whiten the hands and soften the skin.

HOW TO COOK POTATOES

SCALLOPED POTATOES AND CHEESE.

Arrange a layer of sliced raw or boiled potatoes in a greased baking dish and sprinkle with grated cheese. Repeat until the dish is nearly full. Pour milk over the whole, about one-half cup to every three potatoes. Skim milk may be used. Bake in a moderate oven until done. The length of time required depends upon whether the potatoes are raw or boiled and whether the baking dish used is deep or shallow. Boiled potatoes baked in a shallow dish will take twenty minutes. Raw potatoes in a deep dish may take as much as one and one-half hours.

POTATO BISCUIT.

Using two cups of flour instead of three.

One tablespoon liquid, three tablespoons fat, one teaspoon salt, five teaspoons baking powder, two cups flour, one and one-third cups mashed potatoes.

Sift together dry ingredients, mix in the fat and add potatoes and liquid. This makes a very stiff dough. Roll one-half inch thick and cut into biscuits. Bake thirty to thirty-five minutes in a moderately hot oven.

POTATO MUFFINS.

Saving a fourth of the flour.

One-third cup liquid, one tablespoon fat, two tablespoons syrup, one egg, one cup mashed potatoes, one and one-half cups wheat flour, one teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder.

Add the liquid, melted fat, syrup and beaten egg to the cooked potato. Sift the dry materials together and add to the first mixture. The dough will be too stiff to mix easily with a spoon. Use a knife or a fork. Bake about thirty minutes in a moderately hot oven (205 deg. C., 400 deg. F.) Makes eight large or twelve to sixteen small muffins.

POTATO LOAF.

Two cups mashed potatoes, four tablespoons minced onion, two tablespoons green pepper or pimiento pepper, one-half cup canned tomatoes, one egg, one teaspoon salt, one-third cup ground peanuts.

Mix the ingredients well together. Turn the mixture into a buttered baking dish. Brush it over with melted butter or drippings. Bake it in a moderate oven for twenty-five minutes.

BELGIAN BAKED POTATOES.

Wash, pare and cut into pieces as for French fried potatoes. Lay potatoes on an oiled pan, season with salt and pepper and bake in a fairly hot oven until puffed, golden brown and mealy.

POTATO PUFF.

Add beaten whites of eggs to mashed potatoes (two eggs to six medium-sized potatoes.) Pile the mixture lightly in a baking dish and bake it in the oven until it puffs and browns. The yolks of the eggs and one-fourth cup of grated cheese also may be added.

THE COTTON SHIRT OF THE SOLDIER.

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

MANCHESTER (N. H.)—This is a story of the shirt of the soldier. It relates to the clothes our boys wear in the trenches. They have eaten up cotton by the millions of bales and are now coming out of the looms by the tens of millions of yards. The first chapters of the story have already been published. I have described the cotton fields of the South and shown how the little black seeds dropped in the furrows come forth and produce the white lint. I have described its path through the gin, where it is torn by saws from the seeds and packed up in great bales of 500 pounds each, and I have shown you these bales on their way to the market. In this letter I want you to follow the bales to New England and see how they are transformed into the cotton from which the shirt of the soldier is made. There is no better place to see this than right here at the Amoskeag Falls of the Merrimac River. These falls are in the heart of the city of Manchester, and about them has grown up the greatest cotton mill of the United States, if not of the world. Just now the most of its work is confined to the army.

This Factory Turns Cotton Into Cloth at Sixty Miles per Hour.

CAN you imagine a factory so big and so efficient that it takes the raw cotton in at one end and runs it out in cloth at the other at the rate of sixty miles every hour, and keeps up that speed all the year through? The cotton comes forth as fast as the highest-powered automobiles fly over the road. You might hitch the cloth as it comes from the looms to a lightning express train and start the locomotive off at full speed and there would be no slack or break in the cloth. It would keep up with the train, even though the cars were kept running for nine hours a day all the year through. If started here in New Hampshire the first day's output would reach almost to Pittsburgh, and by the end of the second day the train pulling the cloth would be at the edge of Chicago. Within four days it would be far beyond Denver, and by the end of the week it would have reached San Francisco, and if you could get a ship that would go sixty miles an hour it might be carried unbroken across the Pacific Ocean to Shanghai in ten days thereafter. The output of the mill is about 500 miles daily, and the output per year equals a strip of cloth almost 150,000 miles long. That strip would carpet a motor car road eighteen feet wide around the world, or, if you should make the strip a yard wide, it would reach around the earth and still have enough to cover a three-foot path half way to the moon.

The cotton is coming forth now at the rate of about a mile a minute, and a large part of each mile is for shirts to be made for the soldiers. The shirtings of that kind already produced number more than 1,500,000 yards, enough to reach almost all the way from New Orleans to Chicago. It was enough to supply a shirt apiece for 1,000,000 soldiers.

The same factory is making vast quantities of worsteds for the army. It turns out something like sixty miles of them every week. It makes the barracks bag which every soldier carries to France. This is woven in a cylinder of strong cotton cloth, and the buttons are sewed in on machines run by girls. The bag looks much like the laundry bag we use in traveling. The room in which it is made covers more than an acre, and the foreman thereof tells me that he is weaving such bags at the rate of 10,000 per hour.

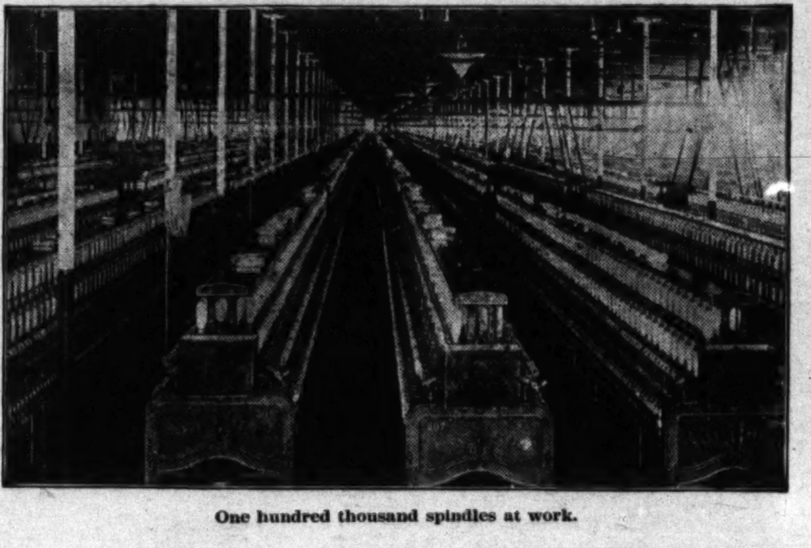
One of the Oldest and Largest Factories in the World.

THE factories where all this is going on are right here at Manchester. They belong to one company and they have produced a cotton mill center which is larger than that of any single company in Great Britain. It is, I venture, one of the oldest factories in the world. It began to spin and weave cotton within a generation or so after the spinning-jenny was invented by Hargreaves, and shortly after the British barber and hair dyer named Arkwright had put up his factories in England for his new inventions of spinning and carding machines; and it has been making more or less cotton cloth from that time until now.

The first mill was established when Thomas Jefferson was President of the United States, and the present company had its origin when Andrew Jackson held the office which Woodrow Wilson holds now. There is a tradition here that Andrew Jackson rode through Manchester in a beautiful barouche drawn by four milk-white horses and that he visited the cotton factory and rode for a mile between two rows of mill girls, who greeted him with songs and flowers. As he looked at the mills Mr. Slater, one of the officials of the company, was among his entertainers. He called Slater the father of American manufacturers and said:

"I understand that you showed us how to spin as well as they do in Great Britain and that by the Eternal in spite of all the British could do. You started these spindles to work, which are giving employment to thousands and which will make us an industrial people!"

To this Mr. Slater replied: "I suppose I did give out the psalm, but our workmen have been singing to the tune ever since."



One hundred thousand spindles at work.

The factories steadily grew. They were making goods for the soldiers at the time of the Mexican War, and ten years later were turning out 72,000 yards of cloth for every working day. They made a large part of the cotton used in the Civil War and they have been steadily increasing in size and output from that time until now.

Mills Use Electricity Now Instead of Water Power.

THE industry was first based on the falls of the Merrimac River, which here have a drop of about one-third that of Niagara. The first mill used the water power only, and the great buildings are now scattered along the river at different levels to take advantage of it. Later on electricity was generated by turbine wheels, but the business soon surpassed the strength of the stream, and now three-fourths of the power used in the mills comes from the steam generated by coal. Indeed, the business depends so much upon coal that it is a question whether it could not have been more advantageously located at the seaboard, where the freight rates for fuel and raw materials would be much cheaper and also those for some of the export of its produce.

It is strange that the cotton mills of the world should be located so far away from the cotton belt. We have a spinning and weaving industry in the South, but two-thirds of our cotton is spun in the North, and most of the world's cotton is woven from one to three thousand miles from where the cotton is grown. A vast deal of it is made in Great Britain, which has more than two-fifths of all the cotton factories on earth and eats up more than 20 per cent of the product. The world's cotton mills altogether number something like 6500. They are scattered throughout thirty-nine countries and consume about 20,000,000 bales of cotton a year. Of this more than one-third is woven in the United States and two-thirds of the latter amount here in New England. The Amoskeag Company alone has almost 700,000 spindles for cotton and worsted. It has more than 24,000 looms.

The cotton operatives of the world altogether number three or four millions and a large number of them are women. The great factory here employs 16,000 hands. About 7000 of these are women, and they receive higher wages, perhaps, than any other cotton workers on earth outside of this section of the country. Of the whole force in the Amoskeag there are only a few score under 16 years of age, and the youngest girls make $8 or $9 a week. Some years ago I visited the cotton mills at Manchester, England, and the manager told me that they were paying their factory women from $4 to $6 per week. The wages have probably increased since the war. It seems to me that the women there do not compare in ability or efficiency with the girls employed here at Manchester. Here a single girl will manage several looms, and the most complicated machines are in the hands of the women. Many of the machines are automatic and the noise of the factory is little in comparison with that of the old mills of England. As I went through the British factories it was a wonder to me how hundreds of girls could work together without being able to gossip. I mentioned this to my guide, who replied: "Why, bless you, man, these girls are the greatest talkers on earth. They were talking all the while we were in the mill, but the noise is such they they have learned to listen with the eyes and not with the ears. They have learned the lip language and can tell what any one says by watching the movement of his lips"

How the Factory Girls Dress in England.

THE factory girls of Manchester, N. H., are better looking and better dressed than those of Manchester, Eng. Here the girls have no special costumes. The girls of Manchester, Eng., wear calico dresses with short sleeves and a short skirt. Below the skirt show out their stockings and clogs. The clogs are a peculiarity to that class of employment. They have leather uppers with soles of wood on which bands of iron are tacked. This makes a great clatter as they move about, reminding one of the noise in a Japanese railroad station, where the passengers run over the platform in their wooden shoes. Most of the English factory girls pay but little attention to their personal appearance while at work. I saw hundreds of them who had their hair in crimping pins so tight that the skins of their foreheads were stretched like that of a tambourine. I was told that they kept their hair in crimping pins all the week and took it out only on Sundays and holidays.

But to get back to the shirt of the soldier. If you would see the material of which it is made you must start at that part of the factory where the huge cotton bales are opened up and torn into pieces. Pick up a handful of the cotton wool and examine the fibers. Pull them apart and spread them out on your hand. They look like white hairs, but they are very much thinner. They are so thin that a thousand of them might be laid side by side and they would not cover an inch. It takes millions to make one spool of thread, and there are several hundred millions in each soldier's shirt. It takes about 100,000,000 fibers to make one pound of raw cotton an amount which can be spun into a single thread 100 miles long.

Now if you will examine the fibers more closely you will see that each has a little curl or twist to it, and if you will put it under a microscope you will see that it has on its outsides many little scales overlapping each other like the scales of a fish. It is these scales which catch when the fibers are woven and make them cling tightly together. The curl or twist also aids to make the fibers combine, and better fits them for spinning and weaving. If you look at the end of the fiber under the microscope you will see that it is hollow. This makes it take the dye better so that it can be easily turned from the snowy white to the olive drab of the shirt of the soldier.

In this factory the fibers are dyed before they are spun. The mills have a great dye plant, where the white lint is put into steel tubs each so big around that an ox could easily be scalded within it. When the tub has been packed to its utmost a lid is forced on by great pressure and the dyestuff admitted in such a way that it penetrates every fiber, giving it a uniform coloring in the thread and the cloth. These mills make goods of every description. They make calicoes and ginghams and all sorts of fine goods for women, and the hues embrace all the colors of the rainbow. They are able to do this even now, notwithstanding they can get no dyes from Germany, which formerly supplied the most of the dyes of the world. The manager of the factory tells me that the company had great stores of dyestuffs on hand at the time the war began, and that it still has supplies that will last it for years. He says many of these dyes are being replaced by those made in America, and that the company has created a little dye plant of its own, where it is making some special colors, one of which is dead black.

Stages the Cotton Goes Through on Its Way to the Shirt.

IT IS a long journey through the Amoskeag mills from the cotton bales to the olive drab shirtings which are shipped to the factories, where they are made into clothes for the army. The mills here altogether have 137 acres of floor space, and the whole of this is filled with machinery of the most intricate nature. It is run by electricity and the most of it goes at dynamic speed.

I despair of giving you accurate pictures of all the processes through which the fibers go on their way from the bale to the shirt. As the cotton comes from the plantation it is of different varieties. Some of it has fibers longer than others, and the bales have to be opened and the different kinds of cotton mixed together, so that the product will be of the uniform quality which the government requires.

The cotton has to be torn loose by machines, which pull it apart. It is beaten up by other machines, and the dust, leaves, sticks and dirt are blown out. It is then run over great cylinders or rollers, called openers, and so treated that when it leaves them there is not a stick, leaf or grain of sand in it. The lint is now as soft as swan's down and whiter than when it was picked in the field.

The fibers, however, are all mixed together. They are turned this way and that and they cross and recross one another. They must all be laid the same way before they can be spun into thread. This work is done by the carding machines, huge rollers covered with little wire teeth, which brush and comb the fibers as they pass through, much as we comb our hair. The teeth are so fine that there are more than a hundred on a space as big around as a cent. The cotton goes into the carders in a wide fleecy sheet. The teeth straighten the fibers and roll them over and over so that when they come out they are almost all laid the same way and they are in the shape of a thick rope of soft cotton yarn. This rope is known as a sliver. It is as big round as a broom handle, and it seems thick enough to make a dozen of the fine threads used for weaving. It is not thick enough to make one. The slivers next go through drawing machines, where a number of them are combined and come out as one which is more uniform in thickness than those which go in and where the fibers are still more nearly parallel. This is called drawing. The ropes then pass through the slubbing machines would raise the total to about three and a half ounces, or nearly twice as much as the body can utilize.

This is the chief cause of the great prevalence of kidney diseases in the United States.

Other foods, such as milk, eggs and beans, contain a large percentage of protein, although not to the same excess of meat, but in meat, besides the protein, there is the waste in the blood of the animal when it is killed, which throws an additional burden on the over-worked kidneys.

Following is an extract from an article on this subject in the Medical World:

"Those who live on too much proteid develop high blood pressure as a result of empoisonment from the excess of proteid. We frequently have occasion to order such patients to restrict or omit proteid food in order to reduce the empoisonment and blood pressure, and where such is the cause the change in diet reduces the blood pressure. Only recently we saw a patient for the first time who had been put on an antidiabetic diet, omitting starches and substituting proteid. She had become addicted to eating great quantities of meat for months. Her blood pressure registered 192. She was weak and languid also. She had a great quantity of albumin in the urine, and was ordered to stop eating meat and live on vegetables. Within three days the albumin had disappeared from the urine and the blood pressure fell to 160."

Doctors and Diet.

Many broad-minded medical men are beginning to admit that the important subject of diet has been almost altogether neglected by the profession. Following is from an article in the Journal of the Indiana State Medical Association:

"It may be said without fear of controdiction that not enough attention is paid by physicians in general to the subject of nutrition. It may even be said that there is but very little known about the science of nutrition by the average physician. Yet this subject is always of great importance to the physician, and, in these days, it is of paramount importance not only to the profession but to all humanity.

"Questions relating to nutrition are not often put up to the physician by healthy individuals. The latter in health decide such questions for themselves. Since there is so much general ignorance with reference to nutrition, errors are quite common. It is very well known that usually people everywhere—especially in this country—eat too much. The consequences of such overeating are manifested by various digestive disturbances and the associated disturbances or changes resulting therefrom. That such disturbances and changes are numerous every clinician of experience knows. On the other hand, individuals who subsist on a diet properly selected and regulated according to the principles of scientific nutrition are entirely free of all such disturbances and symptoms, and seem to be much more vigorous in every way than those in the former class."

To this it may be added that "scientific nutrition" is often woefully misleading. As I have heretofore said, the human stomach is not a test tube, and there are other things to be considered besides carbohydrates, protein, and "calories."

Nature's Laws.

Here is part of a letter from a correspondent who lives at the old home of the late Mme. Modjeska, in Orange county, California:

"I am studying your articles on the care of the body very carefully. I recognize Harry Brook as a real helping hand to poor, suffering humanity.

"A physician should be a good gardener, who knows the operation of the natural law in the plant life. One may accomplish wonderful things by taking nature to his aid—sunshine, water, exercise, diet and work. He must know the nature of the food he partakes of and what effect it will have on his body. Further, he must know the condition of the stomach and its fluids.

"I myself was in a terrible condition, and was given up by the medicine doctors. I am glad they did so. I gave them up also. I often said there is a guiding force for us human beings that leads us back to health, but they ridiculed me. I listened to this force and acted accordingly.

"I am a great health enthusiast and wish my fellow men would be the same. Humanity is confronting a terrible problem in the future. In order to have a better world we must have better health that will bring to us a higher state of civilization. Consumption and insanity are sweeping over the world. I wish we had more natural doctors like you, to start sanatoria by the thousands in this country. Also a big back-to-nature movement in order to save humanity.

"Wherever I go and meet people, sickness and disease stare me in the face. Or, in other words, ignorance of the natural laws.

"A large majority of people could be helped, if they would do the right thing. Nature is generous. She wants us to be healthy, but we must obey her laws."

Dirt and Disease.

Following is from "Borderland Studies" by Dr. G. M. Gould:

"Henry VIII issued an ordinance against his scullions lying about naked and filthy. The Courtiers and Commons stank so that Wolsey kept an orange filled with salts against the pestilent air. Erasmus ascribes the plague and the sweating sickness to filth, especially to clay floors covered with rushes under which were buried beer, grease, bones, excrement, etc. Thomas A. Becket was blamed with luxury because the company room had fresh straw every day. Queen Elizabeth's room had straw. In 1680 the courtiers went to Potsdam on stilts because of the mire and filth."

If such conditions prevailed among the upper classes, you may imagine what they were like among the poor."

Under such conditions, is it any wonder that pestilences prevailed, and periodically carried off a large proportion of the population?

The decrease in the "black plague," cholera, typhus, smallpox and other filth diseases is not due to any other medical fad, but to greater inner and outer cleanliness on the part of the people.

A Dangerous Drug.

Following is from a book by R. L. Alsaker, M.D.:

"Aspirin up to twenty grains or more per day is given to relieve pain. It is said that aspirin does not irritate the digestive tract. This is a terrible mistake. After taking aspirin for a number of years the digestive tract sometimes becomes so deranged that it is one of the principal factors in producing death. The aspirin numbs the sensibilities and lulls the patient into a state of false security. It misleads all concerned, and prevents their realizing the exact state of the patient."

"Fads."

"The Healthy Home" is published at Athol, Mass. It is strictly "ethical," and you may be sure you will never find in it any recommendation to do anything whatsoever for the care of the body without first "taking the advice of a physician." A sub-head of "The Healthy Home" is "The Hygienic Paper Without a Fad."

Well, now, let us see. All innovations have first been regarded as "fads." Christianity was a fad—a dangerous fad—to the Jews and Romans of those days. The locomotive, the telegraph, the telephone, and every other great invention have been denounced as fads.

As to politics: William A. Pfeffer was the only Populist ever elected to the United States Senate. Among the "fad" measures introduced in the Senate twenty-five years ago, which brought upon him endless ridicule and abuse, were these:

A bill to establish postal savings banks, an amendment to provide woman suffrage, a bill to prevent unjust discrimination in freight rates, a resolution to investigate bond issues and sales, the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people, a bill to provide for the initiative and referendum, a resolution to inquire whether the Federal government could take possession of coal beds.

Several of these measures have become laws, others soon will be enacted. They are still regarded as fads by reactionaries, but the great mass of the people consider them as good common-sense laws.

The doctrine of the circulation of the blood was derided by medical men as a foolish fad. Hydropathy, outdoor sleeping, the manipulation of the spine, and every other valuable means of aiding nature that the medical fraternity has grudgingly been compelled to recognize have first been called fads.

The "regular" medical fraternity continually introduces new fads, but because they originate in what we are told is "medical science" many accept these absurdities as gospel truth. Just now, after slaying millions, the drugging fad is being abandoned. Also, we have the murderous fad of cutting out unnecessary organs from the human body. Some of these "regular" fads are so near to crimes that they should be checked by law.

The wise man—the man who thinks—is not afraid of anything, new or old, because it may sneeringly be referred to as a "fad." He examines it to see if it is a good fad or a bad fad and accepts or rejects it accordingly.

The journal without a fad is like a man without a soul. It will never have much grip on its readers.

* * *

Over-development.

Following is from the Cleveland Leader:

"The under-sized and ugly bronchos of the Southwest endure readily the strain of conditions which kill bigger, stronger and more tactable horses. It is no trouble to raise mongrel puppies, but often the larger part of valuable litters from the most admired stocks of the best breeds of dogs cannot be saved by veterinary skill.

"The most advanced types of civilized man suffer from numerous bodily ills, which seem never to touch savages, immune in their filth and their ignorance. It is not easy to develop the brain beyond the average limits of human growth without impairing physical vitality and efficiency.

"All the way up from simple vegetable forms of life, the law of nature is that the most advanced types shall be hardest to preserve, multiply and develop. It is a vast handicap upon progress, which often seems to mock the endeavors of mankind. It is as if effort more than achievement were the foremost purpose, the chief goal of man."

This shows that man cannot successfully interfere with nature by over-development of any part of the human animal, mental or physical.

Slippers.

In many respects Orientals can give us lessons in hygiene. It is true they eat out of a common bowl with their fingers, which is neither sanitary nor pleasant; but on the other hand they do not tramp into a house, bearing on their footwear all the miscellaneous filth of the street. At the door they remove their shoes and put on slippers.

The True Physician.

It has been said that a poet is born, not made. The same is true of a physician or a nurse.

One of the prerequisites of either is a sympathetic soul and a soft, well modulated voice.

I know a few such physicians, but unfortunately I know many others.

The real muckrakers are not publications that expose public ills, but those that disclose family skeletons.

People talk too much nowadays, without saying anything.

Of many conscientious healers it may be said, as was said of Jesus: "He saved others; himself he cannot save." Enthusiastic in doing good to their patients, they neglect their own bodies.

If we are to believe what the doctors tell us about the continual necessity of operating, we are forced to the conclusion that God made a poor job of it, when he "created man in His own image."

An East Indian journal tells of a lieutenant-colonel who was licked by a dog, which subsequently developed hydrophobia. The brave soldier rushed off to a Pasteur institute, where they told him treatment was not necessary. Some people will soon be having serum injected into their blood when a dog wags his tail at them.

IS GERMAN NATION GOING BROKE?

BY A. C. LAUT.

A BRIGAND can fight though he has no money. He may indeed fight with greater ferocity because he has no money and must get it by force, but when the time comes when lack of money robs him of bread and reefs in his belt and takes the sinews out of his knees he is near the end of his fighting force, though he may spar like a cornered demon. Is that the case with Germany? Is she going broke?

We have been going round for almost two years now declaring Germany was "pyramiding her finances," that "the pyramid" was due to topple over, that the ground was "cracking financially" beneath her feet, and the only crack that has come off has been a harder drive or a longer range gun or a bigger type of submarine. We have put Germany's figures in such big aggregates that we have failed to realize that a nation is only an aggregate of many individuals, and if you put the billions in terms of thousands and the nation in terms of a man, you can come closer as to how it is with Germany than if you keep fogging around in strings of digits no mind can grasp.

There was a man whose name was Hans engaged in a small manufacturing business subject to very high fire risks. He required about $1000 a year to keep that business running. If he succeeded, like a gold prospector or gambler, he had a chance of 1000 per cent. gain. It was that chance in fact which kept him to this particular form of business.

At the end of the first year he found he had lost his entire capital by explosions, and he had to borrow not only money to pay interest on the lost capital but the same amount of capital to set up again. At the end of the second year he had again lost his entire capital by explosions, and again had to borrow a third outfit of capital with additional money to pay interest on the first and second losses.

He had to do this eight times. When the ninth time came round he took stock of things and what he found was this: Adding up his entire stock of collateral and possibilities of outside income, the total just exactly qualified interest charges.

He was now in a position of a desperate and delirious gambler. One more play—the chances all against him—might win back money enough to pay all interest and capital and leave a colossal fortune, but if it didn't, then not only his business was ruined beyond repair but all his other sources of income were gone, sucked up by interest charges on an irredeemable loss.

Call the Business "World War" and Hans, William.

CHANGE Hans's name to Emperor William. Instead of dollars put marks. Call the business "World War." Call the chance indemnities, which the United States would chiefly pay, and you have exactly Germany's position. Here are the figures in the mass, no whit different in their real significance from the case of $1000 capital for the small man:

Germany:	Aug. 1, 1914.	Aug. 1, 1918.
Debt	$5,200,000,000	$34,000,000,000
Interest	220,000,000	1,750,000,000
Austria-Hungary:
Debt	$3,700,000,000	$18,000,000,000
Interest	165,000,000	1,100,000,000

But does this not tell the entire story? If you add the entire value of all Germany's farms and all her factories and all her ships and all her mines her total capital wealth is supposed to be $75,000,000,000. As she has given these figures out herself during war time it may be supposed they are not an underestimate, but rather an overestimate.

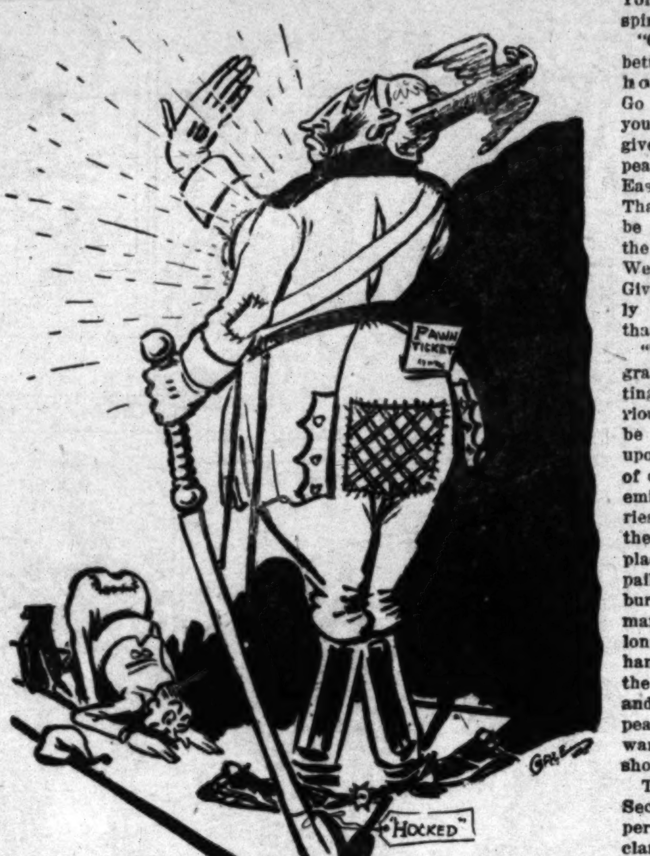
On this capital wealth Germany's annual income is given as $10,000,000,000. These are also Dr. Helfferich's own figures, but this is gross income. It is not net. It is not what is left after payment of living and cost of business.

How much is left of each man's income after payment of living and cost of business? That can only be guessed. Figure it out in your own income! Do you save 20 per cent. of it a day, a week, a month?

By computing many averages, the great actuaries and economists have figured that the average earner does well if he saves from one-sixth to one-eighth of his gross income. That is, if a man earns $40 a week he does well to bank from $7 to $5 of it.

Now one-sixth of Germany's gross income is not enough to pay the interest on her debt and one-eighth of her gross income is not enough to pay the interest on her debt. Right now she is running hundreds of millions short of her interest payments every year. Like the man with the $1000 business going up in the smoke of explosions she has to borrow to pay her deficit in interest. That is what we mean when we all keep saying Germany is "pyramiding."

As long as she can keep on paying interest, presumably she can keep on borrowing, but how long can she keep on borrowing to pay interest? It is about as legitimate as paying fake dividends out of capital stock.



When twitted with these facts authorized by his own institution, the Reichsbank, Dr. Havenstein, the president, answered, yes, but Germany can go on just as long as her interest bill does not exceed her savings. In other words, he put down an equation of this sort: Production minus consumption equals interest bill.

That was the dead line of danger. I could put this in terms of marks, but it is simpler to keep it in terms of the small man. So if a man raised $1000 of potatoes, and the cost of producing them and keeping his family was only $600, he could go on and borrow safely up to interest charges of the other $400, the supposition being he was a big enough fool to want to give up all his profit to pay interest on a war slaying his sons and piling up a capital debt that can never be paid.

As a matter of fact, on Germany's own figures, her interest charges are already greater than all her savings, and her national debt is already almost 50 per cent. of her entire population's ownership.

Will the German People Stand for Any More Bleeding?

WILL her people be willing to give up all their profits to pay interest on a bootless debt? Will they be willing to give up 50 per cent. of all they own to pay the debt itself? No wonder Haase, the Socialist, would not be gagged and cried out: "We must put on blinders not to see the abyss ahead. If the war goes on, our nation will be bled white and destroyed through exhaustion." No wonder great manufacturers, like the owners of the Vulcan works, declare that war loans have now reached the point of levying blackmail. If a manufacturer will not subscribe, his works are confiscated.

And up to the present, the German government has not dared to suggest direct taxation as a means to meet the war's cost. The hope of indemnities has been dangled before the nation as a gambler's lure, the only escape from ruin, and loan after loan has been floated to carry the interest charges on former loans. On the occasion of the last loan the loan boosters fairly shrieked in falsetto:

"He who wants to break the domination of the wholesale murderers in Paris and London, he subscribes to the eighth loan. He, too, hurls his shot into the very heart of our mortal enemy, Anglo-Saxon world capitalism. For he is helping to mow down the dollar kings and the Croesuses of the city, the trust robbers and grain extortioners, the servants of Mammon of London and New York, all the evil spirits of bloodshed.

"Open thy purse—better now than an hour from now! Go and subscribe your bit! Give—give—ring out the peace bells of the East! Give! Give! That we may soon be able to ring in the peace of the West, too! Give! Give! You assuredly have money for that.

"The world conflagration is being extinguished. A victorious war loan will be a cold douche upon the war lust of our remaining enemies. He who carries his money to the subscription place is carrying a pail or water to the burning house of humanity; through a long chain of many hands it becomes the quenching flood and the saving peace. The eighth war loan is a war shortening loan!"

That was why the Secretary of the Imperial Treasury declared: "We do not desire to increase by taxation the heavy burden which war throws upon our people; Germany's enemies deserve to drag the leaden weight through the centuries to come." In other words, let the German people put cash up on loans now and the enemies shall repay with compound interest.

The owner of the great Vulcan works declared he was promised a principality in Australia with 1,000,000 marks at a low rate of interest to develop it as his reward for supporting a great war of conquest. The wildest kind of lottery devices were used to keep the people taking the loans. A man could buy his first war bond and borrow on it to buy his second war bond and take his second war bond and borrow on it to buy his third war bond and so on up to the ninth. At the end of the ninth, presumably, the bank or the government would possess mortgages against the man's first eight bonds as well as the cash realized by each borrowing handed back through the bank window to the same power that held the mortgages.

We Americans may think our circus barkers have invented clever little shell games to part the fool and his money; but William has the fake circus barker beaten to a frazzle. He not only forces the loans—an old trick that cost French monarchs their heads—but he takes back the money so forced in the name of pure patriotism, and has his people hymn a chorus to All Highest for his generosity, and kiss the imprint of the sole of his boot in gratitude.

By way of keeping national savings up to interest charges on war loans, all non-war industries have been shut down. Workmen are urged to do without shoes and to wear the scantiest clothing. A dead drive has been made to get at the small savings of the poor—the people who have only $100 hidden away, to get it and tank it in William's bank and give the poor for it a piece of paper that will be utterly worthless if the war goes on another year; for they will be asked to mortgage it to take another loan.

All new and foreign investments have been prohibited. Hoarding of gold and silver has not only been forbidden, but coin has been commandeered and the people given in its place paper money, which will not be worth the ink dried upon it if Germany fails to win the war.

Who Will Pay the I.O.U.'s That Are Piling Up?

THE government takes the cash and gives the common man an IOU; and what is behind the IOU? National debts that equal half of all Germany's possessions of every sort under the sun. Forty billions of indemnity would not clear Germany's feet of debt today, municipal and national; and does any one see $40,000,000,000 lying round loose after this war? The United States had the largest store of actual gold coin at last report and that was only something over $3,000,000,000.

It is an actual fact that of the last three German war loans only one-fifth was actual new money lured from hiding. The rest was loaned out of the window of the local bank and handed back through another window of the same bank.

By and by, we'll suppose when the war is over, the government calls the mortgages on these various loans. The holder must sell them to realize cash. The manufacturer must sell them to get coin to set up in business again. The importer must sell them to get coin to pay foreign nations for raw material, for foreign sellers will not take payment in beautifully engrossed note paper that is not worth its value in ink. Foreign sellers must be paid in actual money, so a great avalanche of Germany's war bonds will be thrown on the market for sale.

Who will buy them? Foreign bankers? What foreign bankers? Certainly not French! Certainly not English! Certainly not American! Do you see a stampede to buy these German war bonds thrown on the market to realize cash? Do you recall what was done with old southern money sewn up in mattresses and pillow slips? It was used to light the fire.

The Terrible Road of Price Inflation the People Travel.

LET us have the All Highest Willie and his little shell game and come back at German finance from another road—the road of inflation, the hardest, rockiest road a befooled and befuddled people can possibly travel.

Any school child knows that a dollar bank note is only of value inasmuch as it represents value—coin or the exchange for goods equalling the coin in value. You put the note in one hand, the coin in the other; in sound finance they are supposed to be equal in value, and the coin is only of value as it equals actual goods in value.

We'll suppose the pile of goods stays the very same size and the pile of coin doubles in size. The goods have doubled in price, or the coin will buy only half as much as formerly. We'll say before the war a barrel of flour equalled $5 in gold. Suddenly there was twice as much gold. The barrel of flour equalled $10 in gold, or $5 of gold bought only half a barrel of flour. That is what price inflation by cheapened currency means.

Before the war Germany always kept her circulating notes covered by silver or gold on hand to the extent of 48 per cent. Since the war—though latest returns are not available—her gold has fallen as low as 12 per cent. of circulation. To quote Sir Edward Holden:

"The total issue of paper money in Germany is as follows at different dates: December, 1913, $700,000,000; December, 1914, $1,629,000,000; December, 1915, $2,377,000,000; December, 1916, $2,912,000,000; December, 1917, $4,783,000,000."

There is No Gold Behind the Notes the German People Hold.

YET the coin behind these notes has decreased. What will the notes be worth at the end of the war? Who can tell?

Gold is the only medium of international settlement. Foreign nations will not take these notes in payment for purchases, though they are now being forced down the throats of Belgium and Russia and Rumania. The notes will just be worth the amount of gold Germany can put behind them, and that has been as low as 12 cents on the hundred. Either the notes will have the value of Confederate money after the Civil War or the German people will continue to pay such in-

CARE OF THE BODY.

CONDUCTED BY
HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D

Dangers of Tonsillectomy.

A FEW weeks ago I quoted a New York physician, who called attention to the evil consequences following excision of the tonsils. I also referred to a recent death from that cause. A correspondent sends me a clipping from a Redlands (Cal.) paper telling of another death, that of Herbert King, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. King, who died after an operation for the removal of his tonsils. The boy was a popular student of the Redlands High School.

A few days later I received from an M. D. correspondent another clipping, this time from a Pasadena (Cal.) paper, reporting the death of Miss Elizabeth Edmund, who had enlisted as a volunteer in government service as a telephone operator with the American forces in France. Before going she submitted to an operation for the removal of "a minor physical defect"—that is to say, her tonsils. Then, we are told, "in the course of the operation complications arose which no possible agency could have foreseen or prevented, and in the brief interval of time she passed away." The physician, who sends me this, states that this was the second death in Pasadena hospitals in three days of persons who had undergone an operation for the removal of their tonsils.

The report in the Pasadena newspaper says that this young woman "gave her life to her country." I should rather say that she gave her life to the criminal medical mania for unnecessary surgical operations.

Thus we see that an operation for the removal of the tonsils is not only unnecessary but harmful, and frequently dangerous.

In Health Culture for June, John N. MacKenzie, M.D., had a warning against the mania for cutting out the tonsils, in the course of which he said:

"To subject a child to the tonsil operation with all that it entails, when we have safer and more efficient measures at hand, is, to say the least, bad judgment and unnecessary surgery.

"That the tonsil has some important mission to fulfill is shown from its frequent appearance after removal, a protest, as it were, on the part of nature against its destruction of function; also by the vicarious activity of the neighboring lymphatic tissues, when its physiologic properties cease to exist.

"How are we to offset the irresponsibility of the responsible? But we hear on all sides—'Look at the result.' Result? Here is a partial list of results from the practice, not of the ignorant, but of the most experienced and skilled.

"Death from hemorrhage and shock, development of latent tuberculosis in lungs and adjacent glands, laceration and other serious injuries of the palate and pharyngeal muscles, great contraction of the parts. Severe infection of the wound, septicemia, troublesome cicatrices, ear affections, troubles of vision and voice, ruin of singing voice, emphysema, septic pneumonia, increased susceptibility to throat disease at the seat of operation, pharyngeal quinsy, and last, but not least, tonsilitis!

"Who, may I ask, is in the better position to advise, the surgeon or practitioner who, without sufficient knowledge, recommends enucleation of the tonsils, or those who have devoted their lives to the study of throat conditions, and who witness its disastrous and often fatal results?

"The amount of reckless surgery done in this field will never be known or chronicled in the pages of medical literature, but it may be found in its abiding place in the book of the recording angel.

"Let us hope that the day is not far distant when not only the profession but the public shall demand that this senseless slaughter be stopped. Is not this day of medical moral preaching and uplifting a fitting one to lift the public from the atmosphere in which it has been drugged, and for the reckless tonsillectomist a proper time to apply the remedy of the referendum and recall?"

Physical and Mental Efficiency.

"Triune Development" (published by the author, No. 220 Madison avenue, New York,) is a book by Mrs. Jenness-Miller, well known as a lecturer and writer on dress and physical exercise. The author deals with physical, mental and moral efficiency. Her ideas are sound. Referring to the bad habit of constant physical introspection by the sick, she says:

"It would be impossible to measure the harm that has been done through the morbid habit of reading highly colored 'disease books' as somebody has pertinently called them. Said a woman who formerly took one patent medicine after another, and read every word written about their marvelous cures that she could lay hands upon, 'I have mentally suffered the agonies of diseases I should never have known existed, but for the pamphlets advertising nostrums for them. That I have lived to tell the tale speaks well for my constitution.'"

Mrs. Miller justly criticises the pernicious habit of too much talking about nothing, which saps the vitality. As she says, conversation nowadays is almost a lost art.

Men and Methods.

There are good men and bad men in all schools of medicine.

A great majority of the "regular" school honestly believe medical fallacies, because they have been taught them in college, even as members of a church honestly believe doctrines that are not so.

I do not criticise honest medical men, but their misleading medical methods.

Successful Operations.

"Successful operations" of armies in war are sometimes followed by a collapse of the operators.

Similar results frequently follow "successful operations" in surgery, although the collapse is not always so sudden.

Watch Your Knees.

In a long fast the brain is the only part of the body that does not lose anything in weight.

So when the body is on the decline the brain remains active and alert. This leads many brain workers to believe that they are all right, when they are all wrong.

Watch your knees rather than your brain, if you want to know your physical condition.

Medical Freedom.

Benjamin Rush, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, declared that "medical freedom is as important as religious freedom, and should as carefully be guarded by the American people."

At a meeting of the Medical Freedom League of North Dakota, held in Fargo on June 11, a resolution was adopted for the definite incorporation of the principle of medical freedom in the States and in the United States Constitutions.

This is the first time that a public demand has been expressed for a guarantee of medical freedom by constitutional amendment.

Paying the Price.

Following is by J. H. Tilden, M.D., in The Philosophy of Health:

"The reason why the simple healing of disease has never been popular is because it requires the giving up of bad habits. And people will not pay for such advice unless they are made to pay in advance. Then the selfishness of those who have paid compels them to try to get some value for the money expended. Those who do not pay in advance will never pay at all, and will not follow advice.

"Health cannot be given to anyone—only knowledge of how to get and to keep it. Then, if there is enough self-discipline to follow it daily, health will follow."

Personal Remarks.

A correspondent writes: "I have read with some interest the various articles written by you for The Times. You assume a knowledge as to cause of disease and the cure of same that places you in a class by yourself. The statements, claims and experience of brainy men, who have practiced the healing art for years, are airily brushed aside by you, their conclusions reached after years of combined research and experimentation laughed at, to back up your statements is your own opinion. In other words, the combined scientific knowledge of the world is wrong simply because you say so."

One might suppose this correspondent to be a physician—which he is not—as his remarks are in the arrogant and supercilious vein usually adopted by physicians of the "regular" school, when they discuss anything outside of their own narrow field. Indeed, they seem to think that their cult is the Alpha and Omega of the healing art, notwithstanding the failures in their efforts to cure disease and the constantly changing views of medical "authorities."

I have for over fifty years been a close and conscientious student of the care of the body, in health and disease, not in test tubes, or dead bodies, or vivisection chambers, which are misleading, but in my own living body and the bodies of others. I spent several years at a Swiss Nature Cure establishment of European fame, where most of the cures were of persons given up as hopeless by "medical science."

Consequently what I know I know to be true, of my own experience and observation. I do not offer opinions. I offer knowledge.

Dandelions.

Girls from Vassar College were recently roused from their beds at an untimely hour to dig dandelions. This was done for the sake of the lawn. It is not said that they used the dandelions. The leaves should not be wasted in these days of food conservation.

The name dandelion is a corruption of "dent de lion"—lion's tooth. In France the roots are roasted and used as a coffee substitute. There also they are freely used as cooked greens or for salads. Like all green stuff they are much more valuable raw. The bitter taste indicates the iron content—iron in the organic form, the only form in which it could be utilized by the body. Dandelions contain about half as much iron as lettuce and about the same amount as radishes. Besides that, they contain other valuable organic salts.

Protein Poisoning.

Writing in the American Journal of Electro-therapeutics and Radiology, Anthony Bassler shows that the human body cannot utilize more than two ounces of protein a day. This is equivalent to about four ounces of meat, which should be the extreme limit, because any quantity of meat in excess of four ounces must be thrown off as waste by the healthy body, or stored up as poisons for the kidneys to remove.

Testifying before a committee of the United States Senate, Dr. Clyde King of the University of Pennsylvania showed that in the United States we consume daily nearly three ounces of protein per capita, or much more than the consumption of any other nation. To this must be added the meat not consumed by babies, old people, sick people and the very poor, which

RUPTURE HAPPINESS

I DON'T often give a free "poof" in these columns, but I am not afraid to do so, when I consider it my duty.

To those of my readers who may be so unfortunate as to be suffering from rupture, I recommend that they should, without fail, go and consult Mr. Benjamin. He will do them good. I know it, because he has helped relatives and friends of mine.—[Editor Harry Ellington Brook, N.D., in "Brain and Brawn."

Abolish the Truss Forever

Do Away With Steel and Rubber Bands That Chafe and Pinch

You know by your own experience the truss is a mere makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and that it is undermining your health. Why then continue to wear it? Stuart's PLAPAO-PADS are different from the truss, being medicine applicators made self-adhesive purposely to prevent slipping and to hold the distended muscles securely in place. No straps, buckles or springs attached; no "digging in" or grinding pressure. Soft as Velvet—Flexible—Easy to Apply—Inexpensive. Continuous day and night treatment at home. No delay from work. Hundreds of people have gone before an officer qualified to acknowledge oaths, and swore that the Plapao-Pads cured their rupture—some of them most aggravated cases of long standing. It is reasonable that they should do the same for you. Give them a chance.

HEARD IN THE PUBLIC RESTROOM.

BY AN HABITUE.

HAT'S the place to see femininity off its guard—barriers down, teeth out, hair loose, lack-lustre eyes and relaxed bodies.

But Galatea has nothing on it in the vivifying stunt.

I have looked into the faces of women who, seemingly on the verge of nervous exhaustion, collapse from the stress and storm of shopping—and I have seen them suddenly glance at their watches, start, rise, dab on powder and a "dash of rose," rearrange hair, straighten hats, lower veils and by some subtle process bring the "fire" to their eyes, and mirabile dictu, they are alive, alert and ready for the fray. It's white magic—nothing less.

The department store restrooms are the most crowded, and are where one sees "life" at the closest range.

I am always so eager "to rest awhile" and enjoy the "menagerie" that my shopping often goes—hang!

Some of the Regular Rest-Room Types.

SOME of the types, who are "regulars," are:

"Madam Complacency," who invariably occupies a rocking chair, swaying to and fro to the creaking tune of "I love you restroom." Her shopping doesn't bother her. She buys the first thing offered and gets it off her mind, then she deliberately attends to the business of the day—"settin' in the restroom an' rockin'." She is always plump—generally more so—and I like her. She is restful.

"Madam Indecision" is easily spotted by the spread-out samples and worried look. She just naturally can't decide which will wear longest and look the best. An outside suggestion generally decides her choice. I like giving it, because I know intuitively just what she should have.

"Miss Complete Outfit," so conscious and proud of having everything new at one time (a rare occurrence with any of us) brightens up the room wonderfully, and is the recipient of numerous envious glances, which she rather enjoys.

The "Misses Out For a Lark" rush in merrily, chattering like magpies, and are off again after applying an extra lurid coat of "complexion."

At one restroom, where there are scales, it's great fun to watch "Mrs. Fat and "Mrs. Thin," who for some strange reason always shop together. They seem to be dragged against their wills to the scales. They stop, look undecided, then fumble for pennies—and venture.

"Mrs. Fat" mounts first. Horrors! Her dismayed expression tells the tale. She sighs and murmurs as she steps down—"I just can't reduce!"

"Mrs. Thin" goes up and come down quickly, saying ruefully—"And I get thinner every day in spite of all the fats and sweets I consume."

But the kiddies—bless their little hearts—are the real shopping sports. They are dragged here and yanked there by fagged and impatient mothers. But never yet have I seen one of them whine or whimper, from the tiny babe in arms to the sturdy youngsters gripped by hand.

The Lady Who Over-believes in the Style.

YESTERDAY I had just dropped languidly into a chair into one of the large department-store restrooms, when I was startled into alertness by the tripping by of one of the most amazing freaks abroad in Los Angeles.

I will not attempt a description of her "get up." But all the distinguishing features of the smart costuming of the day were so exaggerated that the effect was grotesque. The insipid expression, at present in vogue among the ultra fashionable young women, became, in her case, absolutely idiotic. And withal, there exuded from her person such complacency—such I-am-the-very-glass-of-fashion-and-mold-of-form air, that it was—to smile. Which I did, and turned to meet the eyes of an amused woman sitting by me. She remarked that the styles now were "something fierce,"

I didn't agree with her. I went on to air my views, believing I had an appreciative audience. I said I thought the styles never were so economical and sensible. Economical, because it was possible for a home dressmaker to achieve wonderful results by combining two or three old dresses into a "dream" of a new one. Odds and ends could be utilized as never before. The loose-fitting effects did not require the services of a good tailor. Even the most timid seamstress could venture and win. But better still, the light weight and scanty attire made walking a pleasure and thereby tended toward good health. Backaches were almost eliminated from the list of feminine ills.

I added that it was only the interpretation, by brainless women, that made the prevailing styles seem absurd; the desire to achieve the acme of ultraness that made them caricatures and altogether ridiculous in modern dress. But—here I happened to look at her and was impressed by the fact that she had a few things to say and was impatiently biding her time.

So I "whoa-ed" my hobby—and waited.

I am Made an Unwilling Confidential Adviser.

SHE was large and handsome, but with rather a subdued, puzzled expression. She rushed in by saying, "I see you are a smart woman by the way you talk, and I want to ask your opinion about something.

She was large and handsome but with rather a subdued, puzzled expression. She rushed in by saying, "I see you are a smart woman by the way you talk, and I want to ask your opinion about something."

I felt immensely flattered and tried to assume the air judicial.

"I've got a neighbor that I don't like very much, but I have been kind to her, even loaned her money, and didn't tell her husband she was chasing around with another man, but,"—here her tone became exceedingly bitter, "you can't do nothing for nobody now and get thanked for it."

She thrust a letter into my hand, saying, "Just see what she's done."

With a great deal of curiosity I began to read.

It was from a lawyer, written on his professional stationery and in legal parlance to the effect that it had come to his knowledge that she was circulating false and defamatory reports about his client, and unless she ceased at once he would force her to do so, according to the processes of the law.

I read and re-read several times in order to gain time. I realized that my advice must be of such a character that the peace of the neighborhood would be assured. I felt important, but utterly incompetent. When at last I looked at her and opened my mouth to voice the words of wisdom (?)—she broke in eloquently—"Now what do you know about that?"

The polite reply that rose to my lips was—"Nothing." But she expected help and I didn't want to fail her. So I said, "But I don't understand. You said you had always been kind and helpful. Then why such a letter?"

She hastened to say: "She is mad at us because we won't neighbor all the time. She invited us to her party and my husband told her he couldn't come, and she asked, 'Why?' and he said, 'I would rather stay at home and read the paper,' and then she said, 'Well, if you don't come to our party we will be sore,' and now, look what she has done, gone to a lawyer and had him write that letter. Now, what do you know about that?" And then very indignantly, "She has done that to me, when I kept her baby while she went joy riding with her affinity!!"

Was She Such a Very Good Neighbor After All?

WANTED to tell her that by that act she had made herself "an accessory to the fact," but it was no time for a sermon, nor even delicately to point a moral.

"Now, what would you do if you got a letter like that?" she demanded.

"I—I—well—I would ignore it altogether, and never let anyone know that I had received it," I said.

She confessed that she had shown it to the butcher and was waiting to meet her husband to show it to him.

"Well, I'd advise you to beg the butcher to keep quiet about it, and—is your husband excitable?"

"You bet he is," she sighed.

"Well, I wouldn't tell an excitable husband—but, I suppose I am not capable of advising on that score as I don't happen to have a husband of any kind, but I have an idea that they are great trouble makers."

She glanced at the clock and said nervously, "It's time to meet him now. Good-by and thank you."

I smiled and ventured the hope it would all end happily. But I thought—another instance of "Benefits Forgot."

"I kept her baby while she went joy riding with her affinity," kept ringing in my ears, and I wondered again and again—had she been a good neighbor? Does helping, or rather "aiding and abetting," some one in wrong-doing, constitute a good neighbor? For after all, we are our brother's keeper. Perhaps a word of warning to the woman with the affinity would have steadied her, and absolute refusal to "keep the baby" would have made it impossible for her to have offended against society, in the letter of the law, at least. We have no way of measuring our spiritual influence, for "influence is only the exhalation of character."

GAS MASKS FOR HORSES.

The Gas Defense Service is now manufacturing about 5000 horse gas masks per day. These are being sent to France, and it is expected that within a short time every horse connected with the American Expeditionary Forces will be equipped with the new masks.

The Gas Defense Service has a completely equipped factory for the manufacture of the masks. In less than three weeks a building was selected and the factory was producing masks. The introduction of riveting machinery has done away with the heavy hand sewing of the frame which supports the masks on the faces of the horses. The masks are so constructed that no metal or chemically impregnated parts can chafe the horse.

Some Good Short Stories from Everywhere

Conquered at Last.

AN UNKNOWN genius at Camp Kearny is entitled to a monument "everywhere in America." He'd been a naughty boy or something and was assigned to cut onions for camp mess as a punishment. Imagine the surprise of the corporal of the guard when he discovered the offender blithely dissecting the bermudas under the protection of his gas mask. "Youse ain't sufferin' no punishment," scoffed the officer, adding, "but 'tis a ghrand idea and 'tis the wimmen o' the counthry as'will bless ye, me lad!"

Rubbing It In.

Speaking of Camp Kearny brings to mind a story they tell on one of the boys who chased into San Diego to see a picture show. He came back to camp all dispirited. "What's wrong," asked his tent mate, "you look blue."

"So would you," was the retort, "if you'd seen a slacker snugglin' up to your best girl, in a box at the movies, and fannin' himself with his exemption card!"

Some Fight.

An American soldier who had just come over met a Canadian who was on leave in Paris.

"Say, old-timer, tell me about those big shells, and what they do when they light," he asked.

"Well, when old Fritz starts to sending over six-inchers, whiz-bang fly jigs, and gets his old fifteen-inch rubber gun a-workin', all you see is wagons, mules and men's arms and legs going up in the air. Every time a shell lights it tears up an acre of ground, and the steel flies over the country like so much rain."

"Gee, kid! Some fight!"

"Yes," said the Canadian seriously, "and some poor beggars don't!"—[Provost Chester M. Davies, Canadian Royal Troops.

Give 'Em Time.

Speaking of the thoroughness with which England has gone into the war, the officer in charge of the British recruiting office here in Los Angeles remarked: "Not only have they put the nation on short rations, but even walking sticks have come under government control."

Puzzle for the Doctor.

Private Tommy Sims had had pneumonia and had been for some time in a hospital, where they treated him so well that he was much averse to the prospect of being discharged as "cured." One day the doctor was taking his temperature, and while Tommy had the thermometer in his mouth the doctor moved on and happened to turn his back. Tommy saw his chance. He pulled the thermometer out of his mouth and dipped it into a cup of hot tea, replacing it at the first sign of the medico's turning. When that worthy examined the thermometer he looked first at Tommy and then back at the thermometer and gasped: "Well, my man, you're not dead, but you ought to be."—[San Antonio Light.

Why He Liked the Eclipse.

Eugene Kelley, former deputy city clerk of Muncie, was highly interested in the justly-celebrated eclipse of the sun recently. After gazing at it a considerable time through a friend's smoked glass and returning the glass, he asked to gaze again on the phenomenon.

"You seem greatly interested in the eclipse," the friend suggested.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense had been allowed fifteen minutes each to argue the case. The Boundary Line.

Speaking at a dinner, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois referred to the trouble that some property-holders occasionally have in establishing boundary lines, and told the following story:

Recently two women acquaintances chanced to meet on a shopping expedition, and after conversing for some time the talk turned to domestic affairs.

"I hear," said one of the women, "that all your husband's hair came out when he was sick some time ago. Is that true?"

"Yes," answered the second, with a reflective sigh. "He hasn't a single hair left on his head, and the doctor says it may be quite a long time before it comes in again."

"Just think of it!" sympathetically returned the first. "Flies in the summer and cold weather in the winter. Isn't it awful?"

"Yes," admitted the second, "but that isn't what bothers him the most. Every time he washes his face he now has to keep on his hat in order to tell where to stop."—[Philadelphia Telegraph.

"What a charming place," he said, enthusiastically to Agnes' proud paternal parent. "Does it go as far as those woods over there?"

"It does," remarked the somewhat unsympathetic father.

"Ah," said Tom, still cheerily, "and to that old stone wall over there, sir?"

"It does," came the gruff answer, "and it goes as far as the river on the south and to the main road on the north."

Always After Mary.

They were having a lesson in history at a public school. The teacher was examining the pupils on the subject of British sovereigns.

"Who came after Henry the Eighth?" asked the teacher.

"Edward the Sixth," answered pupil.

"Right. And who succeeded Ewdard the Sixth?"

"Mary," answered the second little bright eyes.

"Correct; and who came after Mary?"

There was a puzzled pause. Then a pupil who had heretofore not contributed much to the progress of learning, had an inspiration. He raised his head and, being called on, answered triumphantly:

Can't Fool Chickens

Mae Murray, Universal star, is quite a chicken fancier and, speaking of the new daylight saving law, remarked: "You can't fool a chicken; I've tried it. When the daylight law went into effect I wanted my chickens to act according to regulations, but they wouldn't budge. You can fool a man, but not a chicken. Baron Long agrees with Miss Murray.

DEAR MOTHER O' MINE. By Jack Lait.

Freshwater College.

DEAR Mother o' Mine:

I know thtat your hands will have rembled before this greeting reaches your loving eyes. You have waited, probably, almost with dread for this letter. I know that you must have read in the home papers that Tom Jeffers and Wilson Husted of our town, my classmates, enlisted, and that more than half the boys at this modest seat of learning have answered the colors. I can fancy that in your mind there has dwelt an uncertainty and a worrisome doubt regarding my inclinations, intentions, and sentiments in this momentous matter.

Mother, dearest, I do not know what to do, what I ought to do. I cannot forget or disregard what the doctors said about you last year, when your heart wavered and you were so gravely ill. The verdict was that you must be guarded against any manner of shocks or sudden emotions. Were it not for that I should have started for home a fortnight ago to kiss you goodby and to leave for my place in the ranks of the country that bore me.

But I fear that, as fervently as you must and do want your son to do his share, as deeply as you long to have your boy be as good, as loyal, and as courageous an American as anybody's boy, the state of your health may make it perilous for you to shoulder the misgivings and worries of a mother whose only child is pledged to stake his life on the battle line against the murderous and barbarian enemies whom America must conquer. I really should not come to you with this problem, but still you are the only one who can decide for me.

Tell me, mother darling, what do you want your boy to do? Tell me frankly, unsparingly, unflinchingly, please.

I am well and my studies, save that every one these days is somewhat distracted from the normal concentration of life in a quiet college, are progressing fairly well. I hope and trust that your health is improving every day and that my li'l muvver will be rosy and chubby again when I once more throw my adoring arms 'round her girlish and, to me, bewitching form.

Goodnight, sweetheart mother, and may it calm your slumber and sweeten your days to know that your boy will do what you ask—whatever you ask. With my fond kisses and my heart's devotion.

TOODLES.

At Home.

Honey:

Thank you for your sweet letter; thank you for your solicitude over the state of my health; thank you for placing, in your wonderful love, so poor a thing as a mother above so holy a one as your country.

My health need not cause you any immediate worries, sonny, for the doctor says that I am growing better steadily—especially since I received your letter. You were right in anticipating that I would open it with nervous fingers—that I would be afraid. I was afraid. I was afraid that my son might hesitate. But when I read, with tears of jubilant joy, that your only hesitancy was because of me, I was afraid no longer.

I knew it—I had faith in you from the first; only your silence alarmed me. The physician had warned me against a shock, as you said; the most terrible shock that could have come to me would have been if my boy had let anything but a good son's sense of affectionate duty to his mother delay or deflect him from his higher duty—the defense of his flag.

Don't think, laddie, that mother is turning toward heroics. The war has not been discussed to any conspicuous extent in our home, but I have felt it with passionate indignation since the first of the incendiary and atavistic atrocities of the unprincipled maniacs of Central Europe, and with overpowering passion for the triumph of the right since the entrance of Old Glory into this slaughter as a righteous and inspired monitor of liberty, justice, equality and decisive peace.

Of these fruits of religion, civilization, and human evolution the Stars and Stripes have stood as a guarantee, a warrant of this proud, eternal claim which America's cannon have boomed to the high heavens, which our forefathers have graven with bloody swords upon the everlasting granite tablets of undying history.

Who, if not you, will or can defend that flag?

The heroes who gave it birth, who glorified it with their blood, who worshiped it, who endured and fought and toiled and died to preserve it, are gone. New heroes must step forth to take up their work. Gladly would they have done it had they known them—had they been prophetic so that they might have been able to foresee and forestall our present peril and our present perplexity.

Today's Americans must set their eyes squarely to the foe and uphold that banner.

Beneath its fondling folds God gave your mother a son; God gave her an American son, and, by your words, a good and a brave son. In gratitude and in that justice that she asks, she must give—she must give her boy to her flag.

It is a hard verdict to find and an old one. Between mother and country a man may not lightly turn his back on either; between child and a country a woman may not choose without tears of anxiety, and of bereavement. But one must not follow only love and longing, nature's blessings, when signaled by the call of duty, the Lord's command.

Enlist, my lad, and with your mother's sanction—without it, had I withheld it. I thank you from the bottom of a proud and happy mother's heart for your impulse to defend Old Glory, and I wish you life and victory upon the field of honor in its cause.

With all my soul's devotion to you, my only and my own.

MOTHER

Freshwater College.

Mother o' Mine:

I knew it! When through my veins first sizzled the burning fire of fervor that flamed in the historic proclamation of the President I thought first of my country, then of you.

Had you been well I would have left my breakfast uneaten until I had taken my oath. As it was I was fearful over you. But what a blind kid I was not to see, to know, to feel that you would rather have me dead than yellow—than even quiescent in this crisis.

If my heart pumped and my brain thumped to the tune of "The Star-Spangled Banner" I should have realized that it was because an American mother gave me birth. And such a mother!

Why did I think you might grieve if I went? Because I might die? If I did I should die in action, like a man, I hope. And what is life, after all? God sends us here for a brief period; when He calls us again we must go. What matter a few years more or less? I know that you would have me live—live in peace and safety. But now I understand more deeply your love for me, which says that you would rather have me go to my God with the grace of a duty done than peter out my years in pigeon hearted repose, unworthy of my God, my fathers, or my estate as a free man and a Christian.

Within the hour after this letter shall have been posted your son, my angel mother, will have offered his services and his life to the flag in the spirit of lofty patriotism breathed from you.

If, after that, I may have leave of absence for a few days in which to come to you and fold you again in my worshipful arms before I go into active routine, I shall telegraph you when to expect me.

I thank you again. I know that our flag thanks you. I feel in my heart that God thanks you.

And with a kiss of reverent and admiring affection I thank you once more.

Your happy TOODLES.

At Home.

Sonny Boy:

The old house seems empty since you came and went. Through the three years that you were at Freshwater I learned to endure our separation; but you were a boy then, and you are a man now, so I miss you in quite another way than I did ever before.

But do not fancy that I am lonely or sad. The only thing on earth that could have replaced my boy to me is here—is with me. I look up lovingly and contemplate it between lines of his letter. It is a single star of blue upon a square of white surrounded with a border of red, in the window. I gaze on it hours at a time, and I thrill with pride when I think who you are—my son.

As long as the service flag hangs there, as long as I can draw glorious comfort from it as I sit and knit, I shall be the happiest of mothers.

So do not let any worries about me add to the problems that I know are pressing on you in the training camp—becoming an officer in ninety days is enough of a task without domestic complications and uncertainties to harass you.

Think of it! My Toodles an officer.

How typically American this is. Yesterday you were an undergraduate boy; in a few days you will be an officer.

What a reserve in every resource this nation possesses; how potential it is of all that human power can create.

Its men of peace, men of the arts and the crafts and the high positions and the lowly jobs, pour into the crucible at the call of war to be melted down into national salvation and international justice. The product will be gold—because the material is gold. And that has been the making and the saving of this country through its life. The basic metal always has been there; it took only the furnace heat of patriotism kindled by the spark of danger to the flag to bring forth that which will withstand the acid of war, will outshine the hostile steel, will armor Columbia against the enemy's shrapnel and lead.

You have shown your grit and your endurance and your determination in athletics. Though you have loved sport and fun you have never been frivolous. Therefore you have been already chosen in hard, long tests as a man with qualifications, with faculties for accomplishments at high tension on high speed. Your excellence at your studies proved, further, that you combine with the pluck and pepper of the sportsman the mentality of the thinker and the understanding of the observer.

Was ever better stuff than that sent into an army? Can the Hun, with his half slave peasants born to the destinies of military service, conscripted before birth into the drilled mobs of terror and torture, drummed into file like convicts by whip-bearing keepers, boast of better flesh and bone and mind and heart than that which we American mothers are proud to give into the service of our free, pacific land?

For a time, dear, it will be a bit of a jar to bridge in my mind the hiatus between my memories of you as a sunny, jovial lad, and my fancies of you in the raw business of war. But that will wear away. I, like you, will become accustomed to thinking of you as a soldier, as an officer, as a veteran, as a hero.

So I bid you a mother's godspeed and anoint you with a mother's kisses, my beloved own.

May God visit upon you his divine guidance and blessings. Your ever loving,

MOTHER.

In Camp.

Darling Mother o' Mine:

I read your letter to some of the boys. They say that it will be no wonder if I draw a captain's commission, for any beggar with a mother like my mother has a million yards' start toward anything he sets his ambitions on.

You will be pleased to know that I have been consistently complimented by the regular officers here, and they encourage me much.

The life here is hard, but it's great. Talk about work! We used to think at college that a few pages of cramming was toil, but we get that here before breakfast—and you wouldn't believe how early your Toodles devours that welcome meal. And study is only a small part of it. The army, I find, believes in work. I've dug ditches, hauled tons of machinery, fired thousands of shells, marched goodness knows how many miles, and done no end of other miscellaneous styles and sorts of physical "going."

You should see me. I'm hard as a loanshark's heart, brown as your dear eyes, straight as a geometrical bisector, hungry as a tramp, active as a chimpanzee, and dignified as an undertaker.

Hello! There toots the mess call, so you'll forgive me, adorable mother, if I close right here with a billion kisses and beat it before my kind maties eat up all the chow. (Pardon the soldier's slang—it's irresistible.)

I'm glad the service flag comforts you. Your picture in my tent and your sweet image in my heart are my cheer and inspiration, too.

With a hug right hard and close to my bosom and with my arms holding you there ever so long and lovingly.

TOODLES, U.S.R.

At Home.

My Wonderful Captain-Boy:

Your telegram, making known that you had won a commission of so exalted a rank, brought me to my knees in a prayer of thanksgiving; then to my feet in a salute to the wonderful service flag, which stands now for even more than before. When I realize what your responsibilities will be I, in my confidence in you, congratulate the mothers of the boys who will be under your command, for I know that you will give them all you have, your life if it will help.

I am overjoyed at the news that you will be home so soon, and that you will have a whole week with me. And how I shall spoil you and destroy in seven days' home cooking your appetite for army food.

Please, dear, when you come, don't be a captain for fully ten minutes after your first kiss, for I want just one very little period again to have you as my Toodles; then I will salaam, make obeisance to your uniform and to the two shoulder bars, and thereafter you may command me.

God's benediction be upon you, dearie.

Your happy and impatient,

MOTHER.

At Home.

Sonny Dear:

Ever since your telegram came I have been praying.

These are the times and the days when the mother of a soldier must pray, for the war against us is being fought in the dark, under the waves, where cowards and assassins lurk for ships. Those who laughed at the drowning cries of women and children, those who scuttled Red Cross vessels bearing mercy, those who ruthlessly sank

THE FOREIGN CAFES OF LOS ANGEL

BY M. O. M

THE price of hashish has gone up!

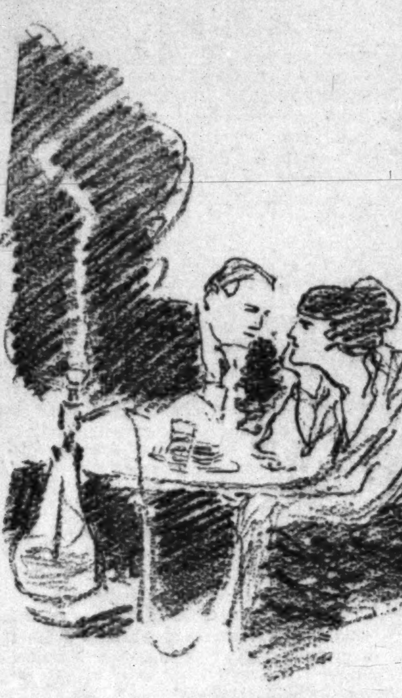
Think of it! The delectable greenish paste, the stuff from which dreams are made, is now $408 a pound f.o.b. Cairo, Egypt, and the descendants of Cleopatra, here in Los Angeles, are proportionately despondent.

For that matter, so has the bone-dry muguron of the Japanese, that delectable Spanish mackerel of which he is so fond. As for the honeyed ghum ghets of China—you almost can't get them any more.

So the Orient, as represented in Los Angeles, is far from happy these days but faces its future with the same inscrutable smile as of yore and indulges in makeshifts like its occidental cousins.

"East is East and West is West," Even in Cafes of a City.

YET it is the same old Orient, quaint, picturesque, alluring and baffling, a bland, impenetrable wall behind which no one may peer too closely.



Perhaps it reminds them of their native land to pyramid their cakes.

What? You didn't know Los Angeles had an Orient? You bet it has! It's small, but complete and I venture to state that you can get just as much of Cairo or Tokio or Constantinople right here, within fifteen minute's walk of the Alexandria Hotel, as you could by taking a trip to the very places I've named.

All the real thing too, from soup to nuts, but of course, you've got to work your way in. Mostly you hit only the fringe, the so-called show places which are just designed for "tourists," but if you are discreet enough, and diligent enough, you can flit from the prosaic pavements of Broadway to the land of the Nile, or the cherry blossoms in a twinkling and taste for yourselves the delights that Omar Khayyam, Kipling and the rest of the oriental experts delight in narrating in prose and poetry.

Only the Pyramids Lacking in This Western Egypt.

DID you know that Los Angeles has quite an Egyptian colony? It has, though it's so mixed up with Sonoratown that it's hard to tell where one begins and the other ends.

If you want to rub elbows with these soft-eyed sons and daughters of the Nile, just drop out on North Broadway.

First off, you get two shocks, for the number of this heart of Los Angeles' Egypt is 711. Maybe you never shot the ivories. In that case 711 would have no significance to you, but it struck me awfully funny—the one little mocking slap which the Occident has placed square on the nose of the Orient—711, the lucky number of the gaming table.

The second shock was the name, Omar Khayyam. He was Persian, and Persia's a long way from the Nile. "But then," as my host Haweis explained, "Cleopatra and Nile and lotus blossom are so trite and so much overworked. Besides," he added, "all our Turkish and Egyptian tobacco comes from Persia now and the Shah of Persia bought a lot of Liberty bonds." And there you have it.

To carry out the effect and add to the illusive, seductive atmosphere of the place, there are a lot of quotations from Fitzgerald's masterpiece on the windows and walls such as "Here beneath the bough with you and a jug of wine," etc., which, by the way, is what you might call a broad translation.

Only you don't get any wine. Orientals all are temperate. They get their thrills through spices in their foods, rather than from their drinks. Instead of wine, you ask coyly and knowingly for koumys. This, you are assured, was the favorite beverage of Cleopatra, despite what history says about vinegar with pearls dissolved in it and if you have appealing eyes and a confidential line of talk, maybe they'll explain that it's made of cow and goats' milk, fermented by Caucasian seeds. Then you'll know all about it.

Strong for Layers and Terraces in Egypt.

OF COURSE there are lots of other drinks and some of them are remarkably picturesque, not to mention tasty. There's one that always makes me think of a colossal pousse cafe. It has seven colors to it, one on top of the other, and tastes like a whole confectionery store. And if you want to go in for layers, just ask for some paklowa along with it. It's a cute little cake with thirty-five layers to it, of pastry, fruit and spices.

Yes, within ten minutes of Fifth and Broadway you can, if you choose, sit down to a real Egyptian dinner. Of course there are a hundred varieties and at various prices, as with us, but for just an ordinary meal it would run something like this: a salad of carcazanza beans, with Cleopatra sauce, followed by soup. The soup, you'd swear, was oyster, but it isn't, it's squash. Egyptians are great on squash.

Then you get another salad, possibly of parsley and tomatoes, dressed with tahana, which is made of sun sim seeds. By the way, before I forget it, please bear in mind that all my spelling is phonetic. My defense is that it's as good and as comprehensible as hieroglyphics, anyway.

Getting back to the Nile again. Chances are, comes next, rice that's fried in butter without being steamed first, and then comes the piece de resistance. You get three guesses and are wrong all the time, but here's inside information. It's squash again, stuffed with meats and spices and baked and there are cute little fritters on the side.

Then come the paklowa that I've already mentioned, and mamoul, which are dry and powdery outside and stuffed with fig and date paste. Just sugar and paste and cornstarch, when you get down to cases.

All this time you've been drinking koumys and the ladies have probably dabbled in Hanim, a sweet drink, and you've even drank water. Sounds shocking doesn't it? But then, Egyptian water isn't a bit the same as it came out of the pipes of the Los Angeles water department. There's orange and rose in it. Very nifty and exhilarating.

Even the Coffee Has Attar of Roses in it.

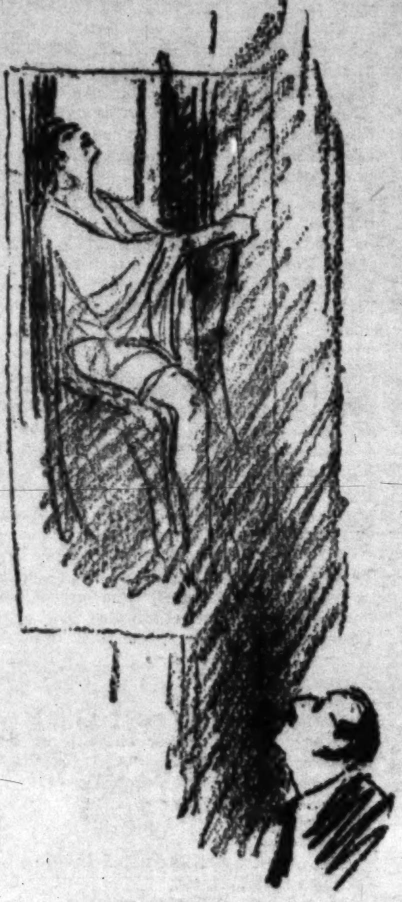
THEN comes your drip coffee, thick and unalterably oriental. This, too, has its drop of attar of roses and its orange. And each cup is brewed, or maybe distilled is the word, separately.

Follows then the narghila, or water pipe, and ladies and gentlemen all smoke as a matter of course. As I said before, you get Persian tobacco now, great big yellow leaves that are washed and then powdered up. A glowing bit of charcoal rests on the top and keeps it lighted and you relax on the divan and inhale slowly. Divan? Sure! Did you imagine that all this time you'd been sitting on a straight back from Grand Rapids?

In Los Angeles it's a scant three blocks from the Nile to the Bosphorus. Just cut from North Broadway straight through to North Main and there you are. Or, if you care to go further, chase over to East Third street. In Los Angeles as in the East, Turkey is divided.

Here, too, you get the inevitable rose pervaded coffee and little lumps of Ookah, which is translated in Turkish, paste. It reminded me for all the world of a harlequin fudge, if there is such a mixture.

I had forgotten about Turkey's being in the war too, and on the German side, so rushed in "where angels fear to tread." At that, seeing the Mohammedans don't have angels, that quotation would hold in peace as well as war.



If there were girls like these in Turkey I'd go there.

The Jag Wafer That Has the Purity Squad Guessing.

IN ONE of these places I ran onto the jag wafer which the metropolitan squad has been trying to locate for some time. The Los Angeles Purity Brigade has been trying to figure whether this wafer is a myth or a reality, for some time.

Take three cups of coffee and a dozen wafers and its ten to one you have a regular good old fashioned absinthe jag. Yet both the coffee and the wafers, I understand, have so far baffled the skill of the city chemist and the city gets no license.

I couldn't help laughing when I went into a place on North Main street. Here, in the semi-darkness, the poor Turks huddled around a table poring over a war map, evidently trying to figure if there were any Armenians left. Perforce, they were making the best of Persian tobacco and Egyptian coffee—terribly unpatriotic but what can they do?

It's a quaint place though, with its little round tables, its incense and its nargiles. The walls are covered with pictures of massacres and alluring houris. Honest, if they really did have girls in Turkey like those pictures, I'd either go there, or import harem.

Sonoratown Where Spain Hides Behind a Sordid Exterior.

"BACK EAST" it's a big jump from Turkey and Egypt to Spain, but in Los Angeles Spain lies between the two and rubs elbows with them—a drab, garish pitiful Spain—on the outside.

Up town there are Spanish restaurants, for American people, but if you want real Spain, which caters to the real senors and senoritas, make for the narrow delta which spreads out from the old mission church in the Plaza and embraces the strip which includes North Spring (formerly San Fernando,) New High and North Broadway about as far as Ord.

To dip into Spain with the right spirit, pause for a moment at the old mission. Then jump to Ord and Main. And there—a watering trough. How funny and obsolete it looks, that low stone trough. It's a reminder of other days. It makes you think back and it's easy to let your mind wander back to the halcyon days of adventure and discovery.

From the outside, Sonoratown isn't much to look at. Mostly one-story adobe shacks with here and there a restaurant struck in the wall. It's all terribly dirty.

The Tinkle of Canned Music Ousts the Romantic Guitar.

IN THE Italian districts you follow your nose in search of food. In tthe Spanish, trust your ears. You listen for the tinkle of the guitar and you hear the automatic pianos. It's woefully true. The guitar is being created by the music roll, the senorita is practicing first aid up town somewhere and Spain struggles on apathetically, mixing the modern with the old.

But you can hear a piano farther than you can a guitar and chances are it leads you plumb against one of those low forbidding adobe walls with a little square door in it.

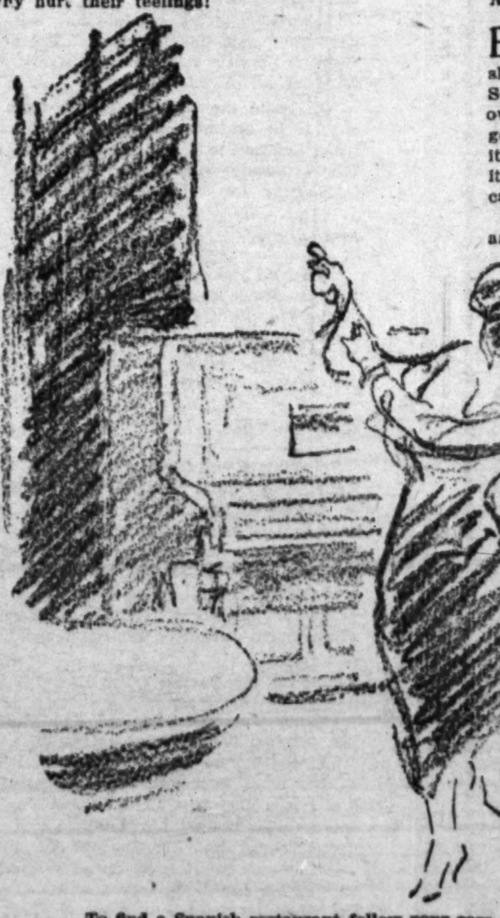
You go in and it's small and stuffy, and very Spanish, and if you're resigned you'll sit down and ask for a tamale and some wine, and go on your way.

Don't do it! Here's a tip! Remember that all Spanish houses are built inside out. That is, the yard, the lawn, the flowers, the veranda, are all inclosed inside the walls of the house. You step from the bare street into the house, but you must go through, into the patio, to be in real Spain.

So far, I haven't run across any patio all set up for customers but, if you go at it right, they'll move your table out there, and maybe cook your dinner in a real adobe oven, that looks for all the world like an Eskimo house.

And there you are, in an oasis in the midst of squalor. The house itself surrounds you. It's wonderfully private and cozy. And cool too. And maybe, after all, all the senoritas aren't up town and you can coax out the guitar and the castanets and hear "La Perjura" and "La Paloma" as they really ought to be rendered.

And by all means pass up the tamales and the enchiladas. You get those everywhere. Strike out boldly and tell them you want what they eat—something that you don't get up town. And later, if they apologize because the quail is so cheap, don't be smart and say "of course, since it was smuggled over the border." It's true, but why hurt their feelings!



To find a Spanish restaurant follow your ears.

Of course you must bear in mind that the Los Angeles blue laws have stabbed straight into the heart of Bohemia. Go to Sonoratown before 9 o'clock, else you can't have your bottle of wine, and whether you're temperate or not, you need wine with Spanish food. Somehow water doesn't discount the seasoning.

This is what I had the other night and perhaps, if you are at loss to know what to ask for, this might help: many bottles of vino and started off with an olive and celery salad followed by arroz, which is rice soup. Then I had a quail, which they call codorniz and a side dish of huevos con salchicha which is a mixture of egg and sausage and seasoning that I'm crazy about. I don't care much for fish, but ask for anguila if you want a novelty. Shut your eyes when they bring it and eat and it's a hundred to one you'll like it.

Nippon and Spanish Mackerel, the Fish They Flake With a Plane.

SUPPOSE we jump from Spain to Japan. Funny part is, you jump from Spanish to Spanish mackerel, which is as important in Japanese cooking as flour is in ours. But that's getting ahead a bit.

When you leave Sonoratown, make a bee line for the Plaza, cut across it, and keep going and you hit the Angel City edition of Japan. It's along East First and San Pedro.

As all over California, there is a big Japanese colony here in Los Angeles, and there are so many interesting things about it that I'm going to tell you about them in another story. Right now, however, we're on "eats" and fifteen minutes after I bade good-by to Spain, I was condoling with my friend Yamato Zushi, on East First street, over the fact that there's going to be a shortage in Japanese sauce and that what little there is left, is up out of sight.

Here is one community that Hooverizing doesn't touch. The food of Japan has always been inside the food savings regulations but for some reason the war has hit the importation of certain delicacies until now only one thing, their main dependency, is coming in.

This is the Spanish mackerel or muguron I was telling you about. It's hard, just like bamboo and you'd never believe it was fish if they didn't tell you.

When they use it, they just shave it off with an ordinary carpenter's plane, for all the world as though it were a bit of plank.

Los Angeles Water is no Good for Making Japanese Sauce.

EVERYTHING has sauce on it, that ruby red sauce that is so peculiar, and it's the shortage in this that's started the panic. Seems Japan won't make or send any more over here and they can't make it locally. They get all the ingredients, but when it's mixed it doesn't keep. As near as they can figure, it's something about the water here. They call this sauce saw yon.

To get hold of a real Japanese dinner just ask for everything from asni mona to sembi, which includes the whole works from soup to tea cakes, and you get it right here in Los Angeles exactly as in Tokio.

But to have it right, you must take a Japanese with you, or be relegated to a regular open-to-all restaurant. Get into the good graces of someone and hit straight for San Pedro and Jackson streets.

There's a place on Jackson, upstairs, that if you get by the outer guard, is a typical Nipponese tea house. Tiny little tables and some large ones and real geisha girls. The only one I can pronounce is Tchazooka. You say it just like a Klaxon horn.

Right across the street, in back of a poolroom, is an outdoor tea garden, and inside of it is a mysteriously fascinating place I couldn't get into.

Funny how simple it is to change from the West to the East! I looked down the alley and here was a giant moon, or maybe it was the sun, blinking at me. They had merely cut the window over the porch into a huge circle and behind it hung one of those square shredded rattan or bamboo mats. Through it the lamplight filtered.

You can live as high or as low as you like, but the simple dinner or lunch in real places sets you back about 85 cents and the only thing that breaks the spell is that they give you individual sanitary chop sticks.

Sure! Sanitary chop sticks. I don't know what kind of wood they're made of, but you get them, split halfway up. Tear them apart, and you have your set, and when you've finished eating, throw them away.

But to get back to the meal and the phonetic spelling. First off, you'll get some rice and the saw yon sauce and then comes the soup, or asni mona, and a salad of crab and vegetables seasoned with mijanize vinegar and lemon. No oil, and no mayonnaise go with real Japanese cooking.

Fish comes next, and I suggest you ask for sou see, which means the fish is baked and stuffed with rice. Then comes a bit of chicken, and ask for a baked egg with it. They're great on different styles of eggs.

Then come tea and simbi, which are tea cakes. Here's another tip. If you don't like the cakes, ask for some more. Sounds funny, but what I mean is, that they have seventy-eight varieties of them, so you're bound to be suited. Maybe by this time you don't want cake, in which case ask for kasi, which is cookies. I might mention that it's hard to get saki any more but I think it's coming back as it is not covered by the dry ordinance.

All the while you're eating, the musicians are playing? I put a question mark because I never could savvy Japanese and Chinese music. They tell me there are forty-two notes in their octave and sometimes it seems as if they hit 'em all at once. Also, to European ears, their songs have no beginning and no ending. The singing sounds like a lost cause, but the tea is good.

Dipping into the Haunts of the Original Marathoners.

LITTLE Greece is anchored on East Fourth street, some ten minutes' walk from Japan, and your big impression of it is pool and cards, coffee and accordeons.

I couldn't help wondering, as I sat at the little, plain, uncovered table sipping coffee and looking over the cigarette posters on the walls, if these really were the folks whose ancestors ran the first Marathon race. Then I recollected that that was a long time ago. Gee, how things have changed!

Here too, it is mostly coffee and wafers, and fruit, but the latter is always poor, considering that this is where it's grown. But you can get good dates and figs and if you can brazen out the fact that you are an unwelcome intruder, you may have a chance to gamble.

That's their failing and their pastime. It doesn't matter if it's pool or cards or how long it will take Pershing to get to Berlin.

There's a dandy Russian place out near the gas works, but you've got to have whiskers and the pass word. I tried all the iskys, owskys and ovitchs I could think of, but there is nothing doing, so I cut back to my starting place, the Pleza, and plunged into Chinatown.

Here in Los Angeles, China stands between Turkey and Japan just as it does in the war, and it too, is covered with white banners. Only instead of flaunting the motto "peace at any price" these here unblushingly recommend near-beer.

But this is only in the places where the tourists go. Get your laundryman to take you through one of the alleys and down cellar; past the lottery table and the Fan Tan. He'll take you past, too; literally hustle you into a little room all hung with gold embroidered silks, seemingly a thousand miles from everywhere.

Don't get any noodles. They're no good any more. Get real Chinese things that you know don't come from a local source, except the rice, and the chickens, gai, they call them. But then you know Chinatown, with its tea, its chop suey, its lichee nuts and its inlaid tables.

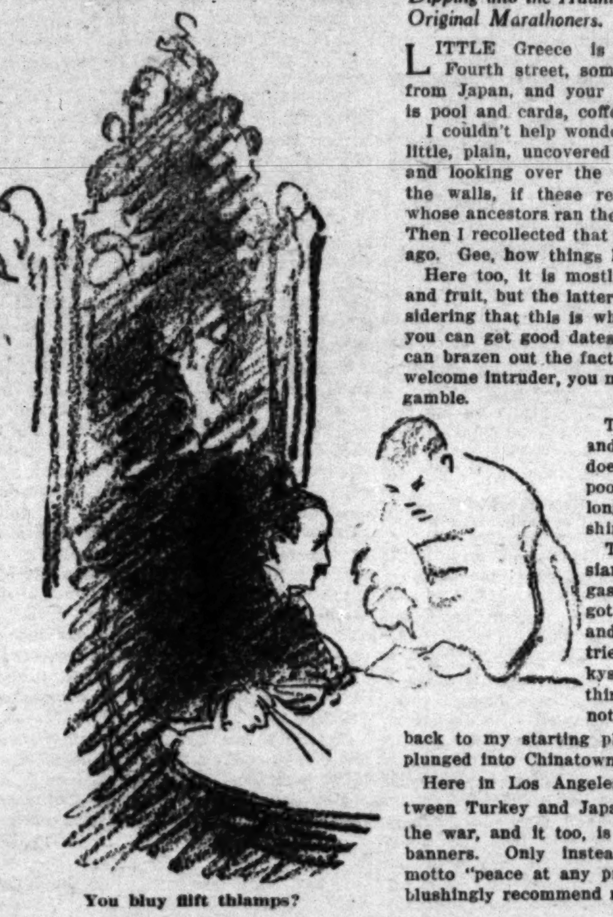
And you really can't get any farther than that. The other night I did slip by, part way, and got some real Langdin tea and some special ginger.

But I couldn't get any ghum ghets, those little limes in the honey syrup, or any rice wine, and the ginger was bright and there was nothing to stop the bite but near-beer.

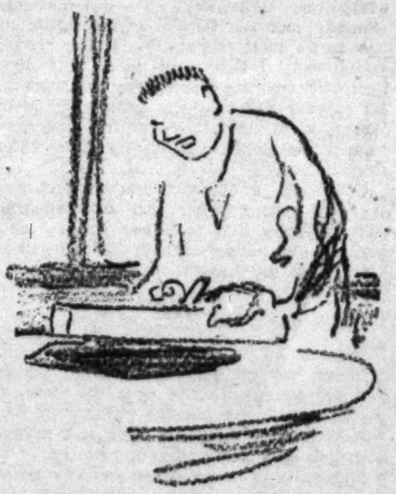
John was sympathetic. He got me some tea, some bouloo, which is pineapple Chinese style, and some almond cake. In some other booth I could hear the rattle of the beans in the lottery gourd, and all around, the dragons and Buddhas snarled and grinned at me. After all, this was China.

And then a voice at my elbow said "you bluy flift stlamps?"

And that's the Orient. It takes you in, turns you round and round, the way kids do in their games, and just when you think you belong, that you're "it," it pulls some little stunt like that, that yanks you out of poppyland and blandly shoots you back to Broadway.



You bluy flift thlamps?



The original plain (plane) cooking.

What Birds' Eggs Tell.

A WELL-KNOWN entomologist was showing a friend his collection of birds and birds' eggs. Just before thte caller left there was brought out a tray filled with eggs, different in shape, size and color. Two owls' eggs were nearly spherical in form; one large egg, a guillemot's, was almost conical, so that it would roll round in a circle on a rocky ledge, and not roll off as an ordinary egg would. Each egg was marked with a fraction—1-6, 1-8, 1-12, 1-18, and so on; and they bore no other inscription.

In response to the visitor's query as to what birds laid those eggs, the entomologist replied:

"I know a good many of them, but not all. However, I can tell you whether the birds that laid them were intelligent and affectionate mothers or not.

"This big egg, marked 1-6, is one-sixth as heavy as the bird that laid it, the Australian megapode, or brush turkey. That bird piles up a huge mound of sticks, turf, and decaying vegetable matter, and leaves her eggs in this natural incubator. In due time the chicks break through their shells. They are strong, covered with feathers, and in their mother's absence find their food at once. Brush turkeys are stupid, easily lured, readily killed; the chick, you see, had no opportunity to learn anything from its mother.

"Take now, two common American birds, the plover and the meadow lark. They are about the same size, but their eggs are not. The plover's egg is twice as heavy as the meadow lark's. A crane is about as big as a stork; but the egg of a crane is twice as large as the stork's egg. Meadow larks and storks are devoted mothers; plovers and cranes are not."

"But what," asked the visitor, "has motherliness to do with the largeness or smallness of an egg?"

"Just this: an egg contains germ yolk that becomes the chick, and food yolk that nourishes the chick as it grows. A large egg means a full pantry. Until the food is used up, the chick need not chip its shell. Hence, chicks from large eggs are bigger and stronger and more mature than those from smaller eggs. A meadow lark as it leaves its shell is tiny, weak, and helpless; it remains in the nest much longer than the plover, which comes from a much larger egg. The mother meadow lark displays more care and affection toward her feeble brood than the sturdy plover chicks require from their mother. So with cranes and storks. Cranes lay their large eggs on marsh land; a few hours after hatching, the young birds are running about, quite able to take care of themselves. Storks build their nests on roofs, as a rule, and from their small eggs are hatched chicks so naked and weak that they have to be protected, fed, and taught to fly, long after the young cranes are independent of their mother and her nest. Storks are among the wisest and most affectionate of birds.

"It is interesting to know that the ostrich lays an egg which is no more than a hundredth part of her own weight. Her chick is hatched in so feeble a state that it needs a mother's care for several months."

THE CENSOR WAS ON THE JOB.

While Abdul Hamid was still upon the throne of Turkey the president of the American Missionary College at Tarsus sent to New York for a large consignment of textbooks. In due time all except the chemistries came safely. At first the president could not find out what was the matter, but finally the commissioner of the port sent for him.

"It is not for you to complain," said that officer, "but it is for you to give thanks to Allah that you did not follow your diabolical books into the flames. Here is one copy that we saved for a witness. Not all of its deadly ciphers could we read, but this is plain even to the eye of a babe." Pointing to the symbol, H2O, he read, with triumphant air and voice, "Hamid II is nothing!"

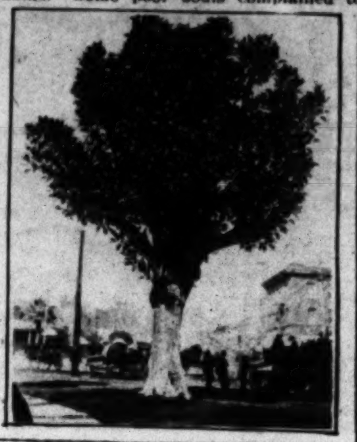
"More!"

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

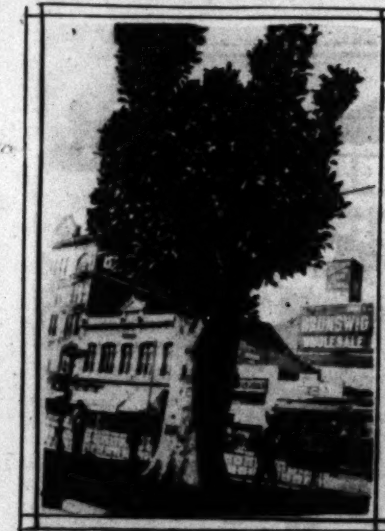
INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

ON THE night of January 6, 1913, the southern end of the Golden State was visited by the largest and strongest force Gen. Frost has ever been able to muster in the Southland. He dealt what was aimed to be a staggering blow and we were expected (some of us at least) to retire to "previously prepared" or unprepared positions. But as a comical sage once remarked: All the retirements could be counted on the fingers of one thumb. Some poor souls complained to the writer, most bitterly, that prized trees of considerable size and age were entirely killed "not a live leaf left on 'em." But the writer, having lived long in the land, had supreme faith in the resourcefulness, nay, redundancy of our climate, and advised all to bide a wee.

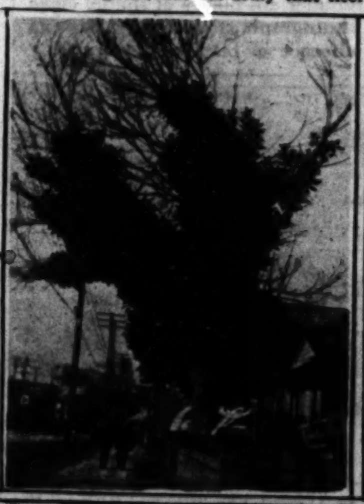


Rubber tree in Plaza Park one year after 1913 freeze. The tree was cut back just after the frost:

In the meantime, another warrior, one Jupiter Pluvius, visited us and literally showered blessings on the land. Occasionally he withdrew his friendly forces, to give Old Sol and his powers a chance to provoke us into smiling. And how he did succeed! Ere the pessimist could well start on bemoaning his fate, the two last named warriors had mustered us a new and mightier natural army that literally engulfed, swallowed and assimilated every vestige of the ravages of Gen. Frost, until we were once again in a land of peace and plenty.



Another frost-nipped rubber tree restored by California's healing sunshine



This Aliso-street rubber tree was left unpruned, but here it is a year after the freeze.

It is true that large trees, some of them two or three feet through the trunk, were bereft of every leaf, likewise of the smaller branches. But, bless you, they were natives of countries Gen. Jack has never dared to visit and were therefore ill able to withstand the shock. In fact, each cool season they had sojourned with us they had proven a little weak, not having a strong and vigorous constitution like the Californians proper. But, with the return of normal conditions, their component parts began to emerge from their hiding place until they again stood forth in all their former glory. Chief among these were the rubber trees (species of ficus) ornamental members of the fig family. Four of these, Ficus macrophylla, the Moreton Bay Fig, from Queensland, Australia, stood in the Plaza Park, Los Angeles. They were cut back to a sturdy framework the morning after the assault of the northern forces and our pictures show the growth made in just one year from that day. Another tree of the same species, growing on Aliso street just below Alameda, was left unpruned and was photographed the same day as the others. The illustrations show plainly what happens in one year in the Land of Great Recovery. And today the recovery is more than complete, for never did these trees appear so gloriously luxuriant; never did they cast such a sufficient and sheltering shade. Ailing humanity may find a moral in this. The on-coming rush will please keep to the right, as you are right; and you will never be left

Roses From Cuttings.

A reader writes to ask why he cannot grow roses from cuttings in his garden. Has put in hundreds, rooted none. Has rooted hundreds in other places he has owned. Cuttings were taken from rose bushes all of which do extremely well. The soil is heavy, black and sticky and has been well fertilized.

As the inquirer has been successful in rose propagation in other soils, it may be presumed the latter is both literally and figuratively at the bottom of the trouble. Pure washed sand is the best material as a medium in which to propagate by cuttings any and all plants. The farther you depart from such medium the more danger is encountered and a correspondingly greater number of failures experienced. There may be in the inquirer's soil some special element that defeats the callousing process. It may also be lack of drainage, decaying vegetable matter or a combination of all these. In addition the aggrieved party lives in the southwest part of the city, where the zephyrs are occasionally wafted with considerable zest. Rose and other cuttings are without means of gaining a new supply of sap until rooted To tide over the interregnum the moisture should be conserved. Keep cuttings protected from wind and sun. Surround the bed or box with cheese cloth or burlap and see that no air gets in at bottom. As roots grow in dark as well as light and as tops do not, keep rose cuttings from too much light, especially from the top. This will encourage root growth but not top growth. But so soon as cuttings are rooted admit light and sun. Do not grow spindly tops. Daily very light sprays should be given, to counteract exhaustion of sap and atmospheric humidity.

Ruined Orange Trees.

A correspondent writes that two young orange tree-tops died because infested thickly with white woolly insects. Suckers have come up from the bottom and she wishes to know how many of the latter she should leave and if they will bear oranges.

Here is one of those "horrible examples." How one could be so indifferent to the conditon of young trees, until insects had killed the tops, passeth understanding.

It has been said the Lord helps those who help themselves and the writer wishes to do likewise, but here is a hopeless case. As the oranges were no doubt budded, it is safe to presume they were on sour, trifoliata, or similar stock bearing a non-palatable fruit. The owner is advised to dig them out and throw away, and grow no more unless better care is given. When such insects appear either telephone or write the County Horticultural Commissioner, Hall of Records, Los Angeles.

The Sprouting Leaf.

We have received two fleshy leaves in a letter asking for name of plant and stating parent plant was received as a leaf from Patagonia, that it is a flowerless house plant.

This is Bryophyllum pinnatum, a native of the tropics of both hemispheres. It belongs to the family that includes the live-forevers, hen and chickens, stone-crops, echeverias, cotyledons, and dudleyas, not uncommon to all warm countries. One of the last-named is named for the writer and the late Prof. Dudley, botanist at Stanford University, as Dudleya Brauntonii, and is native to Los Angeles in Griffith and Elysian parks. The one of which leaves were sent is a curious plant. A leaf laid on moist sand or soil, if in a warm place, will root and send out young plants from every notch in the edge of the leaf. Its name, Bryophyllum, is from the Greek, and means sprouting leaf, and this is used as a popular name. It bears flowers of green, purple and white.

Harvesting his roses.

Pruning Araucarias.

"Constant Reader" states the branches are falling out of Bunya-bunya, his big Araucaria Bidwillii, leaving round holes in the trunk. He would know the cause, the remedy and also if these trees will replace branches if pruned to a pole, as his tree is too wide-spreading.

The trouble is not an uncommon one, but the remedy we do not know. In this particular case, however, we would at once cut all branches off and allow the trunk to refurnish with branches. This it will doubtless do. Several examples are known to the writer. One tree made no attempt to replace the first year, but the second and third year after pruning grew a fine lot of well-foliaged branches. In time these trees often become more handsome than in their former state.

A Continuous Bloomer.

Gardeners will tell you that Polygala Dalmaisiana blooms more continuously than any other shrub and it is a pretty close guess. Few shrubs bloom so much of the time. The main objection urged against the flowers is inharmonious color. It borders closely on magenta, but it is not an unpleasant or unattractive shade. And out from the juncture of the two broad or banner petals there is thrust a keeled boatlike structure of white, purple-tipped, and from the keel sticks up a defiant figurehead of a whitish crest and bristly mien that makes every flower an interesting study Those who have not closely observed these little floral monoplanes should pinch one off and look it over carefully. Ever afterward Polygala Dalmaisiana will be of greater interest.

Oak Tree Pests.

Live oaks in local territory are infested with oak-leaf scale and leaf-folders. Neither of these may seriously interfere with the vigor of large trees, but are a heavier drain upon young trees and also are somewhat of a disfigurement. While the trees are small, one should pick off and burn all infested, unsightly and old, yellowing foliage. Also once each day give a fierce spraying with garden hose. This drives off many insects and cleanliness is a large factor in keeping pests and diseases away from plants (and animals.) The present, and for three months yet, is the most active season for pests. Keep up your end of the fight.

Orange Trees on Walls.

Someone writes to ask what we know about orange trees trained "a la espalier" for growing on walls in Italian gardens. "A la," alas, we know naught of it Never saw one of the dear things, don't you know, and never heard of one. Orange trees are trimmed and trained to square heads and grown in boxes and tubs in France and Italy, in like manner as we use bay trees. The writer sees no reason why orange trees may not be also grown "a la espalier" and has no objection so long as none attempt to land in his little garden. Orange trees take kindly to any restriction or pruning and the "a la" treatment would not prove a greater hardship than many successfully stand in other ways. Therefore, to it, and joy be wi' you.

Handsome Foliage.

Few plants have a more attractive foliage than Beall's Barberry, Berberis Japonica var. Bealiii. Each leaf is broad, flat and as hard and stiff as a piece of tin. It is cut-margined and every point is armed with a somewhat prickly terminal, but is not dangerous or disagreeable to handle. The leaves are of a pleasing green and the veins are of whitish green As the leaves age they turn a beautiful red. The shrub is hardy in any locality, but thrives best in partial shade, which is true of all the broad-leaved or mahonia section of barberries. In their natural home they grow in the woods, in the shade of tall trees

How to Strafe the Kaiser's Allies in Your Garden.

On the Home Sector.

BY H. J. RYAN,

Special Field Agent, United States Bureau of Entomology.

FOR practical purposes, insect pests of truck crops, and other pests such as slugs, snails and the red spider, may be divided into two classes; those which live by sucking the juice of a plant by means of a proboscis or beak which is inserted through the epidermis of the plant and those which have biting mouth-parts with which they eat holes in the leaves and other parts of the plant.

To the first class, the sucking forms, belong plant lice, or aphids, thrips, plant bugs and red spiders. Under the class of biting forms are placed the beetles, ants, grasshoppers and immature forms of all moths and butterflies such as the cutworms, army worms, tomato horn worms, and tomato fruit worms.

An insect which obtains its food from the juices of the plant by sucking cannot be killed with any internal poison. The remedy must consist of suffocating, or burning with a contact spray. So aphids, thrips, and red spider are controlled in this way. Lime sulphur, kerosene emulsion, tobacco solutions, and soap sprays, are the remedies most used for this class of pests.

FOR BITING INSECTS.

For the biting forms, arsenical sprays such as Paris green and lead arsenate, are chiefly used. The former is of late years seldom recommended as a spray because of its propensity for burning plant foliage. Lead arsenate in double the proportion does just as effective work with less injury to plants, and has the additional advantage of not washing off the plants so quickly. Paris green is chiefly mentioned now in the poison bran bait formula for cutworms, and in this connection it might be well to note that common white arsenic as handled by druggists may be used in the poison bran formula at one-half the weight of Paris green at a saving in cost and with equal effectiveness.

Bordeaux mixture, chiefly used as a fungicide, is an instance of the exception to the general rule of the use of arsenical sprays for biting insects. Potatoes, tomatoes, and other truck crops are sometimes infested with a small dark colored beetle called the flea-beetle, from its habit of jumping when disturbed. This beetle eats small holes through the leaves and sometimes will almost defoliate a potato field, or may completely devastate a tomato seed bed. The Bordeaux mixture at 4-4-50 strength acts as a repellant to the flea-beetle and as long as the foliage above and beneath is covered, the plants are fairly safe from attack. If the beetles are very numerous it may be advisable to use lead arsenate powder at the rate of two pounds to fifty gallons of Bordeaux.

CLEAN CULTURE PAYS.

Much emphasis may be laid on the advantage of clean culture the year round in relation to all truck crop insect activity. All of these pests must winter over in some form. With some, such as a few of the aphids, the winter form is the egg stage. In that case the dead stalks of the crop which fed the egg-laying forms may carry the eggs for the spring generation. Neighboring weed patches will afford feeding ground and hibernating quarters for many forms of insect life the year round and provide a continual source of infestation to cultivated crops.

Rubbish piles furnish ideal shelter during the winter for many classes of insects, and may be used as what might be called bases of attack. Slugs and snails must have cool moist hiding places where they may find protection during the day. Cutworms which are also night workers, follow the same tactics and unless the soil about the base of the plants is loose and comparatively moist, they will crawl away in the morning to find a hiding place under low growing weeds or under leaves or old boards.

The garden slug.

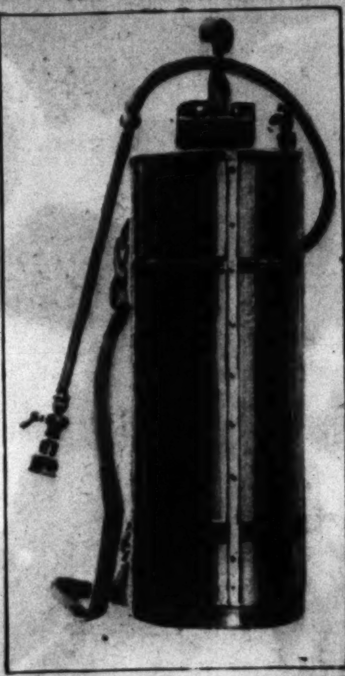
WHERE STRATEGY COUNTS.

Mechanical methods of control may be adapted to the habits of the cutworm. The small garden may be protected to a certain extent from this pest, by laying boards or sacks on dampened ground between the rows and if the ground is packed a bit, so it will not be too easy for the worm to burrow in the soil, many of them can be found in the morning curled up under this shelter; but this, together with digging the worms out of the soil by hand and hand picking, which is sometimes resorted to for other insects, is of course, impracticable for any but the small back yard garden.

The best remedy for cutworm infestation and one which can be used successfully on either a large or small scale is poison bran bait. For use in small gardens, the formula is two quarts of bran thoroughly mixed with two teaspoonfuls of white arsenic. To this is added a pint of cheap molassess stirred in one-half gallon of water. The mixture should be made up to the consistency of a stiff dough and allowed to stand for several hours to enable the poison to soak into all the bran particles.

The bait should be scattered over the garden, especially at the edges, and about the base of the plants, in lumps about the size of a marble. If distributed late in the day, it will be fresh and tempting to the worms when they commence their activities.

For large areas the following formula is efficient: twenty pounds of bran, one-half pound of white arsenic, one-half gallon of molasses and enough water to make the dough. This should be sufficient for four or five acres. The addition of three or four chopped oranges or lemons is said by some investigators to make the bait more attractive to cutworms.



Compressed-air sprayer. A sprayer of some kind is about as necessary in gardening as cultivating tools.

APPLYING INSECTICIDES.

As to methods of applying the various insecticides, perhaps the only blanket advice that can be safely given, is to first be sure of the cause of the injury, and know whether the damage is or will be serious enough to warrant treatment, then mix the materials in exactly the proportions given and apply thoroughly. It is often said that 75 per cent. of the results obtained depend upon the man handling the spray nozzle. A good insecticide becomes a poor one in the hands of a man who will not mix his materials in the right proportions or apply them in the right place.

Machinery for the application of sprays may vary from an atomizer, useful only for a few plants in the back yard, to a wagon carrying an engine and a 250-gallon tank. There are bucket pumps and small compressed air sprayers to be had up to ten dollars or so, which are serviceable for medium sized gardens. The compressed air type holding about five gallons is very satisfactory for small plantings. The grower of vegetables should assume that spray equipment is as necesary for the production of a successful crop as cultivating tools. A reasonable knowledge of the uses of various sprays such as Bordeaux mixture, lime-sulphur, oil and soap emulsions, lead arsenate, and nicotine sulphate is likely to save a crop that a reasonable understanding of cultural methods has raised.

There are several agencies that exist for the growers' benefit. The farm journals are always ready to answer inquiries or pass the question on to the proper place. Almost every county in the State has a farm advisor whose duty it to dispense information. The County Horticultural Commissioner is informed on the control of insect pests. The College of Agriculture of the University of California is at the service of the farmer and the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington or at the field stations may be called upon for information on insect pest control.

Reports of insect injury to crops, should be accompanied by specimens of the depredators, as it is difficult to identify the pest from a description, and consequently it is often inadvisable to make recommendations.

Bulletins covering such subjects are issued by the State University and by the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington and may be had for the asking, as they are printed for free distribution.

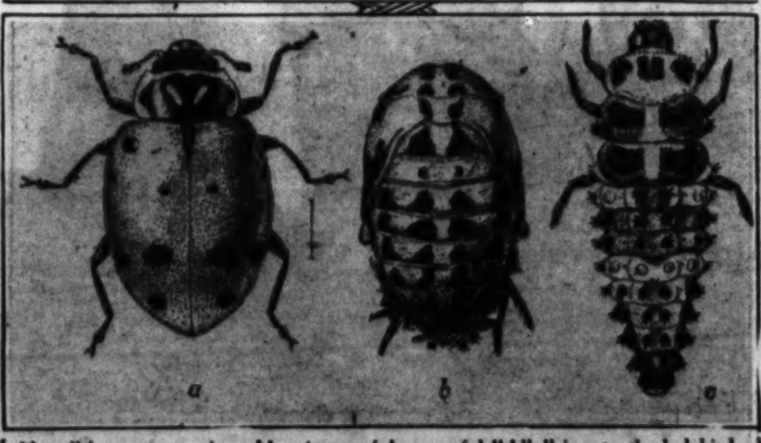
MAKE THINGS HOT FOR THE CUTWORM.

Here, in convenient form, is the poisoned bait formula recommended by experts of the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture for use in the protection of garden plants from cutworms:

Mix thoroughly one-fourth pound of white arsenic with a peck of dry bran. Stir a pint of cheap syrup or molasses into four to six quarts of water. Use this to make up the poisoned bran into a mash. Let stand several hours to allow the bran to take up the arsenic. Other powdered arsenicals may be substituted if the amount is doubled.

Late in the day scatter the mash thinly along the rows or around the base of the plants to be protected. KEEP CHICKENS AWAY.

Where the destruction of grasshoppers is desired, add chopped lemons or oranges to this bait.

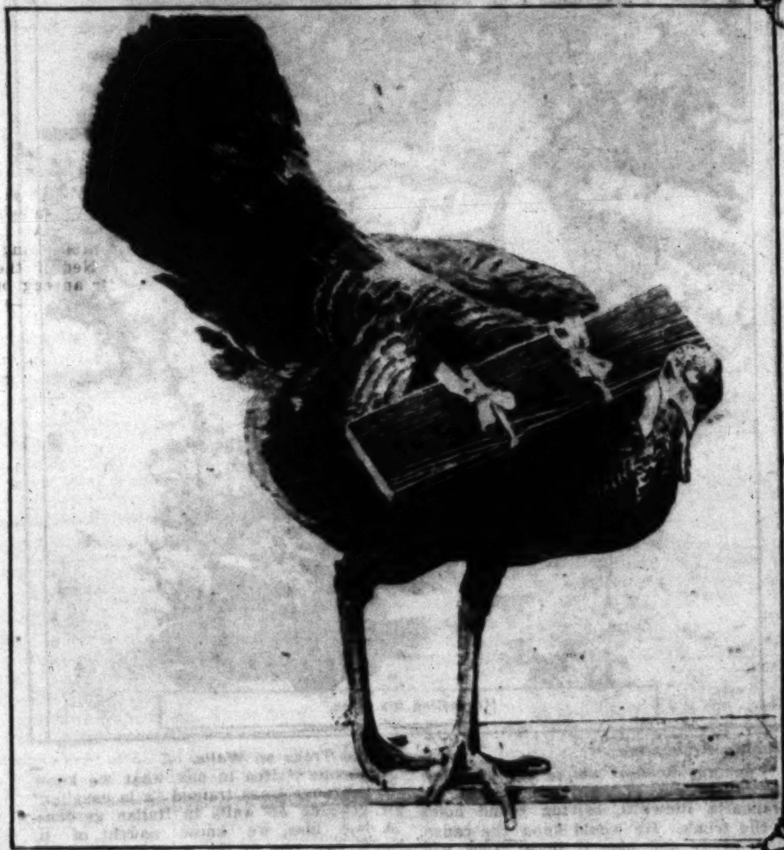


Not all bugs are enemies. Here is one of those useful "Ally" insects, the ladybird: (a) Adult of convergent ladybird; (b) pupa of same; (c) larva of same. The hair line beside the first drawing shows the real size of the ladybird.

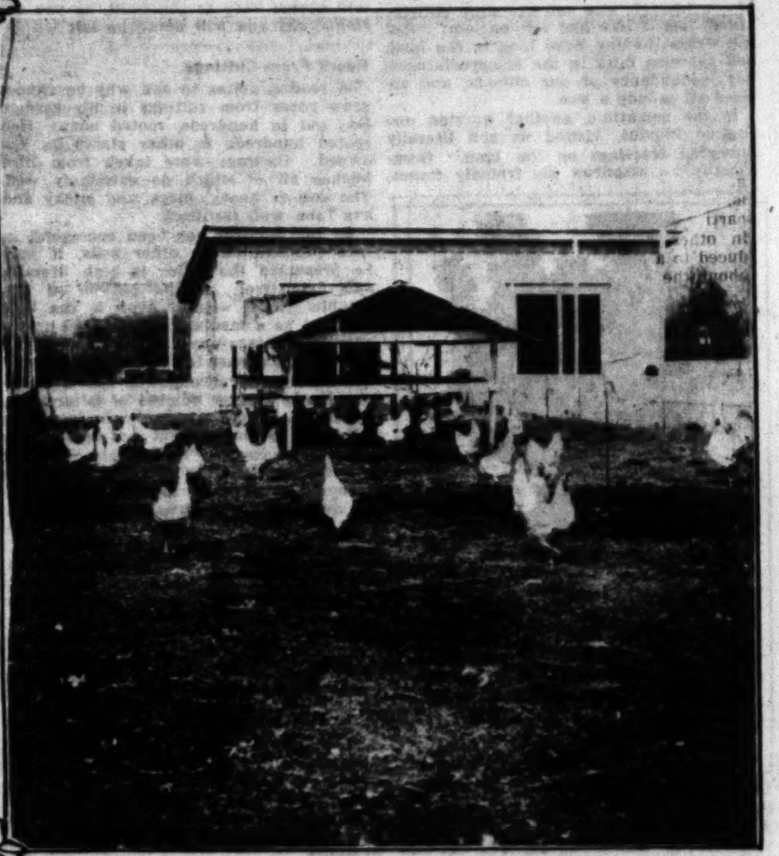
Illustrated Poultry Hints by Uncle Sam's Experts.

(SPECIAL INFORMATION SERVICE, UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.)

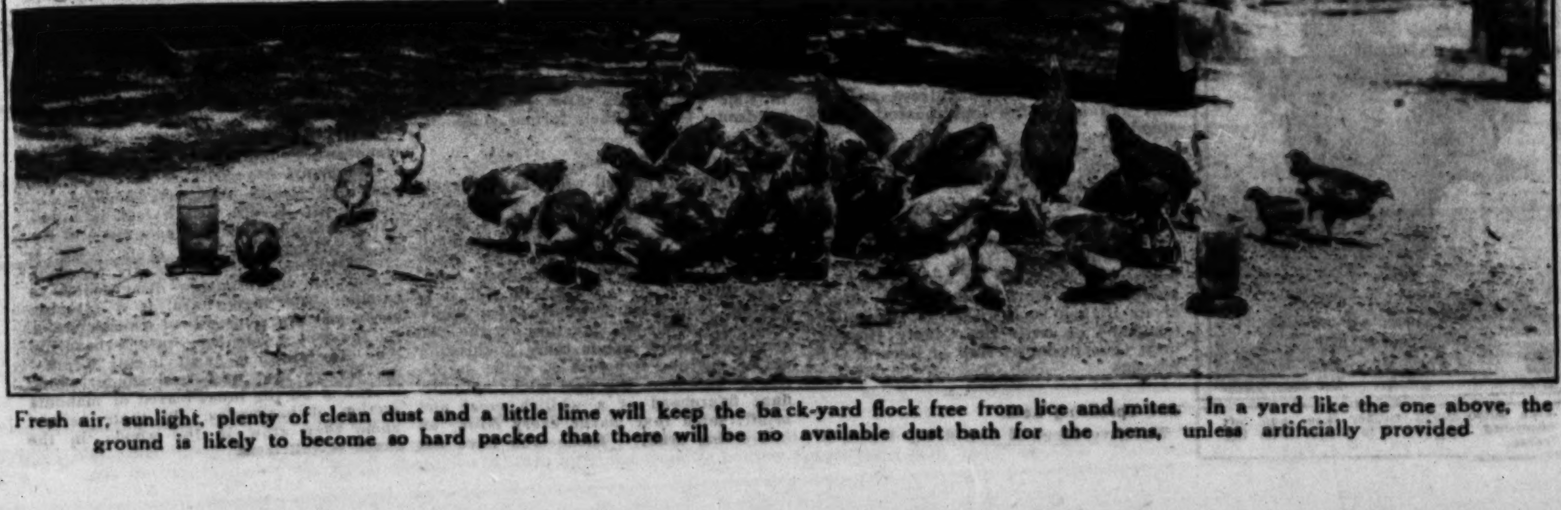
Keep the pullets growing, say the United States Department of Agriculture poultry specialists. A flock of pullets such as these will become money makers immediately upon reaching maturity.



A paddle fastened to her wings will keep the restless turkey hen from soaring over the fence.



The prime requisites for good layers in summer are plenty of shade, clean water, fresh air and proper feed. The photograph shows how shade can be provided for summer layers in the absence of back-yard trees.



Fresh air, sunlight, plenty of clean dust and a little lime will keep the back-yard flock free from lice and mites. In a yard like the one above, the ground is likely to become so hard packed that there will be no available dust bath for the hens, unless artificially provided.

"FOOD WILD WIN THE WAR."

Orange Stealing.

THE recent announcement of the Orange County Fruit Exchange that a reward had been offered for the conviction on a petty or grand larceny charge of anyone stealing oranges in the Santa Ana district reveals a deplorable condition which is substantiated by news reports from all sections of the citrus belt and by the statements of officials of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. The inference to be drawn from the various reports is that organized gangs of automobile thieves are operating among the orange and lemon groves.

An investigation has revealed, too, that the situation has become far more serious than is indicated by straggling news reports. It would seem that there is scarcely a citrus community which has not been visited by these sneak thieves. They follow the boulevards in fast machines and, working quickly on dark nights, get away with large quantities of ripe fruit, which they later manage to market in some manner best known to themselves. Their plan seems to be to steal only a few oranges at a time from each tree and to cover a comparatively large area. Their spoils, although aggregating in one night a good-sized load, are not missed immediately by the grove owners; in fact, the loss frequently is not recognized until the orange grower picks and markets his crop, when he finds his net returns far below what they should have been. Such stories would be hard to believe were they not reported on reliable authority.

The greatest sufferers, of course, are the non-resident owners and those situated along the paved boulevards. One young man, who has a ten-acre grove in the north Orange county section and who lives in Los Angeles, depending upon neighbors to do his work and oversee his place, found, upon picking his crop, that not less than 20 per cent. of his oranges and nearly all his lemons had been stolen. Not knowing what his yield would have been if the trees had been left alone, he is unable to ascertain the exact extent of his damage, which may have been even heavier than estimated. Another non-resident owner, near Covina, is reported to have lost all but five boxes of a promising crop.

The present high market prices of citrus fruits have induced unusual activity among the thieves, inasmuch as a load, even of small bulk, is now very valuable. The orange-stealing game is not a new one, but seems to have been developed this season to an extent never before attempted.

No official action will be taken in the matter by the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, according to E. G. Dezell, assistant general manager of the organization. The situation, he declares, is one which calls for action by the various district associations, and he states that several of them have already requested the county authorities to co-operate by putting on extra deputies.

In some cases, he points out, individual growers have taken steps to protect their groves or have co-operated with their neighbors to hire watchmen. Many have posted signs warning trespassers away. The various district organizations, Mr. Dezell believes, will undoubtedly have to take steps before another year to patrol the roads and groves regularly during the picking seasons.

It is deplorable that here in the great West where, not so many years ago, the miner piled his supplies under a rude shelter, open to any visitor, and the sheep herder left his cooking outfit lying where the passing stranger could use it, there should have developed such petty thievery as this. Civilization, with all its blessings, has brought along some things so small and mean that they would have been considered beneath contempt in frontier days.

Almost every man, remembering his boyhood days, has a weakness in his heart for the small boy who gets away with an occasional hatful of fruit, but no man who is half a man wants any leniency to be shown to a professional orange and lemon thief. Like most sneaking robbers, these fellows are clever at covering up their cowardly tracks and are difficult to catch in the act. But it is to be hoped that when the strong arm of the law or of an outraged grove owner reaches out and grabs one of them by the collar, he will be set up as an example for his fellow-coyotes and, by getting the heaviest dose of punishment the law allows, will be handed a "lemon" of such a bitter variety that he and all of his kind will not soon forget it.

SHORT COURSES AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The purpose of the farmers' short courses to be held at the University of California Agricultural Station this year, according to a bulletin just issued on the subject by the university, is to "enable persons, especially those of mature years and ranch experience, to acquire a knowledge of the fundamental principles of agriculture and of the results of the latest investigations in the production of fruit, field and forage crops and live stock of the various classes."

Four short courses, each lasting six weeks, are offered from September 30 to November 8, as follows:

General agriculture (including animal husbandry.)

Horticulture.

Poultry husbandry.

Dairy manufactures.

These courses will be followed by two-week courses in:

Market milk production, November 11-22.

Butter-making, November 11-21.

Cheese-making, December 2-13.

Milking machines, December 2-13.

Beekeeping, December 2-7.

Gas tractors, November 11-19.

Gas tractors (experienced men only,) November 20-22.

The two-weeks courses are intended for people who have had at least six months' practical experience in the various branches of agriculture or dairying, and only those who have had such experience will be admitted to these courses. The number of students in the creamerymen's course will be limited to twenty; in the course of cheese-making the number will be limited to sixteen; in the milking-machine course to twenty-four; and in the course in poultry husbandry to forty.

RED CROSS AIDED BY THE STOCKMEN.

A "Red Cross calf," recently donated by Butte City ranch, Glenn county, to the organization of mercy, sold during the cattlemen's convention at Davis for $4000, and it is expected that the animal (a grandson of the famous Shorthorn, Whitehall Sultan) will be resold at the California State Fair, the Los Angeles Liberty Fair and the California International at San Francisco. By that time he should have netted a tidy sum for the aid of the boys in France.

The sales of fine animals, conducted at almost every gathering of live-stock men in the United States during the past two years, have proved to be one of the most successful benefit schemes yet developed, and the stockmen, noted for their big-hearted generosity, have in every case responded with high bids for the Red Cross animals. In many cases the buyers have immediately offered their purchases for resale, and the same animal has gone under the hammer again and again.

EFFECT OF WEEDS.

Considering the principal crops in the United States, it is estimated that weeds reduce the yield of corn by 10 per cent.; tame hay, 3 to 16 per cent.; potatoes, 6 to 10 per cent.; spring grain, 12 to 15 per cent.; winter grain, 5 to 9 per cent.; tobacco, fruit and truck crops, 0 to 5 per cent.; pasture, 5 to 50 per cent.

WHAT A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE COST ONE HOPEFUL ALFALFA GROWER.

PERHAPS California, with all its varied products, agricultural, horticultural and mineral, offers to the newcomer no surer or more conservative an investment than in its broad green acres of perennial alfalfa. They have brought many millions of dollars to the farmers of the State. Yet this apparently simple back-to-nature method of making a livelihood—and something more—is full of traps and pitfalls to the uninitiated and unwary.

Let me tell you my own experience; it may serve to scotch the get-rich-quick maggot in some other Utopian brain.

Wouldn't an advertisement, worded somewhat as follows, appeal to any unprejudiced person?

"FOR SALE—Forty acres of very desirable alfalfa land. Fine stand, pumping plant, irrigating pipes, etc. Only two hundred dollars an acre. Two thousand dollars will handle this. Balance can be paid from the proceeds of the crop. Interest only 6 per cent. Ten years' time if necessary."

I bit. The obliging real estate agent was very concise and ready with his figures. At an average annual yield of six tons to the acre, selling at $10 a ton, three years would see one out of debt and on the high road to affluence. Did ever opportunity knock more loudly at any man's door, even in California, that land of golden futures?

WEATHER IN CONSPIRACY.

It was a soft, sunshiny day in the month of March when I first saw those green, rolling acres, luscious to the eye, full of promise for the pocketbook. Possibly my imagination, like the spring morning, was all too soft and sunshiny. My friend, the real estate man, who stuck to me like a leech, was quick to take advantage of my optimistic impression. I seized the forelock he offered before it passed away like a comet's tail. The stand of alfalfa sprouting beautifully after the long winter rains was close and even; the air was fragrant, the sky bright and clear, the prospect was a dream, a poem, a symphony in green and blue. Now the green and the blues are very distinct; the green of easy confidence and the blues of disillusion.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing. The few tips I had stored up as to the earmarks of a good alfalfa field were the very cause of my undoing because they were only half-digested. And applied prematurely. For instance:

I had been cautioned to look out for Bermuda grass, that pest which has caused so much sweat, profanity and shrunken profits to the farmers of this State. As I walked through the growing alfalfa I saw none present. Yet it was there all right and it began to make a brave showing about the end of May.

THEY WERE ALL THERE.

Dodder, too, I had heard of, known more generally as love-vine—because the closer it clings the greater the ruin—but I had never studied its habits. In March it is still dormant; the golden tendrils began to appear in the second cutting till by July it dotted the whole ranch with picturesque circles of yellow velvet. Fox-tail and needle-grass sometimes ruin the first two cuttings, but these were conspicuous by their absence, except in five acres of bottom land in the southwest corner of the ranch. And let me say here that sandy bottom produced more hay in September than all the thirty and one clean acres of weedless hillside.

The elevation of the rolling mesa insured its freedom from another drawback, the insidious alkali. Here, too, I was all to the good. Lastly there was the gopher who gnaws off the tap roots of the plants and does incalculable damage; and behold! save in the afore-mentioned bottom land, no gopher mounds were apparent in all the verdant prospect.

The water supply was copious, being sucked up by a forty-horse power engine from the underground seepage of the Santa Ana River. A glistening pile of ten-inch galvanized iron surface pipe, according to the statement of the commission-hungry real-estate agent, changed the task of irrigating from ditches into a gentle pastime for tender infants. It also made the obviously ungraded condition of the ground a matter of no account. Everything was ideal on that balmy day in spring.

THEN THE AWAKENING.

Looking back now, free from the hypnotic influences of the time, the place, the man, the discovery of the joker in the deck seems ridiculously simple. I had failed to properly investigate the nature of the soil. No weeds grew in that delusive forty-acres because not even a fox-tail could penetrate its adamantine crust. The gopher had too much respect for his claws and teeth to risk them on that armor-plated subsoil. In fact it was a solid hill (I had nearly spelled it with an "e") of hard-pan. By taking advantage of the two or three days in the year when that refractory gumbo was amenable to the plow the enterprising owner had managed to drill in a stand of alfalfa and generous irrigating at a fearful cost in distillate had kept the stand alive during the previous summer.

Oh, yes! alfalfa would grow there, but it never attained a height of more than six inches. The only way to harvest it was with a lawn mower. My ranch would have made a beautiful park for a millionaire's residence; but, as a means for producing the necessary millions wherewith to buy the park, it was about as useful as snowshoes will be to that glib-tongued agent when he has finished his lucrative pilgrimage through this world of babes and suckers.

At the beginning of my alfalfa experiences I rather resented the remark of a sturdy Dutch farmer who owned an adjoining farm in the sandy bottom lands. He had been watching me with a whimsical smile as I was stringing out the ten-inch pipe for my first essay at irrigating.

"A tough piece of land, that, neighbor," he said with a strange, slow smile.

"Oh, I don't know!" I replied airily. "It looks pretty good to me."

"Yes," he said still smiling. "But it takes a man with a strong back and a weak mind to stay with it."

Of course, I set him down as a knocker. But when the hard clay had been soaked till it resembled a quagmire, when I had twice lost my gum boots through the suction of that sticky mass, when I had tried vainly for ten minutes to wrench off an unwieldly length of the surface pipe, chock a block full and spouting water like a fire hose, I concluded that it required a stouter back and a weaker mind than mine to enjoy this exercise recommended by my real-estate friend (I was nearly leaving out the "r") as a "pastime for tender infants."

AND THE MORAL.

I am no longer an alfalfa grower. A composite reincarnation of Methuselah and Croesus might possibly pay for that property out of the proceeds of the crop; but I feel certain that Hercules, for his, would have taken the Augean stables.

Probably even Paradise has some poorer spots. Mother Nature has been especially kind to these sun-kissed regions of the West. But she has varied the perfection with a few pitfalls lest it become monotonous. As a warning to others against these one or two pitfalls I have chronicled my own sad experiences. So one word in conclusion:

Before buying an alfalfa ranch see what it looks like in the months of September and October. Spring is the season to get rid of non-paying properties. Beware of ungraded lands where you have to force the water uphill through cumbrous ten-inch pipes. Shun hard-pan as you would the devil. And if any of my readers should, like myself, be captivated on some balmy day in spring by a similar piece of fancy scenery, may the Lord give him a strong back to compensate for his mental deficiency!

To show how farmers of the United States are meeting the shortage of farm help a field agent of the Bureau of Crop Estimates in a recent report told of seeing a farmer driving a team of six horses hitched to a disc plow and leading three horses drawing a harrow. He was working nine horses and two modern farming implements, and doing the work of several men and teams under the old system of farming.

Production of corn, rice and potatoes in Japan during 1917 was in all cases less than in 1916. The 1917 rice crop was about 100,000,000 bushels below normal, a decline of more than one-fifth. Japan is now making efforts to increase her wheat acreage greatly; also to build ships for carrying Japanese and Australian wheat in the Pacific trade.

The Poultryman's Attitude Analyzed.

AS TO NATIONAL EGG DAY. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

THE fear that something worse is yet to come is the factor that is keeping many of us at a nervous tension, with the results that many people are going out of business rather than assume any further risks of future depression and possible failure. Particularly is this spirit more or less prevalent in the poultry industry, with the results that many are selling off their flocks, while others are reducing them to mere fragments in the hope that economic conditions will be restored to normal, when flocks can again be rehabilitated. To overcome this the government has sought to encourage a larger production of poultry on the farms and among suburban dwellers, the idea being that fowl could largely be maintained on what would otherwise go to waste. Some progress may have developed along these lines, but we seriously question if it has wielded any considerable influence on commercial egg production nor increased the volume of product to any appreciable extent. The high cost of production has outrun the prevailing price for eggs so that the margin of profit hovers too near the danger line to be alluring and encouraging to the producer. It is all very well to advise farmers, back-lotters and exclusive egg farmers to hang on in the hope of better conditions; but unless their efforts at least afford a living return, they must sooner or later tire of the game. To tell them that destruction of flocks is fatal has no terrors, because running at a loss leads alike to the same result. We may argue that poultrymen should recognize national food requirements; that in consequence every effort should be made to maintain production; that breeders should grow as much of their own food as possible; and that good breeding stock must be maintained if the industry is to be rehabilitated after the war is over. But how is this possible if cost of production hovers around the danger point, and often veers to that of definite loss?

It is an axiom of trade that all products advance in price to a point that is recognized in the trade as the "dead line;" that is, the price advances to a point when a particular commodity refuses to "move;" in other words, purchasing power is reduced to a deadline. With eggs this hovers about the 45 and 50-cent mark, which renders it all the more difficult for the egg farmer. Unless his product can be made to move freely at 50 to 60 cents per dozen, we can see no immediate relief for him. To bring about a better state of affairs one thing is essential, viz., he must increase the consumption of his product by a campaign of education demonstrating its nutritive values, which in turn will strengthen its commercial importance.

A Great Industry.

According to the report of the California Development Board, the annual value of an poultry products in this State aggregates approximately $35,000,000. How correct this is we have no means of knowing, but if only partially correct, it represents an annual production that certainly shows that the industrious hen should be reckoned with and afforded encouragement to increase her kind. The report further says that an average chicken ranch consists of about five acres, upon which are placed 500 to 3000 hens. There are, of course, quite a number of larger ranches in the State which maintain 5000 to 30,000 chickens. A person should have from $3000 to $5000 to equip a chicken ranch and get ready for a profitable business. In case of renting, however, about $1500 is needed to start the prospective poultryman. The average profit on each hen is placed at about $1 per year. The Petaluma district for the last three years shipped out over ten million dozen of eggs, a sum so stupendous as to stagger the imagination. From January 3, 1917, to March 21, 1918, San Francisco took 903,697 cases of thirty dozen eggs each. The average price during that time to the ultimate consumer is put at 48.63 cents. Figures of a like nature covering Los Angeles are not given.

Eggs Before the Candle.

As is well known, almost all eggs handled in commercial quantities are candled, which establishes a basis of quality by eliminating all questions of doubt; it protects the breeder who markets only fresh hen fruit, and "spots" the fellow who is careless in his poultry operations; it leads to improvement in the quality of commercial eggs; it conserves transportation and handling by eminiating the "off" and worthless specimens; and finally it conforms to law. Just what practical candling really shows is given in a circular of the Department of Agriculture, from which we take the following salient paragraphs:

The prying candler.

This is the inquisitive gent who decrees whether each hopefully submitted specimen of hen fruit is a "fresh-egg," a mere "egg" or a missile to be used at pro-German meetings.

A good, fresh egg should have a small air space. The yolk should not be very plain. There should be no black spots or rings. Sometimes the egg shell will have fine cracks in it. This is commonly known as a "check" egg, and should not be shipped with first quality eggs, as it rots very quickly.

Blood rings are partially incubated eggs and show a distinct ring of blood on the yolk. They are classed as unfit for food and should be rejected.

Moldy eggs generally have cracked shells, and show block spots before the candle. They are unfit for food.

Black spots look more or less black before the candle, and are unfit for food.

Mixed rots, white rots or addled eggs when turned before the candle show the yolk more or less mixed up with the white. They are unfit for food.

Stuck yolks are eggs with the yolks apparently stuck to the shell. When given a rapid twist, if the yolk dces not float free the eggs is unfit for food. If the yolk floats free and is not broken, it may be sold for food, but is of inferior quality.

Heated eggs are due to careless handling. They are caused by exposure to the sun or other heat which starts decomposition. They are usually found only in the summer time, and before the candle will show very dark, heavy yolks.

"National Egg Day.".

Calling attention to various products by designating certain days on which they may be generally advertised by demonstrations and otherwise, as in the case of "Orange Day" and "Raisin Day," serves an excellent purpose in directing public attention to such products; but unless followed up by persistent publicity, the efforts are ephemeral rather than lasting. For this reason we are not overly enthusiastic over the movement for a national egg day that is being fathered and promulgated by the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, unless that body proposes to follow it up with an advertising campaign showing the importance of eggs as a staple article of food. Obviously the intentions of our Petaluma friends are in the right place when they express sympathy with the purpose of the Food Administration in advocating the wider use of eggs; that eggs per ounce, per egg and cost possess a larger value than many other foods. To stimulate this campaign Petaluma, because of its prominence as a poultry center, will on Saturday, August 17, 1918, celebrate the birth of National Egg Day in a manner befitting its importance and educational value. Here's wishing success in their efforts.

But really, an egg day in Petaluma will be purely local in character, which can in no manner increase the consumption of eggs in San Francisco by so much as 1 per cent. above normal. Allowing that 5000 people (a large estimate) visit Petaluma on that day, what influence can it have on the consuming public of over a million living on the shores of San Francisco Bay? What the poultrymen of Petaluma require is a larger consumption of their products, and the only way to get it is to educate the public to a wider use of it. This has been done with many other lines of food articles—why not with eggs? Here is where the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce can do the industry real service. To increase the consumption of eggs one per capita of San Francisco's population would do Petaluma more direct good than a whole week devoted to hen-fruit celebrations.

Telling Ages of Fowls.

To the old hand at the game it is not difficult to arrive at a reasonably-accurate conclusion as to the age of fowl, and especially to distinguish pullets from hens; but to the novice the subject is not without its difficulties. In case of the former, says a recent number of Poultry, the surface under the wings will be found interspersed with minute rose-colored veins, which are totally absent in birds that are more than twelve months old. Again, there will be found, with pullets, a fair supply of long, silky hair, which disappears directly the first molt is concluded. In the hen, the skin will be found to be perfectly white and free from either veins or hairs; hence it is easy, at a single glance, to estimate correctly whether a bird is under or over the age that acts as a line of demarcation between juvenile and adult stock.

Additional evidence is the formation of the pelvic bones which, in a pullet, are much closer than in the hen that has passed the pullet age. At two years they are much wider than at one year, so that birds of this age can be readily distinguished from those of, say, fifteen and eighteen months. The third point of difference is observable in the shanks and claws. In the young bird the skin of the claw is supple and the scales are thin and brilliant. The skin gets coarser and stronger and the scales harder as the bird grows, and the nail of the first toe, which does most of the work, gets much worn. There is also a difference in the eyelids. They acquire wrinkles as the bird gets older, and there is also a slightly shrivelled look on the face. This, with age, becomes more and more pronounced.

Breeding Stock and the War.

It seems to be the concensus of opinion among poultry breeders in the East and the Allied nations of Europe that there will be a tremendous demand for breeding stock the moment peace is declared and industries in the belligerent nations again become active and normal. And it is further conceded that America will have to meet that demand. This presents an anomalous condition: Here we are, on account of the high cost of foods, constantly reducing the number of poultry on the hoof, with the prospect of a market at good prices in the future. The question is not as to the market when peace is declared, but how long will it be before that happens? What poultrymen need and must have is a profitable market right now.

To restock the poultry on the farms of Belgium and France would require millions of birds, which is, of course, out of the question. But foundation stock can be supplied, which would rapidly increase if no hens of each breed and variety were killed off for table purposes. To meet demands certain breeds and varieties were suggested by Mr. Edward Brown, in his talk at Txposition Park, viz., Fowls for eggs—Leghorns, Campines, Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes; Fowls for flesh—Orpingtons, Sussex,) Malines; Ducks—Peking (American type,) Indian Runners; Geese—Embden; Turkeys—Bronze.

Strange, isn't it, that a woman will cheerfully pay 25 cents for a bit of confectionery that she can eat in ten minutes, and then howl her head off paying the same price for six eggs—of sufficient food value for two good meals. At the same time a man will do the same thing for two cigars, and then raise Ned if the waiter charges him 25 cents for an egg breakfast.

Better begin selecting and grooming your promising youngsters for competition at the fall fairs and early winter shows. The time for action is approaching.

Farm News of the Bounteous Southwest

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS. IN PARAGRAPHS.

FRESNO.—Formal steps have been taken for the formation of an irrigation district on the west side of the San Joaquin River to comprise 426,127 acres, taking in portions of Merced, Stanislaus and Fresno counties. Former Congressman J. C. Needham is the attorney for the proponents of the district. The petitioners, if the signatures are found sufficient, will next present the matter to the State Engineer for approval. If this is forthcoming, an election will be called. The boundaries of the proposed district will make it the second largest in the State, only exceeded in acreage by the one formed last year in the Imperial Valley, with an acreage of half a million. The assessed valuation of the lands in the district proposed is $9,713,177. About one-half of the land is now under cultivation.

ORANGE—Orange county will this year produce 750,000 bags of lima and blackeye beans, as compared with 600,000 sacks last year, present prospects indicate. The acreage is increased and the per acre yield is expected to exceed last year. Unless a bad hot wave visits this section within the next few weeks, a banner crop will result. Prices are not being quoted and on account of possible Federal action the farmers are "up in the air" regarding possible returns from their beans.

REDLANDS.—Arthur Gregory, general manager of the Mutual Orange Distributors since the marketing agency was organized, has resigned, the resignation to take effect September 1. The Mutual Orange Distributors is second only to the California Fruit Exchange in the amount of fruit handled each year. C. P. Earley of Boston, Mass., has been made the general manager of the company, which has offices in this city. Mr. Earley was formerly in the fruit business in this State, but for some time has been the general eastern agent of the Mutual Orange districts. A. M. Pratt will continue as sales manager; W. Tillotson as assistant sales manager, and J. S. Stewart as traffic manager.

CHINO.—G. T. Dennis, a rancher living between Chino and Pomona, is heading a campaign to exterminate the June bug pest, which is threatening to do great damage to the trees in this section. They are attacking the leaves of the apricot, peach, plum, and even walnut trees, and are present in such numbers that Mr. Dennis says the situation is alarming. The bugs lie around the foot of the trees and on the ground during the daytime, but at night fly about among the trees, eating the leaves. Mr. Dennis has a manner of killing thousands of them, which he believes will be effective in the elimination of a great part of the pest if the rest of the ranchers take it up. He saturates some dirt in the bottom of a pan with "tops," a poor grade of oil of distillate, and suspends this pan over a tub of water. When the oil is lighted the bugs are attracted to the light at night, with the result that they are burned and drowned by the thousands. Where it is possible to allow chickens to run among the trees, it is said that the fowls will eat a great many of the pests.

SANTA ANA.—Between 900 and 1000 tons of chilis are expected to be handled this year in the cannery of the California Packing Company here, beginning the latter part of August. Seven hundred and fifty acres of pimentos have been contracted and these will begin to arrive before the chilis are out of the way, keeping the cannery busy probably until Christmas. The cannery may have a short run on refugee beans, beginning about August 10. Over $100,000 was disbursed in wages last year, and Supt. J. W. Shumate announces up to 350 women and girls will be employed this year with increased compensation, bringing the total season's wages to well above the $100,000 mark.

BRYN MAWR.—The farmers of this section who planted heavily to alfalfa this year are reaping their reward, for the weather has been almost ideal for hay crops and each cutting seems to be heavier and better than the one before. There is not much chance of the alfalfa price dropping as low as it does some years, in spite of the fact that the crop stored by here promises to be better than it has been for some time. There is a steady demand for the hay and some of the farmers have been able to sell their cuttings in advance at prices that insure them handsome returns from their labor, water and seed. Farmers are predicting that the price of hay will not be quite so high next year, but whether it is going to result in a drop of milk prices is another matter. So far the dairymen have made no signs of a let-down in price, although they announced that an increase was necessary because of the high price of feed. A. Gregory, owner of Marigold farm, one of the big farms near here, has the finest stand of alfalfa on his 650 acres ever grown here, it is believed.

TERRA BELLA.—The Terra Bella irrigation district is considering bids for the second allotment of district bonds, in the sum of $150,000, which sum is needed for construction purposes. Around $700,000 has been expended in building the first units of the system, which is destined, when finished, to irrigate 12,000 acres of citrus and olive lands. There has been a big demand for water this season and the district feels the need of expanding its water supply and distributing system. Considerable acreage under the system has been put into corn this year as a war measure. All of the water comes from underground sources and is distributed in steel pipes under pressure. The operating costs for the season are well under the engineer's estimate.

SANTA BARBARA.—The Santa Barbara Community Drying and Canning plant has been completed. The plant has been financed through the efforts of Franklin Pryce Knott, by Montecito's wealthy residents. It is planned to dry and can the vegetables and fruits raised in the war gardens of this city, started through the personal efforts of Mayor H. T. Nielson and Charles W. Kirk. Produce from over the county will be handled by the plant, which is to be conducted without any idea of making a profit. The plant will be capable of handling two tons of fruit and vegetables daily.

SUGGESTED WAGES FOR FARM LABOR.

An average wage scale, compiled on the basis of wages actually paid in various basis of wages actually paid in various parts of Los Angeles country, has been prepared with the idea that a more close adherence to the schedule will tend to prevent dissatisfaction and moving about among the laborers. The suggested scale, as published in the July issue of the Farm Bureau Monthly, is as follows:

Hay harvest workers, $3, without board.
Tractor drivers, $4 small, $5 large, $150 a month, 50 cents an hour.
Teamsters, $2.75, without board.
Plowmen, $2.75, without board.
Fruit pickers, by day, $2.75, without board.
Pruners, $3 and $4, without board.
Irrigators, 35 cents an hour, without board.
Potato harvesters, $3, without board.
General farm work, with board, $60 a month.

BORINGS IMPORTANT.

In examining a tract of land for alfalfa planting frequent borings should be made with a soil auger to determine the character of the soil and subsoil, as well as the drainage conditions. A common one and one-quarter inch auger with the shank lengthened and a suitable crossbar for a handle is practicable for this use.

PRECAUTIONS FOR PREVENTION OF SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

A WELL-FILLED mow or a big stack of hay, symbol ordinarily of happy prosperity, may contain within it the lurking spirit of a fire that will sweep a farmstead. Many destructive blazes, points out a Department of Agriculture bulletin on fire prevention, have been caused by a spontaneous ignition of hay, especially clover and alfalfa. The first cutting of the latter seems to be most dangerous. The combustion, however, cannot continue long without oxygen and may cease without coming to the surface. Its presence can be detected by a peculiar sooty odor or by smoke irritating to the eyes. It may take place from a few days to several weeks after the hay is put up.

The accompanying illustration brings the warning near home. Several tons of hay were destroyed recently by spontaneous combustion in a covered stack at the Thompson ranch, near Burbank. It is thought that the fire smouldered for several days before it was finally betrayed by smoke issuing from the top of the stack. Quick work with the fire hose after the burning portion had been uncovered, probably saved the shed and adjoining buildings as well as the rest of the stack.

It is generally conceded that the cause of spontaneous combustion fires is fermentation due to the presence of moisture. Grain has been known to catch fire during the sweating period, when great heat is generated. Hay which is put up too green or with dew or mould on it is susceptible to burning. Proper curing and care in stacking are recognized as being of prime importance, and it has been pointed out that an hour or two lost in the field while waiting for the hay to dry out in the morning may be more than compensated by the prevention of a disastrous fire.

Spontaneous Combustion.

On a San Fernando Valley ranch. The black portion of charred hay indicates how far the fire had spread in the interior of the stack before it was betrayed by smoke issuing from the top. Prompt action with the fire hose prevented a disastrous blaze, although several tons of hay was destroyed.

Owing to cold April winds and unseasonal dry spells, the 1918 grain crop of California, according to the Bureau of Crop Estimates, will be rather disappointing.

The Federal Farm Loan Board has refused loans to a number of nonresident applicants, giving as the reason that it did not wish to encourage nonresident farming.

SHEEP INDUSTRY GROWING, WITH MUTTON ANIMALS IN THE LEAD.

SHEEP raising primarily for mutton production and secondarily for wool is steadily advancing in this country. At the present time 45 per cent. of the sheep belong to those of the mutton blood, 35 per cent. to those of fine wool and 20 per cent. to the crossbreeds. Ten years ago the mutton sheep were 35 per cent. of all sheep, fine-wool sheep 41 per cent., and crossbreeds 24 per cent., and consequently during this period one-tenth of the national flock has changed from wool to mutton as the chief purpose. While mutton sheep have thus increased their percentage of all sheep by ten during as many years, fine-wool sheep have lost 6½ from this percentage and the crossbreeds 3½.

This information is supplied by a recent investigation by the United States Department of Agriculture and accords with the advice and propaganda of the department in recent years in favor of meat production. The tendency in this direction in the sheep industry is doubtless economic, and is not the result of a concerted purpose by sheep keepers to prefer mutton and lamb production to wool regardless of relative profit.

IN THE WESTERN STATES.

This revolution of recent years in the sheep industry, which is now presumably continuing, is largely characterized in the national average by the Western and Pacific States, in which more than one-half of the sheep are found mostly on ranges. The fine-wool sheep are 46 per cent. of all sheep in that group of States, a loss of 7 in the percentage in 10 years; the crossbreed sheep are 22 per cent., a loss of 2½; and these losses have gone to the mutton sheep, which are 32 per cent. of all sheep, a gain of nearly 10 in the same number of years.

The greatest advance in this movement has been made in the North Atlantic States, in which farmers' markets are near and the people have an active taste for mutton and lamb. In these States 62 per cent. of the sheep are of the mutton bloods, a gain of 20 in the percentage in 10 years; only 17 per cent. are fine-wool sheep, a loss of 17; and 21 per cent. are crossbreeds, a loss of 3.

The least change in percentages has occurred in the South Atlantic States, where the mutton sheep were formerly a high fraction and are now 68 per cent. of all sheep in that region, a gain of 2½ in 10 years; the crossbreeds are 24 per cent., or about the same as 10 years ago, while in all other groups of States they have relatively diminished, and the fine-wool sheep are only 7 per cent., a loss of nearly 3 during the period.

FINE-WOOL SHEEP.

At the present time the South Atlantic States have the lowest fraction of fine-wool sheep, 7 per cent., and the North Atlantic States are next with 17 per cent.; the highest fraction, 46 per cent., is in the Western and Pacific group, and next below are the South Central States, with 30 per cent.

Mutton sheep are as high as 68 per cent. of the sheep in the South Atlantic and West North Central States, and as low as 32 per cent. in the Western and Pacific States and 44 per cent. in the South Central.

Ohio is by far the leading sheep State outside of the Western and Pacific group and has 3,000,000 sheep, about one-half of which are now mutton bloods, while ten years ago the fraction was nearly two-fifths

CATTLEMEN HOLD AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

The recent meeting of representatives of the beef industry from every part of the State, held at Davis, following an extensive organizing trip by L. A. Nares, member of the Federal Live Stock Commission for California, resulted in the formation of what is expected to become one of the most powerful co-operative movements in the West, the California Cattlemen's Association. The cattle industry of the State is said to amount to more than $70,000,000 annually.

While the immediate object of the association is to establish closer co-operation between the producers and the Federal and State Food Administrator and thus to increase and maintain production, the permanent organization, representing all districts, is expected to wield a powerful influence for the good of its members. In order to place the association upon a sound footing it was decided to divide the State into five zones, each composed of counties possessing allied interests and conditions. The districts are as follows: (1) Southern California; (2) San Joaquin Valley; (3) Coast counties south of San Francisco; (4) Central California and Sacramenta Valley, including the adjacent mountain counties; (5) extreme northern counties.

The Committee on Organization for district one is composed of M. Arbuckle of Imperial and G. C. Waterhouse of Ventura, who will continue in office indefinitely.

In addition to entering into general discussions which developed into a veritable clearinghouse of useful ideas from all sections of the State, the cattlemen adopted resolutions which recommended, among other things:

That the organization undertake a census of beef cattle in the State; that a spread of $3.60 a hundred pounds should be recognized as a fair one between the price paid for the feeder and the price asked for the finished steer; that public slaughterhouses are not to be recommended in California at this time; that the "middleman" is a necessity to the cattle business, but the "commission man" should be eliminated; that action be taken toward securing the establishment of factories for the canning of beef in some central California point to take care in this State of live stock that now is being marketed outside of the State.

A resolution calling for the importation of 300,000 Chinese laborers into California to help out on the farms was voted down.

DUAL-PURPOSE CATTLE.

The dual-purpose cattle are popular with the small farmer who keeps but a few cattle and must depend on them to produce all the milk and butter needed for the family, and at the same time raise calves or steers which will sell readily for slaughtering purposes. They have not been popular with the ranchman or farmer who raises large numbers of cattle.

NOTABLE DUROC-JERSEY HOGS COME TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

AFTER having made an exhaustive search through the States of the corn belt with instructions to buy for the Elliot-Brant Rancho at Owensmouth, the best foundation Duroc-Jersey stock he could find, regardless of price, Prof. J. I. Thompson, for several years in charge of the swine division at the University Farm, Davis, and recognized as one of the leading authorities on swine breeding and judging, has closed a deal for two sows and a boar at a consideration running into the thousands.

Two of the recently acquired animals are young sows, which are pronounced by Prof. Thompson some of the finest specimens of the breed he has ever seen. They were painstakingly slected from the famous herd of Col. William H. Putnam of Tecumseh, Neb., which is said to have produced more than twenty State fair champions in the past four years. Their new owners confidently expect them to bring home the "blue" in the leading shows of the California circuit.

It is the boar, however, which is considered the real prize of the purchase. He was found at the head of the Iowa State Agricultural College herd at Ames, Iowa. He is a two-year-old, weighing 800 pounds, and is said to have the finest quality bone and breeding that could possibly be found in an animal. Prof. Pew, who has had charge of the Iowa State herd, is considered one of the leading breeders of the United States, and in his own words, the boar is pronounced "without hesitation, the best boar ever used on the college farm."

He is sired by a son of King of the Colonels and is from a sow of Golden Model breeding. On his sire's side he descends directly from the breeding of S. E. Morton of Ohio, who has probably produced as many high-class Durocs as any other breeder in the country. The Golden Model breeding on the dam's side has made the Waltmeyer herd of Melborne, Iowa, famous.

Hogs have been bred on the Elliot-Brant Rancho for the past eight years, and after exhaustive experiments with all breeds in an effort to select the one best suited to California conditions, involving at one time the maintenance of 1500 hogs on the ranch, the owners have finally selected the Duroc-Jerseys, which will be kept exclusively hereafter.

The management of the hogs is directed by D. O. Brant, while the services of Antonio Buletti have been secured as herdsman. This young man has been very successful with Durocs at Chino and is expected to produce excellent results with such fine material as is now being put into his hands.

The two young sows and the boar were insured for $1000 each and shipped to the Coast by express, in charge of a keeper who gave them every attention to insure a safe journey.

A "HOME-MADE" STOCK REMEDY.

One of the most interesting of the little home industries of Los Angeles (and one which is rapidly growing out of the "little" class) is the manufacturing of "earth salts," which are being successfully exploited throughout the country as a stock and poultry remedy.

This product, which is made by the Devonshire Salts Company, 218 South Broadway, is said to have been discovered by Maj. Devonshire, an English army officer, and used with success in treating army horses in South Africa. It is now being extensively used by hog breeders, poultry and rabbit fanciers, goat raisers and livestock men as a tonic and conditioner.

The formula, according to the manufacturers, is made up of the salts of the twelve basic elements—the so-called "minerals" which are the basis of all chemical combinations.

IMPORTANT MEETINGS PLANNED.

Several demonstrations of great interest are scheduled for the near future by the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. The San Dimas center will hold a special meeting on July 16, at 1:30 p.m., at the schoolhouse for the growers to meet Prof. H. S. Fawcett of the Citrus Experiment Station, recently returned to California. In company with Fr. J. T. Barrett and Farm Advisor Hodgson, the growers will proceed to several citrus orchards where the very latest methods of treating gum disease of lemon trees and scaly bark of orange trees will be shown by Prof. Fawcett. The Covina center has arranged with Prof. H. J. Quayle of the Citrus Experiment Station and Farm Advisor Coit for a special school for citrus fumigation to be held at the High School at Covina on July 20. The newest wrinkles in connection with the use of liquid gas will be covered in the morning and afternoon session, and practical demonstrations will be given in the groves in the evening.

"Spotted Poland Chinas" are being bred "pure" in certain sections of the corn belt as a distinct breed.

MYSTERIOUS BEAN TROUBLE DUE TO PERFECTLY NATURAL CAUSES.

BY ROBERT W. HODGSON,
Assistant Farm Adviser, Los Angeles County.

RECENTLY numerous complaints have been heard from the east-central part of the county of a mysterious trouble affecting a large part of the Lady Washington beans in that section. The writer and others have spent some time in looking over the situation and it is the writer's opinion that the trouble may be largely laid to early planting followed by unfavorable climatic conditions, together with a certain amount of thrip injury.

The bean is a heat-loving plant, particularly certain varieties, such as the Tepary, Blackeye and Lady Washington. It demands a warm soil for germination and only grows well during warm weather. Of course, it does not relish intense dry heat, such as occurred last season and which caused the burning of the lower leaves, but it does require good warm growing weather. Practically all of the experiments carried on in various parts of the State have demonstrated the advisability of planting Lady Washington beans late in the season, as late as July 1, frequently being satisfactory. This peculiar dwarfed, curled leaf condition is almost entirely confined to the early planted beans.

UNFAVORABLE START.

We have had no real growing weather until quite recently. It is well known and recognized by plant physiologists that just as the colt or pig may be stunted by lack of sufficient feed, so plants may be stunted or held back by adverse conditions, among which are unfavorable growing weather. After the early plantings came up, the weather was relatively cool and there have been frequent fogs in the section where this trouble is most prevalent until quite recenly, which furnished conditions conducive to the stunting of the beans.

Not all of the plants are affected, however, which may be attributed to variation in seed vitality. A weak seed will grow a weak plant and such a plant will be easiest affected by any adverse conditions. Weak plants, together with cool weather, frequently makes injury from the soil fungus Rhizoctonia serious. Some such injury could be found a short time ago, but the recent hot weather has apparently caused the plants to grow out of it. Chewing of the leaves by the flea beetle and diabrotica is fairly prevalent.

THRIPS ON JOB.

There is a certain amount of thrip injury shown also in the disfigured and spotted leaves. When the plants were in the seed-leaf stage the thrips were present in some numbers and the small leaf surface presented caused them to concentrate on the young leaves which were then just being produced. These leaves were chewed and have since grown out distorted and spotted, whereas the rapid increase of leaf area, together with climatic conditions, have caused the thrips to be less injurious and the plants have largely grown away from danger from thrip injury.

The resemblance of the curled and spotted condition of the leaves to Curly Dwarf and Curl Leaf in potatoes has led some persons to believe that we are dealing with an analagous condition to Mosaic in beans and there is, of course, a possibility that this may be the case. If this be true, the remedy will probably lie in selection of seed only from nonaffected plants.

As the writer sees it, there is nothing to do but to keep the plants in as thrifty a condition as possible. Many of these stunted plants are beginning to bloom and may grow out of this condition and bear a fair crop. Some undoubtedly will not set a satisfactory crop, but there is no remedy which would enable them to do so. If weather conditions remain favorable there is a strong possibility that the plants may yet set some beans.

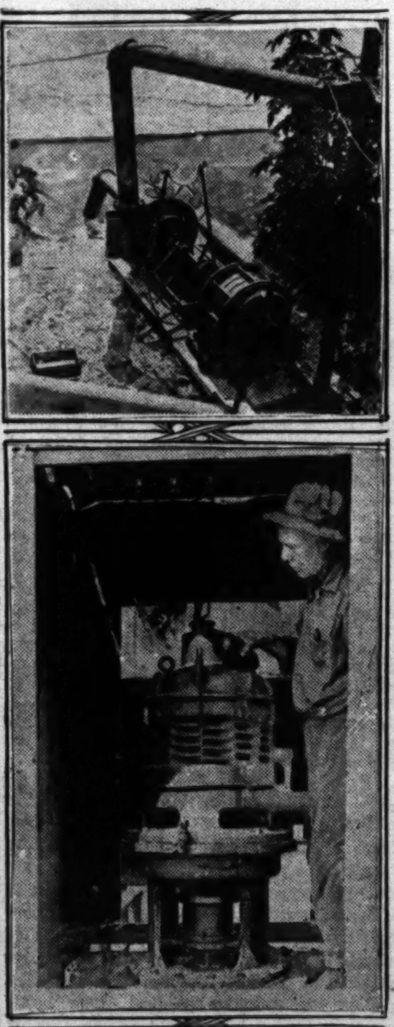
REAL ESTATE MEN TURN TO FARMING.

The present high prices for agricultural products have served as an inducement to bring many idle tracts of land in the Southland under cultivation. A recent issue of the Farm and Tractor Section contained an article describing the farming operations near Beverly Hills of the Rodeo Land and Water Company. Another big realty corporation which is ranching on a big scale is the Laguna Land and Water Company.

Over 800 acres, according to J. W. Crump of that firm, is now under the direct supervision of the company's ranch manager, Leroy W. Gast, while it is planned soon, he says, to take over the land which has been leased out for agricultural purposes, making a total of about 200 acres which the firm will cultivate by next year.

The Laguna company has about 100 acres in castor beans and 100 acres in limas and blackeyes. Various irrigated crops are raised, including potatoes, beets and corn, but the principal products are grain and alfalfa hay. About 2300 tons of hay will comprise this year's crop, an official of the company has stated. Of this tonnage, over two-thirds, he said, will consist of alfalfa. The plan is to seed a large acreage to new alfalfa this fall, following the improvement and extension of the irrigating system.

The ranch is watered entirely from wells, which vary in depth from 390 to 906 feet. A stream of 125 inches is pumped from one well, 750 feet deep, by means of a thirty-horse power electric motor. There are seven good-sized reservoirs on the place, which are used to give a double head for irrigating. The water is used direct from the pump and from the reservoir in the daytime, and at night the pump is used to fill the tank. A portable motor and suction pump is used in some cases to draw water from the reservoir in order to secure a greater head.



Modern pump equipment

In use on Laguna Ranch. Above is a portable pump and motor used to pump from the reservoirs; below, a 25 horse power motor connected directly with Swaby type centrifugal pump.

A remarkable stand of hairy Peruvian alfalfa has been secured on very sandy soil in one section of the ranch. Neighbors and observers are reported to have ridiculed the idea of sowing alfalfa on this strip of land, which adjoins the Los Angeles river bed, but three cuttings have been secured this season, Mr. Gast states, without any irrigation.

The farm work is done with one Sandusky tractor and twenty-four horses. It is planned to increase the farm power in the near future in order to care for the larger acreage which will be taken over.

POTASH RESOURCES OF UNITED STATES.

The question of whether America can expect to produce her own potash has long bothered agricultural experts. New light is thrown on the subject in a recent bulletin of the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The bulletin gives a careful analysis of the probable potash supply to be had from the cement industry when apparatus for its recovery has been universally installed.

On the basis of an average production of 90,000,000 barrels of cement, the total potash escaping at present amounts to about 87,000 tons annually, it is said. It has been demonstrated commercially that 90 per cent. of this potash is recoverable and experiments show that 95 per cent. of this amount is in available form, or may readily be made available. On this basis there would be a production of approximately 75,000 tons of available potash each year.

Since only about 50 per cent. of the potash in the raw material is ordinarily volatilized in the process of making cement, as handled at present, there is a prospect of still further quantities to be made available from this source.

The present high prices of potash are encouraging installation of collecting apparatus by cement plants and when once installed the cost of potash recovery is small, it is declared.

"DON'T FORGET SILO."

"Don't forget your silo," is the advice to the beef-cattle farmer by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. In every case, the specialists say, a sufficient acreage to provide crops to fill the silo should be provided by beef-cattle farmers. This will assure that the silo investment will yield its proper annual return and prevent losses coming from giving the cattle more expensive feeds. The comparative cheapness with which cattle can be fitted for market with silage insures that well-filled silos will be a paying investment. It is good farm practice, the specialists say, to put more acreage to silage crops than it is estimated under ordinary conditions will be necessary. This provides for unanticipated shortage.

NEW ASPARAGUS STRAIN.

A new strain of asparagus that is larger, more uniform and more productive than the old varieties and in addition is highly disease resistant has been developed through ten years of work by a plant breeder in the Bureau of Plant Industry, who introduced, tested and hybridized asparagus from all parts of the world. Introduction of the new strain is expected eventually to stamp out the "rust," a destructive disease that swept over the country a few years ago. Commercial quantities of the new type recently sold in Washington, D. C., for more than double the price of other asparagus.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Scenes of Prosperity

are common in Western Canada. The thousands of U. S. farmers who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops of wheat and other grains.

Where you can buy good farm land at $15. to $30. per acre—get $2. a bushel for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre you are bound to make money—that's what you can do in Western Canada.

In the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta you can get a Homestead of 160 Acres Free and other land at very low prices.

During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming is as profitable an industry as grain raising. Good schools, churches, markets convenient, climate excellent. "PILLARS OF SALT" SUPPORT WORLD'S LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY.

IF SALT were completely eliminated from the human and animal diet, we are told by scientists, disastrous consequences would inevitably result. Although some of the ancient peoples are said to have existed without it through eating partially cooked fish and other foods in which the natural salts had not been reduced, salt has, since time immemorial, been one of the staples of the world. It has even been used for money, and some of the oldest trade routes in the world were built for the transportation of salt.

In so far as human dietetics is concerned, salt in comparatively large quantities is absolutely essential with a strictly vegetable diet, and is almost as necessary in the ordinary diet, consisting partly of meats. Likewise all herbivorous animals (those living upon vegetable food,) must have considerable quantities of salt. Hogs, when fed tankage or other meats or meat products, are said to require less salt than when fed grain and forage. Cattle, sheep, goats and horses and all their kin, both domestic and wild, require salt.

"SALTING" THE STOCK.

Animals in the wild state usually find natural "licks" where deposits of salt exist. Domestic animals are, as a rule, dependent upon men for their ration, and neglect in "salting" is a serious matter, resulting in digestive disturbance, malnutrition and disease. Salt is cheap—so cheap that neglect in supplying the needs of domestic animals can be ascribed to nothing less than thoughtlessness or carelessness. Although there has been much discussion as to whether salt should be kept constantly before all classes of animals or supplied them at regular intervals, it is now generally agreed that the best practice, when feasible, is to keep a supply on hand to which the animals have ready access at all times.

Where sheep and cattle are running on the open range, it is not always possible to keep salt constantly before the animals, and the usual practice is to put it out about once a week in small quantities, either in portable troughs, on rocks and stumps or even directly on the ground. There is little doubt that neglect in salting, due to the difficulty of transporting and distributing the commodity, has in the past caused losses of no little consequence on the ranges. Experiments conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Forestry Service, indicate that considerable expense is justified in order to keep an adequate supply of this essential on the range at all times. Hundreds of bags of coarse stock salt are taken into the mountains in the various range States every year on the backs of pack animals. The principal expense of salting, in such cases, is in transportation and distribution. In some of the big outfits it amounts to a considerable sum in a year, but is considered a necessary expense.

IN THE DAIRY.

But the relation of salt to agriculture is far more important than is indicated merely by its use on the ranges. Among the farmers, the dairymen, who recognize the necessity of using plenty of salt to insure maximum milk-production, are perhaps the heaviest buyers. There seems to be a great difference of opinion among the dairy fraternity as to whether milch cows should at all times have free access to salt or receive it at stated intervals. The practice of keeping it in boxes in the feed-lots and pastures is favored in some sections, while in others the farmers prefer to give it in the feed troughs in the milking barn, either sprinkling it over the grain or distributing it after feeding. A form of prepared salt-brick, designed for use at the stanchion, and licked by the animal, has been exploited with considerable success.

These compressed bricks are also sold for use in stables. Anyone who has kept salt from a horse for some time and then placed it before the animal, is well aware of the eagerness with which the dumb beasts await their allowance. One argument for keeping it constantly before the animals is the fact that they take but little at a time and seem to return to it frequently. If the salt is withheld, some authorities argue, the animal takes too much when it is placed before him.

REDUCING SALT COST.

Quantity buying of salt has been practiced with great success by many associations and organizations of farmers and stockmen. The saving in price and freight is considerable, the latter item being of course the determining one in figuring the salt bill in any livestock business. Freight and transportation, except at points close to the factories, usually amount to more than the cost of the salt itself. Some of the State wool growers' associations have made a business of buying in carload lots for their members, who recognize the importance of salt in their business. The sheep is perhaps the most susceptible of our domestic animals to an insufficiency of salt, showing the results almost immediately.

Many farmers make an effective saving on their salt bills by taking several barrels at a time in co-operation with neighbors. Buying by the barrel is, in fact, feasible on almost any farm and has the advantage over handling in bags of providing a better and smaller storage place and a means of keeping the salt in good shape until used.

Salt as a medium for giving tonics and remedies to stock has become the basis of an enormous industry in the United States. There are hundreds of farmers who use regularly and with good results the standard prepared "stock salts," containing ingredients generally recognized as beneficial to stock. It is but natural that any farm animal should assimilate to best advantage such remedies when given with the salt, which the animal is sure to take regularly.

OTHER USES.

The relation of salt to agriculture does not end with its use by man and animals, however. What farmer is there who has not used it to preserve hides and pelts, to make brine for pickling and to preserve meats?

In some sections of the country it is customary to use salt in stacking hay, putting a sprinkling over every layer. This is thought to preserve the hay as well as to make it more palatable and beneficial to the stock. This practice is quite common in parts of the corn belt.

Superstition has credited salt with a good many virtues it does not possess. For instance, it is a practice among some of the Russian peasants to blow salt up the nostrils of ailing horses as a sort of cure-all, of unexplained properties. Physicians and veterinarians agree, however, that salt water is an excellent counter-irritant and cleanser. In fact, it is generally recognized common salt or sodium chloride actually does possess strong medicinal properties.

Considering the vital place held by salt in the scheme of the universe, it is little wonder that the phrase, "the salt of the earth" has come to mean "God's chosen people."

HOLSTEIN MEETING WELL ATTENDED.

There was a large attendance at the thirty-third annual convention of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, held at Milwaukee, June 5, nearly five hundred Holstein men being on hand when President D. D. Aitken of Flint, Mich., tapped his gavel.

Among the amendments adopted by the convention was one of interest to all owners of high-producing cows, worded as follows: "Any registered Holstein-Friesian cow may be entered in semi-official long-time test, whose average daily fat production during her first monthly official test period may exceed by 10 per cent. the daily average requirement for like age in the seven-day test; and provided she meet the long-time requirements and the test be approved by the superintendent, the cow may be admitted to advanced registration as A. R. S. O. and the record entered in the Advanced Register." It was also voted to authorize the entry of cows in the Advanced Register on semi-official records with due credit to the sire for each daughter so entered.

The officers were re-elected as follows: President, Hon. D. D. Aitken, Flint, Mich.; vice-president, G. Watson French, Davenport, Iowa; secretary, Frederick L. Houghton, Brattleboro, Vt.; treasurer, Wing R. Smith, Syracuse, N. Y.; superintendent of advanced registry, Malcolm H. Gardner, Delavan, Wis.

FARMERS WANT PURE-BREDS.

More and more new buyers are bidding at the pure-bred sales. The average farmers of the State are beginning to recognize the practical value of pure-bred stock.

GIVING THE CALF THE RIGHT START.

A vivid picture in the memories of most men who have been "raised on a farm" is that of a boy astride the neck of a struggling calf, with boy, calf and the surrounding scenery plentifully bespattered with milk from the pail held under the animal's nose. Patience is, indeed, the most necessary quality in teaching the calf to drink.

Weaning the calf almost at birth, however, is now regarded as a necessary part of dairy practice; in fact, it is to be deplored, from the standpoint of efficiency and food production, that calves raised on general farms are sometimes allowed to have part of the milk of the family cow and are not weaned for several months. The effect on the cow of nursing the calf after milking, morning and evening, is to keep her excited and to decrease her milk flow, while the calf is less likely to make early use of pasture and grain and to have its growth retarded. After the calf has once learned to drink, feeding involves very little trouble.

The practice on many well-regulated farms is to allow the calf to suckle the cow during the first two days and then to wean it entirely, teaching it to drink whole milk drawn from its dam, which is fed for severals days more. The whole milk may then be diluted gradually, until, after about ten days or two weeks, skim milk alone is being fed. The addition of calf-meal, bran or ground grain to the skim milk is considered well worth while on many farms, especially those where pure-bred dairy calves are raised. The present general use of the cream separator has aided, by furnishing warm, fresh, skim milk with a minimum of inconvenience, in improving the methods of raising calves.

Teaching the calf to drink.

Sometimes develops into a wrestling match at first, but is well worth the struggle if the youngster is kept growing.

Duroc Jersey Swine Announcement

ELLIOTT-BRANT RANCHO, Owensmouth, Cal., takes pleasure in announcing that Prof. J. I. Thompson of the Universities of California and Kansas, has, after a complete search of the Middle West, been able to purchase for us what he considers the best Duroc Jersey hogs in the country. Our instructions to Prof. Thompson were to BUY THE BEST, regardless of price.

The sows he selected come from the famous herd of Col. W. H. Putman, Tecumseh, Neb., the home of the wonderful "King's Colonel." Prof. Thompson pronounced these sows to be the best he had ever seen. Over 20 State Champions have been produced in this herd in the past four years.

The great herd boar of the Iowa State Agricultural College was his selection of a boar. This great 800-lb. two-year-old boar is of King of the Colonels and Golden Model blood lines and is said to be the greatest breeding boar in the Middle West.

We have been breeders of hogs for the past eight years. All other breeds have been excluded and the Duroc selected as best meeting California conditions. Our future herd will be founded on the above mentioned animals.

FEARSOME INSTRUCTION BOOK IS ROBBED OF ITS TERRORS.

BY HARRY BOWLING.

MODERN manufacturers of tractors and automobiles, like modern physicians, are getting away from the idea that the average layman is assisted and impressed most by means of big words and a maze of technicalities. Nearly everyone is familiar with the automobile "handbook," which, among other incomprehensible suggestions, informs the mystified purchaser what to do in case of "pre-ignition" and explains in detail the timing of the motor. The tractor manufacturers at first sent out "instruction books" built on the same lines and almost as vague, with the result that the farmer-purchaser, after painfully digesting several pages of the book, in an effort to unearth some suggestions concerning his first motor trouble, threw it aside and either tackled the job himself or called in a gas-engine expert. The result was that much really valuable information, together with the oiling chart and possibly a list of repair parts, was lost.

Although nearly every farmer nowadays is more or less familiar with the principles, operation and care of gasoline engines, the need of clear, concise instruction books is even greater than formerly because the tractor owners are doing more of their own maintenance and repair work. Recognizing this want, several of the tractor companies have laid aside precedent entirely, and, working with the farmer's point of view in mind, have developed charts and directions which are really helpful and useful. Having done their part to simplify the care of the machine, they urge the purchaser to tack up the oiling chart in some convenient location and to make use of it when he lubricates the various parts of the machine, as well as to keep and use the book.

DOWN TO CASES.

One handbook, recently put out by one of the largest manufacturers of farm tractors, is arranged after a novel plan. The covers are of stiff board. The book is divided into departments, clearly indexed, covering different parts of the machine, so that the operator may locate different kinds of trouble in the shortest possible time. Each department is illustrated by a simple diagram, which is so attached that when the book is opened at that section the diagram unfolds and extends above the printed matter. Thus the reader can refer to numbers and letters between diagram and text without turning any pages. Anyone who has read a lengthy discussion in which every other sentence suggested that the reader "See A, figure 2" or "See points 1, 2 and 3 on the diagram," and has turned a number of pages to find each reference, will appreciate the value of such an arrangement.

In this book all technical terms are explained and everything is boiled down to the least possible number of words. No attempt is made to cover the history of gas engine construction nor the detailed makeup of the tractor described. An honest attempt is made, however, to acquaint the buyer with the principles of the machine and the essential things about its care. The more complicated troubles and processes are left to the expert whom the owner is expected to call, should any serious trouble develop.

Although seemingly a matter of minor importance, the recognition of the evils of the instruction book in its old form was the first step in the general movement to boost the tractor industry by making the farmer better able to care for and operate his machine, and consequently to enable him to get better results. Accompanied by a short course of instruction from the dealer, followed up with an occasional visit of inspection by the company's own expert, the new kind of reference book certainly appears to be a step in the right direction.

SWEEPING CLEAN THE CORN FIELDS.

Recognizing the fact that the destruction of weeds is, in many cases, a more essential part of cultivation than stirring up the soil, implement dealers have been for years attempting to perfect the various types of shovel and knife cultivators to the end that the weeds might be more thoroughly eradicated.

Only recently a ridiculously-simple, yet seemingly very effective, device has been brought out by one of the largest implement manufacturers of the country., as additional equipment for their corn cultivators. The principle of this attachment is remarkable, even amusing. Two small brooms or brushes are placed at a certain angle just far enough ahead of the front shovels to escape being covered with the dirt thrown up by the machine. It is the function of these brooms to hold the weeds down against the ground while the shovel buries them in dirt. It is said that this innovation makes it possible readily to eradicate morning glory vines and other weeds which are not ordinarily destroyed in cultivating. The attachment makes it possible, the manufacturers assert, to kill the weeds without cultivating deeply enough to injure the roots of the crops.

As an added weapon against the morning glories small, sharp knives are attached, which extend down through the bristles of the broom and tear the vines loose from their "moorings," at the same time stirring up the soil in the center of the space between the rows.

NEW CORN MACHINE.

One of the most interesting of the new farm machinery inventions is called the "ensilage harvester." This machine cuts and chops the corn in the field, blowing it into a wagon driven alongside. The wagon is then taken to the silo, where the front wheels are raised off the ground by means of a rough derrick, which gives the wagon a slope for dumping the load. The equipment at the silo is merely an elevator or blower, run by a small engine or electric motor. It is claimed for this new machine that it will save from $20 to $30 a day in labor cost by making it possible for women, boys or old men, if need be, to drive the wagons from the field to the silo. One man operates the machine in the field and one man the engine and blower, while a third man works in the silo. This cuts the crew down to three men, except for the drivers, who have no heavy work.

INDUSTRY AND PROSPERITY AS REFLECTED IN RUNNING WATER.

CONFRONTED with the necessity of choosing between electric lights and running water with modern plumbing for her house, the average farm wife would probably almost immediately vote for the water system. Nothing, she finds, can add so much to the pleasure of country life and take away so much of the drudgery as running water. And the farmer himself, when he considered the fire protection and convenience in watering stock and cleaning the barns, as well as the improvement in the household, would probably agree with his wife's decision.

California is unquestionably less susceptible to criticism for improper rural sanitation than any other State. The fact that nearly all the farmers depend upon either pumps or pressure systems for their irrigating and domestic water has tended greatly to increase the installation of plumbing and pipe lines, followed by sewage disposal apparatus. When water must be raised from the ground, anyway, it is a simple matter to force it a little higher into a tank which supplies gravity pressure. For shallow wells, however, there are air-pressure systems, which have met with great favor because of the fact that they deliver to the faucets the fresh water direct from the well.

FIRE EQUIPMENT IMPORTANT.

One local ranch owner, who recently installed a water system and had his house completely equipped with plumbing fixtures, points out for the benefit of others one of his mistakes. "Had I given more consideration to the importance of fire protection," he said, "I might easily have been persuaded to spend a little more money and make sure of higher pressure. As it is, although my system supplies the house and barn very nicely, I have not enough pressure to throw a large stream over the buildings. For a little more money I might have placed my tank higher and increased its capacity, thus securing adequate protection and reducing my insurance premuim.

Agricultural engineers unite in urging the farmer who intends to install water equipment of any kind either to make a thorough study of the subject or to enlist the services of some expert who is familiar with technical details. The right equipment in the right place, they say, is of prime importance in deriving satisfaction from the money invested. It is very easy, they point out, to miscalculate requirements and to make the mistake of installing more expensive equipment than is necessary or to fall a little short of the expenditure required to make the difference between dissatisfaction and gratification.

Attractive steel tank

Which supplies the pressure for stock and household water on a Southern California ranch. It is filled by means of a pump, operated with a gasoline engine.

Concrete is taking a place of ever-increasing importance in the construction of water systems as well as in the making of septic tanks and other sewage disposal systems. One of the most satisfactory gravity systems, although rather high in first cost, includes a concrete underground storage tank, which keeps the water cold, and which, if placed at some high location, will insure sufficient pressure. Such a system is, of course, out of the question except on rolling or hilly farms, but has an added value in its permanency.

HOT WATER ASSURED.

A bathroom may be equipped at a comparatively small expense and many country homes have a more constant hot water supply for domestic use than the average city house, because of the fact that the water tank may be connected with the coal or wood-burning kitchen range, in which a fire is kept almost constantly on most ranches. That California institution, the solar heater, is also found on many farms. This equipment, installed on the roof of the house, insures a constant supply of hot water in sunshiny weather.

Another advantage cited for running water is the better accommodations which may be provided for the ranch help. Men who have access to baths and the conveniences of modern plumbing equipment are apt to be better satisfied and more self-respecting than those who are not so favored.

On farms where the wind is depended upon to supply power for pumping the domestic water, it is frequently advisable and economical to construct a windmill tower of sufficient height and strength to support the storage tank also, thus obviating the necessity of building separate towers for the tank [illegible]. Steel and wooden storage tanks upon either wooden or steel towers are in wide use in connection with windmill installations, and are deemed perfectly safe if the tower is set upon solid foundations and well anchored.

Better farming and better living are conceded to go together, and the farm home which possesses, in addition to household plumbing, an attractive lawn and well cared for shrubs, flowers and shade trees, all made possible by running water and the garden hose, is likely to be surrounded or backed up by a prosperous, productive expanse of cultivated acres and to produce fruit, field crops or live stock of superior excellence. For the farm, as everyone will agree, is but a reflection of its owner or tenant.

FIELD TO ROAD IN A JIFFY.

One of the most interesting of recently-announced innovations in the tractor world is a combination road and field machine, manufactured in Buffalo, N. Y.

This tractor, it is explained, is equipped with two sets of wheels. When working in the field 48x12-inch drive wheels, fitted with detachable lugs and cleats, are used in the rear, with 34x4 wheels, equipped with traction bands, in front.

These wheels, the manufacturers assert, may readily be removed from the spindles and replaced with artillery wood wheels equipped with solid rubber tires. By means of a sprocket-and-chain device the final drive is changed, it is said, without altering the transmission, so that a reputed speed of ten miles per hour is obtained on the road. The machine, it is claimed, is capable of pulling up to five tons in trailers.

When his horse is taken sick the farmer calls a veterinary, but when the tractor goes wrong he usually knows how to "doctor" it himself, unless the trouble is serious. The auto and tractor are rapidly making mechanics of most Americans.

Hay in the Stack may be Measured with Accuracy.

How it is Done.

AS A RESULT of investigations extending over several years, the United States Department of Agriculture has worked out formulas for measuring hay in ricks and stacks which, it is believed, farmers may apply easily and with accurate results. The formulas, which are published in Circular No. 67, Office of the Secretary, are accompanied by a table for estimating the weight of hay from the cubic contents.

FORMULA FOR RICKS.

It is a simpler matter to estimate the cubic contents of ricks of the ordinary shape than that of round stacks, since the former have approximately rectangular bases and straight ends. Instead of having to measure the height, always a more or less difficult matter, the farmer, when measuring a rick by the department's formula, needs only ascertain the "over," the width, and the length, also noting the general shape against the sky line from the end.

The "over" is found by merely throwing a tape over the rick from side to side and measuring from the ground at the edge of the rick at one side to the ground at the opposite edge. The cubic contents of the rick is the product of the over, the length, the width, and a decimal fraction which depends on the shape of the rick when viewed from the end. This fraction always lies between .25 for low shapes that approach a triangle and .37 for shapes having high, full sides and blunt points. To make the rick formula easily remembered, the specialists who have worked it out call it the "FOWL" formula, F standing for the fraction, O for the over, W for the width, and L for the length. In making his estimates, the farmer should compare the end outline of his rick with the figures showing shape given on the opposite page, using the fraction accompanying the figure most nearly approaching the shape of the end of his rick.

The following is an example of the use of this formula: A hay rick is ten feet wide, twenty feet long, and the over is thirty feet. Its end shape is seen by examination to be that of type No. 6, figure 1. How many cubic feet of hay are in the rick?

The fraction for type No. 6 is seen to be .34. From the formula it is known that the volume in cubic feet equals FOWL, or Fraction times Over times Width times Length. Therefore, the volume equals .34, multiplied by 30, multiplied by 10, multiplied by 20. This equals 2040 cubic feet.

Noting the circumference of a round stack. Although ricks of this shape are the most difficult to measure, the operation is simplified if the stack is built around a pole of known height. The vertical height may, however, be computed by means of tape measurements. In addition to recording the vertical height and the circumfefrence at the ground, it is necessary to measure the circumference and the height of the "shoulder."

MEASURING ROUND STACKS.

The first step in estimating the volume of a round stack is to find the vertical height of the pile. This usually cannot be done directly unless the stack is built around a pole which has been measured. The measurement, however, may be accomplished in the following way: Mark two points, A and B, on the ground on opposite sides of the stack at as nearly equal distances from its center as possible. Throw a cord over the stack at its topmost point, T, stretching it gently from the point A to the point B, and mark it to show the length from A to B. Remove the cord and place it on the ground in the position A-1, T-1, B-1, the points A-1 and B-1 being exactly the same distance apart as A and B. At T-1 the cord should be made to assume the shape of that portion of the top of the stack with which the cord was in contact when it was stretched over the top of the stack. The distance C-1 T-1 will then be the height of the stack. The height of a rick can, of course, be obtained in the same way.

The fundamental formula for determining the number of cubic feet in a round stack are necessarily somewhat complex. However, since a publication of the circular itself, its authors have developed from the formula a simple working rule that suffices for all practical purposes. This rule, hitherto unpublished, is as follows:

Multiply the circumference of the stack at the ground by height of the shoulder or "bulge." Multiply the circumference at the shoulder by half the height above the shoulder. Add these two products together and multiply the sum by one-twelfth of the circumference at the shoulder. The result will be the number of cubic feet in the stack.

The following table indicates the number of cubic feet of hay per ton as ascertained from numerous experiments.

Cubic feet of hay in a ton. (Averages from ninety-two stacks measured and weighed.)

Age of stacks in days.	Number of stacks measured and weighed.	Average cubic feet per ton.
Under 30	55	589.6
30 to 60	30	581.5
74 to 155	7	524.9

It will be noted that shrinkage makes a very marked difference in the number of cubic feet required to make a ton.

Taking the "over" measurement. The tape is thrown over an average part of the stack by means of a stone or weight tied to the end. The assistant stands on the other side and holds the weighted end at the bottom of the stack, while the "thrower" reads the tape. In case of great variation in the shape of the stack, several "over" measurements are taken and the average computed Ancient Egyptian Device Saves American Wheat.

This wheel, recently installed on the Corona ranch, near Calexico, handles thirty cubic feet of water per second, raising it three and one-half feet. The power is supplied by a twenty horsepower gas engine.

A New Water Lift.

USEFUL ideas, partially developed, and long dormant, are sometimes brought to fruition in an emergency. It remained for a young Los Angeles engineer, suddenly confronted with the problem of saving 3000 acres of wheat which was thirsting for water, to develop a new and successful type of water-raising wheel, technically known as a "flash wheel," and by installing several of his machines, to make use of an abandoned canal, raise a large head of water eighteen feet in as many miles and bring under water a total area of 30,000 acres.

Long convinced that he could work out a practical application of the age-old idea of raising water by means of a wheel, but without plans or specifications, the young engineer, realizing that to wait for the shipment and installation of pumps would be disastrous to the growing crops, immediately began the construction of his wheels from old oil-pump parts. A series of four of his water-lift wheels, installed over a year ago, is now regularly employed in the Tulare Lake region to move irrigating water along a canal which has not sufficient fall to carry the water from the lake to the farms. Constructed in a space of a few weeks, and operated at first by tractors and engines taken from harvesters, this "emergency fleet" of wheels saved the situation, as well as opening up a new field for Arthur L. Collins, the inventor.

The Collins water-lift wheel is now protected by pending patents, and six wheels ranging in diameter from fourteen to nineteen feet are in operation. One of the latest installations was made on the Corona ranch, near Calexico, over the border, where thirty cubic feet per second of water is raised by means of a twenty-horse power gas engine. Thus an idea of the ancient Egyptians, who are said to have employed a crude wheel to lift irrigation water, has been borrowed and put to work in America's great "Valley of the Nile."

FLEXIBLE CHAIN DRIVE.

By using chain drive and a solid-rim wheel the inventor claims to have overcome the objections which have formerly attended attempts to apply the principle on a practical basis. Because of the necessity of reducing the speed of the wheel to six or seven r.p.m. a 150 to 1 gearing must be used with high speed engines and motors. This means that it is almost impossible, Mr. Collins says, to provide steel gears which will withstand the constant hammering of the vanes against the water. The flexible chain, he points out, takes up the shock of this contact and adds to the life of the machine, while the solid construction not only cheapens the cost of building, but adds strength to the wheel. Official tests of a somewhat similar wheel by engineering experts where gears were used was reported as very successful, but only a few minutes was devoted to each of the trials. In practical application, Mr. Collins says, the gears last but a few days, or possibly a few weeks, while the chain drive, he claims, will run indefinitely and show little wear.

It is claimed by Mr. Collins that the wheel at half the cost of a centrifugal pump to do the same work is 50 per cent. more efficient, and that it is the cheapest and most satisfactory device for handling fairly-large volumes of water on low lifts. It is adapted, he says, to a fluctuation in head of not more than two or three feet on the intake side, and is able to raise the water to an average elevation of about five feet, about twenty horse power being required for a sixteen-foot wheel. The water is "shot under" the wheel, the vanes being arranged at such an angle as to carry the maximum amount of water with the minimum of resistance, and the sides of the framework being constructed so close to the vanes that little leakage is possible.

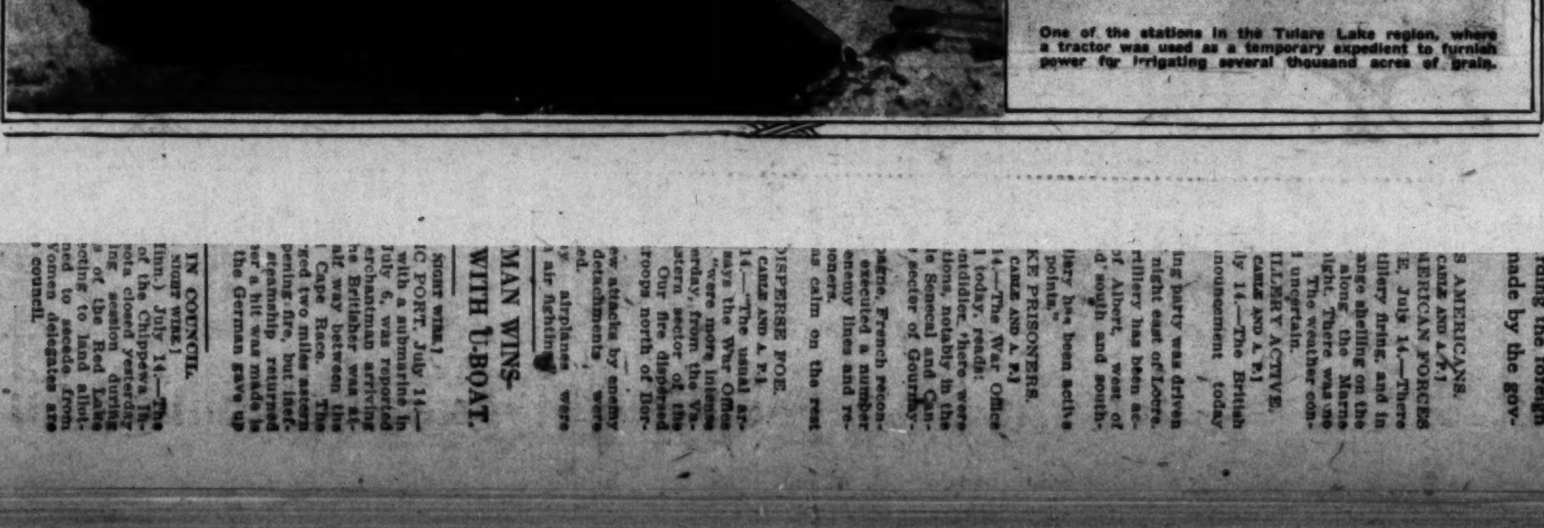
USES OIL MACHINE PARTS.

Having borrowed his original idea from the oil-derrick wheels, Mr. Collins makes use of the large supply of available oil-machinery parts in constructing his wheels, a distinct advantage at this time when materials of all kinds are scarce and high, and particularly worthy of note in California and the oil districts of Mexico.

The Tulare system includes four wheels of varying size. The wheels in a series are made successively smaller, because of the fact that the volume of water moved by the first and largest wheel is distributed between stations so that each succeeding machine handles a little less.

Mr. Collins expects to develop from his Los Angeles office considerable more business in Mexico. A description of his wheel which appeared in a recent issue of "Irrigation Age" has attracted attention among engineers and irrigating experts, especially in view of the fact that the government experiment with a gear-driven flash wheel in connection with the Yuma irrigation project is reported to have been abandoned as unsatisfactory.

The familiar cable drum of the oil fields furnished an inspiration as well as some of the material for the first successful Collins water lift.



One of the stations in the Tulare Lake region, where a tractor was used as a temporary expedient to furnish power for irrigating several thousand acres of grain.

Rice Industry Making Huge Strides in California.

From Small Beginning.

IT HAS come to be almost a fixed belief with agricultural experts that any crop grown with success anywhere can, if properly handled, be produced with profit in some part of California. And along with this has come the added conviction that it can be grown just a little better in California than anywhere else.

California's experience in rice growing has tended to encourage these beliefs. Ten years ago, when a syndicate owning a tract of refractory adobe land in the Sacramento Valley decided as a last resort to plant rice, there was a cry of derision from other growers. Only the fact that the syndicate was planting rice where nothing else had been successfully grown saved its members from being catalogued forthwith as "nuts." No one, including the syndicate men themselves, dreamed then that worth-while California land would ever be used for this "Chink" grain.

As a result of the encouraging yield of that first planting the same owners tried it again—two years in succession. Their harvests, while not to be compared with present-day yields, were so large, acreage and character of the soil considered, that the owners of a 1400-acre tract of fairly good land near Biggs in Butte county were encouraged to plant the whole area to rice. On this tract the rice industry of California may really be said to have been born.

The yield of the Biggs land was so good and the profit from the crop so entirely satisfactory that the next year saw 6000 acres planted to rice in the same vicinity. By 1914 rice-planting had spread to other parts of the Sacramento Valley and the area in the crop had grown to 16,000 acres. It was 28,000 acres in 1915 and more than 70,000 acres in 1916. Hore than 85,000 acres was harvested in 1917, and the plantings this year are believed to amount to more than 110,000 acres.

From 1912, the year of the first real commercial planting, to 1917 rice growing in California grew from a $75,000-a-year industry to a $12,000,000-a-year industry. The crop of last year amounted to 250,000,000 pounds, or a sixth of the whole production in the United States. This year, it is estimated, there will be a total production of close to 400,000,000 pounds.

MOST SACKS PER ACRE.

The volume production of California does not, however, tell the whole story of this State's success in the field of rice growing. California, with an average yield per acre in 1917 of 15.7 sacks, was far ahead of the other rice-producing States in this respect. In Arkansas the yield was 9.9 sacks per acre; in Louisiana, 8.38 sacks, and in Texas, 7.06 sacks. California produced 1,336,893 sacks of rice from 85,000 acres; Texas, 1,592,442 sacks from 225,263 acres; Louisiana, 4,198,170 sacks from 500,860 acres, and Arkansas, 458,715 sacks from 147,146 acres. North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia produced 52,500 sacks on 7500 acres. The figures are the official estimates of the Southern Rice Growers' Association and are computed on the basis of 200-pound sacks such as are used in the older southern rice-growing sections.

Rice growing in California has thus far been practically confined to the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, fully 95 per cent. of the rice grown last year having been produced in the former region. One of the large plantings of the San Joaquin Valley is in the Chowchilla district, where 1100 acres has been put in the crop this year. In Southern California the growing of rice is still largely in an experimental stage, although the results where the crop has been tried are declared to have been on the whole satisfatory. The main question seems to be whether rice can be grown, even in the places best adapted to it, as profitably as other crops.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

The principal tests of rice south of the Tehachepi have been made in Orange county and in Imperial Valley. In the former region several small parcels of land were planted last year. Four acres were tried out by George Mansberger at Wintersberg, and H. Carter planted three acres in the same vicinity. The crop grew well, according to reports, but the harvest was not such as to make it clear that rice would yield more than other crops that have been grown on the same land. There was also some question as to whether the conditions so near the ocean were just what was required.

The experiments in Imperial Valley are said to have been rather inconclusive, due to the lack of proper care of the plots planted. The opinion in Imperial Valley seems to have been, too, that the established crops were so profitable as to make it unwise to attempt the growing of the new crop, especially in view of the amount of water required for the extended flooding of rice. No doubt exists, as a result of the experiments made in the south, that rice would do as well in many southern districts as in the north, were its production to be undertaken.

But, although the south has hesitated about taking up rice culture, the same cannot be said of Southern California capital. Los Angeles men are heavily interested in a number of the largest rice-growing syndicates of the Sacramento Valley, and W. J. Pearson, a local capitalist and real estate man, is one of the largest individual planters in the valley this year. Mr. Pearson has nearly 2000 acres in one body in rice at Norman in Glenn county. Last year he harvested, according to his books, 60,000 bags of 100 pounds each from 1100 acres. He is using the same land, with an added acreage purchased early in 1918. The Spaulding Company of this city is another large Sacramento Valley grower.

PRICE TO BE FIXED.

There are five varieties of rice grown in the United States. The so-called Japanese varieties are planted almost exclusively in California, a kind known as the Wateribune being the one principally grown in this State.

The government fixed a price of $4.10 for a 100-pound sack of California "paddy" rice laid down at the warehouse for the season of 1917-1918. A commission of growers, of whom Mr. Pearson of this city is one, has been appointed by the Food Administration to determine prices for 1918-1919. Rice straw, which formerly was burned, was in great demand by the army last year at $15 a ton for use in packing of all kinds and as bedding for cavalry horses.

CULTURAL CONDITIONS.

The best rice land is a heavy loam with a clay subsoil, although one of the advantages of rice growing is that the crop will thrive in lands that are too heavily impregnated with alkali to be well suited to other crops. The land is prepared as for wheat, being plowed, disked and harrowed. A hundred pounds of seed is drilled in to each acre. Then the contours are run and water turned on for twenty-four hours. The land is then drained for another twenty-four hours. Next comes a flooding lasting two days, followed by another draining for a like period. By this time the rice is coming up.

From then on the land is kept under from two to ten inches of water until ten days before harvest, which takes place in October. The grain is cut with binders, shocked and let dry for from two to four days, when it is threshed in a regular rice thresher.

The growers of rice have their troubles with aquatic weeds and these in their way are just as bad as the weed pests the "dry-land farmer" has to contend with.

The water weeds, if unchecked, will take rice land in a short time. The solution when the trouble becomes too serious is the drastic one of draining the water from the land a year until the water plants perish. An intelligent rotation of rice with dry-land crops is held by most growers to be advisable and is being more and more practiced.

Since rice became an important California crop much land in the rice country has increased from $50 and $75 an acre to $200 and over. It is estimated that there is in all around 200,000 acres of land in the Sacramento Valley alone suitable for rice, with large areas in the San Joaquin Valley and elsewhere that can be advantageously used for the crop.

Objection has been raised against the introduction of rice in some sections on account of the great amount of water required for its production, the contention being made that the same amount of water would, if devoted to other crops, cover more land and go much farther toward helping out food production. Students of the situation declare, however that there is enough available rice land, to the irrigation of which no such objection could be raised, to make California the greatest rice-producing State in the Union.

Here in the United States it is difficult to realize that there is no other edible product, excepting meat, upon which more people in the world are dependent for food, than rice. We might advantageously consume much greater quantities of this nutritious food and grow the increase in our own rice fields, according to the 1918 food-production programme recently announced by the United States Department of Agriculture. An increased production and consumption not only would expand a profitable industry, the Federal specialists declare, but the eating of more rice in the place of wheat would release a greater quantity of the bread grain for shipment to the Allies.

England's Women Say There Shall be No Food Shortage.

WHILE THEIR MEN FIGHT THE HUN.

Thousands of able-bodied women have passed beyond the knitting, bandage-making stage over in Merrie England, leaving to children, cripples, and the aged these earliest war duties.

The war work of English women, translated in part, means grooming horses, doing forestry work, working on farms, making a business of hot-house vegetable raising, pitching hay, and, in general, taking the places left vacant in the agricultural world by the absence of men workers who are at the front.

While one type of women works in the cities in the factories and munitions plant, another type, sturdy, strong and tireless, is guaranteeing England a supply of food for another year. From almost every walk of life, those women who are physically able have taken their places in the fields, sometimes with a woman overseer, but more often with some man who has done his bit, earned his "blighty," and is home, barred forever from further war duties on account of his wounds. These men often cannot do the work attempted by the women, but they can give invaluable assistance and advice.

Grooming horses isn't the pleasantest job in the world, but the women of England never hesitate. They know that to carry on means to do what one is best fitted for, not what one wishes to do.

Clearing wooded lands so that crops may be planted is harder than sweeping floors or serving tea. Yet a whole army of women foresters, regular female Robin Hoods, clad in strange combinations of feminine and masculine garb, are toiling in the wooded districts of England

Not so strenuous, but quite as tiring and important, is the raising out of season of fresh vegetables, under cloches, and in hot-houses, so that a constant supply of green stuff may be assured.
